Sedition defined.]—Sedition, whether by words spoken or written, or by conduct, is a misdemeanor indictable at common law, punishable by fine and imprisonment. See Stroud's case, 3 St. Tr. 235; and cf. 22 St. Tr. 477, n. It embraces all those practices, whether by word, deed, or writing, which fall short of high treason (1 Hale, 77), but directly tend or have for their object to excite discontent or dissatisfaction; to excite ill-will between different classes of the King's subjects; to create public disturbance, or to lead to civil war; to bring into hatred or contempt the sovereign or the government, the laws or constitution of the realm, and generally all endeavours to promote public disorder; R. v. Fussell, 6 St. Tr., N. S. 723; 3 Cox, 291: R. v. Lovett, 3 St. Tr., N. S. 1177, Littledale, J.: R. v. O'Brien, 6 St. Tr., N. S. 571, 591, n., Crampton, J.: R. v. Sullivan, R. v. Pigott, 11 Cox, 44, 45, 51, 60, Fitzgerald, J.: and see 33 St. Tr. 342, 394; 1 St. Tr., N. S. 751; Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (6th ed.) p. 70; or to incite people to unlawful associations, or assemblies, insurrections, breaches of the peace, or forcible obstruction of the execution of the law. R. v. Jones, 6 St. Tr., N. S. 783, Wilde, C.J.: R. v. O'Donnell, 7 St. Tr., N. S. 637, Erle, J.: R. v. Feargus O'Connor, 4 St. Tr., N. S. 1352, 1364: R. v. Bronterre O'Brien, Id. 1341, 1343, Coleridge, J. This definition does not include candid, full, and free discussion of any public matter, which is the right of every citizen, unless the discussion takes place under circumstances calculated or intended to incite tumult; R. v. Collins, 3 St. Tr., N. S. 1149; 9 C. & P. 456; or the statements made are an appeal to the passions of the hearers and an incitement to violence or outrage. R. v. Burdett, 1 St. Tr., N. S. 1; 3 B. & Ald. 717. A writer may criticize or censure the conduct of the servants of the crown or the acts of the government,—he can do it freely and liberally, but it must be without malignity, and not imputing corrupt or malicious motives; he may also freely criticize the proceedings of courts of justice and of individual judges. The law does not seek to put any narrow construction on the expressions used, and only interferes when plainly and deliberately the limits are passed of frank and candid and honest discussion. R. v. Sullivan, R. v. Pigott, ubi supra. These cases were followed and approved in R. v. Burns, 16 Cox, 355, Cave, J. The exciting ill-will between different classes of his Majesty's subjects may amount to sedition; whether it does so or not in any particular case is a question for the jury after taking into consideration all the circumstances of the case. R. v. Burns, ubi supra. Political writings and words may be classed under three heads: those which are overt acts of treason; those which are seditious; and those which are allowable and justifiable. We have seen what political writings and words amount to overt acts of high treason (ante, p. 939). On the other hand, a man may lawfully discuss and criticize the measures adopted by the King and his ministers for the government of the country, provided he do it fairly, temperately, with decency and respect, and without imputing to them any corrupt or improper motive. See R. v. Lambert & Perry, 2 Camp. 398; 11 R. R. 748. All political writings and words between these extremes may be deemed seditious. As, for instance, if a man curse the King, wish him ill, give out scandalous stories concerning him (see R. v. Harvey (a), 2 St. Tr., N. S. 1; 2 B. & C. 257; 26 R. R. 337), or do anything that may lessen him in the esteem of his subjects, may weaken his government, or may raise jealousies between him and his people; or if he deny the King's right to the throne, in common and unadvised discourse (for if it be by advisedly speaking, it amounts to præmunire, 6 Anne, c. 41, s. 2 (ante, p. 986); all these are sedition. 4 Bl. Com. 423. In R. v. Tutchin (14 St. Tr. 1095; Holt, 424), Lord Holt said, that "if men shall not be called to account for possessing the people with an ill opinion of the government, no government can subsist; nothing can be worse to any government than to endeavour to procure animosities as to the management of it; this has always been looked upon as a crime, and no government can be safe unless it be punished." And Lord Ellenborough, in R. v. Cobbett, 29

(a) This was an indictment for defamatory, not for seditious, libel.

St. Tr. 1, 49; Holt on Libel (2nd ed.), 114; Starkie on Libel (6th ed.), 653, said that if a publication be calculated to alienate the affections of the people, by bringing the government into disesteem, whether the expedient resorted to be ridicule or obloquy, the writer, publisher, etc., are punishable. And whether the defendant really intended by his publication to alienate the affections of the people from the government, or not, is not material; if the publication be calculated to have that effect, it is a seditious libel. R. v. Burdett, 1 St. Tr., N. S. 1; 4 B. & Ald. 95. It is also a seditious libel if published with an intention (or if calculated, cf. R. v. Grant, 7 St. Tr. N. S. 507: R. v. Hicklin, L. R. 3 Q. B. 360) to inflame the minds of the labourers and working people, and to incite them to acts of violence, riot, and disorder, and to the burning and destruction of corn, machines, and other property. R. v. Cobbett, 2 St. Tr., N. S. 789, 899, Tenterden, L.C.J. To impute corruption to judges has been said to be seditious. R. v. Lord George Gordon, 22 St. Tr. 177. But it would seem to be properly punishable as contempt of court or defamatory libel. (See post, pp. 1094, 1118.) So also as to a libel on the clergy of a diocese. See R. v. Williams, 1 St. Tr., N. S. 1291; 5 B. & Ald. 595; 24 R. R. 480: R. v. Harvey, 2 St. Tr., N. S. 1; 2 B. & C. 257, where the indictment is framed without the word "seditious." But statements about the King which if published of subjects would be defamatory appear to be regarded as seditious and incapable of justification. See Odgers on Libel (3rd ed.), 500, 501: Ex parte O'Brien, 12 L. R. Ir. 29; 15 Cox, 180: R. v. Duffy [1846] 6 St. Tr., N. S. 303; 9 Ir. L. R. 329.

Secondly, as to the form of the indictment.—As to the merely formal part, it is sufficient to refer to the precedent ante, p. 988.

1. The indictment must charge a publication; composing or writing a seditious libel merely does not seem to be an offence, unless the libel be afterwards published. See R. v. Burdett, 1 St. Tr., N. S. 1; 4 B. & Ald. 95. As to venue, see post, p. 992.

2. Such part of the publication as is seditious, or as the prosecutor chooses to set out, must be set out correctly, as the powers of amendment under 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100; 11 & 12 Vict. c. 46; 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, ss. 1, 18 (ante, pp. 51–55), seem not to apply, and the full strictness of the common law system of pleading continues. Re Crowe, 3 Cox, 123: R. v. Fussell, 6 St. Tr., N. S. 723; 3 Cox, 291: Bradlaugh v. R., 3 Q. B. D. 607; 48 L. J. (M. C.) 5. (See ante, pp. 75, 302.) If parts of the publication be selected, they should be set forth thus: "In a certain part of which said —— there were and are contained certain false, wicked, malicious, scandalous, seditious, and libellous matters, of and concerning, etc., according to the tenor and effect following; that is to say: —— And in a certain other part," etc., etc. If the libel be in a foreign language, it must be set out in such language verbatim, together with a correct translation. Zenobio v. Axtell, 6 T. R. 162: R. v. Peltier, 28 St. Tr. 529.

3. And besides setting out the seditious passages of the publication, the indictment should also contain such averments and innuendoes as may be necessary to render it intelligible, and its application to the King or his government, etc., evident. See R. v. Yates, 12 Cox, 233. When the statement of an intrinsic fact is necessary in order to render the libel intelligible, or to show its seditious quality, such intrinsic fact must be averred in the introductory part of the indictment; but where it is necessary merely to explain a word by reference to something which has preceded it, this is done by an innuendo. And an innuendo can explain only in cases where something already appears upon the record to ground the explanation; it cannot, of itself, change, add to, or enlarge the sense of expressions beyond their usual acceptation and meaning. R. v. Horne, 20 St. Tr. 651; 2 Cowp. 652: R. v. Burdett, 1 St. Tr., N. S. 1. See further on this subject, "Defamatory Libel" (post, pp. 1118, et seq.). In R. v. Tutchin, 14 St. Tr. 1095, one part of the libel ran thus: "The mismanagements of the navy have been a greater tax upon the merchants than the duties raised by parliament." In order to explain what was meant by the navy, the introductory part of the information charged the libel to have been written "of and concerning the royal navy of this kingdom, and the government of the said navy;" and when, in stating the libel, it came to the word "navy," it explained it by an innuendo, thus: meaning "the royal navy of this kingdom:" which, being coupled with the averment in the introductory part of it, made the sense and the charge complete. In R. v. Matthews, 15 St. Tr. 1323, the words of the libel were: "From the solemnity of the Chevalier's birth, and if hereditary right be any recommendation, he has that to plead in his favour." It was there objected—What Chevalier? who is he? what recommendation? and to what? But in the introductory part of the information the libel was charged to have been written "of and concerning the Pretender, and of and concerning his right to the crown of Great Britain:" and it was held that the innuendoes in the middle of the libel, explaining the words "Chevalier, etc.," to mean the Pretender, and his hereditary right to the crown of Great Britain, when connected with the averment in the introductory part, of its being written "of and concerning the Pretender, and his right to the crown of Great Britain," were a sufficient explanation to make good the charge.

Evidence for the Prosecution.

On the eighth day of June, etc.]—The day on which the libel is alleged to have been written and published is not material, and need not be proved as laid; but a variance between the indictment and evidence, in any dates alleged and mentioned in the libel, would be fatal unless amended. (See ante, p. 302.)

In the county aforesaid: Venue.]—Subject to the provisions of 7 G. 4, c. 64, s. 12 (ante, p. 43), the offence must be proved to have been committed in the county named as the venue in the margin, and in which the trial is had. If a letter containing the libel reach the party to whom it is directed in the proper county, see R. v. Johnson, 7 East, 65; 29 St. Tr. 81; 8 R. R. 597: even though addressed to him at a place out of the county, R. v. Watson, 1 Camp. 215, or even if a sealed letter, containing the libel, be put into the post office in the proper county, R. v. Burdett, 1 St. Tr., N. S. 1; 4 B. & Ald. 95, by three judges, Bayley, J., dub., it is a sufficient publication of the libel in that county: and in the last case the three judges held, that if a man write and compose a libel in L., with intent to publish it, and afterwards publish it in M., he may be indicted for a misdemeanor in either county; and see R. v. Williams, 2 Camp. 506. As to these decisions, see R. v. Ellis [1899] 1 Q. B. 230 (ante, p. 44). In R. v. Watson, 1 Camp. 215, Lord Ellenborough held that the post-mark of a particular place within the county, upon a letter containing the libel, was no evidence of a publication in that county; for the post-mark might be forged. But this case is not now followed (see Stocken v. Collin, 7 M. & W. 529; 10 L. J. (Ex.) 227), and it would seem that post-marks are evidence that the letters on which they are were in the office to which the post-mark belongs, at the date thereby specified. See R. v. Plumer, R. & R. 264; 15 R. R. 741: R. v. Johnson, 7 East, 65; 29 St. Tr. 81; 8 R. R. 597: Warren v. Warren, 1 Cr. M. & R. 250; 4 Tyrw. 850: and Odgers on Libel (3rd ed.), 590.

Wickedly, maliciously, and seditiously.]—The malice, etc., may be inferred from the libel itself, without any extrinsic evidence of it. R. v. Creevey, 1 M. & Sel. 273, 282; 14 R. R. 427: R. v. Lord Abingdon, 1 Esp. 226; 5 R. R. 733: Stockdale v. Hansard, 3 St. Tr., N. S. 723, 882, 896: Bromage v. Prosser, 4 B. & C. 247, 255 (ante, p. 343). So, in order to prove the malicious or seditious intent, evidence is admissible of the defendant's having published other copies of the same libel, Plunkett v. Cobbett, 5 Esp. 136, or other libels, R. v. Pearce, Peake (3rd ed.), 106, provided that they expressly refer to the subject of the libel set out in the indictment. Finnerty v. Tipper, 2 Camp. 72: see Chubb v. Westley, 6 C. & P. 436.

Did write and publish, etc.]—A publication must be proved. Upon a count charging the defendant with having composed, printed, and published a libel, proof that he composed and published it, R. v. Williams, 2 Camp. 646, or even that he only published it, R. v. Hunt, 2 Camp. 583; 31 St. Tr. 367, 408, will be sufficient to maintain the count.

The publication may be by selling the libel, distributing it gratis, reading it to others (if he knew the tendency of it before), or by sending it and having it delivered to another person, or even to the party libelled by it. See Bac. Abr. Libel (B. 2); 1 Hawk, c. 73, s. 11. So, evidence of the defendant's procuring another person to publish the libel, is sufficient to maintain a count charging the defendant with having published it: and therefore evidence of the libel's being purchased in a bookseller's shop, or at a newspaper office, or the office of a newsvendor, from a servant there, in the course of business, will support a count charging the master with having published it (4 Bac. Abr. Libel (B. 2): R. v. Almon, 20 St. Tr. 803, 839; 5 Burr. 2686), even although it be proved that the master was not privy to it. R. v. Walter, 3 Esp. 21: R. v. Gutch, M. & M. 433; 31 R. R. 744: Att.-Gen. v. Siddon, 1 Cr. & J. 220. But the presumption created by such evidence can now be rebutted by evidence under 6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, s. 7 (ante, p. 987). As to publication through an innocent agent, see ante, p. 12. As to what may amount to evidence against the editor of a newspaper of conspiring to pervert the course of justice with the author of certain articles appearing therein, see R. v. Tibbits [1902] 1 K. B. 77; 20 Cox, 60 (C. C. R.).

The delivery of a newspaper to the officer of a stamp office was held to be sufficient publication to sustain an indictment for a libel in that paper, inasmuch as the officer would at all events have an opportunity of reading the libel himself. R. v. Amphlit, 4 B. & C. 35; 6 D. & R. 125; 28 R. R. 206. And if the manuscript of a libel be proved to be in the handwriting of the defendant, and it be also proved to have been printed and published, this is evidence to go to the jury that it was published by the defendant, though there is no express evidence that he authorized the printing or publishing. R. v. Beare, 1 Ld. Raym. 414: Lamb's case, 9 Co. Rep. 59: R. v. Lovett, 3 St. Tr., N. S. 1117; 9 C. & P. 462.

Where the libel is contained in a newspaper, and the defendant was indicted for having published it, the fact that the defendant is the proprietor of the newspaper may now be proved in the manner provided by s. 15 (post, p. 1121) of the Newspaper Libel and Registration Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 60): and see Odgers on Libel (3rd ed.), 591. The provisions of 6 & 7 W. 4, c. 76, ss. 8, 13, as to proving the defendant to have printed and published the paper, were repealed by 33 & 34 Vict. c. 99. Under 39 G. 3, c. 79, s. 28 (now incorporated in the second schedule to the Newspaper, etc., Repeal Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 24)), the printer of a newspaper is liable to penalties for printing and publishing without the name of the printer, and required to keep copies with the name and address of the person for whom he printed.

A certain [false], wicked, seditious, and malicious libel.]—The libel itself must be produced in evidence, and must correspond in substance with the indictment. (See ante, pp. 75, 302.) If the libel be in a foreign language, and be set out in that language, together with a translation (see ante, p. 991), the translation must be proved to be correct. R. v. Peltier, 28 St. Tr. 529; 2 Sel. (N. P.) 1048. A seditious libel does not necessarily consist of written or printed matter, but it may be evidenced by a woodcut or engraving. R. v. Sullivan, R. v. Piggott, 11 Cox, 44, 51.

It is not necessary to prove the libel to be false. See post, p. 997.

Meaning his said Majesty.]—In strictness all the innuendoes must be proved by some persons acquainted with the nature of the libel, and who can swear that they understood such and such words to mean so and so, or to have reference to such and such persons, things, or facts, as described by the innuendo. In many cases, however, the truth of the innuendo appears so evident from the context of the libel itself, that further proof is deemed unnecessary, and it is left to the jury upon a consideration of the libel alone. In an action for libel it is the judge's duty to determine, upon the evidence adduced at the trial, whether the words complained of are reasonably capable of the meaning ascribed to them by the innuendoes, and if they are not, he is bound to withdraw the case from the jury and to direct either a non-suit or a verdict for the defendant. Hunt v. Goodlake, 43 L. J. (C. P.) 54: Mulligan v. Cole, L. R. 10 Q. B. 549; 44 L. J. (Q. B.) 153.

Evidence for the Defence.

The defendant may prove that he did not write or publish the libel at all; or he may contend that the publication is not seditious; or that he was privileged in publishing it.

1. He may prove that he was not concerned in the writing or publishing of the libel in question; and in the case of a newspaper, he may prove that he is neither printer, publisher, nor proprietor of it, nor otherwise interested or concerned in it. He may also prove that he was a mere innocent agent in the publication; as, for instance, that he carried and delivered the letter containing the libel, without knowing its contents, or delivered one paper by mistake for another (R. v. Topham, 4 T. R. 126, 128), or the like. He may also, where a presumptive case of publication, by the act of any other person by his authority, has been established, prove that such publication was made without his authority, consent, or knowledge, and that it did not arise from want of due care or caution on his part; 6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, s. 7 (ante, p. 987); but the Act does not say expressly whether such evidence shall be a complete defence or go in mitigation of punishment only. On the trial of a criminal information against the defendants for a libel published in their newspaper, it appeared that the duty of editing the paper was left entirely by them to an editor whom they had appointed. The libel was inserted in the paper by the editor without the actual authority, consent, or knowledge of the defendants. The judge on these facts having directed a verdict of guilty against the defendants, it was held by Cockburn, C.J., and Lush, J. (Mellor, J., diss.), that there must be a new trial, for upon the true construction of the Libel Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 96), s. 7 (ante, p. 987), the libel was published without the defendants' authority, consent, or knowledge, and it was a question for the jury whether the publication arose from any want of due care or caution on their part. R. v. Holbrook, 3 Q. B. D. 60; 47 L. J. (Q. B.) 85. Upon the second trial, the same facts having been proved as on the first trial, the judge summed up in terms which might have led the jury to suppose that the general authority given to the editor to manage the editorial department of the paper, was per se evidence that the defendants had authorized the publication of the libel within the meaning of 6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, s. 7, and the jury having returned a verdict of guilty, a new trial was granted on the ground of misdirection, Cockburn, C.J., and Lush, J. (Mellor, J., diss.), being of opinion that a general authority to an editor to conduct the business of a newspaper, in the absence of anything to give it a different character, must be taken to mean an authority to conduct it according to law, and therefore not to authorize the publication of a libel. R. v. Holbrook, 4 Q. B. D. 42; 48 L. J. (Q. B.) 113. It is not competent to the defendant to prove that a paper similar to that for the publication of which he is prosecuted was published on a former occasion by other persons who have never been prosecuted for it. R. v. Holt, 5 T. R. 436: R. v. Newman, 1 E. & B. 268.

2. He may prove that the words alleged to be seditious, whether spoken or written, are not seditious; and for that purpose a defendant has been allowed to give in evidence other passages in the same speech, newspaper or publication, plainly referring to the subject of the libel in question, or fairly connected with it, though disjoined from it by other matter, and in a different type, in order to prove that his intention was not such as was imputed to him by the prosecution, or that the passage in question would not fairly bear the construction attempted to be given to it. R. v. Lambert & Perry, 2 Camp. 398, 400; 31 St. Tr. 335; 11 R. R. 748.

3. He may show that he was privileged in publishing the matter alleged to be seditious. As, for instance, that it formed part of a speech delivered by him as a member of parliament (1 W. & M. sess. 2, c. 2); but this privilege extends only to his speaking in the house; for if he afterwards publish his speech, he is amenable for it in the same manner as any other person. R. v. Creevey, 1 M. & Sel. 273, 282; 14 R. R. 427: R. v. Lord Abingdon, 1 Esp. 226; 5 R. R. 733: Stockdale v. Hansard, 3 St. Tr., N. S. 723, 882, 896; 9 A. & E. 1; 2 P. & D. 1. The publication in a public newspaper of a faithful report of a debate in either house of parliament is privileged, so that the publisher is not responsible for statements made in the course of the debate so reported and published (Wason v. Walter, L. R. 4 Q. B. 73; 38 L. J. (Q. B.) 34); and the publication of articles fairly commenting upon debates so reported and published is equally privileged. Id. 3 & 4 Vict. c. 9, passed in consequence of Stockdale v. Hansard, ubi supra, provided for staying proceedings in respect of documents laid before either house and published by their authority. This enactment mainly affects defamatory libels, but appears to extend not only to defamatory, but to seditious, obscene, or blasphemous matter contained in such documents.

So, he may prove that the matter alleged to be seditious was contained in a petition to parliament, and published to its members only, or contained in articles of the peace, or in some other regular proceeding in a court of justice (1 Hawk. c. 73, s. 8), or the like. See Fairman v. Ives, 5 B. & Ald. 642; 24 R. R. 514: M'Gregor v. Thwaites, 3 B. & C. 24; 5 Dowl. & Ry. 447.

With regard to reports of judicial proceedings in newspapers, it is enacted by s. 3 (post, p. 1121) of the Law of Libel Amendment Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 64), that a fair and accurate report in any newspaper of proceedings publicly heard before any court exercising judicial authority, shall, if published contemporaneously with such proceedings, be privileged. As to what is a newspaper, see 44 & 45 Vict. c. 60, s. 1, and 51 & 52 Vict. c. 64, s. 1 (post, pp. 1120, 1121).

At common law, and irrespective of 51 & 52 Vict. c. 64, s. 3 (post, p. 1121), he may prove that it is a fair report of proceedings in a court of justice. See R. v. Wright, 8 T. R. 293; 4 R. R. 649: Lewis v. Walter, 4 B. & Ald. 605; 23 R. R. 415: Chalmers v. Payne, 2 Cr. M. & R. 156: Lewis v. Levy, E. B. & E. 537: Ryalls v. Leader, L. R. 1 Ex. 296; 35 L. J. (Ex.) 185: Milissich v. Lloyds, 13 Cox, 575; 46 L. J. (C. P.) 404. 51 & 52 Vict. c. 64, s. 3, excepts from protection blasphemous and obscene libel, but does not name seditious libel. The privilege at common law and by statute appears to attach whether the report published contains seditious or defamatory or even treasonable matter, if the publication is a fair and bonâ fide report. R. v. Gray, 10 Cox, 184 (Ir.). The publication of the history of a trial, consisting of the facts of the case, and of the law of the case as applied to those facts, is lawful. But the privilege is qualified only, and not absolute, and the fact that the publication incriminated is a fair report of proceedings in a court of justice must not be considered a justification or excuse in all cases. For instance, in the course of a trial it may become necessary for the purposes of justice to hear or read matter of a scandalous, blasphemous, or indecent nature; yet it is not lawful, under the pretence of publishing that trial, to circulate such matter. 51 & 52 Vict. c. 64, s. 3: R. v. Mary Carlile, 3 B. & Ald. 167: R. v. Creevey, 1 M. & Sel. 273, 281; 14 R. R. 427, per Bayley, J.: Steele v. Brannan, L. R. 7 C. P. 261; 41 L. J. (M. C.) 85: Macdougall v. Knight, 14 App. Cas. 194; 58 L. J. (Q. B.) 537; Odgers on Libel (3rd ed.), 283. And a true report of the proceedings in a court of justice sent to a newspaper by a person who is not a reporter on the staff of the newspaper, is not privileged absolutely; and if it be sent from a malicious motive, an action will lie against the sender. Stevens v. Sampson, 5 Ex. D. 53. Until the passing of the Law of Libel Amendment Act, 1888, the publication of reports of ex parte proceedings was discouraged if not held illegal, and the publication of proceedings before justices prior to committal was at least of doubtful legality. See R. v. Parke [1903] 2 K. B. 432, 438, Wills, J. But it is now settled that a fair and accurate report of an ex parte application made to a magistrate in open court is privileged (Kimber v. Press Association [1893] 1 Q. B. 65; 62 L. J. (Q. B.) 152: R. v. Gray, 10 Cox, 184), and this rule appears to apply in all cases where the magistrate has jurisdiction in point of law, although there is what may be called want of jurisdiction, because the facts do not make out the charge. Usill v. Hales, 3 C. P. D. 319; 47 L. J. (C. P.) 323; 14 Cox, 61: Usill v. Brearley, 3 C. P. D. 206; 47 L. J. (C. P.) 380: Lewis v. Levy, E. B. & E. 537; 27 L. J. (Q. B.) 282: and Wason v. Walter, L. R. 4 Q. B. 73, 94; 38 L. J. (Q. B.) 34, 44; where Cockburn, C.J., said, "even in quite recent days judges, in holding the publication of the proceedings of courts of justice lawful, have thought it necessary to distinguish what are called ex parte proceedings as a probable exception from the operation of the rule. Yet ex parte proceedings before magistrates, and even before this court, as, for instance, on application for criminal informations, are published every day; but such a thing as an action or indictment founded on a report of such an ex parte proceeding is unheard of, and if any such action or indictment should be brought, it would probably be held that the true criterion of the privilege is not whether the report was or was not ex parte, but whether it was a fair and honest report of what had taken place, published simply with a view to the information of the public, and innocent of all intention to do injury to the reputation of the party affected."

These decisions appear to overrule the opinions at one time expressed that the reports of proceedings (particularly ex parte proceedings) before magistrates were not privileged. See R. v. Fisher, 2 Camp. 563; 11 R. R. 799: R. v. Lee, 5 Esp. 123: R. v. Fleet, 1 B. & Ald. 379; 19 R. R. 344: Duncan v. Thwaites, 3 B. & C. 556, 583: R. v. Parke [1903] 2 K. B. 432, 438.

As to the publication of matters prejudicial to accused persons whose trial is pending, see R. v. Tibbits [1902] 1 K. B. 77; 20 Cox, 70, and post, p. 1095.

A fair and accurate report published in any newspaper of the proceedings of a public meeting and of certain bodies and persons specifically mentioned, and the publication of certain notices or reports issued by certain public officers, have a modified and limited protection afforded by 51 & 52 Vict. c. 64, s. 4 (post, p. 1121). It was formerly no defence to an action or indictment for publishing a libel in a newspaper, that it was a true report of proceedings at a public meeting held under a local improvement act, or the like. Davison v. Duncan, 7 E. & B. 229; 26 L. J. (Q. B.) 104: Popham v. Pickburn, 7 H. & N. 891; 31 L. J. (Ex.) 133.

The defendant is in no case allowed to prove the truth of a seditious libel, in justification of his having published it. 6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, s. 6 (post, p. 1119), permitting a plea that a libel is true, and its publication in the public interest, applies only to defamatory libels, and not to seditious or blasphemous libels. R. v. Duffy, 6 St. Tr., N. S. 303; 2 Cox, 45; 9 Ir. L. R. 329: Ex parte O'Brien, 12 Ir. R. C. L. 29; 15 Cox. 180: R. v. McHugh [1901] 2 Ir. Rep. 569. In R. v. Burdett, 1 St. Tr., N. S. 1; 4 B. & Ald. 95, it was held that on an indictment for a seditious libel containing statements involving criminal charges, the defendant could not at the trial or in mitigation prove their truth; but that he could after verdict in mitigation prove that he had read them in newspapers. But the publication in a newspaper of matter which is in itself a seditious libel will not be excused merely on the ground that it is copied from a foreign newspaper as an item of news, although this is a matter for the jury in considering the intention of the defendant; but they must also consider the circumstances under which the matter was copied, the state of the country at the time, the class of persons to whom the newspaper is addressed, and the general tone of the other writings in the newspaper. R. v. Sullivan, 11 Cox, 44 (Ir.). It was held in R. v. McHugh, ubi supra, that the defence of fair comment and absence of malice under 51 & 52 Vict. c. 64, s. 4 (post, p. 1121), is not open on a trial for seditious libel.

The jury may give a general verdict on the whole matter put in issue, and shall not be required by the court to find the defendant guilty merely on proof of the publication, and of the sense ascribed to it in the indictment or information. 32 G. 3, c. 60, s. 1 (post, p. 1118). This is without prejudice to their power to return a special verdict (s. 3), and does not affect the right of the judge to give his opinion and direction to the jury (s. 2), nor the right of the defendant on conviction to move in arrest of judgment (s. 4), as in other criminal cases.

Indictment for Seditious Words (Common Law).

Central Criminal Court, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present that J. S., being a wicked, malicious, seditious, and evil-disposed person, and wickedly, maliciously, and seditiously contriving and intending the peace of our lord the King and of this realm to disquiet and disturb, and the liege subjects of our said lord the King to incite and move to hatred and dislike of the person of our said lord the King, and of the government established by law within this realm, and to incite, move, and persuade great numbers of the liege subjects of our said lord the King to insurrections, riots, tumults, and breaches of the peace, and to prevent by force and arms the execution of the laws of this realm and the preservation of the public peace, on the —— day of ——, in the year of our Lord ——, in the parish of A., in the county of S., and within the jurisdiction of the said court, in the presence and hearing of divers, to wit, 200 of the liege subjects of our said lord the King then assembled together, in a certain speech and discourse by him the said J. S. then addressed to the said liege subjects so then assembled together, as aforesaid, unlawfully, wickedly, maliciously, and seditiously did publish, utter, pronounce, and declare with a loud voice, of and concerning the government established by law within this realm, and of and concerning our said lord the King and the crown of this realm, and of and concerning the liege subjects of our said lord the King, committing and being engaged in divers insurrections, riots, and breaches of the public peace, amongst other words, and matter, the false, wicked, seditious, and inflammatory words and matter following, that is to say:— "The late insurrection in Paris has shown how easily a crown can be crumbled. Now is the time to be brave, now is the time to be resolute, and the game's our own. I do not care for those persons who wear other person's clothes; I do not care if what I say is criminal; I shall do all in my power during the next week to put a stop to trade, and urge the Irishmen in London to a rebellion:"—in contempt of our said lord the King, in open violation of the laws of this realm, to the evil and pernicious example of all others in the like case offending, and against the peace of our said lord the King, his crown and dignity. If there be any doubt of being able to prove this precise form of words, you may vary the statement in different counts. For other forms of indictment for seditious words, see R. v. Frost, 22 St. Tr. 471: R. v. Stephens, 3 St. Tr., N. S. 1189: R. v. O'Brien: R. v. Meagher, 6 St. Tr., N. S. 571: R. v. Jones, 6 St. Tr., N. S. 783: R. v. Burns, 16 Cox, 355.

For precedents of indictments for seditious conspiracy, see R. v. Hunt, 1 St. Tr., N. S. 171, 175; 22 R. R. 485: R. v. Feargus O'Connor, 4 St. Tr., N. S. 935, 939: R. v. Thomas Cooper, Id. 1249, 1251, and post, Book. II. Part III., tit. "Conspiracy."

Fine and imprisonment as a misdemeanant of the first division. 40 & 41 Vict. c. 21, s. 40; 61 & 62 Vict. c. 41, s. 6 (ante, p. 988).

Offences against the King's title, prerogative, person, or government, are not triable at quarter sessions. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (ante, p. 126).

Evidence.

Prove that the defendant spoke the words set out in the indictment, or at least so much of them as may amount to an indictable offence. R. v. Fussell, 6 St. Tr., N. S. 723: see Cro. Jac. 407. Any variance in substance may be fatal: even where the words were set out in the indictment in the third person, "He is," etc., and proved to have been spoken in the second person, "You are," etc., the variance was held fatal; R. v. Berry, 4 T. R. 217; and where the words set out imported that they were spoken of a thing then present, and the words were proved to have been spoken of a thing not present at the time, the variance was held to be fatal. Walters v. Mace, 2 B. & Ald. 756. The powers of amendment under 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100 (ante, p. 52, et seq.), do not seem to apply where words are the gist of the offence (see ante, pp. 75, 302). Prove the innuendoes, as in the last precedent, and see the evidence under the last precedent, generally.

Where seditious words are spoken at a meeting, those who do anything, as by expressions of approval, to help the speaker to produce upon the hearers the natural effect of the words spoken, are guilty of uttering seditious words just as if they spoke them themselves. R. v. Burns, 16 Cox, 355, 366, Cave, J., but the merely standing by and saying nothing when the seditious words are spoken does not make the stander-by guilty of uttering seditious words. Id.

UNLAWFUL OATHS.

Statutes.

37 G. 3, c. 123 (Unlawful Oaths Act, 1797, s. 1.]—Whereas divers wicked and evil-disposed persons have of late attempted to seduce persons serving in his Majesty's forces by sea and land, and others of his Majesty's subjects, from their duty and allegiance to his Majesty, and to incite them to acts of mutiny and sedition (see 37 G. 3, c. 70, post, p. 1004), and have endeavoured to give effect to their wicked and traitorous proceedings, by imposing upon the persons whom they have attempted to seduce the pretended obligation of oaths unlawfully administered; be it enacted, etc., that any person or persons who shall, in any manner or form whatsoever, administer or cause to be administered, or be aiding or assisting at, or present at and consenting to, the administering or taking of any oath or engagement purporting or intended to bind the person taking the same to engage in any mutinous or seditious purpose, or to disturb the public peace, or to be of any association, society, or confederacy formed for any such purpose, or to obey the orders or commands of any committee or body of men not lawfully constituted, or of any leader or commander or other person not having authority by law for that purpose, or not to inform or give evidence against any associate, confederate, or other person, or not to reveal or discover any unlawful combination or confederacy, or not to reveal or discover any illegal act done or to be done, or not to reveal or discover any illegal oath or engagement which may have been administered or tendered to or taken by such person or persons, or to or by any other person or persons, or the import of any such oath or engagement, shall, on conviction thereof by due course of law, be adjudged guilty of felony, and may be transported for any term of years not exceeding seven years; and every person who shall take any such oath or engagement, not being compelled (see s. 2, infra) thereto, shall, on conviction thereof by due course of law, be adjudged guilty of felony, and may be transported for any term of years not exceeding seven years. [Penal servitude was substituted for transportation by 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3, ante, p. 235.]

Sect. 2.]—Persons compelled to take such oath not justified or excused unless within four days they declare the same.

Sect. 3—Aiders and abettors.]—Persons aiding and assisting at, or present at, and consenting to, the administering or taking of any such oath or engagement as aforesaid, and persons causing any such oath or engagement to be administered or taken, though not present at the administering or taking thereof, shall be deemed principal offenders, and shall be tried as such, although the persons or person who actually administered such oath or engagement, if any such there shall be, shall not have been tried or convicted. [See ante, pp. 12–21.]

Sect. 4—Form of indictment.]—It shall not be necessary in any indictment against any person or persons administering or causing to be administered or taken, or taking, any such oath or engagement as aforesaid, or aiding or assisting at, or present at and consenting to, the administering or taking thereof, to set forth the words of such oath or engagement; and that it shall be sufficient to set forth the purport of such oath or engagement, or some material part thereof.

Sect. 5—Form of oath.]—Provided always . . . that any engagement or obligation whatsoever, in the nature of an oath, shall be deemed an oath within the intent and meaning of this Act, in whatever form or manner the same shall be administered or taken; and whether the same shall be actually administered by any person or persons to any other person or persons, or taken by any person or persons without any administration thereof by any other person or persons.

Sect. 6—Venue.]—Provided also . . . that any offence committed against this Act on the high seas or out of this realm, or within that part of Great Britain called England, shall and may be prosecuted, tried, and determined, before any court of oyer and terminer or gaol delivery for any county in that part of Great Britain called England, in such manner and form as if such offence had been therein committed; and, if committed in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, shall and may be prosecuted, tried, and determined, either before the Justiciary Court at Edinburgh, or in any of the circuit courts in that part of the United Kingdom. [This Act applies only to Great Britain. 50 G. 3, c. 102, makes similar provisions as to Ireland.]

Sect. 7.]—Persons tried under the Act not to be tried again for treason on the same facts. [Cf. 52 & 53 Vict. c. 63, s. 33 (ante, p. 170.]

By the Unlawful Societies Act, 1799 (39 G. 3, c. 79), certain societies were prohibited as unlawful confederacies, and societies which require or use an oath or engagement unlawful within 37 G. 3, c. 123, are guilty of unlawful combination or confederacy. By the Seditious Meetings Act, 1817 (57 G. 3, c. 19, s. 25), partially repealed by 53 & 54 Vict. c. 33, all societies the members whereof are required to take any oath or engagement which is unlawful within 37 G. 3, c. 123 (ante, p. 999), or 52 G. 3, c. 104 (post, p. 1002), or to take any oath not required or authorized by law, etc., are to be deemed guilty of an unlawful combination within 39 G. 3, c. 79, s. 2. On these Acts see R. v. Dixon, 6 C. & P. 601; 3 St. Tr., N. S. 1281; Steph. Dig. Cr. Law (6th ed.), p. 66. Exceptions are made in favour of declarations in a form approved and registered at petty sessions, and confirmed at quarter sessions (39 G. 3, c. 79, s. 3); of regular lodges of Freemasons, subject to conditions (ss. 4, 5); and of registered friendly societies, subject to conditions. 59 & 60 Vict. c. 25, s. 32.

Proceedings under 39 G. 3, c. 79, and 57 G. 3, c. 19, can only be taken in the name of a law officer of the Crown. 9 & 10 Vict. c. 33, s. 1.

Indictment for administering an Unlawful Oath. (37 G. 3, c. 123, s. 1, (ante, p. 999.)

Sussex, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present that J. S., on the first day of June, in the year of our lord ——, did feloniously and unlawfully administer and cause to be administered to one J. N., a certain oath and engagement, purporting, and then intended, to bind the said J. N. not to inform or give evidence against any associate, confederate, or other person of or belonging to a certain unlawful association and confederacy; and which said oath and engagement was then taken by the said J. N.; against the form [as ante, p. 465]. If the offence has been committed on the high seas, or out of the realm, or in England, the venue may be laid in any county in England. 37 G. 3, c. 123, s. 6.

Felony: penal servitude for not more than seven nor less than three years, or imprisonment not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour. 37 G. 3, c. 123, s. 1; 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3 (ante, p. 235); 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235).

The offence of administering or taking unlawful oaths is not triable at quarter sessions. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (ante, p. 126).

It is not necessary to set out the words of the oath; stating the purport, or some material part of it, is all that is required. 37 G. 3, c. 123, s. 4. The oath described by the statute must purport or be intended to bind the party taking it to one or other of the following things:—viz. 1. To engage in some mutinous or seditious purpose; 2. To disturb the public peace; 3. To be of some association, society or confederacy formed for any such purpose; 4. To obey the orders or commands of a committee or body of men not lawfully constituted, or of a leader or commander or other person not having authority by law for that purpose; 5. Not to inform or give evidence against any associate, confederate, or other person; 6. Not to reveal or discover any unlawful combination or confederacy; 7. Not to reveal or discover any illegal act done, or to be done; 8. Not to reveal or discover any illegal oath or engagement which may have been administered or tendered to or taken by such person or persons, or to or by any other person or persons, or the import of any such oath or engagement. 37 G. 3, c. 123, s. 1. If the purport of the oath be doubtful, you should set it out in different ways in several counts, taking care to bring it within some of the descriptions above mentioned. See R. v. Moors, 6 East, 419, n. (b).

Evidence.

Prove that J. S. administered to J. N. an oath or engagement (it is no matter in what form, 37 G. 3, c. 123, s. 5: see R. v. Lovelass, 6 C. & P. 596; 1 M. & Rob. 349; 3 St. Tr., N. S. 1280) of the purport stated in some one count in the indictment. If read from a paper at the time it was administered, still it is not necessary to produce such paper, or give the defendant notice to produce it; but parol evidence of its purport, without such notice, will be sufficient. R. v. Moors, 6 East, 419, n. (b). So, parol evidence of any declarations made by the defendant at the time he administered the oath will be received in proof of the nature of the oath, if that do not sufficiently appear from the words of the oath itself. Id. And where it appeared that an oath was unlawfully administered by an associated body of men, purporting to bind the party not to reveal such unlawful combination or conspiracy, or any illegal act done by them, the judges seemed to have no doubt of its being a felony within this Act, although it appeared that the object of the association was a conspiracy to raise wages and make regulations in a particular trade, and not to stir up mutiny or sedition. R. v. Marks, 3 East, 157; 6 R. R. 577: see R. v. Ball, 6 C. & P. 563: R. v. Brodribb, Id. 571.

An association, the members of which are bound by oath not to disclose its secrets, is an unlawful combination and confederacy (unless expressly declared by some statute to be legal), for whatever purpose or object it may be formed: and the administering an oath not to reveal anything done in such association is an offence within the statute 37 G. 3, c. 123, s. 1. R. v. Lovelass, 6 C. & P. 596; 1 M. & Rob. 349; 3 St. Tr., N. S. 1280. As to the common law with reference to unlawful oaths, see R. v. Edgar, 33 St. Tr. 145, 151, n.: R. v. Eadon, 31 St. Tr. 1064.

Indictment for taking such an Oath. (37 G. 3, c. 123, s. 1, ante, p. 999.)

Commencement as ante, p. 1001]—feloniously and unlawfully did take a certain oath and engagement, purporting [etc., as in the last precedent]: he the said J. S. not being then compelled to take the said oath and engagement; against the form [as ante, p. 465].

Felony: 37 G. 3, c. 123, s. 1. See the last precedent.

This offence is not triable at quarter sessions. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (ante, p. 126).

Evidence.

As to the evidence generally, see ante, p. 1001. It is not necessary to prove that any person administered the oath. 37 G. 3, c. 123, s. 5. Nor is it necessary for the prosecutor to prove that the defendant was not compelled to take the oath; compulsion is matter of excuse, and must come in evidence from the other side. And in order to make it a legal excuse, the defendant must prove that he disclosed the whole affair upon oath to a magistrate (or, if a soldier or seaman, to his commanding officer) within four days after, unless prevented by actual force or sickness, and then within four days after such force and sickness ceased. Id. s. 2.

Indictment for administering an Oath to commit Treason, etc. (52 G. 3, c. 104, s. 1, ante, p. 1002.)

Commencement as ante, p. 1001]—a certain oath and engagement purporting and then intended to bind the said J. N. to commit high treason

Felony: 52 G. 3, c. 104, s. 1: penal servitude for life or for not less than three years, or imprisonment, with or without hard labour, not exceeding two years. 7 W. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 91, s. 1; 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3 (ante, p. 235); 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235). Taking such an oath felony: penal servitude for life or for not less than three years; 52 G. 3, c. 104, s. 1; 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1; or imprisonment, with or without hard labour, not exceeding two years. 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235). As to the evidence, see the proofs under the precedent (ante, p. 1001). If the offence be committed on the high seas, or out of the realm, the venue may be laid in any county. 52 G. 3, c. 104, s. 7, supra.

This offence is not triable at quarter sessions. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (ante, p. 126).

Sect. 8.

INCITING TO MUTINY.

Statutes.

37 G. 3, c. 70 (Incitement to Mutiny Act, 1797), s. 1.]—Whereas divers wicked and evil-disposed persons, by the publication of written or printed papers, and by malicious and advised speaking, have of late industriously endeavoured to seduce persons serving in his Majesty's forces by sea and land from their duty and allegiance to his Majesty, and to incite them to mutiny and disobedience; be it enacted, that any person who shall maliciously and advisedly endeavour to seduce any person or persons serving in his Majesty's forces by sea or land from his or their duty and allegiance to his Majesty, or to incite or stir up any such person or persons to commit any act of mutiny, or to make or endeavour to make any mutinous assembly, or to commit any traitorous or mutinous practice whatsoever, shall, on being legally convicted of such offence, be adjudged guilty of felony. . . . [As to punishment, see 7 W. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 91, s. 1, infra.]

Sect. 2—Venue.]—Provided always . . . that any offence committed against this Act, whether committed on the high seas or within that part of Great Britain called England, shall and may be prosecuted and tried before any court of oyer and terminer or gaol delivery for any county in that part of Great Britain called England, in such manner and form as if the said offence had been therein committed. [See ante, pp. 39–41, 51.]

Sect. 3—Persons tried for offences against the Act not to be tried again on the same facts for high treason or misprision of treason.]—See ante, p. 170.

Indictment for endeavouring to seduce a Soldier from his Allegiance.

Middlesex, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present that J. S., [being a wicked and evil-disposed person,] on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, feloniously, maliciously, and advisedly did endeavour to seduce one J. N. he the said J. N. then being a person serving in his Majesty's forces by land from his duty and allegiance to his said Majesty; he the said J. S., at the time he so endeavoured to seduce the said J. N. from his duty and allegiance as aforesaid, well knowing that the said J. N. was then a person serving in his Majesty's forces by land; against the form [as ante, p. 465]. The venue may be laid in any county. 37 G. 3, c. 70, s. 2. The words in square brackets seem unnecessary.

Felony: penal servitude for life or for not less than three years, or imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for not more than two years. 7 W. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 91, s. 1, supra; 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3 (ante, p. 235); 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235). The offence described in the statute is an endeavour to seduce any person serving in his Majesty's forces by sea or land, from his duty or allegiance to his Majesty: or to incite or stir him up to commit any act of mutiny, or to make or endeavour to make any mutinous assembly, or to commit any traitorous or mutinous practice whatsoever. It is not necessary to allege the means by which the defendant endeavoured to seduce him. R. v. Fuller, 2 Leach, 790; 1 East, P. C. 92; 1 B. & P. 180. The allegation that J. S. "feloniously, maliciously, and advisedly did endeavour to seduce," etc., has been held sufficient without the averment contained in the above precedent that J. S. knew that J. N. was a person serving in his Majesty's forces. Id. As to the punishment of persons subject to military law who persuade or assist soldiers to desert, see Army Act (44 & 45 Vict. c. 58), ss. 12, 14. Civilians guilty of these acts may be punished by a court of summary jurisdiction under 44 & 45 Vict. c. 58, s. 153.

This offence is not triable at quarter sessions. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (ante, p. 126).

Evidence.

Although in the indictment it is not necessary to state the means by which the defendant endeavoured to seduce J. N. from his duty and allegiance, they must be detailed in evidence. It must be proved, also, that J. N. was at the time serving in his Majesty's land forces; and that J. S. was aware of that fact. A sailor who has been in the sick hospital for thirty days, and therefore is not entitled to pay, nor liable to answer before a court-martial for what he does, is nevertheless a person serving in his Majesty's navy, within this Act. R. v. Tierney, R. & R. 74.

SECT. 9.

ILLEGAL TRAINING AND DRILLING.

Statutes.

60 G. 3 & 1 G. 4, c. 1 (Unlawful Drilling Act, 1819), s. 1.]—Recites, that in some parts of the United Kingdom, men clandestinely and unlawfully assembled have practised military training and exercise, to the great terror and alarm of his Majesty's peaceable and loyal subjects, and the imminent danger of the public peace; and enacts, that all meetings and assemblies of persons for the purpose of training or drilling themselves, or of being trained or drilled, to the use of arms, or for the purpose of practising military exercise, movements, or evolutions, without any lawful authority from his Majesty, or the lieutenant, or two justices of the peace of any county or riding, or of any stewartry, by commission or otherwise, for so doing, shall be and the same are, hereby prohibited, as dangerous to the peace and security of his Majesty's liege subjects and of his government; and every person who shall be present at or attend any such meeting or assembly, for the purpose of training and drilling any other person or persons to the use of arms, or the practice of military exercise, movements, or evolutions, or who shall train or drill any other person or persons to the use of arms, or the practice of military exercise, movements, or evolutions, or who shall aid or assist therein, being legally convicted thereof, shall be liable to be transported for any term not exceeding seven years, or to be punished by imprisonment not exceeding two years, at the discretion of the court in which such conviction shall be had; and every person who shall attend or be present at any such meeting or assembly as aforesaid, for the purpose of being, or who shall at any such meeting or assembly be trained or drilled to the use of arms, or the practice of military exercise, movements, or evolutions, being legally convicted thereof, shall be liable to be punished by fine and imprisonment not exceeding two years, at the discretion of the court in which such conviction shall be had. [As to present punishment, see post, p. 1007.]

Sect. 2—Dispersion of meetings, etc.]—It shall be lawful for any justice of the peace, or for any constable or peace officer, or for any other person acting in their aid or assistance, to disperse any such unlawful meeting or assembly as aforesaid, and to arrest and detain any person present at, or aiding, assisting, or abetting any such assembly or meeting as aforesaid; and it shall be lawful for the justice of the peace who shall arrest any such person, or before whom any person so arrested shall be brought, to commit such person for trial for such offence, under the provisions of this Act, unless such person can and shall give sufficient bail for his appearance at the next assizes or general or quarter sessions of the peace, to answer to any indictment which may be preferred against him for any such offence against this Act, in England and Ireland; and in Scotland every such person shall be arrested and dealt with according to the law and practice of that part of the United Kingdom in the case of a bailable offence.

Sect. 4—Provisions of Act alternative to those of former law: provision against double prosecution. [Cf. 52 & 53 Vict. c. 63, s. 33, ante, p. 170.]

Sect. 7—Limitation of prosecutions.]—Provided always that no person shall be prosecuted by virtue of this Act for anything done or committed contrary to the provisions hereinbefore contained, unless such prosecution shall be commenced within six calendar months after the offence committed. [See ante, p. 95.]

Indictment for Unlawful Drilling. (60 G. 3 & 1 G. 4, c. 1, s. 1, ante, p. 1006.)

Yorkshire, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that heretofore, to wit, on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, divers, to wit, 500 persons, were unlawfully met and assembled together, for the purpose of being trained and drilled to the use of arms, and for the purpose of practising military exercise, movements, and evolutions, without any lawful authority from his Majesty, or the lieutenant or two justices of the peace of any county or riding or of any stewartry, by commission or otherwise, for so doing, contrary to the form of the statute in such case made and provided. And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present that J. S., on the day and year aforesaid, unlawfully was present at and attended the said meeting and assembly, for the purpose of training and drilling the said persons so then and there met and assembled together as aforesaid to the use of arms, and the practice of military exercise, movements, and evolutions; against the form [as ante, p. 465]. Add counts stating the meeting in similar terms, and, 1, that the defendant did then and there train and drill the persons so assembled (or certain persons named or unknown); 2, that he aided and assisted in so doing. You may also add a count charging generally that the defendant trained and drilled to the use of arms, etc., without stating any meeting or assembly. An indictment for being present at such meeting for the purpose of being trained or drilled, or for being there trained or drilled, may easily be framed from the above. The indictment must show that the meeting was held for the purpose of training or drilling, etc., as described in the statute: it is not sufficient to allege that it was a meeting dangerous to the public peace, and that the defendant attended it for the purpose of training and drilling, etc. Gogarty v. R., 3 Cox, 306 (Ir.); 1 Ir. Jur. (O. S.) 203.

Misdemeanor: penal servitude for not more than seven nor less than three years, or imprisonment not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour. 60 G. 3 & 1 G. 4, c. 1, s. 1; 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3 (ante, p. 235); 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235).

This offence is not triable at quarter sessions. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (ante, p. 126).

Evidence.

Prove that the meeting was held as stated in the indictment, under circumstances tending to show that it was unauthorized and unlawful; that it was held for the purpose of training and drilling to the use of arms, etc.; and that the defendant attended it for the purpose of training and drilling others, or of being himself trained and drilled, as the case may be. The jury will, of course, have to infer the intent from the circumstances (see ante, p. 340).

Drilling for the purpose of going to a lawful meeting in good order is lawful: if for the purpose of securing attention to seditious speeches, and to give confidence to seditious persons, it is a misdemeanor: if for overawing the government, it is certainly unlawful, and seems to be treason. R. v. Hunt, 1 St. Tr., N. S. 171: Redford v. Birley, Id. 1071. See post, chap. iii. s. 1, "Unlawful Assembly." As to unlawful making and selling of arms, see R. v. Knowles, 1 St. Tr., N. S. 497: R. v. Morris, Id. 521.

Sect. 10.

OFFENCES RELATING TO PUBLIC STORES.

Statutes.

12 G. 3, c. 24—Setting fire to public stores.]—Ante, p. 658; and see R. v. Hill, 20 St. Tr. 1318.

28 & 29 Vict. c. 89 (Greenwich Hospital Act, 1865), s. 45.]—The following mark may be applied in or on stores used or intended to be used for the purposes of Greenwich Hospital, to denote [his] Majesty's property in stores so marked, namely, an anchor surmounted with a naval crown, with two flags over the crown, and the letter G. on one side, and the letter H. on the other side: and stores intended to be used as aforesaid shall be deemed naval stores within the meaning of the Public Stores Act, 1875, and that Act shall apply thereto as if the mark in the present section were described in the schedule to that Act, and that Act shall apply to all stores so marked before the commencement of this Act (1st Sept. 1865) becoming by virtue of this Act the property of [his] Majesty. [The words in italics were substituted by 38 & 39 Vict. c. 25, s. 17 (post, p. 1009), for the words "Naval and Victualling Stores Act, 1864," repealed by the later Act.]

38 & 39 Vict. c. 25, s. 1—Short title.]—This Act may be cited as the Public Stores Act, 1875.

Sect. 2—Interpretation of terms.]—In this Act the term "secretary of state" means one of [his] Majesty's principal secretaries of state; the term "the admiralty" means the Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, or the commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral: the term "stores" includes all goods and chattels, and any single store or article. . . .

Sect. 3—Stores to which the Act applies.]—This Act shall apply to all stores under the care, superintendence, or control of a secretary of state or the admiralty, or any public department or office, or of any person in the service of [his] Majesty, and such stores are in this Act referred to as [his] Majesty's stores. The secretary of state, admiralty, public department, office, or person having the care, superintendence, or control of such stores, are hereinafter in this Act included in the expression public department.

Sect. 4—Marks in schedule appropriated for public stores—Misapplication of them a misdemeanor.]—The marks described in the first schedule to this Act may be applied in or on stores therein described in order to denote [his] Majesty's property in stores so marked; and it shall be lawful for any public department, and the contractors, officers, and workmen of such department, to apply those marks, or any of them, in or on any such stores; and if any person without lawful authority (proof of which authority shall lie on the party accused) applies any of those marks in or on any such stores, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall on conviction thereof be liable to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour.

Sect. 5—Obliteration, etc., of marks with intent to conceal the [King's] property in stores.]—If any person, with intent to conceal [his] Majesty's property in any stores, takes out, destroys, or obliterates, wholly or in part, any such mark as aforesaid, or any mark whatsoever denoting the property of [his] Majesty in any stores, he shall be guilty of felony, and shall on conviction thereof be liable, in the discretion of the court before which he is convicted, to be kept in penal servitude for any term not exceeding seven years. . . .

Sect. 12—Parts of 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, incorporated.]—The following sections of the Larceny Act, 1861, are hereby incorporated with this Act, and shall for the purposes of this Act be read as if they were here re-enacted, namely, sections 98 to 100, 103, 107 to 113, and 115 to 121, all inclusive, and for this purpose the expression "this Act," where used in those sections, shall be taken to include the present Act.

Sect. 13—Provision for regimental necessaries, etc.]—The provisions of this Act relative to the taking out, destroying, or obliterating of marks, or to the having in possession or keeping [his] Majesty's stores, shall not apply to stores issued as regimental necessaries or otherwise for any soldier, militiaman, or volunteer; but nothing herein shall relieve any person from any obligation or liability to which he may be subject under any other Act in respect of any such stores. [See 44 & 45 Vict. c. 58, s. 156 (7).]

Sect. 17.]—Section 45 of the Greenwich Hospital Act, 1865 (ante, p. 1008), shall be read and have effect as if this Act, instead of the Naval and Victualling Stores Act, 1864, were referred to in that section.

Sect. 18.]—Act to apply to stores marked before its passing (June 29, 1875).

FIRST SCHEDULE.

Marks appropriated for Use in or on [his] Majesty's Stores.

Stores.	Marks.
Hempen cordage and wire rope .	White, black or coloured worsted threads laid up with the yarns and the wire respectively.
Canvas, fearnought, hammocks, and seamen's bags.	A blue line in a serpentine form.
Bunting	A double tape in the warp.
Candles	Blue or red cotton threads in each wick or wicks of red cotton.
Timber or metal	The name of [his] Majesty, [his] predecessors, [his] heirs or successors, or of any public department, or any branch thereof, or the broad arrow, or a crown, or [his] Majesty's arms, whether such broad arrow, crown, or arms be alone or be in combination with any such name as aforesaid, or with any letters denoting any such name.
Any stores not before enumerated, whether similar to the above or not.

Indictment for wrongfully applying Marks on Stores. (38 & 39 Vict. c. 25, s. 4, ante, p. 1008.)

County of Southampton, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present that J. S., on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, unlawfully and without lawful authority applied a certain mark, to wit, a double tape in the warp, in and on certain stores, to wit, 500 yards of bunting; against the form of the statute in such case made and provided.

Misdemeanor: imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour. 38 & 39 Vict. c. 25, s. 4.

Evidence.

Prove that the defendant applied the mark to the stores mentioned in the indictment. It is not necessary to show that he did so without lawful authority. If the defendant had such authority he must prove it. 38 & 39 Vict. c. 25, s. 4. See the following decisions on the former law as to offences relating to public stores:—R. v. Banks, 1 Esp. 144: R. v. Wilmett, 3 Cox, 281: R. v. Cohen, 8 Cox, 41: R. v. Sleep, Id. 472, and see 477, n.; L. & C. 44.

Indictment for obliterating Marks on Stores. (38 & 39 Vict. c. 25, s. 5, ante, p. 1009.)

County of Southampton, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present that J. S., on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, feloniously and with intent to conceal his Majesty's property in the stores hereinafter mentioned, took out ("takes out, destroys, or obliterates, wholly or in part") from 100 yards of canvas, which said canvas was then stores of and belonging to his Majesty, and under the care, superintendence and control of the Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral (or as the case may be; see 38 & 39 Vict. c. 25, ss. 2, 3), a certain mark, to wit, a blue line in a serpentine form, which said mark was then applied on the said canvas in order to denote his said Majesty's property therein; against the form of the statute in such case made and provided.

Add counts charging "destroying" and "obliterating."

Felony: penal servitude for any term not exceeding seven nor less than three years, or imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour. 38 & 39 Vict. c. 25, s. 5; 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1, sub-ss. 1, 2 (ante, p. 235).

Evidence.

Prove that the defendant took out the mark from the stores, and circumstances from which it may be inferred that his intent in so doing was to conceal his Majesty's property therein. As, however, a man is presumed to intend the necessary and reasonable consequences of his own acts (R. v. Dixon, 3 M. & Sel. 11, 15; 4 Camp. 12; 15 R. R. 381: R. v. Farrington, R. & R. 207, ante, p. 343), the mere fact of the defendant's having taken out the mark will be sufficient evidence to go to the jury that in so doing he intended to conceal his Majesty's property in the stores.

Persons subject to naval discipline or military law are punishable by court-martial for offences relating to public stores, etc. 29 & 30 Vict. c. 109, ss. 33, 34; 44 & 45 Vict. c. 58, ss. 17, 18.

Sect. 11.

Disclosure of Government Secrets.

Statute.

52 & 53 Vict. c. 52 (Official Secrets Act, 1889), s. 1—Disclosure of information.]—(1) (a) Where a person for the purpose of wrongfully obtaining information—

(i.) enters or is in any part of a place belonging to [his] Majesty the [King], being a fortress, arsenal, factory, dockyard, camp, ship, office, or other like place, in which part he is not entitled to be; or

(ii.) when lawfully or unlawfully in any such place as aforesaid, either obtains any document, sketch, plan, model, or knowledge of any thing which he is not entitled to obtain, or takes without lawful authority any sketch or plan; or

(iii.) when outside any fortress, arsenal, factory, dockyard, or camp belonging to [his] Majesty the [King], takes or attempts to take, without authority given by or on behalf of [his] Majesty, any sketch or plan of that fortress, arsenal, factory, dockyard, or camp; or

(b) Where a person knowingly having possession of or control over any such document, sketch, plan, model, or knowledge as has been obtained or taken by means of any act which would constitute an offence against this Act, at any time wilfully and without lawful authority communicates or attempts to communicate the same to any person to whom the same ought not, in the interest of the state, to be communicated at that time; or

(c) Where a person after having been entrusted in confidence by some officer under [his] Majesty the [King] with any document, sketch, plan, model, or information relating to any such place as aforesaid, or to the naval or military affairs of [his] Majesty, wilfully and in breach of such confidence communicates the same when, in the interest of the state, it ought not to be communicated; he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction be liable to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding one year, or to a fine, or to both imprisonment and a fine.

(2) Where a person having possession of any document, sketch, plan, model, or information relating to any fortress, arsenal, factory, dockyard, camp, ship, office, or other like place, belonging to [his] Majesty, or to the naval and military affairs of [his] Majesty, in whatever manner the same has been obtained or taken, at any time wilfully communicates the same to any person to whom he knows the same ought not, in the interest of the state, to be communicated at that time, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and be liable to the same punishment as if he committed an offence under the foregoing provisions of this section.

(3) Where a person commits any act declared by this section to be a misdemeanor, he shall, if he intended to communicate to a foreign state any information, document, sketch, plan, model, or knowledge obtained or taken by him, or entrusted to him as aforesaid, or if he communicates the same to any agent of a foreign state, be guilty of felony, and on so, however, that no person be punished twice for the same offence. [See 52 & 53 Vict. c. 63, s. 33 (ante, p. 170).]

Sect. 10—Short Title.]—This Act may be cited as the Official Secrets Act, 1889.

54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1—Minimum term of penal servitude.]—Ante, p. 235).

The above Act was passed in consequence of the disclosure by a civil servant of the secret clause in the Anglo-Russian arrangement of 31st May, 1878, which he committed to memory without touching the document or dealing with it in any way which would bring him within s. 30 of the Larceny Act, 1861 (ante, p. 493). See 18 L. J. Newsp. 482; 337 Hansard, 321. The first prosecution in England under the Act seems to have been R. v. Holden (Liverpool Assizes, April, 1892; see Report of Director of Public Prosecutions, 1892, p. 19), for divulging to a foreign government plans of the fortifications at Malta. In R. v. Stuart and Page, October, 1899, Cent. Crim. Court, the Recorder, Sir Charles Hall, quashed an indictment under s. 3, for inciting to the commission of an offence under s. 2, sub-s. 3, by a person who, by reason of a contract with the crown, was under an obligation of secrecy, because of the want of an averment that the person incited had obtained possession or control of the document the subject of the inquiry, within s. 2, sub-s. 1.

Misconduct by Executive and Administrative Officials of the Crown.

It has already been stated (ante, pp. 145–147) that neglect by public officers of duties imposed on them at common law or by statute is indictable. Misconduct and extortion by, and bribery of, judicial officers and ministerial officers of justice are dealt with post, pp. 1080, 1083. Misconduct, fraud, and oppression by officers of the crown is indictable at common law, whether the officer is appointed under the common law or statute. See 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 417.

In R. v. Bembridge, 22 St. Tr. 1; 6 East, 136, cit., it was held indictable to enable persons in the pay office to pass their accounts in such a way as to defraud the government. Cf. R. v. Baxter, 5 Cox, 302, and the charge of Lord Russell, L.C.J., to the grand jury of Middlesex in R. v. Hodgkinson (Times Newsp., 26*th June*, 1900), where a British Vice-Consul (at Bremerhaven) was indicted for misconduct in failing to account for certain moneys received by him by virtue of his office. In R. v. Davison, 31 St. Tr. 99, the defendant was convicted on criminal information for defrauding the crown in the purchase of military stores by means of false vouchers. In R. v. Hedges, 28 St. Tr. 1315, clerks in the Woolwich Dockyard were convicted for fraud in their office; and in R. v. Jones, 31 St. Tr. 251; 8 East, 31, a commissary-general to the forces in the West Indies was convicted of frauds practised by him in his office.

For precedents of indictments see the cases cited. It is sufficient to state that the defendant holds the particular office, without stating his appointment. R. v. Hollond, 5 T. R. 607; 2 R. R. 678; and see ante, p. 344.

As to the trial and punishment of Indian officials in England for offences in India, see Ilbert, Govt. of India, pp. 52, 259: R. v. Douglas, 13 Q. B. 42: R. v. Hollond, ubi supra.

As to the trial and punishment of British officials for oppressions, crimes, and offences under the degree of felony committed outside Great Britain, see 11 W. 3, c. 12; 42 G. 3, c. 85 (ante, p. 38); 49 G. 3, c. 126, s. 14; and cf. R. v. Hodgkinson, ubi supra.

Prior to the passing of the last two of these Acts, in R. v. Munton, 1 Esp. 62, an information was laid against a principal storekeeper in the West Indies for misdemeanors in colluding with contractors to defraud the government. It was objected that the evidence showed that the alleged frauds were committed in the West Indies outside the jurisdiction of the court. Lord Kenyon, C.J., said that where the matter arose wholly abroad, the court could have no jurisdiction except by statute; but held that as some of the offences consisted in false returns sent from Antigua to England, there was an offence in London, where the returns were received and the offence made complete.

It is an indictable misdemeanor to buy or sell or pay any money or reward for any public office, within 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 16, or 49 G. 3, c. 126: i.e., any office in the gift of the crown, and any military or naval commission or place under the control of any public department, whether it be in the United Kingdom or in a British possession abroad. 49 G. 3, c. 126, ss. 1, 3. The punishment is fine and imprisonment, forfeiture of the office, and absolute disqualification for holding it again. See Earl of Macclesfield's case, 16 St. Tr. 767; Steph. Dig. Cr. Law (6th ed.), 104; 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 433.

Purchase of the office of clerk of the peace or under-sheriff is punishable under 1 & 2 W. & M. c. 21, s. 8; 50 & 51 Vict. c. 55, s. 27.

CONCEALMENT OF TREASURE TROVE.

For the form of indictment for this rare offence, which is a misdemeanor at common law, punishable by fine and imprisonment, and for the evidence requisite to support it, see 3 Co. Inst. 133: R. v. Thomas, L. & C. 313; 33 L. J. (M. C.) 22: R. v. Toole, Ir. Rep. 2 C. L. 36; 11 Cox, 75; Att.-Gen. v. British Museum (Trustees) [1903] 2 Ch. 598. Sect. 14.—Smuggling.

MAKING SIGNALS TO SMUGGLING VESSELS.

Statute.

39 & 40 Vict. c. 36 (Customs Consolidation Act, 1876), s. 190—Making signals.]—No person shall, after sunset and before sunrise between the twenty-first day of September and the first day of April, or after the hour of eight in the evening and before the hour of six in the morning at any other time of the year, make, aid, or assist in making any signal in or on board or from any ship or boat, or from any part of the coast or shore of the United Kingdom, or within six miles of any part of such coast or shore, for the purpose of giving notice to any person on board any smuggling ship or boat, whether any person so on board of such ship or boat be or be not within distance to notice any such signal; and if any person contrary to the Customs Acts, shall make or cause to be made, or aid or assist in making, any such signal, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and may be stopped arrested detained and conveyed before any justice, who, if he sees cause, shall commit the offender to the next county gaol, there to remain until delivered by due course of law; and it shall not be necessary to prove on any indictment or information in such case that any ship or boat was actually on the coast; and the offender, being duly convicted, shall, by order of the court before whom he shall be convicted, either forfeit the penalty of one hundred pounds, or, at the discretion of such court, be committed to a gaol or house of correction, there to be kept to hard labour for any term not exceeding one year.

Sect. 191—Onus of proof.]—If any person be charged with having made or caused to be made, or for aiding or assisting in making, any such signal as aforesaid, the burden of proof that such signal so charged as having been made with intent and for the purpose of giving such notice as aforesaid was not made with such intent and for such purpose shall be upon the defendant against whom such charge is made.

Indictment. (39 & 40 Vict. c. 36, s. 190, supra.)

Kent, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. S., on the first day of November, in the year of our Lord ——, after sunset of the same day and before sunrise on the day next following, to wit, at the hour of ten in the night of the same day, unlawfully did make, and did aid and assist in making a certain signal, to wit, a signal by the firing of a gun, on a certain part of the sea-shore, situate in the parish of F., in the county of K. ("in or on board, or from any ship or boat, or on or from any part of the coast or shore of the United Kingdom, or within six miles of any part of such coast or shore"), for the purpose of giving notice to some person or persons to the jurors aforesaid unknown, on board a certain smuggling ship [or boat] then being; against the form [as ante, p. 465]. As to the venue, see ante, p. 868.

Misdemeanor: 100*l. fine, or imprisonment with hard labour for any term not exceeding one year.* 39 & 40 Vict. c. 36, s. 190.

This offence is triable at quarter sessions. R. v. Cock, 4 M. & Sel. 71.

Evidence.

All the prosecutor has to prove is, that the defendant made a signal by firing a gun or otherwise, or was aiding and assisting in so doing on the sea-shore, etc., as stated in the indictment. It is not necessary for him to prove that any smuggling vessel was in fact within sight or actually on the coast at the time; 39 & 40 Vict. c. 36, s. 190; and it is for the defendant to prove (if he can) that the fire, etc., was not lighted with the intent charged in the indictment. Id. s. 191. The offence must be committed after sunset and before sunrise between 21st September and 1st April, and after eight in the evening and before six in the morning in any other part of the year. Id. s. 190. See R. v. Brown, M. & M. 168.

The indictment for this and all other offences against this statute must be exhibited within three years next after the date of the offence committed. 39 & 40 Vict. c. 36, s. 257. See R. v. Thompson, 16 Q. B. 832; 20 L. J. (M. C.) 183 (ante, p. 95).

BEING ARMED AND ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF ASSISTING IN RUNNING UNCUSTOMED GOODS, ETC.

Statute.

42 & 43 Vict. c. 21 (Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1879), s. 10—Penalty for assembling to run goods.]—All persons to the number of three or more who shall assemble for the purpose of unshipping landing running carrying concealing or having so assembled shall unship land run carry convey or conceal any spirits tobacco or any prohibited restricted or uncustomed goods shall each forfeit a penalty not exceeding five hundred pounds nor less than one hundred pounds. [This section is to be read as part of 39 & 40 Vict. c. 36, and as if it occupied the place formerly occupied in that statute by s. 188, now repealed. 42 & 43 Vict. c. 21, s. 14.]

39 & 40 Vict. c. 36 (Customs Consolidation Act, 1875), s. 189—Procuring persons to assemble to run goods—Persons armed or disguised with goods within five miles of coast.]—Every person who shall by any means procure or hire or shall depute or authorize any other person to procure or hire, any person or persons to assemble for the purpose of being concerned in the landing or unshipping or carrying, conveying, or concealing any goods which are prohibited to be imported, or the duties for which have not been paid or secured, shall be imprisoned for any term not exceeding twelve months; and if any person engaged in the commission of any of the above offences be armed with firearms or other offensive weapons, or whether so armed or not be disguised in any way, or being so armed or disguised shall be found with any goods liable to forfeiture under the Customs Acts within five miles of the sea-coast or of any tidal river, shall be imprisoned, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding three years. [See note to indictment, post, p. 1018.]

Sect. 257—Limitation of time for prosecution.]—See ante, p. 868.

Sect. 258—Venue.]—See ante, p. 868.

Indictment for being assembled armed to the Number of Three or more for the purpose of landing Uncustomed Goods. (42 & 43 Vict. c. 21, s. 10.)

Kent, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. S., J. W., and E. W., together with divers other persons to the jurors aforesaid unknown, to the number of three and more, on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, at the parish of F., in the county of K., unlawfully did assemble for the purpose of unlawfully landing certain uncustomed goods, to wit, —— (see 42 & 43 Vict. c. 21, s. 10, supra), they the said J. S., J. W., and E. W., and the said other persons being then and there and whilst engaged in the commission of the said offence armed with firearms and other offensive weapons, to wit, with guns, pistols, swords and daggers (see 39 & 40 Vict. c. 36, s. 189, supra); against the form [as ante, p. 465].

Misdemeanor: imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding three years. 39 & 40 Vict. c. 36, s. 189. This term of imprisonment appears not to be altered by 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, pp. 235, 236).

Evidence.

Prove that the defendants, or some of them, together with other persons unknown, to the number of three at least, were assembled and armed, as stated in the indictment. It is not necessary that all should be armed; if some be armed, and the others be present aiding and assisting, it will be sufficient. R. v. Smith, R. & R. 368. A variance between the indictment and evidence, as to the kind of arms with which they were armed, does not seem to be material; if it be proved that the defendants were armed either with "firearms," or such other "offensive weapons" as are within the meaning of the Act, it should seem to be sufficient. And in R. v. Cosans, 1 Leach, 342, 343, n. (a), the court held, that not only guns, pistols, daggers, and other instruments of war, but also bludgeons (properly so-called), clubs, and such other things as are not in common use for any other purpose but as weapons, are within the meaning of the Act. See R. v. Hutchinson, 1 Leach, 339. A common whip has been held not to be an offensive weapon (R. v. Fletcher, 1 Leach, 23, 342 n.), and bats, which are long poles used for smugglers to carry tubs, were also held not to be offensive weapons within 6 G. 4, c. 108, s. 56 (rep.). R. v. Noakes, 5 C. & P. 326. If, in the heat of an affray, a man catch up a hatchet accidentally, this is not within the meaning of the statute. R. v. Rose, 1 Leach, 342, n. Also, to bring the case within the statute, it must appear that the parties had deliberately assembled for the purpose charged in the indictment.

The purpose for which the defendants assembled is proved, either expressly, by the evidence of an accomplice, or the like; or impliedly, by evidence of circumstances from which the jury may fairly presume it.

Indictment for disturbing a Congregation of Baptists during Divine Service. (52 G. 3, c. 155, s. 12, ante, p. 1023.)

Westmoreland, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that heretofore, to wit, at the general quarter sessions of the peace holden at Appleby, in and for the county of Westmoreland, on the —— day of ——, in the year of our Lord ——, before A. B. and C. D., esquires, and others their associates, justices of our lord the King, assigned to keep the peace of our said lord the King in the said county, and also to hear and determine divers felonies, trespasses, and other misdemeanors in the said county committed, J. N., clerk, teacher, and preacher to a congregation of Protestants dissenting from the Church of England, scrupling infant baptism, did then, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, certify to his Majesty's justices of the peace assembled in quarter sessions aforesaid, that he had appointed a certain house situate at ——, in the parish of B., in the county aforesaid, therein to assemble and meet for religious worship, and which was then duly registered and recorded, according to the directions of the statute in such case made and provided. And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that afterwards, to wit, on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, a congregation of Protestants, dissenting from the Church of England, of which the said J. N. was then the teacher and preacher, were assembled for the public worship and service of Almighty God in the house aforesaid, so certified, registered, and recorded as aforesaid; and that J. S., J. W., and E. W. afterwards, to wit, on the day and year last aforesaid, whilst the said congregation were so assembled as aforesaid, and during divine service, unlawfully, wilfully, maliciously, and contemptuously did come into the said congregation, during divine service as aforesaid, and did then wilfully, maliciously, and contemptuously disquiet and disturb the congregation [by then talking, cursing, and swearing, with a loud voice, and also by talking with a loud voice to the said J. N., he the said J. N. then being in the pulpit], the doors of the said meeting-house and place where the said congregation were so assembled as aforesaid not being then locked, barred, or bolted; against the form [as ante, p. 465]. (2nd Count)—And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said J. S., J. W., and E. W. afterwards, to wit, on the day and year last aforesaid, unlawfully, wilfully, maliciously, and contemptuously did come into a certain congregation of Protestants dissenting from the Church of England, then assembled for the worship and service of Almighty God, in a certain meeting-house, and the said congregation did then unlawfully, wilfully, maliciously, and contemptuously disquiet and disturb [by talking, laughing, swearing, and cursing with a loud voice], (the said meeting-house where the said congregation were so assembled as aforesaid being then and long before certified, registered, and recorded according to the direction of the statute in such case made and provided, and the doors of the said meeting-house and place where the said congregation were so assembled not being then locked, barred, or bolted); against the form [as ante, p. 465]. [See R. v. Cheere, 4 B. & C. 902; 7 D. & Ry. 461.]

Fine: 40l. for each defendant (52 G. 3, c. 155, s. 12). R. v. Hube, 5 T. R. 542; 2 R. R. 669; Peake (3rd ed.), 180. 23 & 24 Vict. c. 32 (ante, p. 1025). See also Williams v. Glenister, 2 B. & C. 699.

This offence may be tried at quarter sessions; 52 G. 3, c. 155, s. 12; or in the High Court of Justice (K. B. D.); R. v. Wroughton, 3 Burr. 1683; or at the assizes, if removed from the sessions by certiorari; R. v. Hube, ubi supra.

Evidence.

1. Prove that the chapel or meeting-house was certified and registered as alleged in the indictment; which may be done by the clerk of the peace producing the book, etc., in which the same was registered, or by an examined or certified copy of the entry, under 14 & 15 Vict. c. 99, s. 14 (ante, p. 879). Where the chapel or meeting-house has been registered under the Places of Worship Registration Act, 1855 (18 & 19 Vict. c. 81), the registration may be proved by the certificate mentioned in s. 11 of that Act (ante, p. 1024). 1 W. & M. c. 18, has been held to extend to a registered congregation of foreign Lutherans. R. v. Hube, ubi supra. It is immaterial whether the officiating clergyman has qualified according to the statute or not. Id.

2. Prove the disturbance as stated in the indictment. Where, in a contest for the situation of a clerk to a meeting-house, one clerk pulled the other from the desk, it was held to be a disturbance within the statute, R. v. Hube, ubi supra, although the statute was certainly intended principally to apply to persons who with violence oppose a form of worship inconsistent with their own ideas and tenets.

ESCAPE.

Common Law.

"Escape" proper is where a person having a prisoner lawfully in his custody voluntarily or negligently suffers him to go at large. 1 Hale, 570; Steph. Dig. Cr. Law (6th ed.), 115. The custodian is said to be guilty of treason who voluntarily suffers the escape of a man in custody for treason; 1 Hale, 234; Steph. Dig. Cr. Law (6th ed.), 115; and to be liable as an accessory after the fact to the prisoner's crime if it be felony; 1 Hale, 235; and to be guilty of a misdemeanor if the prisoner was in custody for misdemeanor: Steph. Dig. Cr. Law (6th ed.), 115. A custodian who "negligently" allows his prisoner to escape from lawful custody is guilty of a misdemeanor. 1 Hale, 600; Steph. Dig. Cr. Law (6th ed.), 115; and see indictment, post, p. 1032.

It is also an indictable misdemeanor at common law, punishable by fine and imprisonment (with or without hard labour: 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 29), for a prisoner whether innocent or guilty to escape from lawful custody on a criminal charge, whether the escape is effected by force or artifice, or in consequence of neglect in the custodian, and whether it is made from gaol or in transit thereto. 2 Hawk. c. 19; 1 Hale 590; 2 Chit. Cr. L. 159: R. v. Allan, C. & Mar. 295.

Persons who aid a prisoner to escape are at common law guilty as principals, or may be indicted for rescue (post, p. 1038); and see R. v. Allan, ubi supra.

Statutes.

31 Edw. 3, st. 1, c. 14.]—Item, it is accorded that the escape of thieves and felons and the chattels of felons and of fugitives, and also escapes of clerks convict out of their ordinaries' prison, from henceforth to be judged before any of the King's justices shall be levied from time to time as they shall fall, as well of the time past as of the time to come.

16 G. 2, c. 31 (Prison Escape Act, 1742), s. 1—Aiding escapes.]—For the further punishment of persons who shall aid or assist prisoners to attempt to escape out of lawful custody (be it enacted, etc., that), if any person shall, from and after the 24th day of June, 1743, by any means whatsoever, be aiding or assisting to (sic) any prisoner to attempt to make his or her escape from any gaol, although no escape be actually made, in case such prisoner then was attainted or convicted of treason, or any felony, except petty larceny, or lawfully committed to or detained in any gaol for treason, or any felony, except petty larceny (see ante, p. 427), expressed in the warrant of commitment or detainer, every person so offending, and being thereof lawfully convicted, shall be deemed and adjudged guilty of felony, and shall be transported to one of his Majesty's colonies or plantations in America, for the term of seven years [now penal servitude or imprisonment; see 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3; 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1, ante, p. 235]; and in case such prisoner then was convicted of, committed to, or detained in any gaol for petty larceny, or any other crime not being treason or felony, expressed in the warrant of his or her commitment or detainer as aforesaid, or then was in gaol upon any process whatsoever for any debt, damages, costs, sum or sums of money amounting in the whole to the sum of one hundred pounds, every person so offending as aforesaid, and being thereof lawfully convicted, shall be deemed and adjudged to be guilty of a misdemeanor, for which he or she shall be liable to a fine and imprisonment. [As to common law liability in such cases, see 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 911.]

It is difficult to say how far 16 G. 2, c. 31, ss. 1, 2, are still in force. See Mr. Greaves' note, 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 900. They were repealed by 4 G. 4, c. 64, s. 1, so far "as relates to the escape of any prisoner from any gaol or prison to which" 4 G. 4, c. 64, extended. The prisons to which 4 G. 4, c. 64, extended are stated in 2 Statutes Revised (2nd ed.), p. 160. That Act specially excepted Bethlehem, Bridewell, the King's Bench, and Fleet Prisons, the prison of the Marshalsea and Palace Courts, the Millbank Penitentiary and Gloucester Penitentiary, and vessels provided for the reception and employment of convicts sentenced to transportation; and this exception was not affected by the subsequent repeal of 4 G. 4, c. 64, by 28 & 29 Vict. c. 126, s. 78. The Millbank and Gloucester Penitentiaries and the hulks have been abolished, and convict prisons have been substituted for the hulks. As to escapes from such prisons, see post, p. 1040. The Fleet Prison and the prison of the Marshalsea and Palace Courts were abolished, and "the Queen's Prison" was substituted by 5 & 6 Vict. c. 22. That prison was discontinued and Whitecross Street Prison substituted (25 & 26 Vict. c. 104). The latter prison was discontinued in 1870 under s. 12 of the Act last mentioned, and the City Prison at Holloway was substituted as "the Queen's Prison." It had been made a valid prison by 15 & 16 Vict. c. 70, and is a local prison within 28 & 29 Vict. c. 126 (see Home Office Orders, 19th May, 1886; Statutory Rules and Orders Revised (ed. 1904), vol. 10, "tit. Prison E.," p. 72).

Brixton Prison, appointed by order of 16th October, 1901, is now used for male prisoners committed by the High Court, and Holloway only for female prisoners. The result seems to be that 16 G. 2, c. 31, ss. 1, 2, can apply now only to the City Bridewell (used only for recalcitrant apprentices), and to Bethlehem Hospital which is not an asylum for criminal lunatics within 23 & 24 Vict. c. 75, s. 12.]

Sect. 2—Conveying into prison the means of escape.]—And . . . if any person shall, from and after the said 24th day of June, 1743, convey or cause to be conveyed into any gaol or prison any vizor, or other disguise, or any instrument or arms proper to facilitate the escape of the prisoners, and the same shall deliver or cause to be delivered to any prisoner in any such gaol, or to any other person there for the use of any such prisoner, without the consent or privity of the keeper or under-keeper of any such gaol or prison, every such person, although no escape or attempt to escape be actually made, shall be deemed to have delivered such vizor, or other disguise, or instrument, or arms, with an intent to aid and assist such prisoner to escape or attempt to escape; and in case such prisoner then was attainted or convicted of treason, or any felony, except petty larceny (see ante, p. 427), or lawfully committed to or detained in any such gaol for treason, or any felony, except petty larceny, expressed in the warrant of commitment or detainer (i.e., clearly and expressly stated; R. v. Walker, 1 Leach, 97: R. v. Greenif, Id. 98, n., 363); every person so offending, and being thereof lawfully convicted, shall in like manner be deemed and adjudged guilty of felony, and shall be transported to one of his Majesty's colonies or plantations in America for the term of seven years [now penal servitude for not more than seven nor less than three years, or imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for not more than two years (54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1, ante, p. 235)]; but in case the prisoner to whom, or for whose use, such vizor or disguise, instrument, or arms shall be so delivered, then was convicted, committed, or detained for petty larceny, or any other crime not being treason or felony, expressed in the warrant of commitment or detainer, or upon any process whatsoever for any debt, damages, costs, sum or sums of money, amounting in the whole to the sum of one hundred pounds, every such person so offending, and being thereof lawfully convicted, shall be deemed and adjudged to be guilty of a misdemeanor, for which he or she shall be in like manner liable to a fine and imprisonment. [As to how far s. 2 is in force, see note to s. 1, supra. The fact that the prisoner had already been pardoned, or that the accused did not know of what specific offence the prisoner had been convicted, is no defence to an indictment under this section. R. v. Shaw, R. & R. 256. The statute does not apply where an actual escape has been effected. R. v. Tilley, 2 Leach, 662.]

Sect. 3—Aiding escape from constable.]—And . . . if any person shall, from and after the 24th day of June, 1743, aid or assist any prisoner to attempt to make his or her escape from the custody of any constable, headborough, tithingman, or other officer or person who shall then have the lawful charge of such prisoner, in order to carry him or her to gaol, by virtue of a warrant of commitment for treason or any felony except petty larceny (vide ante, p. 427) expressed in such warrant; or if any person shall be aiding or assisting to (sic) any felon to attempt to make his escape from on board any boat, ship, or vessel carrying felons for transportation, or from the contractor for the transportation of such felons, his assigns or agents, or any other person to whom such felon shall have been lawfully delivered in order for transportation, then every person so offending, and being lawfully convicted thereof, shall be deemed and adjudged to be guilty of felony, and shall be transported to one of his Majesty's colonies or plantations in America, for the term of seven years [now penal servitude or imprisonment. 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3; 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235)].

Sect. 4—Limitation.]—Provided always . . . that there shall be no prosecution for any of the said offences, unless such prosecution be commenced within one year after such offence committed. [See ante, p. 94.]

52 G. 3, c. 156 (Prisoners of War Escape Act, 1812), s. 1.]—Every person who shall, from and after the passing of this Act (29th July, 1812), knowingly or wilfully aid or assist any alien enemy of his Majesty, being a prisoner of war in his Majesty's dominions, whether such prisoner shall be confined as a prisoner of war in any prison or other place of confinement, or shall be suffered to be at large in his Majesty's dominions or any part thereof on his parole, to escape from such prison or other place of confinement, or from his Majesty's dominions, if at large on parole, shall, upon being convicted thereof, be adjudged guilty of felony, and be liable to be transported as a felon for life, or for such term of fourteen or seven years (see now 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1, ante, p. 235), as the court before whom such person shall be convicted shall adjudge. [Prior to this Act the offence was a misdemeanor only. R. v. Martin, R. & R. 196.]

Sect. 2.]—Provided always . . . that every person who shall knowingly and wilfully aid or assist any such prisoner at large on parole in quitting any part of his Majesty's dominions where he may be on his parole, although he shall not aid or assist such person in quitting the coast of any part of his Majesty's dominions, shall be deemed guilty of aiding the escape of such person under the provisions of this Act.

23 & 24 Vict. c. 75 (Criminal Lunatic Asylums Act, 1860), s. 12.]—Any person who rescues any person ordered to be conveyed to an asylum for criminal lunatics during the time of his conveyance thereto, or of his confinement therein, and any officer or servant in any asylum for criminal lunatics, who through wilful neglect or connivance permits any person confined therein to escape therefrom, or secretes or abets or connives at the escape of any such person, shall be guilty of felony, and being convicted thereof shall be liable to be kept in penal servitude for any term not exceeding four years (now, semble, not more than five and not less than three years, 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1, ante, p. 235), or to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour, at the discretion of the court; and any such officer or servant who carelessly allows any such person to escape shall, on summary conviction, forfeit any sum not exceeding 20*l.* nor less than 2*l.* [For summary punishment for wilfully permitting escape of non-criminal lunatic, see 53 & 54 Vict. c. 5, s. 323. The only asylum for criminal lunatics is Broadmoor Prison. See Statutory Rules and Orders Revised (ed. 1904), vol. 8, tit. "Lunatic E.," p. 78.]

28 & 29 Vict. c. 126 (Prison Act, 1865), s. 37—Assisting prisoners to escape.]—Every person who aids any prisoner in escaping or attempting to escape from any prison, or who, with intent to facilitate the escape of any prisoner, conveys or causes to be conveyed into any prison any mask, dress or other disguise, or any letter, or any other article or thing, shall be guilty of felony, and on conviction be sentenced to imprisonment with hard labour for a term not exceeding two years. [For indictment, see post, p. 1035.]

Sect. 3—Application of Act.]—This Act shall not extend to Scotland or Ireland, and shall not apply to the prisons for convicts under the superintendence of the directors of convict prisons, or to any military or naval prison.

Sect. 4—Meaning of word "prison."]— . . . "Prison" shall mean gaol, house of correction, bridewell or penitentiary; it shall include the airing grounds, or other grounds or buildings occupied by prison officers for the use of the prison and contiguous thereto. . . .

Sect. 10.]—Every prison officer while acting as such shall, by virtue of his appointment, have all the powers, authorities, protections and privileges of a constable.

Indictment against a Constable for Negligently Permitting an Escape.
(Common Law.)

Middlesex, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King, upon their oath present, that on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, J. S., then being an officer of the police force of the county of M. [or administrative county of, or borough of ——, or of the metropolis], brought one J. N. before A. C., esquire, then and yet being one of the justices of our said lord the King assigned to keep the peace for our said lord the King in and for the county aforesaid, and also to hear and determine divers felonies, trespasses, and other misdeeds committed in the said county, and the said J. N. was then charged before the said A. C., by one Catherine Hope, spinster, upon the oath of the said Catherine Hope, that he the said J. N. had then lately before violently, and against her will, feloniously ravished and carnally known her the said Catherine Hope; and the said J. N. was then brought before the said A. C., the justice aforesaid, and the said justice held an inquiry according to law, in the presence of the said J. N., touching the said offence so to him charged as aforesaid; upon which the said A. C., the justice aforesaid, did then make a certain warrant, under his hand and seal, in due form of law, bearing date the said first day of June in the year aforesaid, directed to the keeper of his Majesty's prison at —— or his deputy, commanding him the said keeper or his deputy, that he should receive into his custody the said J. N., brought before him and charged upon the oath of the said Catherine Hope, with the premises above specified; and the said justice, by the said warrant, did command the said keeper of his Majesty's said prison or his deputy, to safely keep him the said J. N. there until he by due course of law should be discharged; which said warrant afterwards, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, was delivered to the said J. S., then being an officer of the police force of the county [or administrative county, or as the case may be] aforesaid, and then having the said J. N. in his custody for the cause aforesaid; and the said J. S. was then commanded by the said A. C., the justice aforesaid, to convey the said J. N., without delay, to the said prison, and to deliver him the said J. N. to the keeper of the said prison or his deputy, together with the warrant aforesaid.* And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said J. S. afterwards, to wit, on the day and year last aforesaid, then being one of the constables of the said parish as aforesaid, and then having the said J. N. in his custody for the cause aforesaid, the said J. N. out of the custody of him the said J. S. unlawfully and negligently did permit to escape, and go at large whithersoever he would, whereby the said J. N. did then escape and go at large whithersoever he would, to the great hindrance of justice, to the evil example of all others in the like case offending, and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity.

Where the escape is negligently permitted by an officer, the punishment is said to be fine only. 2 Hawk. c. 19; 1 Hale, 600; 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 982. This appears to be erroneous, and to arise from a misconception of the nature of a fine. See 2 Pollock & Maitland, Hist. Eng. Law, 512. Officers of county, borough, or metropolitan, police are in the same position as a parish constable at common law. See 10 G. 4, c. 44, s. 4; 2 & 3 Vict. c. 93, s. 8; 45 & 46 Vict. c. 50, s. 191.

Where a private person is guilty of a negligent escape, the punishment is fine or imprisonment, or both. 2 Hawk. c. 20, s. 6. The imprisonment must be for some criminal matter, otherwise the escape is not an indictable offence at common law; but it is punishable under 16 G. 2, c. 31, s. 1 (ante, p. 1029), and is actionable under 5 & 6 Vict. c. 98, s. 31; or where the escape is due to negligence of sheriffs or other officers, by proceedings under 50 & 51 Vict. c. 55, s. 29, or by attachment. In case of negligent escape, the custodian may, it seems, retake his prisoner by force. 2 Hawk. c. 19, s. 13: R. v. Forster, 1 Lewin, 187: R. v. Dadson, 2 Den. 85.

Evidence.

Prove that J. N. was charged with rape, as alleged in the indictment. Prove the warrant of commitment in substance as set out in the indictment, either by producing the warrant itself, or, after proving the service of a notice upon the defendant to produce it, by parol or other secondary evidence of its contents. Prove a delivery of the warrant to the defendant, and that he is a member of the police force specified. Prove that he had J. N. in actual custody under the warrant. See 2 Hawk. c. 19, ss. 1, 4. And, lastly, prove the escape. It is not necessary to prove negligence in the defendant; the law implies it; see 1 Hale, 600; but if the escape were not in fact negligent, if the defendant by force rescued himself, or were rescued by others, and the defendant made fresh pursuit after him, but without effect; all this must be shown upon the part of the defendant.

Also, it is immaterial whether J. N. were guilty of the rape or not, provided that the warrant were such as would justify J. S. in detaining him. (See ante, p. 805, et seq.)

Indictment for escaping out of the Custody of a Constable. (Common Law.)

*State the charge before the magistrate, the warrant of commitment, and the defendant's being in the custody of J. S. as in the last precedent to the * ; and then proceed thus*]: and the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said J. N. so being in the custody of the said J. S., under and by virtue of the warrant aforesaid, afterwards, and whilst he continued in such custody, and before he was delivered by the said J. S. to the said keeper of his Majesty's said prison or his deputy, to wit, on the day and year last aforesaid, out of the custody of the said J. S. unlawfully did escape, and go at large whithersoever he would: to the great hindrance of justice, to the evil example of all others in the like case offending, and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity.

Misdemeanor: fine and imprisonment (with or without hard labour, 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 29, ante, p. 238). See 2 Hawk. c. 17, s. 5. See the evidence under the last precedent.

Indictment against a Gaoler for a Voluntary Escape. (Common Law.)

Berkshire, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that heretofore, to wit [at the general quarter sessions of the peace, holden at ——, so continuing the record of the conviction of the party who escaped, stating it, however, in the past and not in the present tense: then proceed thus]: which said judgment still remains in full force and effect, and not in the least reversed or made void. And the jurors first aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that afterwards, to wit, at the said general quarter sessions of the peace above mentioned, he the said J. N. was committed to the care and custody of J. S., he the said J. S. then and still being keeper of his Majesty's prison at Reading, being the common gaol in and for the county of Berks, there to be kept and imprisoned in the prison aforesaid, according to and in pursuance of the judgment and sentence aforesaid: and the said J. S. him the said J. N. then had in the custody of him the said J. S. for the cause aforesaid in the gaol aforesaid. And the jurors first aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present that the said J. S. afterwards, and before the expiration of the six calendar months for which the said J. N. was so ordered to be imprisoned as aforesaid, and whilst the said J. N. was so in the custody of the said J. S. as such keeper of the said prison as aforesaid, to wit, on the first day of August, in the year last aforesaid, feloniously [if the offence for which J. N. was convicted were felony], unlawfully, voluntarily and contemptuously, did permit and suffer the said J. N. to escape and go at large whithersoever he would; whereby the said J. N. did then escape out of the said prison, and go at large whithersoever he would; in contempt of our said lord the King and his laws, contrary to the duty of the said J. S., so being keeper of the prison aforesaid, in manifest hindrance of justice, to the evil example of all others in the like case offending, and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity.

A voluntary escape amounts to the same offence, and is punishable in the same degree as the offence of which the prisoner was guilty, and for which he was in custody, whether treason, felony, or misdemeanor (trespass). The officer, however, cannot be thus punished until after the original delinquent has been convicted; but before such conviction he may be fined and imprisoned as for a misdemeanor. 4 Bl. Com. 130; 1 Hale, 235; 2 Hawk. c. 19, s. 22; Steph. Dig. Cr. Law (6th. ed.), 115.

Evidence.

Prove the conviction of J. N., and that, upon his conviction, he was remanded or committed to the custody of the defendant, as keeper of the common gaol of the county of Berks. The conviction may be proved in the manner pointed out by 14 & 15 Vict. c. 99, s. 19 (ante, p. 360), or 34 & 35 Vict. c. 112, s. 18 (ante, p. 361). Prove him afterwards to have been in the custody of the defendant, in pursuance of his sentence. And, lastly, prove the escape. An escape is voluntary where the keeper gives the prisoner his liberty with the object of saving him from trial and punishment. See 2 Hawk. c. 19, s. 10; 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 891. It does not seem to be necessary to prove that the escape was voluntary; the law, it would seem, will presume that, until the contrary appear.

On the transfer of local prisons to the Crown, orders were made constituting particular prisons, whether within or without a county, as the common gaol for such county. For these orders, see St. R. & O. Revised (ed. 1904), vol. 10, tit. "Prison E.;" and see 28 & 29 Vict. c. 126, ss. 57, 58; 40 & 41 Vict. c. 21, s. 30. Removal of prisoners from one prison to another under lawful authority is not an escape. 28 & 29 Vict. c. 126, ss. 63–65; 40 & 41 Vict. c. 21, s. 28.

For precedent, see R. v. Shaw, R. & R. 526.

Indictment for conveying Files into a Local Prison, with intent to facilitate Escape of Prisoner. (28 & 29 Vict. c. 126, s. 37, ante, p. 1032.)

Berkshire, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that before and at the time of the committing of the felony hereinafter charged and stated, to wit, on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, one J. N. was a prisoner, in his Majesty's prison at ——, being the common gaol in and for the county of Berks; and that J. S. afterwards, and whilst the said J. N. was such prisoner as aforesaid, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, with intent to facilitate the escape of the said J. N., so then being such prisoner as aforesaid, from and out of the said prison, feloniously did convey and cause to be conveyed into the prison as aforesaid two steel files; against the form [as ante, p. 465]. In former editions reference was made to indictments under 16 G. 2, c. 31, s. 2 (ante, p. 1030), which are now omitted, as that section is for all practical purposes obsolete. See note, ante, p. 1029. An indictment under that section (ante, p. 1030), for aiding a prisoner to escape or in attempting to escape, need not set forth the means employed by the defendant for that purpose. Holloway v. R., 2 Den. 287; 17 Q. B. 317.

Felony: 28 & 29 Vict. c. 126, s. 37 (ante, p. 1032), imprisonment with hard labour for a term not exceeding two years. 28 & 29 Vict. c. 126, applies to all local prisons in England and Wales, but not to "convict" prisons (which include Parkhurst, Aylesbury, Borstal, Dartmoor, and Portland Prisons); Statutory Rules and Orders Revised (ed. 1904), vol. 10, tit. "Prison E.," pp. 118–121), nor to any military or naval prison (28 & 29 Vict. c. 126, ss. 3, 4). (See ante, p. 1032.)

Evidence.

Prove that J. N. was in custody, and a prisoner in the gaol mentioned in the indictment. The words of the statute are, "any prisoner." Prove that whilst J. N. was so in custody, the defendant conveyed to him one or more files; and prove that such files were calculated to facilitate his escape, by filing his irons, or the window bars, or the like. The mere delivery of such instruments to the prisoner is a fact from which the jury may well infer the intent, and it is immaterial, upon this statute, whether an escape be actually made or not. A crowbar is an "article or thing" within the meaning of this section. R. v. Payne, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 27; 35 L. J. (M. C.) 170.

BREACH OF PRISON.

Common Law.

Breaking prison, or conspiring so to do, seems to have been felony at common law. 2 Chit. Cr. L. 150 (n.); 1 Hale, 607; 2 Hawk. c. 18.

Statute.

23 Edw. 1, Stat. de frang. pris. (1 Edw. 2, st. 2, c. 1, Ruffhead)—Punishment.]—Concerning prisoners which break prison, our lord the King willeth and commandeth, that none from henceforth that breaketh prison shall have judgment of life or member for breaking of prison only; except the cause for which he was taken and imprisoned did require such judgment, if he had been convict thereupon according to the law and custom of the realm, albeit in times past it hath been used otherwise.

Indictment for breaking Prison. (Common Law).

Proceed as in the precedent, ante, p. 1032, to the words "until he by due course of law should be discharged," in the description of the warrant of commitment, and then proceed thus]: by virtue of which said warrant afterwards, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, the said J. N. was taken and conveyed to the said prison, and then delivered to one W. S., the keeper of the said prison, and the said W. S., keeper of the said prison then and there received him the said J. N. in his custody in the said prison.* And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said J. N. afterwards, and whilst he so remained in custody of the said W. S., keeper of the said prison, under and by virtue of the warrant aforesaid, to wit, on the 3rd day of September, in the year last aforesaid, feloniously [if he was committed for treason or felony], unlawfully, wilfully, and wilfully and injuriously did break the said prison, by then cutting and sawing two iron bars of the said prison, and also by then breaking, cutting and removing a great quantity of stone, parcel of the prison aforesaid; by means whereof, he the said J. N. did then escape and go at large whithersoever he would, to the great hindrance and obstruction of justice, in contempt of our lord the King and his laws, to the evil example of all others in the like case offending, and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity.

Felony, if the defendant were in custody for treason or felony (23 Edw. 1, supra; 2 Chit. Cr. L. 158; 1 Hale, 612); penal servitude for not more than seven nor less than three years, or imprisonment not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour. 7 & 8 G. 4, c. 28, s. 8 (ante, p. 234); 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3 (ante, p. 235); 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235).

Misdemeanor, if the defendant were in custody for any other offence: fine and imprisonment. 2 Hawk. c. 18, s. 1; Steph. Dig. Cr. Law (6th ed.), 119.

Evidence.

Prove the charge before the magistrate, and the warrant as directed, ante, p. 1033. Prove that the defendant was afterwards lodged in the prison mentioned in the indictment, in the custody of the keeper; and prove that, while in custody there under the warrant, he broke the prison and escaped.

The escape must be proved, if the breaking be charged as a felony; 2 Hawk. c. 18, s. 12; but otherwise, it would seem, if it be a misdemeanor only. And the breaking proved must be an actual breaking; merely getting over the walls, or passing out through a door, or the like, is an escape only, and not a breach of prison; 1 Hale, 611; 2 Chit. Cr. L. 150 (n.); and see R. v. Burridge, 3 P. Wms. 439; and on this account, it would seem that the manner of the breaking should be stated in the indictment, as in the above precedent, in order that the court may see that it was such as is necessary in law to constitute a breach of prison. But the breaking need not be intentional; and therefore where a prisoner, in effecting his escape, by accident threw down some loose bricks at the top of the prison wall, placed there to impede escape and give alarm, it was held to be a prison breach. R. v. Haswell, R. & R. 458.

Every place where a man's person is lawfully imprisoned, whether upon accusation or after conviction, such as the common gaol, the constable's house, the stocks, etc., is a prison within the meaning of the statute; 2 Hawk. c. 18, s. 4; and as described in the indictment, so it must be proved.

Although it is not material, in this case, whether the defendant was guilty of the offence for which he was imprisoned or not, 2 Hawk. c. 18, s. 16, yet if he can prove that no such offence was ever actually committed, or that he was arrested and detained without any reasonable cause of suspicion against him, 1 Hale, 610, 611, or if he has been subsequently indicted for the offence and acquitted, this will be a sufficient defence to the indictment for breach of prison. The mere dismissal, however, by a justice, on the preliminary examination before him, of the charge on which the defendant was imprisoned, is no defence to an indictment for the breach of prison by the defendant while in custody on the charge which was so afterwards dismissed. R. v. Waters, 12 Cox, 390, Martin, B.

SECT. 3.

RESCUE.

Common Law.

Rescue at common law is forcibly freeing a prisoner from his lawful custodian. 1 Co. Inst. 160; 1 Hale, 606, 611; 2 Hawk. c. 21; 2 Chit. Cr. L. 182; 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 904; Steph. Dig. Cr. Law (6th ed.), 116. If the prisoner is in private custody, the rescuer is not liable criminally unless he knew that the prisoner was in custody on a criminal charge. Id. The offence is treason, felony, or misdemeanor, according to the quality of the offence of the person rescued; but if the latter is not convicted of the offence for which he was in custody, the rescue is only a misdemeanor. Id. (See post, p. 1039.)

Statutes.

25 G. 2, c. 37 (Murder Act, 1751), s. 9—Rescuing murderers while proceeding to execution.]— . . . If any person or persons whatsoever shall by force set at liberty, or rescue, or attempt to rescue or set at liberty, any person out of prison, who shall be committed for or found guilty of murder, or rescue, or attempt to rescue any person convicted of murder, going to execution, or during execution, every person so offending shall be deemed, taken, and adjudged to be guilty of felony. . . .

1 & 2 G. 4, c. 88 (Rescue Act, 1821), s. 1.]—"Whereas divers daring attempts have of late been made to effect the rescue or prevent the detention of persons charged with or committed for or on suspicion of felony; and whereas it might tend more effectually to prevent the commission of such offences, if such further provisions were made for the punishment of persons who may hereafter be convicted thereof, as are hereinafter enacted;" be it therefore enacted, that from and after the passing of this Act, if any person shall rescue, or aid and assist in rescuing, from the lawful custody of any constable, officer, headborough, or other person whomsoever, any person charged with or suspected of or committed for any felony or on suspicion thereof, then, if the person or persons so offending shall be convicted of felony and be entitled to benefit of clergy, and be liable to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding one year, it shall be lawful for the court, by or before whom any such person or persons shall be convicted, to order and direct, in case it shall think fit, that such person or persons, instead of being so fined and imprisoned as aforesaid, shall be transported beyond the seas for seven years, or be imprisoned only, or be imprisoned and kept to hard labour, in the common gaol, house of correction, or penitentiary house, for any term not less than one and not exceeding three years. [Preamble rep., 53 & 54 Vict. c. 51, Stat. Law Rev. As to present punishment, see note to precedent, post, p. 1039.]

be convicted of the offence thereinbefore mentioned, such person shall not suffer death, or have sentence of death awarded against him or her for the same, but shall be liable to be transported beyond the seas for the term of the natural life of such person. . . ." [Now penal servitude for life, or such less punishment as is provided by 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235). Rest rep., 55 & 56 Vict. c. 19, S. L. R.]

Indictment for the rescue of a Felon from a Constable. (Common Law.)

State the charge before the magistrate, the warrant, the delivery of it to the constable, and J. N.'s being in his custody under it, as in the precedent, ante, p. 1032, to the words "together with the warrant aforesaid," inclusive. Then proceed thus]—And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said J. N. and J. T. afterwards, and whilst the said J. N. was in the custody of the said J. S., under the said warrant as aforesaid, and whilst the said J. S. was conveying the said J. N., under and by virtue of the said warrant, to the said prison, to wit, on the day and year last aforesaid, in and upon the said J. S., then being a constable as aforesaid, and then lawfully having the said J. N. in his custody, by virtue of the said warrant, for the cause aforesaid, in the due execution of his said office then being, did make an assault, and him the said J. S. did then beat, wound, and ill-treat; and that the said J. T., the said J. N. out of the custody of the said J. S., and against the will of him the said J. S., then unlawfully and forcibly did rescue and put at large, to go whithersoever he would: and that the said J. N. himself out of the custody of the said J. S., and against the will of him the said J. S., then unlawfully and forcibly did rescue and put at large, to go whithersoever he would: to the great hindrance of justice, etc. [as in last precedent].

Fine and imprisonment (with or without hard labour, 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 29, ante, p. 238), as for a misdemeanor, if the party rescued has not been convicted of the offence for which he was in custody; 2 Hawk. c. 21, s. 8; but if he has been convicted, then, if for high treason, the rescue is high treason; if for felony, felony; if for a misdemeanor, a misdemeanor. 1 Hale, 607; 1 Steph. Dig. Cr. Law (6th ed.), 117. If the rescuers be convicted of felony, the court, at its discretion, may adjudge them to be kept to penal servitude for not exceeding seven or less than three years, or to be imprisoned for not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour. 1 & 2 G. 4, c. 88, s. 1; 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3 (ante, p. 235); 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235). See 7 & 8 G. 4, c. 28 s. 10 (ante, pp. 231, 232).

Evidence.

Prove the charge before the magistrate, the warrant, and that J. N. was in the custody of J. S. under the warrant. If the party was convicted, the conviction may be proved by a certificate of the proper officer. 14 & 15 Vict. c. 99, s. 13 (ante, p. 360); 34 & 35 Vict. c. 112, s. 18 (ante, p. 361). And prove that whilst so in custody the defendant forcibly rescued him, as stated in the indictment. A warrant of a justice of the peace to apprehend any person, founded on a certificate of the clerk of the peace, that an indictment for a misdemeanor had been found against such person, is good (see 11 & 12 Vict. c. 42, s. 3), and therefore, if upon such warrant the person be arrested and afterwards rescued, those who are guilty of the rescue may be convicted of a misdemeanor. R. v. Stokes, 5 C. & P. 148.

As to evidence for the defendant, it may be observed, that any circumstances that will excuse a breach of prison will excuse a rescue. See ante, p. 1037. 2 Hawk. c. 21, ss. 1, 2.

Sect. 4.

Being at Large during a Sentence of Penal Servitude.

Statutes.

5 G. 4, c. 84 (Transportation Act, 1824), s. 22—Punishment—Venue.]—If any offender who shall have been or shall be so sentenced or ordered to be transported or banished, or who shall have agreed or shall agree to transport or banish himself or herself, on certain conditions, either for life or any number of years, under the provisions of this or any former Act (e.g., 2 G. 2, c. 25, s. 2, post, p. 1051), shall be afterwards at large, within any part of his Majesty's dominions without some lawful cause, before the expiration of the term for which such offender shall have been sentenced or ordered to be transported or banished, or shall have so agreed to transport or banish himself or herself [every such offender so being at large, being thereof lawfully convicted, shall suffer death as in cases of felony, without the benefit of clergy, rep. 4 & 5 W. 4, c. 67, post, p. 1041], and such offender may be tried either in the county or place where he or she shall be apprehended, or in that from whence he or she was ordered to be transported or banished;

And if any person shall rescue or attempt to rescue, or assist in rescuing or attempting to rescue, any such offender from the custody of such superintendent or overseer, or of any sheriff or gaoler or other person conveying, removing, transporting, or reconveying him or her, or shall convey or cause to be conveyed any disguise, instrument for effecting escape, or arms, to such offender, every such offence shall be punishable in the same manner as if such offender had been confined in a gaol or prison in the custody of the sheriff or gaoler, for the crime of which such offender shall have been convicted;

And whoever shall discover and prosecute to conviction any such offender so being at large within this kingdom, shall be entitled to a reward of twenty pounds for every such offender so convicted. [See post, p. 1043. This enactment is applied to penal servitude by 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3, s. 3, ante, p. 235.]

Sect. 23—Indictment.]—In any indictment against any offender for being found at large contrary to the provisions of this or of any other Act now made or hereafter to be made, and also in any indictment against any person who shall rescue or attempt to rescue, or assist in rescuing any such offender from such custody, or who shall convey or cause to be conveyed any disguise, instrument for effecting escape, or arms, to any such offender, contrary to the provisions of this or any other Act now made or hereafter to be made, whether such offender shall have been tried before any court or judge within or without the United Kingdom, or before any naval or military court-martial, it shall be sufficient to charge and allege the order made for the transportation or banishment of such offender, without charging or alleging any indictment, trial, conviction, judgment, or sentence, or any pardon or intention of mercy, or signification thereof, of or against, or in any manner relating to such offender.

Sect. 24—Evidence of conviction.]—The clerk of the court or other officer having the custody of the records of the court where such sentence or order of transportation or banishment shall have been passed or made, shall, at the request of any person on his Majesty's behalf, make out and give a certificate in writing, signed by him, containing the effect and substance only (omitting the formal part) of every indictment and conviction of such offender, and of the sentence or order for his or her transportation or banishment (not taking for the same more than six shillings and eightpence), which certificate shall be sufficient evidence of the conviction, or sentence or order for the transportation or banishment of such offender; and every such certificate, if made by the clerk or officer of any court in Great Britain, shall be received in evidence, upon proof of the signature and official character of the person signing the same; and every such certificate, if made by the clerk or officer of any court out of Great Britain, shall be received in evidence, if verified by the seal of the court, or by the signature of the judge, or one of the judges of the court, without further proof. See 8 & 9 Vict. c. 113, s. 1 (ante, p. 378); 14 & 15 Vict. c. 99, s. 13 (ante, p. 360); 34 & 35 Vict. c. 112, s. 18 (ante, p. 361).

4 & 5 W. 4, c. 67 (Transportation Act, 1834).]—Recites 5 G. 4, c. 84, s. 22, supra, and enacts, that any person convicted of any offence above specified in the said Transportation Act, 1824, or of aiding or abetting, counselling or procuring the commission thereof, shall be liable to be transported beyond the seas for his or her natural life. [Now penal servitude for life, or such less punishment as is provided by 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235).]

Indictment. (5 G. 4, c. 84, s. 22, ante, p. 1040.)

Middlesex, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King, upon their oath present, that heretofore, to wit [at the general quarter sessions of the peace, holden at ——, so continuing the caption of the indictment to the words "county committed" (see ante, p. 93); then proceed thus]: it was ordered that J. S. should be kept in penal servitude for the term of seven years (or as the case may be), which said order still remains in full force and effect, and not in the least reversed or made void. And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said J. S. afterwards, that is to say, after he the said J. S. was so ordered to be kept in penal servitude as aforesaid, and before the expiration of the term of seven years for which he the said J. S. was so ordered to be kept in penal servitude as aforesaid, to wit, on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, feloniously and unlawfully and without any lawful cause or excuse whatsoever was at large within the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, to wit, at the parish of B., in the county of M.; against the form [as ante, p. 465].

The word "feloniously" is essential (R. v. Horne, 4 Cox, 263). It is sufficient in the indictment to charge and allege the order made for the sentence of the offender, without charging or alleging any indictment, trial, conviction, judgment, or sentence, or any pardon, or intention of mercy, or signification thereof, of, or against, or in any manner relating to such offender. 5 G. 4, c. 84, s. 23 (ante, p. 1040). See R. v. Fitzpatrick, R. & R. 512. The venue may be laid either in the county where the defendant was apprehended, or in the county whence he was ordered to be transported or kept in penal servitude. 5 G. 4, c. 84, s. 22.

Felony: 5 G. 4, c. 84, s. 22: penal servitude for life or for not less than three years, or imprisonment, with or without hard labour, not exceeding two years. 4 & 5 W. 4, c. 67, supra; 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3 (ante, p. 235); 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235).

This offence is not triable at quarter sessions. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (ante, p. 126).

Evidence.

The Penal Servitude Act, 1857 (20 & 21 Vict. c. 3, ante, p. 235), abolished sentences of transportation and substituted penal servitude. Convicts can be sent abroad to serve the sentence (22 Vict. c. 25), but there are not at present any regulations for exercising this power. The Act of 1857 (20 & 21 Vict. c. 3), s. 3, provides that all Acts and provisions then (26th June, 1857) applicable to the punishment of offenders under sentence or orders of transportation, if at large without lawful cause before the expiration of their sentence, and all provisions then applicable to and in the case of persons under sentence or order of transportation, are to apply to and in the case of persons under sentence or order of penal servitude, as if they were persons under sentence or order of transportation. It is therefore necessary to retain in this place the provisions of 5 G. 4, c. 84, s. 22, and 4 & 5 W. 4, c. 67. It will also be seen (ante, pp. 1031, 1032) that there is no express provision as to escape of penal servitude prisoners from a convict prison in England.

Prove the sentence of transportation or penal servitude by a certificate in writing, which the clerk of the court, or other officer having the custody of the records of the court where such order was made (see R. v. Jones, 2 C. & K. 524: R. v. Parsons, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 24; 35 L. J. (M. C.) 167; 5 G. 4, c. 22, s. 24), must give upon application, and which is made evidence if it purport to be signed by the person having the custody of the records of the courts, without any proof of the signature or official character of such person (8 & 9 Vict. c. 113, s. 1, ante, p. 378); or if it be a court out of Great Britain, if verified by the seal of the court, or by the signature of the judge or one of the judges of the court, without further proof. 5 G. 4, c. 84, s. 24; see also 14 & 15 Vict. c. 99, s. 13 (ante, p. 360); 34 & 35 Vict. c. 112, s. 18 (ante, p. 361). The certificate must contain the effect and substance of the indictment and conviction of such offender, and of the sentence of penal servitude. Merely stating that the prisoner was convicted of felony, without stating the nature of the felony, is insufficient. See R. v. Watson, R. & R. 468, decided on 56 G. 3, c. 27, s. 8 (rep.), which is in substance the same as 5 G. 4, c. 84, s. 22. Prove also the prisoner's identity.

Prove also that the defendant was at large before the expiration of the term for which he was ordered to be kept in penal servitude. The fact of the sentence being in force when the defendant was found at large is sufficiently proved by the certificate of the conviction and sentence—the judgment remaining unreversed; although it appear on the face of the certificate that the sentence was one which could not legally have been inflicted on the defendant for the offence of which, according to the certificate, he had been convicted. R. v. Finney, 2 C. & K. 774. For the defence, it may be proved that the prisoner is at large conditionally under a licence of ticket-of-leave or otherwise, and that the conditions have been observed. See 27 & 28 Vict. c. 47, ss. 4, 58; 34 & 35 Vict. c. 112, ss. 4, 5; 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, ss. 2–5; or that he has been pardoned. R. v. Miller, 2 W. Bl. 797; 1 Leach, 74. Where the terms of a conditional pardon are not observed the sentence revives. R. v. Madan, 1 Leach, 223: Aickles' case, Id. 390.

The judge at the trial has power to order the county treasurer to pay the prosecutor the reward under 5 G. 4, c. 84, s. 22. R. v. Emmons, 2 M. & Rob. 279: R. v. Ambury, 6 Cox, 79.

Sect. 5.

PERJURY, SUBORNATION AND ATTEMPTED SUBORNATION OF PERJURY, FABRICATION OF EVIDENCE, AND FALSE OATHS AND DECLARATIONS.

Common Law.

Perjury by a witness has long been treated as an offence at common law (2 Hale, 192); but, prior to the Reformation, it seems to have been usually dealt with as an ecclesiastical offence (see 13 Edw. 1 (circumspecté agatis), 2 Pollock & Maitland, Hist. Eng. Law, 539, 541). 32 H. 8, c. 9, s. 3, provides for the punishment of persons suborning witnesses to procure perjury by false verdict (3 Co. Inst. 184). 5 Eliz. c. 9, deals with perjury by suborned or other witnesses in the courts of common law and chancery, and other courts named, and gives jurisdiction to the judges of assize and quarter sessions (s. 3). It saves the jurisdiction of spiritual courts and of judges who at its passing had absolute power to punish perjury (s. 7). In 1612 it was held that perjury by a witness for the crown was punishable at common law; re Rowland ap Eliza, 3 Co. Inst. 164; and this view has been since treated as applying to perjury in civil proceedings or trials for misdemeanor before courts of justice. It is extended by 1 Anne, st. 2, c. 9, s. 3, to witnesses for the defence in treason and felony.

The legal offence of perjury can only be committed in certain cases of oaths taken under the common law, or on oaths taken under particular statutes in which the offence is provided for. It by no means necessarily follows that perjury must be committed in a false oath taken under a particular statute. Though a high misdemeanor, it would not be perjury unless so made by the statute requiring the oath, and there are many cases of statutes requiring oaths and not creating the offence. R. v. Mudie, 1 M. & Rob. 128, 131, Tenterden, L.C.J. It has, therefore, been usual in creating new courts or authorizing new kinds of proceedings, judicial or quasi-judicial, to enact that wilful false evidence on oath shall be punished as perjury. Most of these statutes are collected in the Official Index to the Statutes (ed. 1904), tit. "Perjury," 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, to which reference should be made for special provisions. Those of more general concern are printed post, p. 1051, et seq. The following pages, subject to the particular terms of these statutes, state the law generally as to perjury.

Formerly when a defendant in a criminal case was not a competent witness, he could not be indicted for perjury if sworn by mistake. R. v. Clegg, 19 L. T. (N. S.) 47, Hannen, J. But he can be indicted for perjury when he is a competent witness (R. v. Baker [1895] 1 Q. B. 797), under 61 & 62 Vict. c. 36 (ante, pp. 392–397), or any other Act. See R. v. Bartley, Staffordshire Assizes, July, 1899, Day, J.: R. v. Wookey, 63 J. P. 409: R. v. Dean, 17 N. S. W. Rep. (Law) 357; and see 33 L. J. Newsp. 392, 603; 34 L. J. Newsp. 100.

An oath, or affirmation, to amount to perjury, must be taken (1) in a judicial proceeding, and (2) before a competent jurisdiction; it must also be (3) material to the question depending, and (4) false, and (5) the witness must know it to be false (R. v. Aylett, 1 T. R. 63, 69; 1 R. R. 152: R. v. Dunn, 1 D. & Ry. 10; and see Steph. Dig. Cr. Law (6th ed.), 106), or not know it to be true. See post, p. 1050.

1. Judicial proceeding.]—It must be taken in a judicial proceeding. As if the defendant swear falsely, when examined as a witness at a trial; 3 Co. Inst. 166; or in an affidavit in the courts of King's Bench, Common Pleas, Chancery, etc.; 5 Mod. 348; 1 Show. 335, 397; 1 Rolle Rep. 79, Coke, C.J.; or upon a commission for the examination of witnesses; Cro. Car. 99; see 1 B. & P. 210; 42 G. 3, c. 85, s. 5; 1 W. 4, c. 22, s. 7; 22 Vict. c. 20, s. 2; or in justifying bail in any of the courts; or upon an examination before a magistrate; or in a judicial proceeding in a court baron; 5 Mod. 348; 1 Mod. 55, Twisden, J.; or ecclesiastical court; 5 Mod. 348: R. v. Worley, 3 Cox, 535; or before a local marine board; R. v. Tomlinson, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 49; 36 L. J. (M. C.) 41; or before a judge trying an election petition; 31 & 32 Vict. c. 125, s. 21; or a grand jury; R. v. Hughes, 1 C. & K. 519; 19 & 20 Vict. c. 54, s. 1; or any other court, whether of record or not, e.g., a naval-court martial; R. v. Heane, 4 B. & S. 947; 33 L. J. (M. C.) 115; 29 & 30 Vict. c. 109, s. 67; or before a commissioner for oaths where the false oaths if taken in a judicial proceeding before a competent court would have been perjury. 52 & 53 Vict. c. 10 (Commissioners for Oaths Act, 1889), s. 7 (post, p. 1054). See 1 Hawk. c. 69, s. 3. Perjury may be assigned on an oath taken before the commencement of a legal proceeding, but for the purposes of such proceeding; King v. R., 14 Q. B. 31; 18 L. J. (M. C.) 253 (Ex. Ch.); or an affidavit made for the purposes of a motion in chancery, though the motion is never made. R. v. White, M. & M. 271. In R. v. Foster, R. & R. 459, a false oath taken before a surrogate to procure a marriage licence was held not sufficient to support a prosecution for perjury at common law: see 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 295. A surrogate has, under 4 G. 4, c. 76, s. 14, the power and duty to administer an oath before granting a licence. R. v. Fairlie, 9 Cox, 209. In such cases it has been usual to indict as for a mere misdemeanor at common law, and such an indictment is certainly sustainable; see R. v. Chapman, 1 Den. 432; 2 C. & K. 846; 18 L. J. (M. C.) 152; 3 Cox, 467: R. v. Hodgkiss, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 212; 39 L. J. (M. C.) 14, and post, p. 1071. And if an indictment for such a common law misdemeanor contains the words "and so the defendant did commit wilful and corrupt perjury," this allegation may be rejected as surplusage, and the defendant may nevertheless be convicted of the common law misdemeanor; R. v. Hodgkiss, ubi supra; in which case it was held that making a false affidavit before a commissioner for taking oaths in the Queen's Bench for the purpose of getting a bill of sale filed under the Bills of Sale Act, 1854, was a misdemeanor, though not perjury. But now to make such an affidavit is perjury by s. 17 of the Bills of Sale Act, 1878 (41 & 42 Vict. c. 31). If on a prosecution for taking a false oath before a surrogate to procure a marriage licence, the indictment only charges the taking the false oath, without stating that it was for the purpose of procuring a licence, or that a licence was thereby procured, the party cannot (at common law) be punished thereon as for a misdemeanor; but if the purpose is to obtain a licence, and the licence is obtained, and the marriage had, the party may be indicted as for a misdemeanor. R. v. Foster, R. & R. 459, which case was distinguished by Martin, B., from R. v. Hodgkiss (ubi supra), in his judgment in the last-named case, on the ground that in R. v. Foster the indictment did not state facts sufficient to constitute the offence of taking a false oath. See now 3 & 4 Vict. c. 72, s. 4, and 19 & 20 Vict. c. 119, ss. 2, 18; and R. v. Smith, 4 F. & F. 1099, which subject a false declaration made for the purpose of procuring a marriage to the penalties of perjury. Cf. s. 41 of the Marriage Act, 1836 (6 & 7 W. 4, c. 86). There is a like provision as to marriages before British officials abroad. 55 & 56 Vict. c. 23, s. 15. Perjury might, it seems, be assigned on the oath against simony taken by clergymen at the time of their institution. R. v. Lewis, 1 Str. 70. By the Clerical Subscription Act, 1865 (28 & 29 Vict. c. 122, ss. 2, 5), a declaration is substituted for this oath. By the Benefices Act, 1898 (61 & 62 Vict. c. 48), s. 1 (4), the form of declaration is altered, and knowingly to make a false statement therein is punishable as perjury.

The judge of the Sheriffs' Court in London (now the City of London Court) had no power to amend a summons issued upon a judgment recovered in a plaint by a single woman, by adding the name of a man whom she had married subsequently to obtaining the judgment, and therefore (before the power of amendment given by ss. 87, 185 of the County Courts Act, 1888) the person against whom such judgment had been recovered could be convicted of perjury committed by him upon the hearing of such an amended judgment summons, he having been sworn in a cause which had in fact no existence. R. v. Pearce, 8 B. & S. 531; 32 L. J. (M. C.) 75.

2. Competent jurisdiction.]—It must be taken before a competent jurisdiction. For, if it appear to have been taken before a person who had no lawful authority to administer it, 3 Co. Inst. 165, 166; or who had no jurisdiction of the cause, 3 Co. Inst. 166; Paine's case, Yelv. 111, the defendant must be acquitted. See 1 Hawk. c. 69, ss. 3, 4; Bac. Abr. Perjury (A.): R. v. Crossley, 7 T. R. 315; 4 R. R. 445; Dunn v. R., 12 Q. B. 1026; 18 L. J. (M. C.) 41: R. v. Dunn, 1 D. & R. 10: R. v. Hanks, 3 C. & P. 419: R. v. Stone, Dears. 251; 23 L. J. (M. C.) 14: R. v. Townsend, 10 Cox, 356; 4 F. & F. 1089. But it is not necessary in the indictment to show the nature of the authority of the party administering the oath. R. v. Callanan, 6 B. & C. 102. Nor is it necessary that the indictment should expressly aver, or show by necessary inference, that the court before which the oath was taken had jurisdiction to try the cause or indictment in the course of the trial of which the oath was taken. R. v. Dunning, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 290; 40 L. J. (M. C.) 58. Perjury cannot be assigned on a foreign affidavit taken before a person not authorized to administer an oath by English law; Musgrave v. Medex, 19 Ves. 652: cf. O'Mealy v. Newell, 8 East, 364; nor on an affidavit sworn in England before a commissioner of oaths for a foreign proceeding unless it is made under the Foreign Tribunals Evidence Act (19 & 20 Vict. c. 113), or the Extradition Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 60, s. 5): R. v. Christian, 33 L. J. Newsp. 587 (Cent. Crim. Ct.). As to affidavits sworn abroad, see 52 & 53 Vict. c. 10 (Commissioners for Oaths Act, 1889), ss. 3, 6 (post, p. 1054). As to persons competent to take affidavits under the Bank Notes Act, 1823 (9 G. 4, c. 23, s. 7), see R. v. Greenland,

L. R. 1 C. C. R. 65; 10 Cox, 377 (C. C. R.); 52 & 53 Vict. c. 10, s. 7 (post, p. 1054); 54 & 55 Vict. c. 38, s. 24. In R. v. Cohen, 1 Stark. (N. P.) 511, perjury was assigned on evidence given on a trial after a co-plaintiff had died after issue joined, when no suggestion of the death had been entered on the record. This omission was held to abate the suit and make the trial extra-judicial, and to defeat the charge of perjury.

An affidavit of debt filed in the Court of Bankruptcy, under 1 & 2 Vict. c. 100, s. 8 (rep.), for the purpose of causing a person to be adjudged bankrupt, was held to be properly sworn before a registrar of that court, by virtue of 5 & 6 Vict. c. 122, s. 67 (rep.). R. v. Dunn, 12 Q. B. 1026; 18 L. J. (M. C.) 41. The prisoner was convicted of perjury alleged to have been committed in an examination by "the court" under s. 27 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883. It appeared that he was summoned under s. 27 before a county court having jurisdiction in bankruptcy. The oath was administered to the prisoner in court by the registrar, who had power to take the examination and before whom it was intended that it should be taken. The registrar remained in court, but the examination of the prisoner took place in a room used for examinations in the absence of the registrar. It was held that there had been no valid examination by "the court" within s. 27, and that the conviction must be quashed. R. v. Lloyd, 19 Q. B. D. 213; 56 L. J. (M. C.) 119.

An arbitrator under the County Courts Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 43), has power under 14 & 15 Vict. c. 99, s. 16 (post, p. 1052), to administer an oath. And by 52 & 53 Vict. c. 49 (Arbitration Act, 1889), s. 22 (post, p. 1054), any person who wilfully and corruptly gives false evidence before any referee, arbitrator, or umpire, is guilty of perjury as if the evidence had been given in open court, and may be dealt with, prosecuted, and punished accordingly. These statutes overrule the decision in R. v. Hallett, 2 Den. 237; 3 C. & K. 30; 20 L. J. (M. C.) 197, given under 9 & 10 Vict. c. 95, s. 77 (rep.).

In affiliation proceedings.]—Under s. 2 of the Poor Law Act, 1844 (7 & 8 Vict. c. 101), justices of the peace had power to entertain a second application for an order in bastardy, after the first application had been dismissed on the merits: therefore, perjury could be assigned on a false oath taken before them on the hearing of such second application. R. v. Cooke, 2 Den. 462; 21 L. J. (M. C.) 136. To sustain an indictment for perjury committed on the hearing of an affiliation summons, it must appear that the woman was resident within the petty sessional division in which the summons was heard. R. v. Hughes, Dears. & B. 188; 26 L. J. (M. C.) 133; 7 Cox, 286 (C. C. R.). Assuming that such summons, where the application for it is made more than twelve months after the birth, ought to issue only upon evidence given on oath of the payment of money by the putative father within twelve months next after the birth, the objection is waived by his appearing on the summons, and submitting to the jurisdiction of the petty sessions; for this is not a proceeding in pœnam, but is in the nature of a civil suit. R. v. Berry, Bell, 46; 28 L. J. (M. C.) 86; 8 Cox, 121 (C. C. R.); see R. v. Lightfoot, 6 E. & B. 822; 25 L. J. (M. C.). 115: R. v. Simmons, Bell, 168; 28 L. J. (M. C.) 183; 8 Cox, 190. And although 7 & 8 Vict. c. 101, s. 2, enacted that where application for an affiliation summons is made before the birth of the child, the woman shall make a deposition (which means evidence taken down in writing) upon oath, yet where such summons is issued without any such deposition having been made by the woman, but upon a mere verbal statement upon oath by her, this irregularity is waived, and the petty sessions have jurisdiction to hear the complaint if the defendant appears to the summons and makes no objection to its validity or to the jurisdiction of the court, and he may therefore be indicted for perjury committed on the hearing. R. v. Fletcher, L. R. 1 C. C R. 320; 40 L. J. (M. C.) 123. Upon an indictment for perjury committed at the hearing of an information in bastardy, which indictment alleged the application for a summons, the issuing thereof, and the hearing upon it, proof of the information, of the appearance of the defendant at the hearing, of evidence being given on both sides, and of no objection being made of the want of a summons, is sufficient to show jurisdiction in the justices, without proof of the summons. R. v. Smith, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 110; 37 L. J. (M. C.) 6. Where the application for an affiliation summons is made within twelve months from the birth, the justices have jurisdiction, although the summons is not actually issued until after the twelve months. R. v. Chugg, 11 Cox, 558 (C. C. R.): Potts v. Cumbridge, 8 E. & B. 847; 27 L. J. (M. C.) 62. Nor will the fact that a summons has been actually issued within the twelve months, but not served, prevent the jurisdiction of the justices attaching on a second summons issued and served after the twelve months, and founded upon the application made within the twelve months. R. v. Chugg, ubi supra. 7 & 8 Vict. c. 101, s. 2, was repealed by s. 2 of the Bastardy Act, 1872 (35 & 36 Vict. c. 65), and re-enacted almost iisdem verbis as s. 3 of that Act, to which the above decisions seem to apply.

Jurisdiction of justices.]—An indictment for perjury upon the hearing of an information for penalties under 11 G. 4 & 1 W. 4, c. 64, s. 15 (rep.), did not allege that the magistrates were acting for the division in which the house was situated, and upon that ground was held to be bad. R. v. Rawlins, 8 C. & P. 439. The decision in that case was on the ground that such justices alone had jurisdiction under the statute to hear the information, but where the statute creating the offence gave the jurisdiction to justices of the county, it was held sufficient to state that the hearing out of which the charge of perjury arose, took place before justices of the county. R. v. Shaw, L. & C. 579; 34 L. J. (M. C.) 169: see 35 & 36 Vict. c. 94, s. 18.

Under 7 & 8 G. 4, c. 30, s. 24 (rep.), which gave a magistrate jurisdiction to convict summarily in cases of malicious injury to property (see now 24 & 25 Vict. c. 97, s. 52), it was held that he might adjudicate and convict, although there was not an information on oath, notwithstanding s. 30. R. v. Millard, Dears. 166; 22 L. J. (M. C.) 108 (C. C. R.).

If a party is before a magistrate, and he is then charged with the commission of an offence within the jurisdiction of that magistrate, the latter has jurisdiction to proceed to hear the charge without any information or summons having been previously issued (unless the statute creating the offence imposes the necessity of taking some such step, as was the case in R. v. Scotton, 5 Q. B. 493; 13 L. J. (M. C.) 58), and the witnesses, if they swear falsely, will be liable to an indictment for perjury. R. v. Shaw, L. & C. 579; 34 L. J. (M. C.) 169. Therefore, where H., a police constable, procured a warrant to be illegally issued, without any written information or oath, for the arrest of S., on a charge of "assaulting and obstructing him, H., in the discharge of his duty," upon which warrant S. was arrested and brought before justices and charged with assaulting H., and obstructing him, being a police constable in the discharge of his duty, which charge against S. was, without objection by him, tried by the justices, and H. was afterwards indicted for perjury committed on that trial, it was held that H. was rightly convicted, although there was no written information nor oath to justify the issue of the warrant, and that the justices had jurisdiction to hear the charge, though the warrant upon which S. was brought before them was illegal. R. v. Hughes, 4 Q. B. D. 614; 48 L. J. (M. C.) 151.

On an indictment for perjury on the hearing of a complaint for trespass in pursuit of game, it appeared that the complaint alleged that the defendant was in the close for the purpose of destroying game, but it did not allege that it was for the purpose of destroying game there; the complaint was held to be sufficient in form to give the justices jurisdiction so as to make false evidence on the hearing perjury. R. v. Western, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 122; 37 L. J. (M. C.) 81; 11 Cox, 93.

As to perjury before a deputy coroner, see post, p. 1068. As to perjury on trial before deputy or under-sheriff, see R. v. Dunn, 2 Mood. C. C. 297; 1 C. & K. 730, 732, n.

3. Materiality.]—That part of the oath upon which the perjury is assigned must be material to the matter then under the consideration of the court. 3 Co. Inst. 167: R. v. Griepe, 1 Ld. Raym. 256; 2 Salk. 513: R. v. Nicholl, 1 B. & Ald. 21; 8 L. J. (O. S.) M. C. 112: R. v. Townsend, 10 Cox, 356; 4 F. & F. 1089: R. v. Hadfield, 16 Cox, 148 (C. C. R.). For instance, if a witness be asked whether goods were paid for on a particular day, and he answer in the affirmative—if the goods were really paid for, though not on that particular day, it will not be perjury, 2 Rolle Rep. 41, 42, unless the day be material. So, if a man swear that J. S. beat another with a sword, and it turn out that he beat him with a stick, this is not perjury; for all that was material was the battery. Allen v. Westley, Hetley, 97. See 1 Hawk. c. 69, s. 8. It has been held that denial of an agreement void under the Statute of Frauds is not material, and that perjury cannot be assigned on it. R. v. Dunston, Ry. & M. 109: R. v. Benesech, Peake, Add. Cas. 98; 4 R. R. 894: sed quære. On an indictment for perjury committed on the hearing of a charge of assault by a husband on his wife, an assignment of perjury on a statement by the defendant, as a witness for the husband, that he had seen the wife committing adultery, of which he had told the husband just before the assault, was held bad for immateriality, as the supposed statement could not be legally relevant to the charge of assault as affording no ground of legal justification, although it might afford some ground for mitigation of punishment. R. v. Tate, 12 Cox, 7, Cockburn, C.J. But perjury may be assigned upon a man's testimony as to the credit of a witness. R. v. Griepe, ubi supra. And every question in cross-examination which goes to the witness's credit (as, whether he has before been convicted of felony) is material for this purpose. R. v. Lavey, 3 C. & K. 26: R. v. Overton, 2 Mood. C. C. 263; C. & Mar. 655, Patteson, J., and Parke, B.: R. v. Baker [1895] 1 Q. B. 797; 64 L. J. (M. C.) 177 (C. C. R.). The last of these cases must be treated as disposing of the doubts expressed on this point by Kelly, C.B., and Byles and Lush, JJ., in R. v. Tyson, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 107; 37 L. J. (M. C.) 7; 11 Cox, 1; and by Martin, B., and Crompton, J., in R. v. Gibbon, L. & C. 109; 31 L. J. (M. C.) 98. In R. v. Baker (ubi supra), the accused had been prosecuted before a magistrate under 35 & 36 Vict. c. 94, s. 3, for selling beer without a licence. On that charge he was a competent witness under 35 & 36 Vict. c. 94, s. 51 (4), and gave evidence, in which he denied that he had authorized his solicitor to put in a plea of guilty for him to a previous charge for the same offence. This evidence was held to be material to the question under trial before the magistrate, although the accused had admitted the existence of the previous conviction. In R. v. Overton (ubi supra), the date of a receipt given for the price of a greyhound was held material. Cf. R. v. Altass, 1 Cox, 17. On the hearing of an application for an affiliation order against H., in respect of a full-grown bastard child born in March, the mother, in answer to questions put to her in cross-examination, denied having had connection with G. in the September previous to the birth. G. was called to contradict her, and he wilfully and falsely swore that he had had connection with her at the time specified. It was held, that although the evidence of G. ought not to have been admitted to contradict the mother on a matter which went only to her credit, still, as it was admitted, it was evidence material to her credit; and, consequently, so far material in the inquiry before the justices as to be capable of being made the subject of an indictment against G. for perjury. R. v. Gibbon, ubi supra. Upon an indictment for robbery committed on the night of the 13th April, a witness swore, not only (1) that the prisoner was at home on that night, but (2) that the prisoner had lived in the same house for two years previous, and (3) that during the whole of that time he had not been absent from home for more than three nights. The last two statements were proved to be false, and it was held that they were material, and the proper subjects of assignments of perjury, inasmuch as they tended to render more probable the statement that the prisoner was at home on the night of the 13th April. R. v. Tyson, ubi supra. Evidence of the payment of money by the putative father of a bastard child, within twelve months before the issuing of an affiliation summons against him, is material on the hearing of such summons. R. v. Berry, Bell, 46; 28 L. J. (M. C.) 86; 8 Cox, 121. Where a prisoner charged with robbery before a magistrate, having cross-examined the prosecutor whether he had not, the day before that of the alleged robbery, met him (the prisoner) in company with M., and proposed to him to commit a burglary, and the prosecutor having denied this, the prisoner called M. to prove it, it was held that M.'s evidence was not material to the issue, so that it could be made the subject of an indictment for perjury. R. v. Murray, 1 F. & F. 80; cf. R. v. Holden, 12 Cox, 166. On the trial of A. for perjury, in an affidavit made by him, and used on the taxation of costs, the signature to the affidavit was proved to be in A.'s handwriting, but the commissioner who had administered the oath was unable to identify A. as the person who made the affidavit. B. was thereupon called as a witness, and swore that the affidavit was used before the taxing-master, when A. was present, and that it was then publicly said that it was A.'s affidavit. B. was afterwards indicted for perjury on A.'s trial, and it was held that the above evidence given by him on that trial was material as corroborative evidence of the affidavit having been made by A. R. v. Alsop, 11 Cox, 264; 17 W. R. 621 (C. C. R.). On the trial of an action of trover, the plaintiff's case was that the defendant had tricked him out of the goods, the subject of the action, while the plaintiff was drunk. The defendant's case was that he had fairly bought the goods from the plaintiff, who had sent for the goods from a railway station where they were lying, had signed a delivery note for them, and had then sold them to the defendant. The defendant, who was called as a witness in support of his own case, swore that the plaintiff's name on the delivery note was plaintiff's writing, and that he saw him write it. It was held that this was evidence material to the issue, upon which perjury might be assigned, the question in the action being whether the plaintiff had been imposed on by a fraud while drunk, and that it therefore became essential to ascertain whether the handwriting on the delivery note was his, as a step in ascertaining whether or not he was drunk at the time of the transaction. R. v. Naylor, 11 Cox, 13 (C. C. R.); 16 W. R. 374.

On the trial of a plaint in the county court, the judge having decided that a debt was due from the defendant, while considering how it was to be paid, asked defendant what was his christian name. Defendant wilfully and falsely swore that his name was "Edward," and not "Bernard," he being called in the summons "Bernard Edward Mullany," and the judge thereupon struck out the cause. It was held that the answer was relevant to the inquiry, and that defendant was liable to be indicted for perjury. R. v. Mullany, L. & C. 593; 34 L. J. (M. C.) 111.

Where an action and all matters in difference are referred to arbitration, and perjury is assigned on evidence given before the arbitrator, the indictment ought to state, and the evidence must show, whether the evidence alleged to be false was material in respect to the matters in issue in the action, or to the other matters in difference. R. v. Ball, 6 Cox, 360: cf. R. v. Newman, 2 Den. 390; 21 L. J. (M. C.) 75.

It is perjury to give false evidence, whereby the judge is induced to admit other material evidence—even though the latter evidence is afterwards withdrawn by counsel, or was not legally receivable. R. v. Phillpotts, 2 Den. 302; 3 C. & K. 135; 21 L. J. (M. C.) 18. See R. v. Pepys, Peake (3rd ed.), 187: R. v. Benesech, Peake, Add. Cas. 93; 4 R. R. 894: R. v. Dunston, Ry. & M. 109: R. v. Meek, 9 C. & P. 513: R. v. Yates, C. & Mar. 132: Ryalls v. R., 11 Q. B. 781; 17 L. J. (M. C.) 92.

It is still a moot point whether, on an indictment for perjury, the materiality of the matter in which the false swearing is proved is a question of fact for the jury, or a question of law for the judge; but according to the better opinion it ought to be regarded in the latter light. 1 Tayl. Ev. (9th ed.) 45; 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 319: R. v. Courtney, 5 Ir. C. L. Rep. 434; 7 Cox, 111: R. v. Dunston, Ry. & M. 109: R. v. Worley, 3 Cox, 535: R. v. Southwood, 1 F. & F. 356: contra, R. v. Lavey, 3 C. & K. 26 (doubted on this point in R. v. Gibbon, L. & C. 109, Channell, B.): and R. v. Goddard, 2 F. & F. 361.

Although it has long been regarded as law that that part of the oath upon which the perjury is assigned must be material to the matter then under the consideration of the court, Erle, C.J., in pronouncing judgment in R. v. Mullany, L. & C. 593; 34 L. J. (M. C.) 111, said:—"Whenever the question arises whether a person may not be guilty of perjury, who, with intent to mislead the court, wilfully swears falsely on a matter which, in the opinion of the judges, is of doubtful admissibility, or immaterial to the inquiry, it will be one well worthy the careful consideration of all the judges." See R. v. Baker [1895] 1 Q. B. 797; 64 L. J. (M. C.) 177 (C. C. R.).

4. Falsity.]—The matter sworn must be either false in fact, or if true, the defendant must not have known it to be so. 1 Hawk. c. 69, s. 6; 3 Co. Inst. 166: R. v. Ockley, Palmer, 294. Where a man swears to a particular fact, without knowing at the time whether the fact be true or false, it is as much perjury as if he knew the fact to be false, and equally indictable. R. v. Mawbey, 6 T. R. 619, per Lawrence, J., at p. 637. If a man swear that J. N. revoked his will in his presence—if he really had revoked it, but it were unknown to the witness that he had done so, it is perjury. Allen v. Westley, Hetley, 97. And a man may be indicted for perjury in swearing that he believes a fact to be true which he must know to be false. R. v. Pedley, 1 Leach, 325, per Lord Mansfield: R. v. Schlesinger, 10 Q. B. 670; 17 L. J. (M. C.) 29. Sed contra, see 1 Hawk, c. 69, s. 7; 3 Co. Inst. 166; 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 294, and authorities and precedents there mentioned. But it would seem that perjury cannot be assigned on evidence stating the opinion of the witness as to the construction of a deed. R. v. Crespigny, 1 Esp. 280, Kenyon, L.C.J.

5. Knowledge of falsity.]—The false oath must be taken deliberately and intentionally; for if taken from inadvertence or mistake, it cannot amount to wilful and corrupt perjury. 1 Hawk. c. 69, s. 2; and see R. v. Mawbey, ubi supra and post, p. 1071. Therefore where perjury is assigned on an answer in equity, or an affidavit, etc., the part on which the perjury is assigned may be explained by another part, or even by a subsequent answer, etc. 1 Sid. 419; Com. Dig., Just. of Peace (B.), 102. On the trial of a cause a witness was asked three or four times by the advocate and judge whether at any time he had any coals on credit from P., to which the witness always answered "I did not." It was held that the witness's attention had been sufficiently called to the subject to found a charge of perjury against him upon the answer, although no distinct transactions on credit were suggested to him during his examination. R. v. London, 12 Cox, 50 (C. C. R.): cf. R. v. Stolady, 1 F. & F. 518.

Sect. 9—Venue.]—Any offence under this Act, whether committed within or without her Majesty's dominions, may be inquired of, dealt with, tried, and punished in any county or place in the United Kingdom in which the person charged with the offence was apprehended or is in custody, and for all purposes incidental to or consequential on the trial or punishment the offence shall be deemed to have been committed in that county or place (see ante, p. 47).

Sect. 11—Definitions.]—In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, "oath" includes affirmation and declaration; "affidavit" includes affirmation, statutory or other declaration, acknowledgment, examination, and attestation or protestation of honour; "swear" includes affirm, declare, and protest.

The above Act applies to commissioners for oaths, etc., for courts and matters in England (s. 1), including affidavits for use in county courts (51 & 52 Vict. c. 43, s. 83; 53 & 54 Vict. c. 7, s. 1), and in case of oaths or affidavits abroad for the purpose of any cause or matter in England, or the registration of an instrument in England, to such oaths, etc., if taken before any person having authority to administer an oath in the place where it is taken (52 & 53 Vict. c. 10, s. 3), including British diplomatic and consular officers exercising functions there (s. 6).

General Observations as to Indictments for Perjury.

The indictment must charge that the oath or affirmation was taken (1) in a judicial proceeding (ante, p. 1044); (2) before a competent jurisdiction (ante, pp. 1045–1048); (3) as to some thing material to the questions at issue before the tribunal (ante, p. 1048); and was (4) false (ante, p. 1050); (5) to the knowledge of the defendant (ante, p. 1050).

It is usual and generally prudent to state in the introductory part of the indictment circumstances which show that the oath was taken in a judicial proceeding, before a competent jurisdiction, and was material to the matter then before the court. The oath is then set out; and the perjury is then assigned upon it—that is, some one or more of the affirmative assertions in it are negatived, or the negative assertions contradicted by the opposite affirmative. Where an indictment stated that certain persons were commissioners acting in the execution of certain Acts of Parliament relating to the duties of assessed taxes; and that at a meeting held by them for the purpose of hearing and determining appeals against the certificate of supplementary charges made by J. L., crown surveyor, in pursuance of the said Acts, a certain appeal of one W. H. came on in due form of law to be heard; and that the defendant appeared before the said commissioners as a witness for W. H. on the hearing of the said appeal, and took his corporal oath, etc., it was held bad, as not sufficiently showing that the oath was taken in a judicial proceeding. R. v. Overton, 4 Q. B. 83; 3 G. & D. 133; 12 L. J. (M. C.) 61. See also R. v. Bartlett, 1 Dowl. & L. 95; 12 L. J. (M. C.) 127.

The precision formerly required in describing the offence of perjury is now unnecessary, since 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 20 (ante, p. 1053). It is not necessary that the indictment should expressly aver, or even show by necessary inference, that the court before which the false oath was taken had competent authority to administer the same, or that it had jurisdiction to try the cause or indictment in the course of the trial of which the oath was taken. R. v. Dunning, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 290, 293, 294; 40 L. J. (M. C.) 58, 60, 61. In that case an indictment was held to be good which stated the perjury to have been committed on the trial of "a certain indictment for misdemeanor" at quarter sessions, although it did not aver that the sessions had competent authority to administer the oath, nor state what the misdemeanor was, nor that the sessions had jurisdiction to try it. Id. In an indictment for perjury on the trial of a cause under a writ of trial directed to the sheriffs of London, the oath is properly alleged to have been taken before the sheriffs, though in fact the trial was had before the secondary. R. v. Schlesinger, 10 Q. B. 670; 17 L. J. (M. C.) 29.

It is essential to state that the defendant was sworn as a witness, but it is not necessary to set out the mode in which he was sworn. R. v. McCarther, Peake (3rd ed.), 211.

It is not necessary to aver expressly the materiality of the evidence if it sufficiently appears from the oath itself, or is clearly disclosed by the facts averred. R. v. Souter, 2 Stark. (N. P.) 424, n. If it does not so appear, the materiality of that part of the oath in which perjury is assigned should be averred. R. v. McKeron, 5 T. R. 316, cit.: R. v. Nicholl, 1 B. & Ad. 21; 8 L. J. (O. S.) K. B. 112: R. v. Dunn, 1 D. & R. 8. For instance, if the perjury were committed upon the trial of a cause, it should be averred that it then and there became a material question whether J. N. was at B. on such a day, and then it may be stated that J. S. swore at the trial that J. N. was not at B. on that day, and, lastly, proceed to assign the perjury. This mode of pleading will at once show the materiality of the evidence; and it is deemed sufficient, without setting out so much of the proceedings of the former trial as might otherwise be necessary to show that it was material. R. v. Dowlin, 5 T. R. 311, 318; 3 R. R. 679. As to what is a sufficient averment, see Ryalls v. R., 11 Q. B. 781; 18 L. J. (M. C.) 69; 3 Cox, 254: R. v. Scott, 2 Q. B. D. 415; 46 L. J. (M. C.) 259: R. v. Gardiner, 8 C. & P. 737; 2 Mood. C. C. 95. If the averment is insufficient, the indictment cannot, it would seem, be amended under 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 25 (ante, pp. 55, 165): R. v. Harvey, 8 Cox, 99: and cf. R. v. Cutts, 4 Cox, 435. If there is more than one material question, it is better to aver each separately, and assign perjury separately. R. v. Burraston, 4 Jur. 697: and see R. v. Hadfield, 16 Cox, 148 (C. C. R.).

An averment that "it became and was material to ascertain the truth of the matter hereinafter alleged to have been sworn to by the said J. S. on his oath," is not a good averment of materiality. R. v. Goodfellow, C. & Mar. 569. Where the indictment stated, that A. B. stood charged before a justice with having committed a trespass by entering in the daytime on certain land in pursuit of game, on the 12th of August, 1843, that the justice proceeded to the hearing of the charge, and that upon the hearing of the charge the defendant swore falsely that he did not see A. B. during the whole of the said 12th day of August; and that, at the time he the defendant swore as aforesaid, it was material and necessary for the justice to inquire of and be informed by the defendant, whether he did see the said A. B. at all during the 12th day of August, this averment was held insufficient, because, consistently with it, it might have been material for the justice to have put this question, and received the answer to it in some other matter, and not in the matter then in issue before him. R. v. Bartholomew, 1 C. & K. 366, Alderson, B.

The oath is next set out, together with such innuendoes as may be necessary to render the matter of it intelligible, and to connect it clearly with the assignments of perjury contained in the subsequent part of the indictment. As to the use and necessity of an innuendo generally, see ante, p. 991; and see R. v. Aylett, 1 T. R. 63, 70: R. v. Virrier, 4 P. & D. 161; 12 A. & E., 317; 9 L. J. (M. C.) 120: R. v. Nicholl, 1 B. & Ad. 21; 8 L. J. (O. S.) M. C. 112. The time and place where the oath is made should be averred, and also any dates to which the oath relates. R. v. Aylett, 1 T. R. 63; 1 R. R. 152: R. v. Whitehouse, 3 Cox, 86: R. v. Burraston, 4 Jur. 697: R. v. Webster, Bell, 154; 28 L. J. (M. C.) 200; 8 Cox, 187: R. v. Stolady, 1 F. & F. 518. Where the indictment charged that the defendant swore "that he had never received any coals on credit from P. either on account of himself or A.," it was objected that this allegation was not sufficiently precise, and that the whole of the defendant's evidence ought to have been set out in the indictment; but the court held the indictment sufficient. R. v. London, 12 Cox, 50 (C. C. R.).

Next, as to the assignments of perjury. They must be by special averment, negativing the oath, or some part or parts of it. Merely saying that the defendant falsely swore so and so, would be bad, and even perhaps ground of error. See R. v. Perrott, 2 M. & Sel. 379; 15 R. R. 380. Where a man swore to a fact before a committee of the House of Commons, and afterwards swore directly the contrary before a committee of the House of Lords: an information setting out the substance of his evidence upon both occasions, and concluding "and so, etc., the said —— did commit wilful and corrupt perjury"—was held bad; because it did not appear from it which oath was false, which true. R. v. Harris, 1 D. & R. 578; 5 B. & Ald. 926; see R. v. Wheatland, 8 C. & P. 238. To justify punishment under 2 G. c. 25, s. 2 (ante, p. 1051), or 5 Eliz. c. 9 (ante, p. 1043), the indictment must allege that the defendant swore wilfully and corruptly; R. v. Cox, 1 Leach, 71: R. v. Stevens, 5 B. & C. 246, S. C. sub nom. R. v. Richards, 7 D. & R. 665; 4 L. J. (O. S.) K. B. 346; and also that he swore falsely. On an indictment at common law "wilfully" is not essential; R. v. Cox, supra; and where the word "feloniously" was inserted instead of "falsely," the indictment (though it alleged that the defendant swore wilfully, corruptly, and maliciously) was held bad in substance, and not amendable. R. v. Oxley [1852] 3 C. & K. 317. In R. v. Tremearne, or Tremaine, 5 B. & C. 761; 7 D. & R. 684, a true bill for perjury was found, and the judge at the assizes having refused to try it on account of manifest imperfections in the record, a new bill was preferred, upon which the defendant was found guilty. A new trial being subsequently granted, the prosecutor, instead of taking down the old record again, preferred a new indictment (for the same offence), and removed it into the Court of King's Bench by certiorari: and the court refused to stay proceedings upon that indictment until the prosecutor paid the costs of the former proceedings.

It is the practice of the Central Criminal Court not to try an indictment for perjury arising out of a civil action until that action is determined, unless the civil action be postponed by the court, that the indictment may be tried first. R. v. Ashburn, 8 C. & P. 50: Peddell v. Rutter, 8 C. & P. 337, 340. And where justices refused to hear a charge of perjury, alleged to have been committed in a suit pending at the time when the charge was made, on the ground that the suit was still pending, the Court of Queen's Bench refused to grant a mandamus to them to hear the charge, and expressed an opinion that the course taken by the justices was the most likely one to answer the ends of justice. R. v. Ingham, 14 Q. B. 396; 19 L. J. (M. C.) 69.

Indictment for Perjury in an Action in the High Court. (Common Law.)

Central Criminal Court, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that heretofore and before the commission of the offence by A. B. hereinafter (if more than one count for perjury on different dates, "in this count") charged and stated, the said A. B. commenced a certain action in the [Chancery Division] of the High Court of Justice against one C. D. (for specific performance of an alleged agreement for the sale by C. D. to him, the said A. B., of certain freehold hereditaments situate at ——), and the jurors aforesaid upon their oath aforesaid do further present, that afterwards, to wit, at the sittings of the said Chancery Division of the said High Court of Justice, at the Royal Courts of Justice, in the county of London, on the —— day of ——, A.D. ——, the said action came on to be tried, and was tried in due form of law by and before the Honourable Sir A. K., knight, one of the justices of the said High Court of Justice, sitting for the trial of actions in the said (Chancery Division) without a jury (if with a jury, "and a jury of the county in that behalf duly sworn and taken between the parties aforesaid"). And the jurors aforesaid upon their oath aforesaid do further present, that at and upon the trial of the said action the said A. B. appeared as a witness for and on behalf of himself, the plaintiff in the said action, and was sworn in due course of law [and did then take his corporal oath upon the Holy Gospel of God] before the said the Honourable Sir A. K., knight, so sitting as aforesaid, and then having competent power and authority to administer the said oath to the said A. B. in that behalf, that the evidence he should give to the court there (and to the jury) touching the matters in dispute between the parties should be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. And the jurors (insert here the word "first" if the action is tried with a jury) aforesaid upon their oath aforesaid do further present, that at and upon the trial of the said action, and at the time when the said A. B. deposed, swore, and gave evidence as hereinafter mentioned, it became and was a material question whether [the said C. D. had ever signed an agreement for the sale to the said C. D. of a certain farm known as ——], and whether, etc. And the jurors aforesaid upon their oath aforesaid do further present, that the said A. B., being so sworn as aforesaid, contriving and intending to prevent the due course of law and justice upon the trial of the said action by and before the said Honourable Sir A. K., knight, so sitting as aforesaid (and the said jury, if any), upon the —— day of ——, A.D. ——, in the parish of St. Clement Danes, in the said county of London, and within the jurisdiction of the said Central Criminal Court, unlawfully, falsely, knowingly, wilfully, corruptly, and maliciously did say, depose, swear, and give evidence, amongst other things, in substance and to the effect following, that is to say, that [the said C. D. had theretofore signed an agreement for the sale to him, the said A. B., of a certain farm known as ——], and that ——. Whereas in truth and in fact [the said C. D. had not theretofore signed an agreement for the sale to him, the said A. B., of a certain farm known as ——: here state the truth as alleged to have been known to the defendant, as in the precedents of indictments for false pretences (ante, p. 595),] as he, the said A. B., well knew at the time when he so deposed, swore, and gave evidence as aforesaid. And so the jurors aforesaid upon their oath aforesaid do say, that the said A. B., upon the trial of the said action so had as aforesaid, of his own act and consent, and of his own most wicked and corrupt mind, in manner and form as aforesaid, unlawfully [falsely, wickedly, wilfully, and corruptly] did commit wilful and corrupt perjury; against the peace of our said lord the King, his crown and dignity.

Indictments for perjury on trials in other divisions of the High Court can be framed from the above precedent, with the necessary alterations in the case of common law, admiralty or probate actions, and in the case of matrimonial causes, or proceedings in bankruptcy or the winding-up of companies, by substituting the appropriate description of the particular proceeding. As to bankruptcy proceedings under former statutes, see R. v. Westley, Bell, 193; 29 L. J. (M. C.) 35. For old precedent of indictment for perjury before arbitrators, see 4 Went. 256; before a deputy sheriff, see R. v. Dunn, 1 C. & K. 732, n.; 2 Mood. C. C. 297; Cro. Circ. Comp. 361. Two or more persons cannot be jointly indicted for perjury. R. v. Philips, 2 Str. 921. As to the use of the words "wilfully, corruptly," etc., see ante, p. 1057. The allegation between the * *, "and so the jurors aforesaid," etc., has generally been used as a mode of directly alleging the offence, instead of leaving it to be inferred from the previous part of the indictment. Stiles v. Nokes, 7 East, 493, 505, Le Blanc, J. But it is surplusage (ante, pp. 72, 304), and may be rejected. Ryalls v. R., 11 Q. B. 781; 17 L. J. (M. C.) 92. As to perjury in affidavits and declarations, see post, pp. 1063, 1072.

The words "corporal oath," etc., are in old precedents, and referred to the actual touching of the Gospels by the witness.

Punishment.]—Perjury at common law is punishable with fine and imprisonment with hard labour, 3 G. 4, c. 114 (ante, p. 237), at the discretion of the court; and by 2 G. 2, c. 25, s. 2 (ante, p. 1051), the judge might order the party to be transported, or to be imprisoned and kept to hard labour in the house of correction, for any term not exceeding seven years. And by 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3 (ante, p. 235), and 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235), a sentence of penal servitude for any term not exceeding seven years nor less than three is substituted for the sentence of transportation, with the alternative of imprisonment for not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour. Where an offender is sentenced under 2 G. 2, c. 25, s. 2, to penal servitude, it is not necessary that he should also be sentenced to fine or imprisonment. R. v. Castro, 5 Q. B. D. 490; 49 L. J. (Q. B.) 747: Castro v. R., 6 App. Cas. 229; 50 L. J. (Q. B.) 497. Under that statute a defendant convicted of perjury upon an indictment containing two counts for distinct offences may be sentenced to consecutive terms of penal servitude, although the aggregate of the punishments may exceed the punishment allowed by law for one offence. Id. Upon an indictment for perjury charging perjuries committed in different suits, the defendant upon conviction may be sentenced to distinct punishments, although the suits were instituted with a common object. Id. Therefore where C. was convicted upon an indictment for perjury containing two counts: in one count perjury was alleged to have been committed in an action in the Court of Common Pleas, in the other count another perjury was alleged to have been committed in a suit in the Court of Chancery, but the proceedings in both courts had one object, and C. was sentenced to two consecutive terms of penal servitude, one in respect of each count, it was held that the sentences were lawfully passed. Id. Sentence of penal servitude may be passed although the false oath was taken in a manner which, although now authorized by law, was not so authorized at the time of the passing of 2 G. 2, c. 25. R. v. Castro, L. R. 9 Q. B. 350; 43 L. J. (Q. B.) 105, 108. The judge may also require the offender to find sureties to keep the peace and be of good behaviour for a further period. R. v. Hart, 30 St. Tr. at 1344: R. v. Dunn, 12 Q. B. 1026; 18 L. J. (M. C.) 41. A solicitor who practises after a conviction of perjury or subornation is liable on summary conviction before the High Court to seven years' penal servitude. 12 G. 1, c. 29, s. 4; and see Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (6th ed.) 112.

No indictment can be preferred for perjury unless one or other of the preliminary steps required by 22 & 23 Vict. c. 17, s. 1, has been taken (ante, p. 7).

The offences of perjury and subornation of perjury, etc., are not triable at quarter sessions. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (ante, p. 126). R. v. Haynes, Ry. & M. 298. Justices of the peace had not cognizance of the offence of perjury at common law, so as to apprehend or commit a person charged with it, until 11 & 12 Vict. c. 42, s. 1, gave them power to grant a warrant for any indictable offence. See 2 Hawk. c. 8, s. 64: R. v. Bartlett, 1 Dowl. & L. 95; 12 L. J. (M. C.) 127.

Evidence.

Let an officer from the Central Office of the Royal Courts of Justice (see R. S. C. 1883, Order 61) produce the record (i.e., the writ, pleadings, etc.) of the trial at which the perjury is alleged to have taken place; or produce a copy thereof and prove it to be an examined copy, or produce a copy thereof purporting to be signed and certified as a true copy by the officer to whose custody the original record is entrusted. 14 & 15 Vict. c. 99, s. 14 (ante, p. 379); and see ante, pp. 345, 358, et seq. Production of the originals cannot be obtained by subpœnâ, but only by order of a judge or master, R. S. C. 1883, O. 61, ss. 28, 29. As to production of impounded documents, see R. S. C., 1883, O. 42, r. 33 A. Upon an indictment for perjury, charged as having been committed on the trial of an action in the High Court of Justice, in order to prove that the action mentioned in the indictment was pending and was tried as alleged, the following documents were tendered in evidence:—1. The copy (filed under Order V. Rule 7, of the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1875) of the original writ of summons. 2. The copy of the pleadings in the action filed under Order XLI. Rule 1. 3. The original order to dismiss the action. Nos. 1 and 2 were produced by an officer from the Record and Writ Clerks' Office, and No. 3 was produced by the solicitor for the defendant in the action. It was held that these documents were properly received in evidence, and that they sufficiently proved the existence and trial of the action. R. v. Scott, 2 Q. B. D. 415; 46 L. J. (M. C.) 259.

Then prove the evidence the defendant gave upon the trial by the testimony of some person who was present at the trial. It is sufficient for this purpose if the witness state from recollection the evidence the defendant gave, though he did not take it down in writing, and cannot say with certainty that it was all the evidence given by the defendant, if he can say with certainty that it was all he gave on that point, and that he said nothing to qualify it. R. v. Rowley, 1 Mood. C. C. 111: R. v. Munton, 3 C. & P. 498: R. v. Browne, 3 C. & P. 572; M. & M. 315. It is said that all evidence admissible on the trial of the indictment in which the perjury is alleged to have been committed is admissible on the trial for the perjury. R. v. Harrison, 9 Cox, 503, Bramwell, B.

Statements made by the judge, etc., before whom the perjury is alleged to have been committed are not admissible on the trial for the offence. R. v. Britton, 17 Cox, 627, Hall, Recorder. It is not necessary to produce the judge's notes, which are not the best evidence of what took place at the trial, and are not admissible except to refresh the memory of the judge if called as a witness. R. v. Child, 5 Cox, 197: R. v. Morgan, 6 Cox, 107: and the judge should not be called. R. v. Gazard, 8 C. & P. 595, Patteson, J. The notes or minutes of the clerk of the court are in the same position as those of the judge; R. v. Newall, 6 Cox, 21; and of no greater authority than those of a shorthand writer or other person who took a note of the evidence. Id. Grand jurors cannot be called to prove perjury before them. R. v. Hughes, 1 C. & K. 519, Tindal, C.J. And the conviction or judgment in the prior case is not evidence on an indictment for committing perjury in the prior case. R. v. Goodfellow, C. & Mar. 569.

It is necessary to prove in substance the whole of what is set out in the indictment as having been sworn by the defendant, and of the evidence connected with it and necessary to explain it; proving a part only, it seems, is not sufficient. R. v. Jones, Peake (3rd ed.), 51: R. v. Dowlin, Peake (3rd ed.), 227; 5 T. R. 317. And it must be proved literally or substantially as set out. R. v. Leefe, 2 Camp. 134; 11 R. R. 683. And the evidence must be clear and precise, and not ambiguous. R. v. Bird, 17 Cox, 387. Any variance in substance between the indictment and evidence in this respect used to be fatal: see R. v. Taylor, 1 Camp. 404: R. v. Cooke, 7 C. & P. 559. Variances between indictment and evidence can be amended under 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, ss. 1, 25 (ante, pp. 52, 55. Amendment has been allowed of the inaccurate recital of the title of a statute; R. v. Westley, Bell, 193; 29 L. J. (M. C.) 35; of a superfluous insertion of the word "assizes;" R. v. Child, 5 Cox, 197; of a misdescription of the proceedings in which the perjury was alleged to have been committed; R. v. Nevill, 6 Cox, 69: R. v. Tymms, 11 Cox, 645; and of the justices before whom it was alleged to have been committed. R. v. Western, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 122; 37 L. J. (M. C.) 81. But amendment has been refused of an insufficient averment of materiality. R. v. Harvey, 8 Cox, 99, Byles, J. If it be stated that the defendant was sworn on the Gospels, and it be proved that he was sworn in a different manner, according to the custom of his country, the variance will be fatal, unless amended. R. v. McCarther, Peake (3rd ed.), 211. But if it be not proved that he was sworn in any other manner, proof that he was sworn generally, and was examined, will support this allegation. R. v. Rowley, Ry. & M. 299; and see ante, pp. 406, 407. An allegation that the defendant "exhibited a certain information upon oath," does not sufficiently show that he was sworn. R. v. Goodfellow, C. & Mar. 569.

Corroboration.]—Some one or more of the assignments of perjury must be proved either by two witnesses, or by one witness with proof of other material and relevant facts substantially confirming his testimony. R. v. Champney, 2 Lewin, 258: R. v. Lee, 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 368: R. v. Boulter, 2 Den. 396; 21 L. J. (M. C.) 57; 3 C. & K. 236: R. v. Gardiner, 8 C. & P. 737; 2 Mood. C. C. 95: R. v. Yates, C. & Mar. 132: R. v. Parker, C. & Mar. 639: R. v. Roberts, 2 C. & K. 607: R. v. Webster, 8 Cox, 187; 1 F. & F. 515: R. v. Braithwaite, Id. 638; 8 Cox, 254 (and see ante, p. 409). A letter or account written by defendant contradicting his sworn evidence is corroboration. R. v. Mayhew, 6 C. & P. 315: R. v. Shaw, L. & C. 579; 34 L. J. (M. C.) 169: R. v. Hare, 13 Cox, 174. And the assignment so proved must be upon a part of the matter sworn which was material to the matter before the court at the time the oath was taken. Where the indictment was for perjury alleged to have been committed on the trial of A. for perjury, who was convicted, it was held to be no defence that the judgment against A. was afterwards reversed on error. R. v. Meek, 9 C. & P. 513. Upon an indictment for perjury in giving evidence before the quarter sessions, the prosecutor produced the examination of the defendant before a magistrate, in which he deposed in the direct negative to everything he had sworn before the court; but Gurney, B., held this not sufficient per se without other evidence to show that the statement before the court was false, and that before the magistrate true. R. v. Wheatland, 8 C. & P. 238. See R. v. Knill, 5 B. & Ald. 929, n.: R. v. Hook, Dears. & B. 606; 27 L. J. (M. C.) 222 (ante, p. 409). (a) On an indictment for perjury, in deposing in an affidavit that A. B., a defendant in a suit in which the party indicted was plaintiff, owed him 50*l.*, the assignment is not proved by evidence that the cause, after the making of the affidavit, was referred to an arbitrator, who made an award that A. B. owed the defendant nothing. R. v. Fontaine-Moreau, 11 Q. B. 1028; 17 L. J. (Q. B.) 187. Also, it must not only be proved that the matter sworn, or part of it, is false, but it must appear, either directly or from circumstances, that the defendant knew it to be so, and that he swore to it deliberately. (See ante, p. 1050.) Where the assignment of perjury was that the prisoner swore that she had not had connection with a "man," it was held by Manisty, J., that the evidence of connection with one man only could be received, but by Lindley, J., and Thesiger, L.J., that the evidence of several men that they had had connection with the prisoner, was admissible. R. v. Adams, 14 Cox, 215.

Indictment for Perjury upon a Trial of a Cause at the Assizes.
(Common Law.)

Surrey, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that heretofore, to wit, at the assizes holden for the county of Surrey, on the thirteenth day of March, in the year of our Lord ——, at (a) In a colonial case, R. v. Cleland [1901] 20 N. Z. L. R. 509, it is suggested that R. v. Knill was not merely criticized, but actually overruled by R. v. Hook.

Guildford, in the said county, before Sir A. B., knight, one of the justices of the High Court of Justice in England, assigned to take the assizes in and for the said county of Surrey, a certain action for trespass to the person and assault, wherein J. L. was plaintiff and J. W. was defendant, came on to be tried in due form of law, and was then and there tried by a jury of the country in that behalf duly sworn and taken between the parties aforesaid; upon which said trial J. S. appeared as a witness for and on behalf of the said J. W., the defendant in the action aforesaid, and was then sworn in due course of law [and took his corporal oath upon the Holy Gospel of God] before the said Sir A. B., knight, so being such justice as aforesaid, that the evidence which he the said J. S. should give to the court there, and to the said jury so sworn as aforesaid, touching the matter then in question between the said parties should be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. [Continue as in the precedent, ante, p. 1057, stating the material questions and false oath (examination or cross-examination). R. v. Dowlin, Peake (3rd ed.), 227; 5 T. R. 311; 3 R. R. 679. See the old precedents, 4 Went. 266, 273; Cro. Circ. Comp. 351, 353. The court by which the oath was administered must be correctly described. Where an indictment stated the oath to have been taken before justices assigned to take the assize, before A. B., one of the said justices, etc., and it appeared that the oath was administered when the judge was sitting under the commission of oyer and terminer and gaol delivery, it was held a fatal variance. R. v. Lincoln, R. & R. 421. Semble, that it could now be amended under 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 1 (ante, p. 52). But where it stated that the cause was tried at the assizes before E. W., one of the judges, etc., it was held to be proved in substance by the Nisi Prius Record, which stated, in the usual form, that the cause was tried before the two justices of assize, one of whom was E. W. R. v. Alford, 14 East, 218, n.; 1 Leach, 150. The allegation that the cause was "tried by a jury" is sufficient, although no verdict was given, the trial ending in a non-suit. R. v. Bray, 9 Cox, 218. Where the cause is tried by a judge without a jury, the issue joined should be averred to have been tried "by and before" the judge in question, as in the precedent, ante, p. 1057.]

Evidence.

This will be in substance the same as under the last precedent (ante, p. 1059).

Indictment for Perjury on the Trial of an Indictment. (Common Law.)

Commencement as ante, p. 1057]—that on the —— day of ——, A. B. was in due form of law tried at a court of oyer and terminer and general gaol delivery, held before the Honble. Sir W. G. ——, knight, one of the justices of the High Court of Justice (or at the general [or quarter] or adjourned general [or quarter] sessions of the peace for the county of ——, holden before A. B., esquire, and others, his Majesty's justices of the peace, acting in and for the said county), upon a certain indictment charging him the said C. D. [state charge shortly]. The rest of the indictment can be framed from the precedent, ante, p. 1057. For old precedents, see 4 Went. 239, 275; 6 Went. 396; Cro. Circ. Comp. 359, 362, 364: R. v. Stevens, 5 B. & C. 246: before a grand jury, R. v. Hughes, 1 C. & K. 520, n. (b): upon the hearing of an appeal at the quarter sessions, Cro. Circ. Comp. 334; R. v. Ward, 6 C. & P. 366: R. v. Dowlin, 5 T. R. 311; 3 R. R. 679.

Evidence.

As to the proof of the proceedings where the perjury is alleged to have taken place on the trial of a former indictment, see 14 & 15 Vict. c. 99, s. 13 (ante, p. 360); 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 22 (ante, p. 1053); and R. v. Newman, 2 Den. 390; 21 L. J. (M. C.) 75. The production of the indictment alone is not sufficient evidence of the former trial, but it must be proved either by the production of the complete record of the trial, or of the certificate of the indictment and trial. See 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 22 (ante, p. 1053): R. v. Coles, 16 Cox, 165, Stephen, J.

If the indictment allege the perjury to have been committed on the hearing of a charge for a particular offence, it is not sufficient to prove a charge for a different offence in law, although the defendant's evidence given on that occasion would have been material to the charge alleged in the indictment. R. v. Goodfellow, C. & Mar. 569. As to other evidence, see ante, p. 1059. (a)

Indictment for Perjury in an Affidavit. (52 & 53 Vict. c. 10, s. 7, ante, p. 1054.)

Central Criminal Court, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that heretofore and at the time of the commission of the offence by A. B. hereinafter charged and stated, to wit, on the —— day of ——, A.D 1903, a certain action was pending in the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice, wherein C. D. was plaintiff and E. F. defendant. And the jurors aforesaid upon their oath aforesaid do further present, that on the said —— day of ——, A.D. 1903, the said A. B. appeared before G. H., a commissioner duly appointed and acting under and by virtue of the Commissioners for Oaths Act, 1889, and was then and there sworn in due form of law by and before the said G. H. as to the truth of the matters contained in a certain affidavit in writing of him the said A. B., which he the said A. B. then produced to the said G. H., the said G. H. so being such commissioner as aforesaid, and then having competent power and authority to administer the said oath to the said A. B. in that behalf. And the jurors aforesaid upon their oath aforesaid do further present, that at the time when the said A. B. so swore in and by his said affidavit as hereinafter stated, it became and was a material question in the said action whether —— and whether —— [see last precedent]. And the jurors aforesaid upon their oath aforesaid do further present, that the said A. B., on the said —— day of ——, A.D. 1903, at ——, and within the jurisdiction of the said court, unlawfully, wilfully, and corruptly did swear falsely in a certain affidavit taken and made in accordance with the provisions of the Commissioners for Oaths Act, 1889, to wit, did falsely swear in his said affidavit so taken and made before the said G. H., being such commissioner as aforesaid, that —— and that ——. Whereas in truth and in fact —— and whereas in truth and in fact ——, as he the said A. B. well knew at the time when he did so swear as aforesaid. And so the jurors aforesaid upon their oath aforesaid do say, that the said A. B. in and by his said affidavit

(a) A. was indicted for perjury in evidence given by him on a former trial, on which he was acquitted. Held that the jury were rightly directed that they had no concern with the proceedings in the former trial, and that it was no defence that the first jury might have believed the incriminated evidence. R. v. McDermott [1899] 24 Victoria L. R. 636. See ante, p. 1059.

so taken and made as aforesaid, of his own act and consent, and of his own most wicked and corrupt mind, in manner and form as aforesaid, unlawfully, falsely, wickedly, wilfully, and corruptly did commit wilful and corrupt perjury; against the form, etc., and against the peace, etc.

Misdemeanor: punishment, see ante, p. 1068. 52 & 53 Vict. c. 10, s. 7. Having regard to the provisions of that section, the words "and so the jurors, etc., do say, etc.," would appear to be an essential averment. By s. 7 of that statute "swear" includes "affirmed" and "protest," and "affidavit" includes "affirmation, statutory or other declaration, acknowledgment, examination, and attestation or protestation of honour." It would seem, therefore, that the making of a false declaration is now indictable as perjury. (See ante, p. 1054; post, pp. 1071, 1075.)

The form of indictment for perjury in an affidavit to hold to bail (given in Archbold (21st ed.), p. 927) has been omitted in the present edition, because arrest on mesne process was abolished, except in crown suits, by s. 6 of the Debtors Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62), which regulates arrest and bail by defendants suggested to be about to leave the realm. For old precedents of indictments for perjury in affidavits, see Went. 336, 365; 4 Went. 230, 243, 246, 249, 253, 258, 263, 264, 271, 277, 278, 281, 287; Cro. Circ. Comp. 339, 340, 356: in affidavit by a petitioning creditor, Cro. Circ. Comp. 345: in justifying bail, 6 Went. 423, 424: in an answer to a bill in equity, Cro. Circ. Comp. 342, 357: in depositions in equity, 4 Went. 292: in depositions in an ecclesiastical court, Id. 235, 247.

It is not necessary to set out the jurat of the affidavit; R. v. Emden, 9 East, 437, 445; nor to state or prove that it was filed in or exhibited to the court, or in any manner used by the defendant or others. R. v. Crossley, 7 T. R. 315; 4 R. R. 445: R. v. White, M. & M. 271. But an indictment for perjury, whether in viva voce evidence, or in an affidavit taken before 52 & 53 Vict. c. 10, s. 7 (ante, p. 1054), must have shown a judicial proceeding pending, in order to give jurisdiction to the person administering the oath. R. v. Pearson, 8 C. & P. 119. See R. v. Koops, 6 A. & E. 198: R. v. Gardiner, 2 Mood. C. C. 95; 8 C. & P. 737. Irregularity in the title of the affidavit seems immaterial. R. v. Christian, C. & Mar. 388.

If perjury is assigned upon several parts of an affidavit, those parts may be set out in the indictment as if continuous, although they are in fact separated by the introduction of other matter. R. v. Callanan, 9 Dowl. & Ry. 97; 6 B. & C. 102. See R. v. Solomon, Ry. & M. 252: R. v. Virgier, 12 A. & E. 317; 9 L. J. (M. C.) 120; 4 P. & D. 161: R. v. Bennett, 2 Den. 240; 3 C. & K. 124; 20 L. J. (M. C.) 217; 5 Cox, 207.

Evidence.

1. It may be laid down as a general rule that every statement in the introductory part of the indictment, which cannot be rejected as surplusage, must be proved in substance as laid. The evidence must support the averments. R. v. Bird, 17 Cox, 387. It should also be proved distinctly, where the perjury is alleged to have taken place on a judicial inquiry, what the charge was, on the hearing of which the false evidence was given, as otherwise it would be impossible to ascertain whether it was material to the issue. R. v. Carr, 10 Cox, 564 (C. C. R.). And this must be proved by the best evidence (see ante, p. 315); therefore, where perjury is alleged as having been committed before justices at petty sessions on the hearing of a charge contained in a written information, that information must be produced, or its loss or destruction must be proved so as to let in secondary evidence of its contents. R. v. Dillon, 14 Cox, 4, Lopes, J. As to proof of records, judgments, etc., see ante, p. 358, et seq.: R. v. Scott, 2 Q. B. D. 415; 46 L. J. (M. C.) 259 (ante, p. 1060). As to proof of proceedings on an appeal to quarter sessions, see It. v. Ward, 6 C. & P. 366.

2. The matter sworn must be proved. If in writing, and in existence, it must be produced. On an indictment for perjury in an affidavit, get the officer in whose custody the affidavit is to produce it at the trial; and prove, either directly or circumstantially, that it was sworn to and signed by the defendant (see R. v. Barnes, 10 Cox, 539), as, for instance, that the name subscribed to it is of the defendant's handwriting, and that an action between C. D. and E. F. was pending, or the like. Where the deponent was illiterate, it is necessary to show that he knew that the affidavit contained the statements on which the perjury is assigned, i.e., that he gave instructions for their insertion, or had the affidavit read over to him. R. v. Hailey, 1 C. & P. 258: R. v. Petricus, 67 J. P. Rep. 378. It does not seem essential that the jurat should comply with R. S. C. O. 38, r. 13. See R. v. Hailey, 1 C. & P. 258; Ry. & M. 94. Where perjury was assigned on an affidavit of service of notice of application for leave to issue execution against a shareholder in a joint-stock company, the production of the affidavit alone without the notice annexed (to which the affidavit referred as being annexed) was held insufficient. R. v. Hudson, 1 F. & F. 56. Upon proof that the affidavit had been lost or destroyed, secondary evidence may be given of its contents, and of the defendant's signature to it. R. v. Milnes, 2 F. & F. 10. Upon an indictment for perjury in falsely swearing that there was no draft of a statutory declaration which had been prepared by the defendant, the materiality of the existence of such draft turned upon its contents, and the fact of certain alterations having been made in it. Parol evidence of the contents of the draft and of the alterations made in it was held inadmissible, no notice to produce such draft having been given to the defendant. R. v. Elworthy, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 103; 37 L. J. (M. C.) 3. On an indictment for perjury, in the usual form, setting forth, with proper innuendoes, a copy of a deposition before a magistrate, written in the English language, and signed by the defendant, he may be convicted on proof of a verbal deposition in the Welsh language, of which the written deposition, signed by him, is the substance. R. v. Thomas, 2 C. & K. 806.

To prove that the person who administered the oath had authority to do so, it is merely necessary to prove that he performed the duties of a certain office (although he may have only performed them on the single occasion on which he administered the oath. R. v. Roberts, 14 Cox, 101 (C. C. R.)), without showing his appointment; R. v. Verelst, 3 Camp. 432; 14 R. R. 775; and (if the court will not judicially notice it) that the person lawfully exercising the duties of that office has authority to administer an oath in such a case. As to proof of status of a commissioner of oaths, see R. v. Howard, 1 M. & Rob. 187: R. v. Newton, 1 C. & K. 469: R. v. Verelst, ubi supra.

Indictment for Perjury in the County Court.

An indictment for perjury in the county court can be framed on the precedent, ante, p. 1057, mutatis mutandis, the action being averred to be tried thus: e.g., "in the county court of [Norfolk], holden at the [Shire Hall, Norwich], in the said county ——, by and before W. W., esquire, one of the judges of the county courts in England, duly appointed and acting in accordance with the provisions of the County Courts Act, 1888" (or where the trial is under the admiralty or bankruptcy jurisdiction, insert the appropriate averment).

The indictment can be completed from the precedent ante, p. 1057.

County courts having bankruptcy jurisdiction act as the High Court. For old precedent, see R. v. Lavey, 3 C. & K. 26. And see 51 & 52 Vict. c. 43, s. 78, as to liability of county court bailiffs to prosecution as for perjury if they wilfully or corruptly indorse false statements as to the fact or mode of service by them of county court process. Where the indictment alleged, that in the county court of Middlesex, holden at, etc., in the county of Middlesex, before J. M., then being the judge of the said court, a certain action of contract then pending in the said court, between A. B., plaintiff, and C. D., defendant, came on to be tried, upon which trial J. S. was duly sworn, etc., before the said J. M., then being judge of the said court, and then having sufficient and competent authority to administer the said oath to the said J. S. in that behalf: this was held to show sufficiently that the court in which the action was tried was held in pursuance of 9 & 10 Vict. c. 95 (rep.; see now 51 & 52 Vict. c. 43); and also that the proceeding was one over which that court had jurisdiction. Lavey v. R., 2 Den. 504; 17 Q. B. 496; 21 L. J. (M. C.) 10 (Ex.), where R. v. Overton (ante, p. 1055) was distinguished. In R. v. Lawlor, 3 Ir. C. L. R. 507: 6 Cox, 187 (C. C. R. Ir.), an indictment for perjury in an inferior court was held sufficient which did not set out all the facts showing the authority of the court, but averred that "the case came on to be tried in due form of law before" the judge of the court, "he having then and there sufficient and competent authority to administer the said oath" to the accused. As to proper mode of averring jurisdiction, see also Walker v. R., 8 E. & B. 439; 27 L. J. (M. C.) 43.

Evidence.

On an indictment for perjury committed in the county court, the proceedings there should be proved by the production of the registrar's book, or a certified copy of entries therein. 51 & 52 Vict. c. 43, s. 28 (ante, p. 366): R. v. Rowland, 1 F. & F. 72 (ante, p. 366): R. v. Roberts, 14 Cox, 101 (C. C. R.) (ante, p. 366).

Indictment for Perjury before a Metropolitan Police Magistrate or other Justice.

Central Criminal Court, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that heretofore and before the commission of the offence by A. B. hereinafter charged and stated, to wit, on the —— day of ——, A.D. ——, one C. D. appeared before E. F., esquire, one of the magistrates of the police courts of the metropolis, sitting at —— police court, in the metropolitan police district [or before X. Y., esquire, and V. Z., esquire, then and yet being two of the justices of our said lord the King assigned to keep the peace of our said lord the King in and for the county (or borough) of ——, and also to hear and determine divers crimes, trespasses, and offences committed in the said county (or borough)], and was thereupon charged in due form of law for that he (state the charge). And the jurors aforesaid upon their oath aforesaid do further present, that at and upon the hearing of the said charge against the said C. D., on the said —— day of ——, A.D. ——, the said A. B. appeared as a witness in support of the said charge, and was then sworn in due form of law [and did then take his corporal oath upon the Holy Gospel of God] as such witness, the said E. F., esquire, so sitting as aforesaid, and then and there having competent power and authority to administer the said oath to the said A. B. in that behalf, that the evidence he should give to the court then touching the said charge should be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. And the jurors aforesaid upon their oath aforesaid do further present, that at and upon the hearing of the said charge, and at the time when the said A. B. so deposed, swore, and gave evidence as hereinafter mentioned, it became and was a material question whether —— [as in the assignment of perjury]. And the jurors aforesaid upon their oath aforesaid do further present, that the said A. B., being so sworn as aforesaid [contriving and intending to pervert the due course of law and justice upon the hearing of the said charge], on the said —— day of ——, A.D. —— [in the parish of ——], at the —— police court, before the said E. F., so sitting as aforesaid, and within the jurisdiction of the said Central Criminal Court, unlawfully, falsely, knowingly, wilfully, corruptly, and maliciously did say, depose, swear, and give evidence, amongst other things, in substance and to the effect following, that is to say, that —— (assign the perjury, as ante, p. 1057). Whereas in truth and in fact ——, as he the said A. B. well knew at the time when he did so say, depose, swear, and give evidence as aforesaid. And so the jurors aforesaid upon their oath aforesaid do say, that the said A. B., upon the said hearing of the said charge on the said —— day of ——, A.D. —— (see ante, p. 1057, et seq.). See the precedents, 4 Went. 232, 244; Cro. Circ. Comp. 332: R. v. Gardiner, 2 Mood. C. C. 95; 8 C. & P. 737: and for an indictment for perjury before justices on the hearing of a charge of an offence punishable on summary conviction, R. v. Shaw, L. & C. 579; 34 L. J. (M. C.) 169. A collection of old precedents of indictments for perjury will also be found in 2 Stark. Crim. Plead. 533–555 (2nd ed.): and 3 Chit. Cr. L. 349, et seq. And as to the indictment, see also ante, pp. 1055–1059.

Evidence.

It is necessary to prove that the justice had jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the information and complaint (vide ante, p. 1045, et seq.).

On an indictment for perjury in bastardy proceedings, evidence must be given of the complaint, by producing the original of the order made, or secondary evidence. R. v. Newall, 6 Cox, 21, Wightman, J. Production of the summons is not essential. R. v. Smith, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 110; 37 L. J. (M. C.) 6, which apparently overrules on this point R. v. Newall, ubi supra, and R. v. Whybrow, 8 Cox, 438. Where a sworn information is necessary to give jurisdiction, it must be produced, or secondary evidence of it given. R. v. Hurrell, 3 F. & F. 271. So, too, if the perjury is assigned on statements in the information. R. v. Dillon, 14 Cox, 4. The conviction, if any, is irrelevant, and not admissible; R. v. Goodfellow, C. & Mar. 569; nor are remarks by the justices. R. v. Britton, 17 Cox, 627; and see ante, p. 1060. On a trial for perjury alleged to have been committed before justices on the hearing of an information under the Licensing Acts against the keeper of a licensed house, his licence must be produced in order to show the jurisdiction of the justices. R. v. Lewis, 12 Cox, 163, Byles, J.: R. v. Willis, 12 Cox, 164, Cleasby, B., after consultation with Byles, J. So on a trial for perjury alleged to have been committed before justices on the hearing of an information under s. 18 of the Licensing Act, 1872, against the defendant for being disorderly on and refusing to quit licensed premises, the licence itself must be produced in order to prove that the premises were licensed, and, therefore, that the justices had jurisdiction. R. v. Evans, 17 Cox, 37.

In R. v. Lakin, March 10, 1900, Walton, K.C., Commissioner, after consulting Bruce, J., refused to stop an indictment for perjury before justices by a licensed person where the prosecution failed to produce the licence, and stated that if necessary he would reserve the question; but in the end the jury acquitted. (See 35 L. J. Newsp. 191.)

Indictment for Perjury at a Coroner's Inquest.

Commencement as ante, p. 1057]—that heretofore and at the time of the committing of the offence by A. B. hereinafter charged and stated, to wit, on the —— day of ——, A.D. ——, at [the coroner's court, in the parish of Hammersmith, in the county of London], an inquest was duly held before C. L. D., esquire, one of his Majesty's coroners for the said county, touching the death of one E. F. And the jurors aforesaid ——. [The rest of the indictment can be framed from the precedents, ante, pp. 1057, 1066.]

As to the power of the coroner to administer an oath, see 50 & 51 Vict. c. 71, s. 4 (1). As to procedure at an inquest, see ante, p. 153, et seq.

By 6 & 7 Vict. c. 83, s. 1 (rep.), coroners were empowered to appoint deputies, provided that no deputy shall act "except during the illness of the coroner or his absence from any lawful or reasonable cause." By s. 2, "no inquisition shall be quashed by reason of such inquisition having been taken before any deputy instead of the coroner himself." The prisoner being indicted for perjury committed upon an inquest held before a deputy coroner, and the objection having been taken that there was no lawful or reasonable cause for the absence of the coroner, it was held (1) that the question of lawful or reasonable cause was for the judge and not for the jury; (2) that whatever the cause of absence, by s. 2, a valid inquisition might have been founded upon the inquest, and therefore the deputy had jurisdiction, and perjury was committed. R. v. Johnson, L. R. 2 C. C. R. 15; 42 L. J. (M. C.) 41. The Coroners Act, 1892 (55 & 56 Vict. c. 56), s. 1, sub-s. 3, contains a provision similar to 6 & 7 Vict. c. 83, s. 1, but does not contain any provision similar to that contained in s. 2.

SUBORNATION OF PERJURY.

Common Law.

Subornation of perjury by the common law is the procuring of a man to take a false oath amounting to perjury, who actually takes such oath. 1 Hawk. c. 69, s. 10; Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (6th ed.) 109; 2 Chit. Cr. L. 317.

Statute.

14 & 15 Vict. c. 100 (Criminal Procedure Act, 1851, s. 21—Form of indictment for subornation of perjury.—In every indictment for subornation of perjury (post, p. 1069), or for corrupt bargaining or contracting with any person to commit wilful and corrupt perjury, or for inciting, causing, or procuring (post, p. 1071) any person unlawfully, wilfully, falsely, fraudulently, deceitfully, maliciously, or corruptly to take, make, sign, or subscribe any oath, affirmation, declaration, affidavit, deposition, bill, answer, notice, certificate, or other writing, it shall be sufficient, wherever such perjury or other offence aforesaid shall have been actually committed, to allege the offence of the person who actually committed such perjury or other offence in the manner hereinbefore mentioned, and then to allege that the defendant unlawfully, wilfully and corruptly did cause and procure the said person the said offence, in manner and form aforesaid, to do and commit; and wherever such perjury or other offence aforesaid shall not have been actually committed (see post, p. 1071), it shall be sufficient to set forth the substance of the offence charged upon the defendant, without setting forth or averring any of the matters or things hereinbefore rendered unnecessary to be set forth or averred in the case of wilful and corrupt perjury. [This section superseded 23 G. 2, c. 11 (rep.): omitting (1) the clause rendering it necessary to aver the authority of the court before which the oath was taken to administer an oath; see 14 & 15 Vict. c. 99, s. 16 (ante, p. 1052); and (2) the clause requiring a proper averment alleging the falsity of the matter on which perjury is assigned.]

Indictment for Subornation of Perjury. (Common Law.)

Central Criminal Court, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that heretofore, to wit, in the Trinity sittings of the High Court of Justice in the King's Bench Division of the said court holden at the Royal Courts of Justice, in the county of London, issue was joined in an action for assault then pending in the said King's Bench Division, whereas one J. L. was plaintiff, and one J. W. was defendant. And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that afterwards and before the trial of the said issue as hereinafter mentioned, and whilst the same was depending, to wit, on the first day of June, in the year aforesaid, J. S., wickedly contriving and intending to pervert the due course of law and justice, then, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, unlawfully, corruptly, wickedly and maliciously did solicit, suborn, instigate and endeavour to persuade one J. N. to be and appear as a witness at the trial of the said issue, for and on behalf of the said J. W., the defendant in the said issue, and upon the said trial falsely to swear and give in evidence, to and before the jurors which should be sworn to try the issue aforesaid, certain matters material and relevant to the said issue, and in the matters therein and thereby put in issue, in substance, and to the effect following, that is to say, that [the said J. W. (meaning the defendant in the action aforesaid) did, on a certain day then past, to wit, on the tenth day of April in the year aforesaid, beat, wound, and bruise the said J. L. (meaning the plaintiff in the action aforesaid), and did knock him the said J. L., down, and with a large stick did then and there beat, wound and bruise, and greatly disfigure the said J. L., whilst he was so down].* And the jurors first aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present that afterwards, to wit, at the Trinity sittings of the said King's Bench Division of the said High Court of Justice before the Right Honourable Richard Everard, Baron Alverstone, Lord Chief Justice of England, to wit, on the day and year first aforesaid, the issue aforesaid came on to be tried, and was then and there tried by a jury of the country in that behalf duly sworn and taken between the parties aforesaid: upon which said trial the said J. N., in consequence, and by the means, encouragement, and effect of the said wicked and corrupt subornation and procurement of the said J. S. did then appear as a witness for and on behalf of the said J. W., the defendant in the action above mentioned, and was then in due form of law sworn [and took his corporal oath upon the Holy Gospel of God], before the said Richard Everard, Baron Alverstone, Lord Chief Justice of England, that the evidence which he the said J. N. should give to the court there, and to the jury, so sworn as aforesaid, touching the matter then in question between the said parties, should be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; and that at and upon the trial of the said issue so joined between the said parties as aforesaid, it became and was a material question, whether the said J. W. assaulted and beat the said J. L.: and the said J. N. being so sworn as aforesaid, then, at the trial of the said issue, upon his oath aforesaid, unlawfully, falsely, corruptly, and wilfully, before the said jurors so sworn and taken between the said parties as aforesaid, and before the said Richard Everard, Baron Alverstone, Lord Chief Justice of England, aforesaid, did depose and swear (amongst other things) in substance, and to the effect following, that is to say: that [here set out J. N.'s evidence, in substance the same as is above stated, where the subornation is charged]: * Whereas, in truth and in fact, the said J. W. did not, etc. [so proceeding to assign the perjury as in the precedent, ante, p. 1057]; and whereas, in truth and in fact, the said J. S., at the time when he so solicited, suborned, instigated, and endeavoured to persuade the said J. N. falsely and corruptly to swear as aforesaid, well knew that [etc., pursuing the words in the assignment of perjury]: And so the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do say, that the said J. S., on the said first day of June, in the said year of our Lord ——, did unlawfully, corruptly, wickedly, and maliciously suborn and procure the said J. N. to commit wilful and corrupt perjury in and by his oath aforesaid, before the said jurors so sworn and taken between the said parties as aforesaid, and before the said Richard Everard, Baron Alverstone, Lord Chief Justice of England, as aforesaid; against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity. (See the precedents, Cro. Circ. Comp. 379, 380; 4 Went. 234, 250.) 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 21 (ante, p. 1068), contains certain provisions for simplifying the form of indictment for subornation of perjury. Misdemeanor punishable in the same manner as perjury. (See ante, pp. 1051, 1058.) No indictment can be preferred for subornation of perjury unless one or other of the preliminary steps required by 22 & 23 Vict. c. 17, s. 1, as extended by 30 & 31 Vict. c. 35, s. 1, has been taken (see ante, p. 7, et seq.). It is submitted that the facts justifying an indictment for subornation would also support an indictment for counselling, procuring, etc., within s. 8 of the Accessories and Abettors Act, 1861. For a precedent of an indictment for conspiracy to pervert the due course of law, by means of perjury, see post, Book II. Part III. s. 1.

Subornation of perjury is not triable at quarter sessions. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (ante, p. 126).

Evidence.

Prove the perjury committed, as directed, ante, p. 1059, et seq.; for unless this be proved, the defendant cannot be found guilty of the subornation; 1 Hawk. c. 69, s. 10; and the mere production of the record of J. N.'s conviction for the perjury (if he were convicted) would not be sufficient evidence of the perjury having been committed. R. v. Reilly, 1 Leach, 454.

And prove the previous subornation, as laid in the indictment, namely, that the defendant solicited or procured of J. N. to prove so and so upon the trial of the issue, knowing the same to be false, or that J. N., by giving such evidence, would be committing perjury.

ATTEMPTS TO SUBORN TO COMMIT PERJURY.

The attempt to persuade a witness to take a false oath, which, if taken, would amount to perjury, is a misdemeanor at common law. 2 Hawk. c. 69, s. 10: cf. R. v. Higgins, 2 East, 5; and see per Lord Kenyon, C.J., at p. 17; 2 Chit. Cr. L. 480. An indictment for attempted subornation can readily be framed from that for subornation (ante, pp. 1069, 1070), by omitting the words between the * * and substituting "incite" for "suborn," and for "suborn and procure."

This and the following cognate offences are not triable at quarter sessions. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 48, s. 1 (ante, p. 126).

INCITEMENT TO GIVE FALSE EVIDENCE.

It is a misdemeanor to incite a witness to give particular evidence where the inciter does not know whether it is true or false, or to offer a bribe to swear to a particular thing, whether true or false. R. v. Darby, 7 Mod. 100, 101: R. v. Edwards, 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 293: R. v. Cole [1902] 3 Ont. L. R. 389; and cf. R. v. Mawbey, 6 T. R., at p. 637, Lawrence, J. It is a misdemeanor to agree to give a person money to prove a deed to be forged, for the purpose of obtaining a verdict. R. v. Johnson, 3 Mod. 1; and post, Book II. Part III. s. 2. The offence differs from subornation in that it is not necessary to prove that the evidence was in fact given, and from attempted subornation in that it is not necessary to prove that the evidence was false to the knowledge of the witness. A precedent for inciting to give false evidence can be framed from that for attempted subornation, supra, by omitting the averment as to knowledge by the defendant of the falsity. As to dissuading a witness from giving evidence, see post, p. 1078.

FABRICATION OF FALSE EVIDENCE.

It is an indictable misdemeanor to fabricate evidence with intent to mislead a judicial tribunal, even if the tribunal never sits and the evidence is not used. R. v. Vreones [1891] 1 Q. B. 360; 60 L. J. (M. C.) 62; 17 Cox, 267. For form of indictment, see that case. The making use of a false instrument in order to pervert the course of justice is a misdemeanor. O'Mealy v. Newell, 8 East, 364, Lord Ellenborough, C.J. So is publishing a false affidavit knowingly. R. v. O'Brian, 2 Str. 1143; and see post, p. 1078.

FALSE OATHS IN PROCEEDINGS NOT JUDICIAL.

It is a misdemeanor at common law to take a false oath with a fraudulent intention in a matter of public concern, although it is not taken in a judicial proceeding, if the oath is administered by a person having power to administer it. Ex parte Overton, 2 Rose, 257: R. v. Foster, R. & R. 459: R. v. Chapman, 1 Den. 432; 18 L. J. (M. C.) 152; 2 C. & K. 846; 3 Cox, 467: R. v. Hodgkiss, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 212; 39 L. J. (M. C.) 14; see Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (6th ed.) 110. And in R. v. Stone, Dears. 251; 23 L. J. (M. C.) 14; 6 Cox, 235, Pollock, C.B., said that a false oath taken in a judicial proceeding before a person having no power to administer it is a misdemeanor, as being an attempt to mislead the court. Where oaths or affidavits (in which are included affirmations, statutory or other declarations, etc., see ante, p. 1054) are taken under the Commissioners for

Oaths Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 10, ante, p. 1054), the deponent is guilty of perjury in every case in which he would have been guilty of that offence if the oath had been taken in a judicial proceeding. (See ante, p. 1054).

The numerous statutory provisions for punishing such oath as perjury or as a misdemeanor in particular cases are collected in the Official Index to the Statutes (ed. 1904), tit. "Perjury," 4, 5, 6.

Indictment for taking a False Oath before a Surrogate.
(4 G. 4, c. 76, s. 14.)

For precedents, see R. v. Fairlie, 9 Cox, 206: R. v. Chapman (ante, p. 1071).

Evidence.

The evidence will be in substance the same as ante, pp. 1059, 1064, except as to proof that the proceeding is judicial.

FALSE STATUTORY DECLARATIONS WHERE OATH FORBIDDEN OR NOT REQUIRED.

Statutes.

5 & 6 W. 4, c. 62 (Statutory Declarations Act, 1835), ss. 2–4.]—*Provide for substitution by Treasury of declarations for oaths required for verifying matters or documents for the purposes of certain Government Departments. Certain false declarations as to customs are also punishable under 39 & 40 Vict. c. 36, s. 168; as to excise, under 32 & 33 Vict. c. 14, s. 25; and as to taxes, under 43 & 44 Vict. c. 19, s. 66.

Sect. 5.]—If any person shall make and subscribe any such declaration as hereinbefore mentioned in lieu of any oath, solemn affirmation, or affidavit, by any Act or Acts relating to the revenues of customs or excise, stamps and taxes, or post office, required to be made on the doing of any Act or for verifying any book account, entry, or return, or for any purpose whatsoever, and shall wilfully make therein any false statements as to any material particular, the person making the same shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

Sects. 6, 7.]—Post, p. 1076.

Sect. 18.]— . . . It shall and may be lawful for any justice of the peace, notary public, or other officer now by law authorized to administer an oath [see 52 & 53 Vict. c. 10, as to commissioners for oaths] to take and receive the declaration of any person voluntarily making the same before him in the form in the schedule to this Act annexed: and if any declaration so made shall be false or untrue in any material particular the person wilfully making such false declaration shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. [This section extends to voluntary declarations generally. R. v. Boynes, 1 C. & K. 65.]

Sect. 21.]—In any case where a declaration is substituted for an oath under the authority of this Act or by virtue of any power or authority hereby given, or is directed and authorized to be made or subscribed under the authority of this Act, or by virtue of any power hereby given, any person who shall wilfully and corruptly make and subscribe any such declaration knowing the same to be untrue in any material particular, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. [For indictment, see post, p. 1074.]

Indictment for making a False Statutory Declaration. (5 & 6 W. 4, c. 62, s. 21, ante, p. 1073.)

Commencement as ante, p. 433]—unlawfully, wilfully, and corruptly did make and subscribe a certain declaration, made under the authority of the Statutory Declarations Act, 1835, to wit, a declaration made before G. H., in accordance with the provisions of the said last-mentioned statute, knowing the same to be untrue in a material particular, to wit, untrue in that the said A. B. therein solemnly and sincerely declared that —— [as in assignment of perjury, ante, p. 1057]——whereas, in truth and in fact, —— as he, the said A. B., well knew at the time when he made the said solemn declaration aforesaid (state the truth). Against the form, etc. [as ante, p. 465]. It is to be noted that on indictments under ss. 5, 18, the word "corruptly" is not essential.

As to the effect of the Commissioners for Oaths Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 10), on this offence, see ante, p. 1064.

Misdemeanor (5 & 6 W. 4, c. 62, s. 21): punishable by fine or imprisonment without hard labour. See ante, p. 238.

This offence is not triable at quarter sessions. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (7) (ante, p. 126).

Evidence.

Prove the authority of the person taking the declaration, that it was taken, and the materiality and falsity of the statement impugned in the same manner as on a charge of perjury. Corroboration is necessary (ante, pp. 409, 1061).

Where the declaration confirms any writing, the latter must be produced or secondary evidence of it, given after proof of proper notices to produce. R. v. Cox, 9 Cox, 301; 4 F. & F. 42. On an indictment for a false declaration as to the occurrence of a fire in the defendant's house, it was held that to prove the declaration to be wilfully false, evidence might be given that certificates sent to the insurers with the declaration were forged; R. v. Boynes, 1 C. & K. 65.

Indictment for making a False Declaration of the Loss of a Pawnbroker's Ticket. (35 & 36 Vict. c. 93, s. 29, ante, p. 1073.)

Northumberland, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. S. did, on the sixth day of April, in the year of our Lord ——, at the parish of Tynemouth, in the borough of Tynemouth, in the county of Northumberland, unlawfully make a false declaration before J. B. B., esquire, one of his Majesty's justices of the peace for the said borough of Tynemouth, he the said J. S. then knowing the said declaration to be false in a certain material particular, that is to say in this, to wit, it was in the said declaration alleged by the said J. S. that he the said J. S. had lost a certain note or memorandum, being a pawnbroker's ticket; whereas in truth and in fact he the said J. S. had not then lost the said ticket as he the said J. S. well knew at the time he made the said false declaration; against the form, etc. (as ante, p. 465).

As to the form of the indictment, see R. v. Parker, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 225; 39 L. J. (M. C.) 60; 11 Cox, 478, ante, p. 305.

Misdemeanor: punishable as perjury. 35 & 36 Vict. c. 93, s. 29 (ante, p. 1073). Not triable at quarter sessions. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (7) (ante, p. 126).

To make a false declaration as to a pledge above the value of 10*l. is not an offence within the section. R.* v. Tregoning, 63 J. P. 504.

Evidence.

It is not necessary to call the magistrate before whom the declaration was made. R. v. Browning, 3 Cox, 437. And it is sufficient to prove his handwriting and that he acted within the district for which he was commissioned. R. v. Morgan, 1 Cox, 109, decided on 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 62, s. 12 (and see ante, p. 344). Two witnesses are necessary to falsify the declaration. R. v. Browning, ubi supra: 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 403, n. And it is necessary to prove that the pledge was not for more than 10*l. R.* v. Tregoning, ubi supra.

Indictment for making, and abetting the making, etc., a False Declaration under the Naturalization Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 14).

Commencement as in last precedent]—unlawfully, wilfully, and corruptly did make and subscribe a certain declaration under the Naturalization Act, 1870, purporting to be made in pursuance of regulations made by one of his Majesty's principal secretaries of state under the said Act, he the said A. B., then well knowing the said declaration to be untrue in certain material particulars, that is to say in this, to wit, that the said A. B., in and by the said declaration, did depose and declare that his name then was C. D., and that he the said A. B. then was a householder, and that he the said A. B. had personally known and been intimately acquainted with one M. S. for a period of five years then last past, whereas in truth and in fact the name of him the said A. B. was not C. D., and whereas in truth and in fact the said A. B. was not then a householder, and whereas in truth and in fact the said A. B. had not personally known the said M. S. for a period of five years then last past. And that the said M. S. on the said —— day of —— in the year aforesaid, at the parish aforesaid, in the county aforesaid, unlawfully did aid, abet, counsel and procure the said A. B. the said misdemeanor, in manner and form aforesaid, to do and commit against the form, etc. [as ante, p. 465].

This precedent is framed from R. v. Jefferies and Stearn, C. C. C., April Sessions, 1897. Quære, whether this offence is not also indictable as perjury under s. 7 of the Commissioners for Oaths Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 10), ante, p. 1054. In R. v. Rosenblum, Central Criminal Court, Nov., 1898, an indictment was so framed; but the question of its validity was not raised.

Misdemeanor: punishable by fine or imprisonment without hard labour (or both: see ante, pp. 238, 240). Not triable at quarter sessions. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (7), ante, p. 126.

Evidence.

Prove the regulations as directed, ante, p. 348, with reference to statutory rules, and the offence as directed, ante, p. 1074.

Sect. 6.

ADMINISTERING, ETC., VOLUNTARY OATHS, ETC.

Statute.

5 & 6 W. 4, c. 62 (Statutory Declarations Act, 1835), s. 13.]— . . . It shall not be lawful for any justice of the peace or other person to administer, or cause or allow to be administered, or to receive, or cause or allow to be received, any oath, affidavit, or solemn affirmation touching any matter or thing whereof such justice or other person hath no jurisdiction or cognizance by some statute in force at the time being; provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to extend to any oath, affidavit, or solemn affirmation before any justice in any matter or thing touching the preservation of the peace, or the prosecution, trial or punishment of offences, or touching any proceedings before either of the houses of parliament, or any committee thereof respectively, nor to any oath, affidavit or affirmation which may be required by the laws of any foreign country to give validity to instruments in writing designed to be used in such foreign countries respectively.

Sect. 6—Act not to apply to oath of allegiance.]—Provided always, that nothing in this Act contained shall extend or apply to the oath of allegiance in any case in which the same now is or may be required to be taken by any person who may be appointed to any office, but that such oath of allegiance shall continue to be required, and shall be administered and taken, as well and in the same manner as if this Act had not been passed. [See Promissory Oaths Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 72), and 1871 (34 & 35 Vict. c. 48).]

Sect. 7—Not to apply to oaths in courts of justice, etc.]—Provided also, that nothing in this Act contained shall extend or apply to any oath, solemn affirmation, or affidavit, which now is or hereafter may be made or taken, or be required to be made or taken, in any judicial proceeding in any court of justice, or in any proceeding for or by way of summary conviction before any justice or justices of the peace, but all such oaths, affirmations and affidavits shall continue to be required, and to be administered, taken and made, as well and in the same manner as if this Act had not been passed.

Indictment.

Commencement as ante, p. 1074]—J. S., on the —— day of ——, A.D. ——, then being one of the justices of our said lord the King, assigned to keep the peace in and for the said county, did unlawfully administer to and receive from a certain person, to wit, one J. N., a certain oath ("oath, affidavit, or solemn affirmation"), touching certain matters and things whereof the said J. S., at the time and on the occasion aforesaid, had not any jurisdiction or cognizance by any statute in force at the time being, to wit, at the time of administering and receiving the said oath; the same oath not being in any matter or thing touching the preservation of the peace, or the prosecution, trial, or punishment of any offence, or touching any proceedings before either of the houses of parliament, or any committee thereof respectively, nor being an oath required by the laws of any foreign country to give validity to any instrument in writing, designed to be used in such foreign country; that is to say, a certain oath touching and concerning [state the subject-matter of the oath, so as to show that it was not one of which the justice had jurisdiction or cognizance, and was not within the exceptions]; against the form [as ante, p. 465]. The indictment must negative the exceptions in the statute, and must show the subject-matter touching which the oath was administered, so as to enable the court to draw the legal inference that it was one of which the defendant had not cognizance; but it is not necessary to set out the oath verbatim. R. v. Nott, 4 Q. B. 768; 12 L. J. (M. C.) 143; Dav. & M. 1; C. & Mar. 288.

Misdemeanor, as being a breach of the positive directions of the statute 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 62, s. 13 (see ante, p. 3). Fine or imprisonment, or both. See ante, pp. 238, 240. This offence seems not to be triable at quarter sessions. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (ante, p. 126).

Evidence.

Prove that the defendant is a justice of the peace for the county mentioned in the indictment; evidence of his acting as such will, primâ facie, be sufficient. Prove that he administered to or received from J. N. an oath of the nature and touching the subject-matter mentioned in the indictment. It is not necessary to show that he acted wilfully in contravention of the statute; the doing so, even inadvertently, is punishable. R. v. Nott, ubi supra.

EMBRACERY.

Common Law.

Embracery is a misdemeanor indictable at common law, punishable by fine and imprisonment, and consists in attempting by bribes or any corrupt means whatsoever, other than evidence and argument in open court, to influence or instruct jurors, or to incline them to favour one party to a judicial proceeding. 1 Hawk. c. 85; 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 486: R. v. Young, 2 East, 14, cit. It is referred to as a crime in 34 Edw. 3, c. 8, and 38 Edw. 3, st. 1, c. 12 (both repealed), and an alternative remedy against persons embracing freeholders or jurors is given by 32 H. 8, c. 9, s. 3. But the criminal remedy continues (see 6 G. 4, c. 50, s. 61). In R. v. Baker, 113 Cent. Crim. Ct. Sess. Pap. 374, an indictment for embracery was quashed as insufficient. On a second indictment for the same offence preferred at a subsequent session, the prisoner was convicted. Id. p. 589.

Sect. 8.

INTERFERENCE WITH WITNESSES.

Common Law.

At common law interference with witnesses in courts of justice, by threats or persuasion to induce them not to give evidence, is a misdemeanor, punishable on indictment or information. 2 Chit. Cr. L. 220, 235: 2 Taylor, Ev. (9th ed.) 873: R. v. Lawley, 2 Str. 904: R. v. Steventon, 2 East, 362: R. v. Loughran, 1 Crawf. & Dix. (Ir.) 79: R. v. Talley [1875] 82 Cent. Crim. Ct. Sess. Pap. 518; also noted in Stone's Justice's Manual (37th ed.), 224; and see R. v. Gray [1903] 22 N. Z. L. R. 52, where the defendant was indicted for dissuading a witness from giving evidence. It is also summarily punishable as a contempt of court (see 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 197, 293, 487, n.: Shaw v. Shaw, 2 Sw. & Tr. 517; and see R. v. Steventon, ubi supra, and Onslow's and Whalley's cases, L. R. 9 Q. B. 219; 12 Cox, 358. To prevent a witness duly summoned from attending court is punishable as a contempt; R. v. Hall, 2 W. Bl. 1110: Commonwealth v. Feeley, 2 Virg. Cas. 1; or, in the event of combination, is indictable as a conspiracy to pervert the course of justice. 3 Chit. Cr. L. 1151: R. v. Hamp, 6 Cox, 167; and post, Book II. Part III. s. 1, tit. "Conspiracy."

Statute.

55 & 56 Vict. c. 64 (Witnesses Public Inquiries Protection Act, 1892), s. 1.]—In this Act the word "inquiry" shall mean any inquiry held under the authority of any royal commission, or by any committee of either house of parliament, or pursuant to any statutory authority, whether the evidence at such inquiry is or is not given on oath, but shall not include any inquiry by a court of justice.

Sect. 2.]—Every person who commits any of the following acts, that is to say, who threatens or in any way publishes, damnifies or injures, or attempts to punish, damnify, or injure any person for having given evidence upon any inquiry, or upon account of the evidence which he has given upon any such inquiry shall, unless such evidence was given in bad faith, be guilty of a misdemeanor, and be liable on conviction thereof to a maximum penalty of one hundred pounds, or to a maximum imprisonment of three months.

Sect. 3.]—A prosecution for any offence under this Act may be heard and determined by a court of summary jurisdiction, under the Summary Jurisdiction Acts; provided that should either the complainant (qu. informant) or the party charged object to the case being dealt with summarily, the court shall send such case for trial to the quarter sessions or assizes, or, in cases arising within the metropolitan area, to the Central Criminal Court.

Sects. 4, 5.]—Power to order the offender to pay compensation to parties aggrieved, and costs of prosecution; mode of enforcing the order.

Sect. 7.]—Saving as to privilege of parliament, and powers under other statutes.

Indictment for attempting to dissuade, etc., a Witness from giving Evidence on a Charge of Felony. (Common Law.)

Commencement as ante, p. 433]—that heretofore, and before the commission of the offence by the said A. B. and C. D., in this count charged and stated, to wit, on the —— day of ——, A.D. ——, one E. F. and one G. H. were duly given into custody on a charge of felony, and that afterwards, to wit, on the —— day of ——, A.D. ——, the said E. F. and G. H. were charged, before K. L., esquire, one of the magistrates of the police courts of the metropolis, sitting at the M. police court, with the said felony [specify the felony in accordance with the appropriate precedents, ante], and the jurors aforesaid, on their oath aforesaid, do further present that upon the hearing of the said charge against the said E. F. and G. H. by the said magistrate, one N. O. was a material witness as to the truth of the said charge that the said A. B. and C. D., being evil-disposed persons and contriving and intending to obstruct and impede the due course of justice on the —— day of ——, A.D. ——, in the parish aforesaid, in the city of London, and within the jurisdiction of the said court, unlawfully did attempt and endeavour to dissuade, hinder and prevent the said N. O. from appearing before the said magistrate, so sitting as aforesaid, at the said police court to testify the truth and give evidence before the said magistrate touching the said charge against the said E. F. and G. H., to the great obstruction, hindrance and delay of public justice, in contempt of our said lord the King and his laws, and to the evil example of all others in the like case offending, and against the peace, etc. [This precedent is framed from the indictment in R. v. Moyle and Brennan (Cent. Crim. Ct. Nov. Sess. 1898). See 2 Chit. Crim. Law, 235: R. v. Steventon, 2 East, 362: R. v. Gray [1903] 23 N. Z. L. R. 52; and ante, p. 146.]

Misdemeanor: punishable by fine or imprisonment without hard labour (or both). (See ante, pp. 238, 240.)

Sect. 9.

Barratry, Champerty, and Maintenance.

Common Law.

Barratry.]—It is an indictable misdemeanor to be a common barrator, i.e., "habitually to move, excite or maintain suits and quarrels." 8 Co. Rep. 36. The offence is rarely prosecuted. See the old authorities collected 1 Hawk. c. 81, and the Encyclopædia of English Law, s.v. Barratry, Vol. II. p. 23. Jurisdiction over the offence was given to sessions of the peace by 34 Edw. 3, c. 1. As to indictment, see precedent, post, p. 1080, taken from R. v. Bellgrave (Guildford Assizes, 1889). By 12 G. 1, c. 29, s. 4, solicitors practising after conviction of common barratry are liable on summary conviction in the High Court to transportation (penal servitude) for seven years. See Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (6th ed.) 113.

Champerty and maintenance.]—Champerty and maintenance are indictable misdemeanors, possibly at common law, but more probably under the statutes named below. See Metropolitan Bank v. Pooley, 10 App. Cas. 210, Ld. Selborne: contra, Pechell v. Watson, 8 M. & W. 691. "Champertors be they that move pleas or suits or cause to be moved either by their own procurement or by others, and sue them at their proper costs for to have part of the land in variance, or part of the gains." 33 Edw. 1 (Ordinacio de Conspiratoribus). Champerty is punishable at the King's pleasure, or by fine and imprisonment, if committed by the King's officers. See 3 Edw. 1, c. 25; 13 Edw. 1 (Stat. West. Sec.), c. 49; 28 Edw. 1, c. 11, and the Statutum de Conspiratoribus, 1 Rev. Stat. (2nd ed.) 77. As to what is champertous, see Re Thomas [1894] 1 *Q. Indictment for Maintenance and Barratry.

Surrey, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that F. B., on the 20th day of September, A.D. 1903, and on divers days and times between that day and the 17th day of February, A.D. 1904, did unlawfully and unjustly maintain and uphold a certain action, then depending in the High Court of Justice, King's Bench Division, wherein W. F., M. F. his wife, and O. F. an infant, by W. F. his next friend, were the plaintiffs, and the London and South Western Railway Company were the defendants, for the recovery of damages for injuries alleged to have been caused by the negligence of the defendants in the said action; against the form, etc. [as ante, p. 465].

Second Count: And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present that F. B. on the —— day of ——, A.D. 1903, and on divers other days, as well before and afterwards, was and yet is a common barrator, and that he the said F. B., on the said 8th day of August, A.D. 1903, and on the divers other times aforesaid, divers quarrels, strifes, suits, and controversies among the liege subjects of our lord the King then and there did move, procure, set up, and excite, to the common nuisance of the liege subjects of our lord the King, and against the peace of our said lord the King, his crown and dignity.

This precedent is framed from the indictment in R. v. Bellgrave (Guildford Assizes, 1889). The prosecutor may be ordered to give particulars of the acts relied on as constituting the offence. (See ante, p. 70.)

Misdemeanors: punishable by imprisonment, without hard labour, and (or) fine (ante, pp. 238, 240, 1079).

BRIBERY OF PUBLIC OFFICIALS.

Common Law.

It has been held to be a misdemeanor at common law to bribe a privy councillor (R. v. Vaughan, 4 Burr. 2494, 2500), or to bribe a juryman. Young's case, 2 East, 14, 16, cit. (and see Embracery, ante, p. 1077). The offer of a bribe is an attempt to bribe, and is also a misdemeanor. 3 Co.

Inst. 147: R. v. Vaughan, ubi supra. So is the taking of a bribe by an officer judicial or ministerial. Id., and see 3 Edw. 1 (Stat. West. Prim.), c. 26 (post, p. 1083); 20 Edw. 3, c. 1 (rep.); Com. Dig. Officer (1); 1 Hawk. c. 67; 3 Chit. Cr. L. 683. Some of the text-books confine the offence of bribery to bribery of officers of justice (see 3 Steph. Hist. Cr. L. 250; 3 Co. Inst. 145; Lord Macclesfield's case, 16 St. Tr. 767), but this definition of the offence seems too narrow and confined. See R. v. Beale, 1 East, 183, cit.: R. v. Vaughan, 4 Burr. 2494. And an attempt to bribe a custom house officer has been held indictable. R. v. Cassano, 5 Esp. 231. Payment, or the promise of payment, for votes at the election of an assistant overseer of a parish, is bribery, and as such has been held to be an indictable common law misdemeanor. R. v. Lancaster, 16 Cox, 737, where Wills, J., held that the nature of the office of the person bribed was immaterial so long as it was public. See R. v. Bowler, C. & Mar. 559: R. v. Boyes, 2 F. & F. 157. On this subject see also ante, p. 145.

Statutes.

The purchase or sale of public offices is punishable under 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 16, and 49 G. 3, c. 126. See 3 Chit. Cr. L. 681 (c.); 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 433. It is said to be regarded at common law as a form of bribery. See R. v. Pollman, 2 Camp. 229, n.; 11 R. R. 698. The taking of bribes by Indian officials is punishable in England under 33 G. 3, c. 52, s. 62. See Ilbert, Government of India, 259: R. v. Douglas, 13 Q. B. 42.

As to bribery at parliamentary and municipal elections, see post, ch. vi. ss. 9, 10. As to bribery, etc., of or by members of public bodies, see post, ch. vi. s. 11.

Bribery of customs officers and their acceptance of bribes is punished by fine under 39 & 40 Vict. c. 36, s. 217, and like provisions are made as to officers of inland revenue, by 53 & 54 Vict. c. 21, s. 10. But the offences created by these statutes are not indictable.

Indictment for attempting to bribe a Constable to refrain from making Inquiries as to Bail. (Common Law.)

Commencement as ante, p. 1057]—that heretofore, to wit, on the —— day of ——, A.D. ——, Y. Z., esquire, then and yet being one of the magistrates of the police courts of the metropolis sitting at the —— police court in the metropolitan police district, did duly commit one A. B. to prison to take his trial at the then ensuing sessions of the said C. C. C. commencing on the —— day of ——, in the year aforesaid, upon a charge of larceny on the high seas, and did, in the due exercise of his discretion in that behalf, offer to admit the said A. B. to bail upon his procuring and producing one surety in the sum of 100*l.* who would, in the opinion of the said Y. Z., esquire, so being such magistrate as aforesaid, be sufficient to ensure the appearance of the said A. B. at the said time and place when and where he was to be tried for the said offence; and afterwards, to wit, on the —— day of ——, in the year aforesaid, C. D. did tender himself as such surety in the sum of 100*l.* for the said A. B., and thereupon it became and was the duty of E. F. and G. H., then being police constables and detective sergeants of the metropolitan police, to inquire and ascertain the position and means of the said C. D. and report truly to the said magistrate thereupon.

And the jurors, etc., present that the said C. D. on the said —— day of

——, in the year aforesaid, at the parish of ——, in the county of London, and within the jurisdiction of the said court, well knowing the premises, but contriving and unlawfully intending to pervert the due course of law and justice and to prevent due inquiries into and a true report to the said magistrate upon his position and means, unlawfully, wickedly and corruptly did give the sum of 1*l.*, and did offer the further sum of 5*l.*, to each of the said police constables E. F. and G. H. then being entrusted with the duty of inquiring and reporting to the said magistrate as aforesaid to induce them to refrain from making due inquiries into the position and means of him the said C. D. and to induce them to report to the said Y. Z., esquire, so being such magistrate as aforesaid, without such inquiries and contrary to their duty in that behalf, that he the said C. D. was a proper person to be accepted by the said magistrate as a surety for the appearance of the said A. B. at the said sessions of the C. C. C. to take his trial for the said offence of larceny on the high seas. And so the jurors, etc., do say that the said C. D., on the said —— day of ——, in the year aforesaid, within the jurisdiction aforesaid, in manner and form aforesaid, did unlawfully attempt and endeavour to bribe the said E. F. and G. H., so being such police constables as aforesaid, to neglect and omit to do their duty as such police constables and to refrain from making due inquiries into the position and means of the said C. D. and to report to the said magistrate without such due inquiries, contrary to their duty in that behalf, in contempt of our lord the King and his laws, to the evil example of all others in like case offending, and against the peace, etc.

[Recent instances of trials for offences of this nature are R. v. Richardson [1890] 111 Cent. Crim. Ct. Sess. Pap. 612 (from the indictment in which case the above precedent is framed), and R. v. Lehwess [1904] 140 Cent. Crim. Ct. Sess. Pap. 731, where the defendant attempted to bribe a constable to refrain from giving evidence against him for offences under the Motor Car Act, 1903.]

Misdemeanor at common law: punishable with fine or imprisonment without hard labour, or both (see ante, pp. 238, 240), whether the bribe was accepted or not. 3 Co. Inst. 147.

Bribery is not triable at quarter sessions. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (ante, p. 126).

Indictment for attempting to bribe a Constable to refrain from executing Warrant. (Common Law.)

Surrey to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that heretofore, to wit, on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, one A. C., esquire, then and yet being one of the justices of our said lord the King, assigned to keep the peace of our said lord the King in and for the county aforesaid, and also to hear and determine divers crimes, trespasses, and other offences committed in the said county [see present forms of commission of peace, Stat. Rules and Orders Revised (ed. 1904), vol. 2., tit. "Clerk of the Crown in Chancery"] made a certain warrant under his hand and seal, in due form of law, bearing date the day and year aforesaid, directed to all constables and other peace officers of the said county, and especially to J. N., thereby commanding them, upon sight thereof, to take and bring before him the said A. C., so being such justice as aforesaid, or some other of his Majesty's justices of the peace for the said county, the body of D. F., late of the parish aforesaid, in the county aforesaid, to answer [etc., etc., as in the warrant]: and which said warrant afterwards, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, was delivered to the said J. N., then being one of the constables and peace officers of the same county, to be executed in due form of law. And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that J. S., well knowing the premises, but contriving and unlawfully intending to pervert the due course of law and justice, and to prevent the said D. F. from being arrested and taken under and by virtue of the warrant aforesaid, afterwards, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, unlawfully, wickedly and corruptly did offer unto the said J. N., so being constable as aforesaid, and having in his custody and possession the said warrant so delivered to him to be executed as aforesaid, the sum of ten pounds, if he the said J. N. would refrain from executing the said warrant, and from taking and arresting the said D. F. under and by virtue of the same, for and during fourteen days from that time, that is to say, from the time he the said J. S. so offered the said sum of ten pounds to the said J. N. as aforesaid: and so the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do say, that the said J. S., on the said first day of June, in the year aforesaid, in manner and form aforesaid, did unlawfully attempt, and endeavour to bribe the said J. N., so being constable as aforesaid, to neglect and omit to do his duty as such constable, and to refrain from taking and arresting the said D. F. under and by virtue of the warrant aforesaid: in contempt of our lord the King and his laws, to the evil and pernicious example of all others in the like case offending, and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity. [For an instance of attempts to bribe a justice of the peace, see R. v. Gurney, 10 Cox, 550.]

Punishment as under the last precedent.

Evidence.

Prove the warrant and the delivery of it to J. N.; and prove that J. S. knew that J. N. had the warrant and offered him ten pounds to refrain from executing it, as stated in the indictment.

Sect. 11.

EXTORTION BY PUBLIC OFFICIALS.

Statutes.

Indictment against a Constable for Extortion. (Common Law.)

Surrey, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. S., on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, then being one of the constables of the county of S., did take and arrest one J. N., by colour of a certain warrant, commonly called a bench warrant, which he the said J. S. then alleged to be in his possession: and that the said J. S. afterwards, and whilst the said J. N. so remained in his custody as aforesaid, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, unlawfully, corruptly, deceitfully, extorsively, and by colour of his said office did extort, receive, and take of and from the said J. N. the sum of five shillings (see Lake's case, 3 Leon. 268) as and for a fee due to him the said J. S. as such constable as aforesaid for the obtaining and discharging of the said warrant, as he the said J. S. then alleged; whereas, in truth and in fact, no fee whatever was then due from the said J. N. to the said J. S. as such constable as aforesaid in that behalf; in contempt (as in last precedent). Lay the venue in the jurisdiction where the offence was committed (see ante, p. 47). See the precedents, Cro. Circ. Comp. 193, 194, 195; 4 Went. 146; and see 3 Co. Inst. 148, 149: R. v. Baines, 2 Ld. Raym. 1265.

Misdemeanor: fine or imprisonment, without hard labour (ante, pp. 238, 240), or both, and amotion from office. 1 Hawk c. 68, s. 5.

Extortion is triable at quarter sessions. R. v. Loggen, 1 Str. 73, 75; 3 Co. Inst. 149; 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (ante, p. 126).

Evidence.

Prove the arrest, and prove that the defendant exacted money as a fee due to him as stated in the indictment. The sum stated is not material; proof of a less sum will maintain the indictment. R. v. Burdett, 1 Ld. Raym. 148; and see R. v. Gillham, 6 T. R. 265: R. v. Higgins, 4 C. & P. 247: Lake's case, 3 Leon. 268.

The gist of the offence lies in taking under colour of office from any person any money or valuable thing which is not due from him; if the act is done otherwise than in good faith. Beawfage's case, 10 Co. Rep. 102 a. And it is equally extortion where a greater fee is exacted than what is legally due, as where money is exacted as a fee, where none whatever is payable. See 1 Hawk. c. 68, s. 1: R. v. Baines, 2 Ld. Raym. 1265;

2 Salk. 680. The offence may be committed by judicial or executive officers. See cases collected, 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 425; Encycl. Laws of England, tit. "Extortion." For a gaoler to detain the corpse of a prisoner for a debt due to him is a misdemeanor. R. v. Fox, 2 Q. B. 246: R. v. Scott, Id. 248, n.: Jones v. Ashburnham, 4 East, 455, 460. For other offences akin to extortion, see Official Index to Statutes (ed. 1904), tit. "Extortion," 1. As to trial in England of Indian officials for extortion, see ante, p. 1081, and Ilbert, Government of India, 261. As to extortion of turnpike tolls, see R. v. Hamlyn, 4 Camp. 379.

Misconduct of Officers of Justice.

Common Law.

Every malfeasance or culpable non-feasance of an officer of justice with relation to his office is a misdemeanor, and punishable with fine or imprisonment, or both. See R. v. Wyat, 1 Salk. 380 (neglect by a constable to levy a penalty under a justice's warrant directed to him); Crowther's case, Cro. Eliz. 654 (refusal by a constable on notice to pursue a felon); and 2 Chit. Cr. L. 267; 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 416–421. As to misconduct by sheriffs and their officers, see 50 & 51 Vict. c. 55, s. 29 (ante, p. 1084). As to misconduct by coroners, see 50 & 51 Vict. c. 71, s. 8 (2), and R. v. Whitcomb, 1 C. & P. 124.

Indictment against a Constable for not conveying an Offender to Prison.
(Common Law.)

Proceed as in the precedent, ante, pp. 1032, 1033, as far as the *, and then proceed thus:]—And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said J. S., so being one of the constables of the said —— as aforesaid, and being so commanded by the said A. C., the said justice as aforesaid, unlawfully and contemptuously did then neglect and refused to convey the said J. N. to the said prison, as he the said J. S. by virtue of his office aforesaid, by law should and ought to have done: to the great hindrance of justice, to the evil example of all others in the like case offending, and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity. See the precedents, Cro. Circ. Comp. 143, 151, 170.

Evidence.

Prove the charge before the magistrate, the warrant and the delivery of it to the defendant, as directed ante, p. 1033. And prove that the defendant neglected or refused to convey the offender to prison in pursuance of the warrant. It is unnecessary to prove the defendant's appointment as constable; proof that he was accustomed to act as such will be sufficient (ante, p. 344).

Indictment against a Magistrate for committing in a Case where he had no Jurisdiction. (Common Law.)

Surrey, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that on the first day of June in the year of our Lord ——, one T. C., then being one of the constables and police officers of the county of S., brought one J. N. before J. S., esquire, then and yet being one of the justices of our said lord the King assigned to keep the peace of our said lord the King in and for the county aforesaid, and also to hear and determine divers crimes, trespasses, and other offences committed in the said county; and the said J. N. was then charged before the said J. S. with having committed a certain supposed misdemeanor, in having vilified the character and hurt the trade of one A. C., of the parish aforesaid, miller; [and the said J. N. was then and there examined before the said J. S., as such justice as aforesaid, touching the said supposed offence so to him charged as aforesaid (see precedent ante, p. 1032)]. And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said J. S., so being such justice as aforesaid, wickedly and maliciously contriving and intending to oppress, injure and aggrieve the said J. N. in this behalf, and to put him to great charge and expense, and to cause him to undergo and suffer great pain, torture and anguish of body and mind, afterwards, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, did order and direct that the said J. N. should find sureties for his personal appearance at the then next general quarter sessions of the peace of our said lord the King, to be holden in and for the said county of M., to answer the said charge; and, because the said J. N. did not and could not conveniently find such sureties as aforesaid, he the said J. S., being such justice as aforesaid, wickedly and maliciously contriving and intending as aforesaid, wrongfully, unjustly and maliciously, and contrary to the laws of this realm, did then by virtue and under colour of a certain warrant under his hand and seal, as such justice as aforesaid, commit the said J. N. a prisoner to a certain prison called the —— Prison, situate at the parish aforesaid, in the county aforesaid, to be there safely kept until he the said J. N. should find such sureties as aforesaid, and until he should be fully examined concerning the premises; and then ordered, directed, and commanded the then keeper of the said prison to keep the said J. N. under close confinement in the said prison, and to deny him the use of pen, ink, and paper, and to allow no letter to be delivered to or from the said J. N., and also to allow no person to see or speak to him the said J. N. And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present that the said J. S., by virtue and under colour of the warrant aforesaid, afterwards, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, and from thence, for a long space of time, to wit, for the space of ten days then next following, wrongfully, unjustly and maliciously, and contrary to the laws of this realm, did cause and procure the said J. N. to be closely confined and imprisoned in the said prison, and to be denied the use of pen, ink, and paper, and to be restrained from all communications with his relations and friends; whereby the said J. N. during all that time underwent and suffered great pain, torture and anguish of body and mind, and was deprived of his liberty, and prevented from finding such sureties as aforesaid, and was put to great charge and expense in and about obtaining his discharge and release from the said commitment and imprisonment: to the great scandal of the administration of justice in this kingdom, in contempt of our lord the King and his laws, to the evil example, etc. (as in last precedent).

As to cases in which magistrates have been prosecuted, see ante, p. 147.

Where magistrates are guilty of oppression, or other wilful malfeasance in the execution of their duties, they have generally been proceeded against by information, and not by indictment. (See ante, pp. 146, 147.) But such an information can readily be framed from this precedent, by observing the forms given ante, pp. 143, 151. See the precedents, Cro. Circ. Comp. 242, 244; 4 Went. 364, 418, 424; 6 Went. 455. See also a precedent of an indictment against a coroner for refusing to take an inquisition, Cro. Circ. Comp. 170; and see 2 Chit. Cr. L. 255.

Misdemeanor: fine or imprisonment (without hard labour, ante, pp. 238, 240), or both.

Evidence.

Prove the charge before J. S., the warrant, etc., and the imprisonment; together with any circumstances of aggravation laid in the indictment. Also, if the case will admit of it, evidence may be given of any circumstances which indicate that the commitment proceeded from malice or other undue motive upon the part of the magistrate. See R. v. Sainsbury, 4 T. R. 451; 2 R. R. 433. The Justices Protection Act, 1848 (11 & 12 Vict. c. 44), does not seem to apply to criminal proceedings against a justice.

Sect. 13.

DISOBEYING THE ORDERS OF JUSTICES.

. Disobedience of an order of justices is a misdemeanor at common law. See 2 Chit. Cr. L. 279 and the cases citod infra.

Indictment at Quarter Sessions against a Chief Constable for disobeying an Order of Sessions. (Common Law.)

County of London, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that at the general quarter sessions of the peace of our lord the King, holden for the county of London, at the New Sessions House on Clerkenwell Green, in and for the county aforesaid, by adjournment, to wit, on the day of ——, in the year of our Lord ——, before F. C., J. W., W. R., and R. M., esquires, and others their fellows, justices of our said lord the King assigned to keep the peace of our said lord the King in and for the county aforesaid, and also to hear and determine divers crimes, trespasses, and other offences (see note to precedent, ante, p. 1082), committed in the said county, it was ordered by the same justices and court there, that [etc., proceeding to state the substance of the order of sessions in the past tense]; of which said order the said J. S., one of the chief constables [or other officers] in the order aforesaid named, afterwards, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, had notice. Nevertheless, the said J. S., then being one of the chief constables in the order aforesaid mentioned, unlawfully and contemptuously, upon being served with the said order, did neglect and refuse to [etc., here insert what the order required of him], as by the said order he the said J. S. was required to do; nor hath he the said J. S. at any time since complied with the said order, although often requested so to do; in contempt, etc. (as in last precedent). The precedent editions prior to the 22nd dealt with high constables. Under 32 & 33 Vict. c. 47, that office has been discontinued, and the chief constable of the county for most purposes substituted.

Misdemeanor: fine and imprisonment, without hard labour (ante, pp. 238, 240), or both.

As to this form of offence, see ante, p. 5, and 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 883; and as to essentials of the indictment, see R. v. Gilkes, 8 B. & C. 439; 3 C. & P. 52. The service of the order must be averred. R. v. Moorhouse, 4 Dougl. 388.

Comp.* 327: see R. v. Meredith, R. & R. 46: R. v. Booth, Id. 47, n.: R. v. Warren, Id. 48, n.; 1 *Russ. Sect. 14.

COMPOUNDING OFFENCES.

Common Law.

Compounding felony.]—The offence of theft-bote at common law is committed "where the owner not only knows of the felony, but taketh of the thief his goods again, or amends for the same to favour or maintain him, that is, not to prosecute him to the intent that he may escape." 3 Co. Inst. 134.

The punishment of theft-bote is ransom and imprisonment. Id. 134; 1 Hale, 619; 2 Hale, 400; 1 Hawk. c. 59, ss. 5, 6; 2 Chit. Cr. L. 220. It has been held that the offence can be committed by a person not the owner of the goods. R. v. Burgess, 16 Q. B. D. 141, 147 (C. C. R.). The offence is usually now described as compounding a felony. It differs from misprision of felony, which can be committed without taking any active steps to protect the felon from justice. See 3 Co. Inst. 140; 1 Hale, 373; 1 Chit. Cr. L. 232; 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 411. The offence of compounding is complete when the agreement not to prosecute is made, whether it is performed or not (R. v. Burgess, ubi supra); and the agreement not to prosecute for felony is no defence to an indictment for the felony preferred in breach of the agreement. R. v. Daly, 9 C. & P. 342: cf. Re Bryant, 27 J. P. 277, 289. It is said that except where the attorney-general enters a nolle prosequi (ante, p. 139), it is necessary to obtain the leave of the court to abandon a prosecution after the indictment is found, whether the prosecution desire to effect this purpose by offering no evidence, or otherwise. R. v. Nicholson, Cent. Crim. Ct., June 28, 1899, Darling, J. In R. v. Roxburgh, 12 Cox, 8, where, on a trial for felony, the jury disagreed, Cockburn, C.J., directed their discharge, that the accused might plead guilty to a common assault, and make compensation for the injuries caused. In the 21st edition of this work, at p. 186, it was stated that "it has not been infrequent on trials at the Central Criminal Court, and probably in other criminal courts, for the prosecutor to abandon the prosecution, the person accused agreeing to bring no action for false imprisonment or malicious prosecution." An instance of this practice will be found in Jones v. German [1896] 2 Q. B. 418, 422; [1897] 1 Q. B. 374; 65 L. J. (M. C.) 212. But it does not appear that such arrangements are made with the sanction or approval of the court; and it is submitted that if made they are not enforceable. (a)

Withdrawing from or stifling prosecutions for misdemeanor.]—Except in cases within 18 Eliz. c. 5 (post, p. 1091), there seems to be no precedent of an indictment for compounding a misdemeanor, or stifling a prosecution for misdemeanor, unless it is done under circumstances constituting a conspiracy to pervert or defeat justice (see 1 Steph. Hist. Cr. L. 502; 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 412; 1 Chit. Cr. L. 3), or amounting to interference with witnesses (see ante, p. 1078). The illegality of such a transaction from the point of view of enforcing any contract made for such a purpose is well established, (a) and it is the undoubted right of the crown to proceed

(a) Contracts to stifle or withdraw from a prosecution for any offence, even if made with the sanction of a court, are illegal and unenforceable, either at law or in equity. Windhill Local Board v. Vint, 45 Ch. D. 351: In re Campbell, 14 Q. B. D. 32: Kaufmann v. Gerson [1904] 1 K. B. 591 (C. A.): Johnson v. Ogilby, 3 P. Wms. 277; 24 Eng. Rep. 1064: Collins v. Blantern, 2 Wils. (K. B.) 341; 1 Smith, L. C. (11th ed.) 369: Edgcombe v. Rodd, 5 East, 294, 302; 7 R. R. 500: Rawlings v. Coal Consumers Association, 48 L. J. (M. C.) 111. They do not affect the jurisdiction to proceed with the trial of the offence in question, Re Bryant, 27 J. P. 277, 289; and even in civil proceedings, though the illegality is not pleaded, the court may intervene and dismiss the action. Scott v. Brown [1892] 2 Q. B. 724; 61 L. J. 638: Whitmore v. Farley, 14 Cox, 617; 29 W. R. 825.

In Windhill Local Board v. Vint, ubi supra, the plaintiffs, a local board, had indicted the defendants for obstructing a highway. At the trial of the indictment, a compromise was made by the parties and sanctioned by the judge, and afterwards confirmed by deed. By this deed the defendants covenanted to restore the road within seven years, and the plaintiffs covenanted that when that had been done they would consent to a verdict of "not guilty" on the indictment. The defendants failed to restore the road, and the plaintiffs then brought an action on their covenant. It was held by the Court of Appeal, affirming the judgment of Stirling, J., that as the indictment was for a public inquiry, the agreement to consent to a verdict of "not guilty" was illegal, and that the plaintiffs could not maintain an action on the defendant's covenant.

The following cases have been held to fall within the rule: A contract to stop an election petition (Coppock v. Bower, 4 M. & W. 361; 8 L. J. (Ex.) 9); securities given to stop a prosecution for cheating at cards (Osbaldiston v. Simpson, 13 Sim. 513); a promissory note given on condition that the plaintiff would not prosecute the defendant for obtaining money by false pretences (Clubb v. Hutson, 18 C. B. (N. S.) 414: cf. Pool v. Bousfield, 1 Camp. 55; 10 R. R. 633); a bill accepted by a person accused of embezzlement in consideration of refraining from prosecution, unless it is in the hands of a bonâ fide holder for value without notice (Fivaz v. Nicholls, 2 C. B. 501: cf. Wallace v. Hardacre, 1 Camp. 45); a bond given to secure abstention from prosecution with a prosecution for a misdemeanor notwithstanding any such transaction. Moreover, by s. 5 of the Prosecution of Offences Act, 1879 (42 & 43 Vict. c. 22), it is the duty of every clerk to a justice or to a police court to transmit, in accordance with the regulations under the Act (printed in Statutory Rules and Orders Revised (ed. 1904), vol. 4, tit. "Criminal Procedure, E.," p. 7), to the Director of Public Prosecutions a copy of the information and of all depositions and other documents relating to any case in which a prosecution for an offence instituted before such justice or court is withdrawn or is not proceeded with within a reasonable time. In the draft Criminal Code of 1878 it was provided (art. 127) that "every one shall be guilty of an indictable offence, and shall be liable on conviction to two years' imprisonment with hard labour, who wilfully attempts in any way, though not otherwise criminal, to obstruct, prevent, pervert, or defeat the course of justice or the administration of the law." (Cf. Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (6th ed.) 122.) This clause appears to have been considered by the judges who reported on the code to state the existing law. (See their report, p. 21.) As will be seen, it is not confined to cases of conspiracy (post, Book II. Part III. s. 1), or interference with witnesses (ante, p. 1078), or fabrication of evidence (ante, p. 1071), or incitement to give false evidence (ante, p. 1071). And the clause is wide enough to cover cases of assisting a misdemeanant to escape arrest, or compounding or stifling a prosecution for misdemeanor. The old distinction between felony and (Cannon v. Rands, 11 Cox, 631). As to substituting a genuine for a forged bill, see Wallace v. Hardacre, ubi supra. As to lending money to take up a forged bill, see Re Mapleback, 4 Q. B. D. 150, 156; 13 Cox, 374.

Where a third person acting under undue influence enters into a contract for the express purpose of securing another from criminal prosecution, the contract is invalid. Williams v. Bayley, L. R. 1 H. L. 200; 35 L. J. (Ch.) 717: Jones v. Merionethshire Permanent Benefit Building Society [1892] 1 Ch. 173; 65 L. J. (Ch.) 138; 17 Cox, 889: McClatchie v. Haslam, 17 Cox, 402 (C. A.): and see Kaufmann v. Gerson [1904] 1 K. B. 591. But to invalidate a contract of this kind there must be pressure and more than mere inducement (Flower v. Sadler, 9 Q. B. D. 83; 10 Q. B. D. 572: and McClatchie v. Haslam, ubi supra), and the discontinuance of the proceedings must be part of the consideration. See Harding v. Cooper, 1 Stark. (N. P.) 467.

For the rule to apply it would seem that the prosecution must have been instituted, or that there are reasonable grounds, not necessarily amounting to complete proof, for commencing it. Kirwan v. Goodman, 9 Dowl. 330; 5 Jur. (O. S.) 293: and Rourke v. Mealy, 4 L. R. Ir. 166, Palles, C.B.: S. C. sub nom. Bourke v. Mealy, 14 Cox, 329: Davies v. London, etc., Marine Ins. Co., 8 Ch. D. 469; 47 L. J. (Ch.) 511.

The following cases have been held not to fall within the rule: Where a man gave a warrant of attorney to secure a debt, the mere fact that he believed he would not be prosecuted for his conduct when incurring the debt was held not to invalidate the warrant. Ward v. Lloyd, 6 M. & G. 785; 7 Scott (N. R.) 499: cf. Ex parte Critchley, 15 L. J. (Q. B.) 124; 3 D. & L. 527. A payment of money to postpone a trial for perjury has been held not to be illegal. Harvey v. Morgan, 2 Stark. (N. P.) 17, Lord Ellenborough, C.J., sed quære. An agreement after conviction to pay part of the expenses of a prosecution for misdemeanor has been held legal (Beeley v. Wingfield, 11 East, 46; 10 R. R. 431); but arrangements of this kind are seldom approved by the court. See Re Parkinson, 56 L. T. (N. S.) 715.

It is suggested in Keir v. Leeman, 6 Q. B. 308; 9 Q. B. 371; 13 L. J. (Q. B.) 359; 15 L. J. (Q. B.) 360, that a compromise may be legally made of an offence which might be made the subject of a civil action, such as common assault or libel; and in Fisher v. Apollinaris Co., L. R. 10 Ch. App. 297, it was held that as the prosecutor had the choice in a trade-mark case between civil and criminal remedies, he could legally compromise as to the criminal remedy. But some of the dicta in this case (at p. 302) are inconsistent with the conclusion of the C. A. in Windhill Local Board v. Vint (ante, p. 1089, n.), which appears also to be inconsistent with Fallows v. Taylor, 7 T. R. 475: Crooke v. Lord Powerscourt, 16 W. R. 969: Drage v. Ibberson, 2 Esp. 643: and Elworthy v. Bird, 2 Bing, 258; and it is settled that where the assault is coupled with riot, a compromise is illegal (Keir v. Leeman, ubi supra), and no bar to an action for malicious prosecution.

misdemeanor has to a great extent disappeared during the present century, and the considerations of public policy stated in Windhill Local Board v. Vint (45 Ch. D. 351), and by Palles, C.B, in Dillon v. O'Brien (20 L. R. Ir. 316; 16 Cox, 245), point to the conclusion that with respect to criminal responsibility for compounding a misdemeanor, there is no ground for a different rule from that in force as to compounding a felony, except perhaps in the case of common assault (Keir v. Leeman, 6 Q. B. 308; 9 Q. B. 371), or where the prosecution is one merely to try a civil right, e.g. in cases which fall within the Evidence Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 14). Even in the last class of cases, any compromise of the prosecution has been held to be illegal. Windhill Local Board v. Vint (ubi supra). And there is another rule of law which also points in the same direction, viz. that any indemnity given to bail, whether by the prisoner or by a third person, is illegal and unenforceable. Consolidated Exploration and Finance Co. v. Musgrave [1900] 1 Ch. 37.

In R. v. Broome, 18 L. T. (O. S.) 19, Martin, B., said that it was no objection to bail for a prisoner that they had been indemnified by or on behalf of the prisoner. This dictum was followed by Fulton, Recorder, in R. v. Stockwell, 66 J. P. 376, where he held an agreement to indemnify bail was not indictable unless a deliberate intention to pervert justice was proved. But it is submitted that these decisions are both erroneous.

Sect. 2—Definition of "newspaper."]—In this Act the term "newspaper" means a newspaper as defined for the purposes of the Acts for the time being in force relating to the carriage of newspapers by post. [See 33 & 34 Vict. c. 79, s. 6; 44 & 45 Vict. c. 19; 54 & 55 Vict. c. 46, s. 2.]

Indictment for Compounding a Felony. (Common Law.)

Central Criminal Court, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that heretofore, to wit, on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, at the parish of A. in the county of M., and within the jurisdiction of the said court, one A., the wife of J. N., feloniously stole, took, and carried away one silver spoon, of the goods and chattels of one J. S., against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity. And that the said J. S., well knowing the said felony to have been by the said A. so as aforesaid done and committed, but contriving and intending unlawfully and unjustly to pervert the due course of law and justice in that behalf, and to cause and procure the said A., for the felony aforesaid, to escape with impunity, afterwards, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, unlawfully, and for wicked gain's sake, did compound the said felony with the said J. N., the husband of the said A., and did then exact, take, receive, and have of and from the said J. N. the sum of twenty-six shillings, for and as a reward for compounding the said felony and desisting from all further prosecution against the said A. for the felony aforesaid: [and that the said J. S., on the day and year aforesaid, did thereupon desist, and from that time hitherto hath desisted from all further prosecution of the said A. for the felony aforesaid;] to the great hindrance of justice, in contempt of our lord the King and his laws, and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity. [See the precedents, 4 Went. 327; 2 Chit. Cr. L. 220. An indictment for compounding a felony need not allege that the defendant desisted from prosecuting the felon. R. v. Burgess, 16 Q. B. D. 141; 55 L. J. (M. C.) 97.

Misdemeanor at common law: punishable by fine or imprisonment without hard labour, or both (ante, pp. 238, 240). See 1 Hawk. c. 59, s. 6, etc.; Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (6th ed.), p. 122.

Evidence.

Prove the felony to have been committed by A. N., as directed ante, p. 431; and prove that J. S. received twenty-six shillings, or some part thereof, from J. N. upon an understanding that J. S. would not further prosecute A. N. for the felony; and that in fact he has not further prosecuted her since for the same. But a person commits this offence of "compounding" a felony as soon as he enters into the agreement not to prosecute, although he may in fact afterwards prosecute (R. v. Burgess, 16 Q. B. D. 141; 55 L. J. (M. C.) 97; 15 Cox, 779); and although he may not be the owner of the stolen property, nor a material witness for the prosecution. Id. This decision overrules R. v. Stone, 4 C. & P. 379.

Indictment for taking a Reward for the recovery of Stolen Property.

Commencement as in last precedent]—feloniously and corruptly, did take and receive from one J. N. certain money and reward, to wit, the sum of five pounds of the moneys of the said J. N., under pretence ("under pretence or upon account") of helping the said J. N. to [recover] certain goods and chattels ("chattel, money, valuable security, or other property whatsoever") of him the said J. N., to wit, to (here describe the property) before then feloniously stolen, taken, and carried away ("by any felony or misdemeanor stolen, taken, obtained, extorted, embezzled, converted, or disposed of"), the said J. S., not having used all due diligence to cause the person by whom the said goods and chattels were so stolen, taken, and carried away as aforesaid, to be brought to trial for the same; against the form [as ante, p. 465].

Felony: penal servitude for not more than seven and not less than three years, or imprisonment not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour; and, if a male under the age of eighteen years, with or without whipping. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 101; 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1, sub-ss. 1, 2 (ante, p. 235). As to requiring the offender to enter into recognizances and find sureties for keeping the peace, 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 117 (ante, p. 431).

An indictment under 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 20 (ante, p. 1091), can be easily framed from this precedent.

Evidence.

Prove that the goods, etc., were stolen or obtained in the mode stated in the indictment: and prove that the defendant received the money from J. N., or some person on his behalf, upon the pretence or account stated in the indictment. It was decided to be an offence within 4 G. 1, c. 11, s. 4 (rep.), which was similar to the present section, to take money under pretence of helping a man to goods stolen from him, though the defendant had no acquaintance with the felon, and did not pretend that he had; and though he had no power to apprehend the felon, and though the goods were never restored, and the defendant had no power to restore them. R. v. Ledbitter, 1 Mood. C. C. 76. And where A. had her goods stolen, and B., who knew the thieves, received money from A. to endeavour to purchase the stolen property from the thieves for A., but not meaning to bring the thieves to justice; it was held that B. was guilty of the felony of taking money on account of helping A. to the return of stolen goods within 7 & 8 G. 4, c. 29, s. 58 (rep.), which was similar to the present enactment. R. v. Pascoe, 1 Den. 456; 2 C. & K. 927; 18 L. J. (M. C.) 186. As to advertising a reward for the return of stolen property, see 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 102 (ante, p. 1092).

Indictment for compounding Information on a Penal Statute without Leave of the Court. (18 Eliz. c. 5, ante, p. 1091.)

For precedents, see 2 Chit. Cr. L. 222, and R. v. Southerton, 6 East, 126; 8 R. R. 428.

Misdemeanor (18 Eliz. c. 5, ss. 4, 5; 56 G. 3, c. 138, s. 2 (ante, p. 238)): fine and imprisonment, without hard labour, or both (ante, pp. 238, 240).

Evidence.

For decisions as to what is within the statute, see R. v. Southerton, ubi supra: R. v. Gotley, R. & R. 84: R. v. Crisp, 1 B. & Ald. 282. A person may be convicted under the statute for taking money as a reward for forbearing to prosecute, although in fact no offence liable to a penalty has been committed by the person from whom money is taken. R. v. Best, 2 Mood. C. C. 125; 9 C. & P. 368.

Sect. 15.

LIBELS REFLECTING ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE, AND CONTEMPT OF COURT.

There are three different kinds of contempt; one kind of contempt is scandalizing the court itself; another, abusing parties who are concerned in causes; another, prejudicing mankind against persons before the cause is heard. R. v. Read and Huggonson, 2 Atk. 469, 471, Lord Hardwicke, L.C.

Scandalizing the court itself.]—"Committals for contempt of court are ordinarily in cases where some contempt ex facie of the court has been committed, or for comments upon cases pending in the courts. However, there can be no doubt that there is a third head of contempt of court by the publication of scandalous matter of the court itself." McLeod v. St. Aubyn [1899] App. Cas. 549, 561. In that case it was said that summary proceedings for this offence are obsolete in England; but in R. v. Gray [1900] 2 Q. B. 36; 69 L. J. (Q. B.) 502; 64 J. P. 484, the publication of a scurrilous personal attack upon a judge, with reference to observations made by him in the course of a case which had been concluded, was held to be summarily punishable as a contempt of court, and the law as laid down in R. v. Almon, Wilmot's Opinions, 243; 5 Burr, 2685, was followed. The defendant in a criminal case may be committed for contempt if he insults the court, even in his address to the jury. R. v. Davison, 4 B. & Ald. 329; 1 St. Tr., N. S. 1366: and see R. v. Giles, ante, p. 186.

The offence of "scandalizing the court" is also a misdemeanor punishable on information or indictment. It may be committed by words either spoken or written; but for spoken words to be indictable, they must be used of the judge or magistrate in his office and with intent to defame him in that capacity. R. v. Weltje, 2 Camp. 142, Lord Ellenborough, C.J.: cf. R. v. Pocock, 2 Str. 1157: R. v. Read and Huggonson, ubi supra; 2 Chit. Cr. L. 916.

It is an aggravated misdemeanor to publish an invective against judges and juries with a view to bring into suspicion and contempt the administration of justice. R. v. White, 30 St. Tr. 1131; 1 Camp. 359, n.; 10 R. R. 705, n.: Re McDermott, L. R. 1 P. C. 260; 2 P. C. 341: Macleod v. St. Aubyn [1899] App. Cas. 549, where the authorities are collected at pp. 550, 551. But it is lawful with candour and decency to discuss the merits of the verdict of a jury, or the decision of a judge, which are matters of public interest and concern, and the defence of fair comment, if proved, negatives the presumed malice of the publication.

Libels on a judge or jury may, in certain events, be seditious; in which case it would seem that justification cannot be pleaded under s. 6 of Lord Campbell's Act (6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, post, p. 1121), nor fair comment and absence of malice under s. 4 of the Law of Libel Amendment Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 64, post, p. 1121). R. v. M'Hugh [1901] 2 Ir. Rep. 569; and see ante, p. 997.

Prejudicing the fair trial of cases pending.]—It is a misdemeanor punishable on information or indictment to publish, either verbally or by writing, comments, whether defamatory or not, or even to give theatrical representations, relating to pending cases, which are calculated to prejudice the fair trial of those cases, and so interfere with the course of justice. See R. v. Tibbits and Windust [1902] 1 K. B. 77; 20 Cox. 70 (C. C. R.), in which case the defendants were convicted on an indictment charging them with the publication in a newspaper of articles affecting the character and conduct of persons under remand before justices for an indictable offence, there being a count charging each article as (1) an attempt to pervert the course of justice, and (2) an act calculated to have that result. The facts in that case were also held to support counts for conspiracy to pervert the course of justice: following R. v. Jolliffe, 4 T. R. 285; 2 R. R. 383: R. v. Fisher, 2 Camp. 563; 11 R. R. 799 (a): R. v. Williams, 2 L. J. (O. S.) K. B. 30; 26 R. R. 624: Onslow's and Whalley's cases, L. R. 9 Q. B. 219, 227: Skipworth's case, Id. 230; and see Re Pollard, L. R. 2 P. C. 106: Re a special reference from the Bahama Islands [1893] App. Cas. 138.

This kind of interference with the course of justice is also punishable summarily as a contempt of court. Where the case is pending in any branch of the High Court, including courts of assize and the Central Criminal Court, or where a case is pending before justices which must ultimately be tried before a court of assize, the High Court can summarily punish for any publication calculated to interfere with a fair trial, and it is not necessary to proceed by indictment or information, nor to wait till application can be made to the court of trial. R. v. Parke [1903] 2 K. B. 432, where the prior and conflicting decisions on the subject are collected and reviewed. The power may be exercised against a corporate body (R. v. Freeman's Journal [1902] 2 Ir. Rep. 82), and even after the disagreement of the jury on the first trial if further proceedings were contemplated or naturally to be anticipated. Id. The procedure is by motion to the King's Bench Division for a rule calling upon the party whose conduct is complained of to show cause why a writ of attachment should not issue against him for his contempt. See Short and Mellor, Cr. Off. Pr., p. 394, et seq.

(a) It is to be observed that in R. v. Fisher the indictment charged the defendant with publishing, with intent to deprive R. S. of the benefit of an impartial trial (upon a certain charge), a scandalous, malicious, and defamatory libel "of and concerning the said charge and the matter thereof."

Indictment for a Libel upon a Judge and Jury in the execution of their Duties. (Common Law.)

Commencement as ante, p. 433;—that heretofore, to wit, on the twentieth day of June, A.D. ——, at the Royal Courts of Justice, in the county of London, in the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice, before the Right Honourable Richard Everard, Baron Alverstone, Lord Chief Justice of England, a certain action then pending in the said King's Bench Division, in which A. B. was plaintiff, and C. D. was defendant, came on to be tried in due form of law, and was then and there tried by a certain jury of the country in that behalf duly sworn and taken between the parties aforesaid. And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that J. S., being a wicked and ill-disposed person, wickedly and maliciously contriving and intending to bring the administration of justice in this kingdom into contempt and to scandalize and vilify the said Lord Chief Justice of England, and the jurors by whom the said action was so tried as aforesaid, and to cause it to be believed that [here state the effect of the libel; see pp. 988, 989] on the twenty-first day of June, in the year aforesaid, wickedly and maliciously did write and publish, and cause and procure to be written and published, a certain false, wicked, malicious, and scandalous libel, of and concerning the administration of justice in this kingdom, and of and concerning the trial of the said action, and of and concerning the said Lord Chief Justice of England, and the jurors by whom the said issues in the action were so tried as aforesaid, according to the tenor and effect following; that is to say [here set out the libel, together with such innuendoes as may be requisite (see ante, p. 944, post, p. 1123)]; to the great scandal and reproach of the administration of justice in this kingdom, in contempt, etc. [as ante, p. 989].

Misdemeanor: fine or imprisonment, without hard labour (ante, p. 238), or both. See R. v. Hart and White, 30 St. Tr. 1131; 1 Camp. 359, n.; 10 R. R. 705, n.: R. v. Watson, 2 T. R. 199; 1 R. R. 461.

This offence is not triable at quarter sessions. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (ante, p. 126). No indictment can be preferred for libel unless one or other of the preliminary steps required by 22 & 23 Vict. c. 17, s. 1 (ante, p. 7), has been taken. 44 & 45 Vict. c. 60, s. 6 (post, p. 1121). Nor can any criminal prosecution be commenced against any proprietor, publisher, editor, or any person responsible for the publication of a newspaper for any libel published therein without the order of a judge at chambers, the application for which shall be made on notice to the person accused, who shall have an opportunity of being heard against it. 51 & 52 Vict. c. 64, s. 8 (post, p. 1122). It would seem from R. v. M'Hugh [1901] 2 Ir. Rep. 569, that defence of justification could not be pleaded to an indictment of this kind, on the ground that the offence is in substance a seditious libel. But see R. v. Gray, 10 Cox. 184 (Ir.), ante, p. 996. As to the evidence, see post, p. 1130.

Indictment for Slanderous Words to a Magistrate in the execution of his Office. (Common Law.)

Middlesex, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that heretofore, to wit, on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, one J. S. was brought before J. N., esquire, then and yet being one of the justices of our said lord the King, assigned to keep the peace of our said lord the King in and for the county of M., and also to hear and determine divers crimes, trespasses, and other offences committed in the said county; and the said J. S. was then charged before the said J. N., upon the oath of one A. C., that he the said J. S. had then lately before feloniously stolen, taken, and carried away divers goods and chattels of the said A. C. And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said J. S. being a scandalous and ill-disposed person, and wickedly and maliciously intending and contriving to scandalize and vilify the said J. N. as such justice as aforesaid, and to bring the administration of justice in this kingdom into contempt afterwards, and whilst the said J. N., as such justice as aforesaid, was examining and taking the depositions of divers witnesses against him the said J. S., in that behalf, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, wickedly and maliciously, in the presence and hearing of divers good and liege subjects of our lord the King, did publish, utter, pronounce, declare, and say with a loud voice to the said J. N., and whilst he the said J. N. was so acting as such justice as aforesaid, "You are a scoundrel and a liar; you would hang your own father if you could make a groat by his execution;" to the great scandal and reproach of the administration of justice in this kingdom, to the great scandal and damage of the said J. N., in contempt, etc. [as ante, p. 989].

Misdemeanor: fine or imprisonment, without hard labour (ante, pp. 238, 240), or both. See R. v. Revel, 1 Str. 421: R. v. Pocock, 2 Str. 1157: R. v. Weltje, 2 Camp. 142; 11 R. R. 687: Ex parte Duke of Marlborough, 5 Q. B. 955: R. v. Rea, 17 Ir. C. L. Rep. 584; 2 Chit. Cr. L. 916; and cases collected in Odgers on Libel (3rd ed.), p. 530. It is not clear whether this offence is to be regarded as sedition, or contempt of court, or a distinct form of crime. If there be any doubt as to the words, lay them differently in different counts. Justices out of general or quarter sessions have no power to commit for contempt, even if committed in their presence. Judges of inferior courts of record have no jurisdiction to commit for contempt unless committed in facie curiæ. R. v. Lefroy, L. R. 8 Q. B. 134: R. v. Judge of Brompton County Court [1893] 2 Q. B. 195; 62 L. J. (Q. B.) 604.

Evidence.

Prove the charge before the magistrate; and prove that whilst the magistrate was in the execution of his duty, taking the depositions of the witnesses, the defendant addressed him, and spoke the words laid in some one of the counts of the indictment. It is sufficient to prove that the magistrate was acting as such. Berryman v. Wise, 4 T. R. 366; 2 R. R. 413: R. v. Gordon, 1 Leach, 515. As to the proof of the words, see ante, pp. 992, 998, post, p. 1130.

It appears not to be sufficient to prove that slanderous words were spoken of a magistrate in his absence; R. v. Weltje, 2 Camp. 142; 11 R. R. 687; nor to a magistrate out of court to his face, unless there was an intent to provoke to a breach of the peace. Ex parte Chapman, 4 A. & E. 773; and see ante, p. 1096.

UNLAWFUL ASSEMBLY.

Common Law.

An unlawful assembly at common law is an assembly of three or more persons (a) for purposes forbidden by law, such as that of committing a crime by open force; Steph. Dig. Cr. Law (6th ed.), 55; or (b) with intent to carry out any common purpose, lawful or unlawful, in such a manner as to endanger the public peace, or to give firm and courageous persons in the neighbourhood of such assembly reasonable grounds to apprehend a breach of the peace in consequence of it. Steph. Dig. Cr. Law (6th ed.), 55; 1 Hawk. c. 65, s. 9: R. v. Hunt, 3 B. & Ald. 566; 22 R. R. 485; 1 St. Tr., N. S. 171: R. v. Brodribb, 6 C. & P. 571: R. v. Dewhurst, 1 St. Tr., N. S. 529: R. v. Stephens, 2 St. Tr., N. S. 1189: Redford v. Birley, 1 St. Tr., N. S. 1071: R. v. Vincent, 3 St. Tr., N. S. 1037; 9 C. & P. 91: R. v. Graham, 16 Cox, 420: R. v. Clarkson, 17 Cox, 483 (C. C. R.). Assemblies under arms even for self-defence appear to be unlawful, except where they are for defence of a dwelling-house. See 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 570; 25 Edw. 3, st. 5, c. 2 (ante, p. 928). It includes meetings forbidden by statute as unlawful assemblies or unlawful combinations or associations; R. v. O'Connell, 2 St. Tr., N. S. 629: R. v. Ball, 6 C. & P. 563: R. v. Dixon, 6 C. & P. 601; 3 St. Tr., N. S. 1281; meetings to intimidate the executive or parliament; see Redford v. Birley, 1 St. Tr., N. S. 1071: O'Connell v. R., 5 St. Tr., N. S. 1, 779; meetings for the purpose of spreading sedition or listening to seditious speeches; Redford v. Birley, ubi supra: R. v. Fussell, 6 St. Tr., N. S. 723; assemblies to obstruct the officers of the law; R. v. M'Naughten, 14 Cox, 576 (Ir.); or for the purpose of night poaching, R. v. Brodribb, 6 C. & P. 571. In R. v. Clarkson, 17 Cox, 483, a march of a Salvation Army band through the streets of a town in which street music was prohibited, was held not to be an unlawful assembly, on the ground that the men did not know that their acts were calculated to cause a breach of the peace. See also Beatty v. Gillbanks, 9 Q. B. D. 308; 51 L. J. (M. C.) 117; 15 Cox, 138: Beaty v. Glenister, 51 L. T. (N. S.) 304. "There is no authority for the proposition that a man may be convicted for doing a lawful act if he knows that his doing it may cause another to do an unlawful act," per Field, J., in Beatty v. Gillbanks, ubi supra: and see R. v. Clarkson, 17 Cox, 483 (C. C. R.). As to meetings for illegal drilling or training, see ante, p. 1006.

It appears to be immaterial whether the common purpose of the assembly is unlawful or lawful if the manner of the meeting endangers the public peace or causes general alarm. Steph. Dig. Cr. Law (6th ed.), 55. An assembly of persons to witness a prize-fight is an unlawful assembly, and every one present and countenancing the fight is guilty of an offence. R. v. Billingham, 2 C. & P. 234; 31 R. R. 665: R. v. Perkins, 4 C. & P. 537: and see R. v. Hunt, 1 Cox, 177: R. v. Coney, 8 Q. B. D. 534; 51 L. J. (M. C.) 66. As to the difference between a mere sparring match and an unlawful fight, see R. v. Young, 10 Cox, 371; and R. v. Orton, 14 Cox, 226 (C. C. R.) (ante, p. 791). Persons assembling for a lawful purpose, and with no intention of carrying it out unlawfully, but with the knowledge that their assembly will be opposed, and with good reason to suppose that a breach of the peace will be committed by those who oppose it, are not guilty of an unlawful assembly. Beatty v. Gillbanks, ubi supra. If at a meeting lawfully convened seditious words are spoken, of such a nature as are likely to produce a breach of the peace, that meeting may become unlawful. R. v. Burns, 16 Cox, 355.

It is said that the distinction between a riot, rout, and unlawful assembly is that the first is a tumultuous meeting of persons who are guilty of actual violence; the second where they endeavour to commit an act which would make them rioters; and the last where they meet with an intention to make a riot, but neither carry their purpose into effect, nor make any endeavour towards it. 3 Co. Inst. 176; 2 Hawk. c. 65, ss. 1, 8, 9; 2 Chit. Cr. L. 488: R. v. Birt, 5 C. & P. 154: R. v. Woolcock, 5 C. & P. 516. This seems too narrow; see 3 St. Tr., N. S. 1350, Alderson, B.; 9 C. & P. 93, n.; because even if the purpose were treasonable the assembly would still be unlawful, and in most of the modern cases of unlawful assembly the object of unlawful meetings has been treasonable or seditious: see R. v. Rankin, 7 St. Tr., N. S. 711: and not merely in support of some private enterprise, which is the case in an unlawful assembly leading to riot (see post, p. 1101).

Persons who attend or speak at such a meeting, in pursuance of previous agreement or in approval of its object, are guilty of the offence or of conspiracy: but these persons are not liable who merely attend out of curiosity. R. v. Rankin, 7 St. Tr., N. S. 711, 789, Alderson, B.: cf. R. v. Coney, 8 Q. B. D. 534: R. v. Atkinson, 11 Cox, 330. It is the right and duty of magistrates and the police to disperse an assembly which is in fact unlawful. 2 H. 5, st. 1, c. 8: Redford v. Birley, 1 St. Tr., N. S. 1071, 1239, Abbott, C.J.: R. v. Neale, 9 C. & P. 431; 3 St. Tr., N. S. 1312, Littledale, J.: O'Kelly v. Harvey, 15 Cox, 435; 14 L. R. Ir. 165. The meeting need not first be proclaimed nor the proclamation under the Riot Act read; R. v. Fursey, 3 St. Tr., N. S. 543; 6 C. & P. 81; and force may be used after refusal to disperse; R. v. Jones, 6 St. Tr., N. S. 811; and it is illegal and riotous to resist dispersal. R. v. Fursey, R. v. Jones, ubi supra: R. v. Williams, 6 St. Tr., N. S. 775: R. v. Sharpe, Id. 1125; 3 Cox, 288.

Indictment.

An indictment for unlawful assembly can be framed from the precedents of indictments for riot (post, pp. 1101, 1103), omitting the words "riotously and routously." See also R. v. Clarkson, 17 Cox, 483 (C. C. R.).

Evidence.

Prove the assembly as directed, post, p. 1102.

Rout.

Rout is a disturbance of the peace by persons who assemble together with an intention to do something which if executed will amount to riot, and who actually make a move towards the execution of their common purpose, but do not complete it. Redford v. Birley, 1 St. Tr., N. S. 1071, 1211, 1214, Holroyd, J.; 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 569; 1 Hawk. c. 65, s. 8; Steph. Dig. Cr. Law (6th ed.), 56.

Indictments for the offence are not now drawn, as the jury can convict of rout on an indictment for riot if the complete riot is not proved. See ante, p. 215, et seq.

SECT. 3.

RIOT.

Common Law.

Riot is a tumultuous disturbance of the peace by three or more persons who assemble together of their own authority, with an intent mutually to assist one another against any who oppose them in the execution of an enterprise of a private nature, and afterwards actually execute the same in a violent and turbulent manner to the terror of the people. See 1 Hawk. c. 65; 2 Chit. Cr. L. 487.

It is distinct from treason, in that the act need not be a resistance to the authority or prerogative of the Crown. R. v. Lord George Gordon, 21 St. Tr. 486, 644: R. v. Hardie, 1 St. Tr., N. S. 623, 765: R. v. Frost, 4 St. Tr., N. S. 85: R. v. Forbes, 2 St. Tr., N. S. 939. It is distinct from sedition (see ante, p. 989). As to rout and unlawful assembly, see ante, pp. 1098–1100. As to the powers and duties of sheriffs, justices, soldiers, and private citizens in suppressing riot and resisting or arresting rioters, see R. v. Pinney, 3 St. Tr., N. S. 11: R. v. Kennett, 5 C. & P. 282, n.: Featherstone Riot Report, Parl. Pap. (1893–1894, C. 7234), where the powers and duties of the military forces of the Crown for suppressing riots are dealt with. Peace officers may use force to suppress a riot. R. v. Fursey, 3 St. Tr., N. S. 543. Assault on peace officers engaged in dispersing an unlawful assembly may be a riot. R. v. Williams, 6 St. Tr., N. S. 775. And it is an indictable misdemeanor to refuse to assist a peace officer in quelling a riot. R. v. Brown, C. & Mar. 314: R. v. Sherlock, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 20; 35 L. J. (M. C.) 92; 10 Cox, 170, ante, p. 864.

Indictment for Riot and Assault. (Common Law.)

Central Criminal Court, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. S., J. W., and E. W., together with divers other evil-disposed persons, to the number of ten and more, to the jurors aforesaid unknown, on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, at the parish of B., in the county of M., and within the jurisdiction of the said court, unlawfully, riotously, and routously did assemble and gather together, to disturb the peace of our said lord the King; and being so then and there assembled and gathered together, in and upon one A., the wife of J. N., in the peace of our lord the King then and there being, unlawfully, riotously, and routously did make an assault, and her the said A. then and there unlawfully, riotously, and routously did beat, wound, and ill-treat, so that her life was greatly despaired of; and other wrongs to the said A. then and there unlawfully, riotously, and routously did, to the great disturbance and terror of the liege subjects of our lord the King then and there being; in contempt of our said lord the King and his laws, to the evil example of all others in the like case offending, and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity. *See the precedents, Cro. Misdemeanor: fine or imprisonment, or both. By 3 G. 4, c. 114 (ante, p. 237), the imprisonment may be with hard labour.

This offence is triable at quarter sessions. 34 Edw. 3, c. 1; 15 Ric. 2, c. 2; 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (ante, p. 126). Restrictions are imposed by 21 Jac. 1, c. 8, s. 4, on removal of indictments for riot from quarter sessions.

Evidence.

That J. S., etc., together with divers others.]—It must be proved that three persons at least were present and engaged in this unlawful assembly and assault, otherwise the defendants must be acquitted; for unless committed by three or more, it is no riot. 2 Hawk. c. 47, s. 8: R. v. Scott, 3 Burr. 1262; 1 W. Bl. 291, 350: R. v. Sadbury, 1 Ld. Raym. 484: R. v. Ingram, 2 Salk. 593. The death of one or more of four persons indicted for riot does not defeat proceedings against the survivors. R. v. Scott, ubi supra.

Unlawfully, riotously, and routously did assemble.]—It must be proved that these three or more persons assembled together; and that their assembling was accompanied with some such circumstances, either of actual force or violence, or at least of an apparent tendency thereto, as were calculated to inspire people with terror; R. v. Hughes, 4 C. & P. 373: R. v. Graham, 16 Cox, 420: such as being armed, using threatening speeches, turbulent gestures, or the like. 1 Hawk. c. 65, s. 5. If an assembly of persons be not accompanied with such circumstances as these, it can never be deemed a riot, however unlawful their intent, or however unlawful the acts which they actually commit. Id.; Lambarde, 178; Dalt. c. 137. It is a sufficient terror and alarm, however, to sustain the indictment, if any one of the King's subjects be in fact terrified. R. v. Phillips, 2 Mood. C. C. 252; S. C. as R. v. Langford, C. & Mar. 602. If persons meet at a fair or wake, or on any other lawful and innocent occasion, and on a sudden quarrel they fight together, this is no riot, but an affray merely; but if upon a dispute arising, they form themselves into parties, with promises of mutual assistance, and then fight, it is a riot; for, in this latter case, the design to break the peace is as premeditated as if they had originally met for that purpose. 1 Hawk. c. 65, s. 3. Where a riot ensues on a meeting and in consequence of speeches there, which incite to violence, the speakers may be convicted as rioters, though absent when it occurs. R. v. Sharpe, 3 Cox, 288, Wilde, C.J. Where a riot is proved to have taken place, the mere presence of a person among the rioters, even although he possessed the power, and refused to exercise it, of stopping the riot, does not render him liable as one of the rioters. R. v. Atkinson, 11 Cox, 330, Kelly, C.B. In order to render him so liable, it must be shown that he did something by word or act to take part in, help, or incite to the riotous proceedings. Id.

The acts of the rioters may be proved severally, before evidence is given to connect their fellow rioters, as in conspiracy. See R. v. Cooper, 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 585, where earlier cases to the contrary are collected.

It is not necessary, to constitute a riot, that the Riot Act should be read. Before the proclamation can be read, a riot must exist; and the effect of the proclamation will not change the character of the meeting, but will make those guilty of a felony who do not disperse within one hour after the proclamation is read. R. v. Fursey, 3 St. Tr., N. S. 543; 6 C. & P. 81.

In and upon one A. did make an assault, etc.]—Prove the assault and battery as directed ante, p. 833, et seq. And this must be proved, otherwise the defendants must be acquitted of the riot, although it would seem that they may still be found guilty of the rout or of the unlawful assembly. For, where persons assemble together for the purpose of doing an act, and the assembly is such as is above described, if they do not proceed to execute their purpose, it is but an unlawful assembly, not a riot; if, after so assembling, they proceed to execute the act for which they assembled, but do not execute it, it is termed a rout; but if they not only so assemble, but proceed to execute their design, and actually execute it, it is then a riot. 1 Hawk. c. 65, s. 1; Dalt. c. 136: R. v. Birt, 5 C. & P. 154: R. v. Vincent, 3 St. Tr., N. S. 1037; 9 C. & P. 91.

It is immaterial, however, whether the act done be unlawful or not; doing it in a manner calculated to inspire people with terror is equally punishable, whether it be lawful or otherwise. 1 Hawk. c. 65, s. 7. Yet, where the object of the assembly is lawful, it in general requires stronger evidence of the terror of the means, to induce a jury to return a verdict of guilty, than if the object were unlawful; and it has even been held, that, if a number of persons assemble for the purpose of abating a public nuisance, and appear with spades, iron crows, and other tools for that purpose, and abate it accordingly, without doing more, it is no riot, Dalt. c. 137, unless threatening language or other misbehaviour, in apparent disturbance of the peace, be at the same time used. Id.

(1 G. 1, st. 2, c. 5. s. 1, ante, p. 1104.)

Central Criminal Court, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. S., J. W., and E. W., together with divers other evil-disposed persons, to the number of twelve and more, to the jurors aforesaid unknown, on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, at the parish of B., in the county of London, and within the jurisdiction of the said court, unlawfully, riotously, and tumultuously did assemble together, to the disturbance of the public peace: * And that the said J. S., J. W., E. W. and the said other persons to the jurors aforesaid unknown, being so unlawfully, riotously, and tumultuously assembled together, to the disturbance of the public peace as aforesaid, afterwards, and whilst they were so assembled as aforesaid, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, at the parish aforesaid, in the county aforesaid, one A. C., esquire, then being one of the justices of our said lord the King, assigned to keep the peace of our said lord the King in and for the county aforesaid, and also to hear and determine divers crimes, trespasses, and other offences committed in the said county [or "then being a magistrate of the police courts of the metropolis"], as near to them the said J. S., J. W., E. W. and the said other persons to the jurors aforesaid unknown, so unlawfully, riotously, and tumultuously assembled as aforesaid, as he the said A. C. could then and there safely come, did then and there command, and cause to be commanded, silence to be while the proclamation was making, and that the said A. C., after that, did then and there as near to them the said J. S., J. W., E. W. and the said other persons so assembled as aforesaid, as he the said A. C. could then and there safely come, openly and with a loud voice make, and cause to be made, proclamation, according to the form of the statute in such case made and provided, in these words following, that is to say: "Our sovereign lord the King chargeth and commandeth all persons being assembled, immediately to disperse themselves, and peaceably to depart to their habitations, or to their lawful business, upon the pains contained in the Act made in the first year of the reign of King George the First, for preventing tumults and riotous assemblies. God save the King." And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said J. S., J. W., E. W. and the said other persons, to the number of twelve and more, to the jurors aforesaid unknown, being so required and commanded by the said A. C., the justice aforesaid, to disperse themselves, and peaceably to depart to their habitations, or to their lawful business, did then and there, to the number of twelve and more, notwithstanding the said proclamation so made as aforesaid, feloniously, unlawfully, riotously, and tumultuously remain and continue together for the space of one hour after such command so made by the said proclamation as aforesaid; in contempt of our said lord the King and his laws [to the great disturbance and terror of the quiet and peaceable subjects of our said lord the King], to the evil example of all others in the like case offending; against the form [as ante, p. 465].

Care must be taken to set out the proclamation correctly. Where the indictment omitted the words "of the reign of," in setting out the proclamation, the variance was (before 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 1, ante, p. 52), held fatal. R. v. Woolcock, 5 C. & P. 516, Patteson, J. The words "to the terror, etc.," do not seem to be essential in this indictment. R. v. James, 5 C. & P. 153. As to the common law rule, see ante, p. 1101.

Felony: 1 G. 1, st. 2, c. 5, s. 1: penal servitude for life or for not less than three years, or imprisonment not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour. 7 W. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 91. s. 1 (ante, p. 1104); 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3 (ante, p. 235); 54 & 55 Vict. c. 9, s. 1 (ante, p. 235). Opposing the making of the proclamation is also felony, 1 G. 1, st. 2, c. 5, s. 5 (ante, p. 1105), and subject to the same punishment.

This offence is not triable at quarter sessions. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (ante, p. 126).

Evidence.

1. Prove that the defendants, together with others, to the number of twelve at least, were "unlawfully, riotously, and tumultuously" assembled together, "to the disturbance of the public peace." It does not seem from the words of the statute that it is necessary that a riot should have actually been committed, or that the indictment should contain the words "to the terror, etc.," as in the precedents ante, pp. 1101, 1103; it seems to be sufficient that the assembly was of such a nature, and gathered together under such circumstances, that if they had done the act for the purpose of which they were assembled, it would have been a riot. R. v. James, 5 C. & P. 153.

2. Prove that silence was commanded, and proclamation made, as stated in the indictment. The proclamation must be read correctly. Where the magistrate in reading the proclamation omitted the words "God save the King," it was held that persons remaining after the proclamation could not be capitally convicted. R. v. Child, 4 C. & P. 442. The offence is no longer capitally punishable. See ante, p. 1105.

3. Prove that the defendants, together with others, to the number of twelve or more, "unlawfully, riotously, and tumultuously" remained and continued together for one hour or more after proclamation so made; computed from the first reading of the proclamation. R. v. Woolcock, 5 C. & P. 516.

4. Prove that the prosecution was commenced (see ante, p. 97) within twelve months after the offence committed. 1 G. 1, st. 2, c. 5, s. 8. The expression "month" in this section means lunar month. See Lacon v. Hooper, 6 T. R. 224, 226: Bruner v. Moore [1904] 1 Ch. 305.

Evidence.

Prove that the defendants fought in a public street or highway; for if it be in private, it is an assault and battery merely, and not an affray. 1 Hawk. c. 63, s. 1. No quarrelsome or threatening words whatever will amount to an affray. Id. s. 2; 1 Hale, 456.

FORCIBLE ENTRY AND DETAINER.

A forcible entry is when a man enters into lands or tenements, manu forti. Co. Litt. 257; Com. Dig. Forcible Entry (A. 2). A forcible detainer is when a man who has entered peaceably, maintains his possession by force. Com. Dig. Justice (B. 1). See 3 Chit. Cr. L. 1135.

A second count may be added for forcible detainer, see post*, p. 1113. It used to be held necessary to describe the premises with the same certainty as in a declaration in ejectment, on account of the restitution which follows conviction. 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 726. But it would seem that this strictness is unnecessary, except as to the writ of restitution (see R. v. Child, 2 Cox, 102, Rolfe, B.), and that minor variances are now amendable under 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 1 (ante, p. 52). If the estate J. N. had in the premises were not a fee-simple, but an estate in tail, or for life merely, describe it as such. See R. v. Bowser, 8 Dowl. Pract. Cas. 128.

Misdemeanor: imprisonment, and ransom at the King's will (i.e., fine at the discretion of the court). 5 Ric. 2, st. 1, c. 7, ante, p. 1108.

Evidence.

The prosecutor must prove:—First, that he was seised in fee of the premises in question, or otherwise in lawful possession, at the time of the forcible entry. The prosecutor's title is not part of the issue, and probably need not, for purposes of conviction, be stated with precision. See R. v. Child, 2 Cox, 102: R. v. Hoare, 6 M. & Sel. 266; 18 R. R. 368. And proof that he was in the actual occupation of the premises, or in the perception of the rents and profits, is sufficient primâ facie evidence of his seisin. See Lows v. Telford, 1 App. Cas. 414; 45 L. J. (Ex.) 613; 13 Cox, 226: Jayne v. Price, 5 Taunt. 326; 15 R. R. 518. This presumption, however, may be rebutted, either by direct evidence of his having a less estate, or by evidence of circumstances from which the jury may presume it. Jayne v. Price, ubi supra. But it is immaterial whether the estate thus proved be an estate by right or by wrong; for even if the defendant have a right of entry, still his asserting that right "with strong hand, or with multitude of people," is equally an offence within the statute as if he had no right; and this is so even where a landlord forcibly ejects a tenant whose term has expired. Taunton v. Costar, 7 T. R. 431; 4 R. R. 481; and see Newton v. Harland, 1 Scott (N. R.) 474. If he was a mere trespasser, apparently the statute does not apply. Browne v. Dawson, 12 A. & E. 624: Scott v. Brown, 51 L. T. (N. S.) 746: Collins v. Thomas, 1 F. & F. 416, Lord Campbell, C.J.: R. v. Dillon, 2 Chit. (K. B.) 314. And the statute, however, does not extend to a case where the party ousted had the bare custody of the premises for the defendant; 1 Hawk. c. 64, s. 32; but it extends to the forcible ouster of one joint tenant, or tenant in common, by another. Id. s. 33. It may be considered a good general rule, also, that the statute extends to all hereditaments to which the defendant, if he had a right, might have asserted that right by a peaceable entry.

Secondly, the prosecutor must prove the forcible entry. An entry "with strong hand," or "with multitude of people," is the offence described in the statute. Therefore, an entry by breaking the doors or windows, etc., whether any person be in the house or not, especially if it be a dwelling-house, is a forcible entry within the statute. See 1 Hawk. c. 64, s. 26. So, an entry where personal violence is done to the prosecutor, or to any of his family or servants, or to any person or persons keeping the possession for him (Id. s. 26), or even where it is accompanied with such threats of personal violence (either actual, or to be implied from the actions of the defendant, or from his being unusually armed or attended, or the like), as were likely to intimidate the prosecutor or his family, etc., and to deter them from defending their possession (Id. ss. 20, 21, 27: Milner v. Maclean, 2 C. & P. 17), is a forcible entry within the statute. But an entry by an open window, or by opening the door with a key, or by mere trick or artifice, such as by enticing the owner out and then shutting the door upon him, or the like, without further violence; Com. Dig. Forc. Ent. (A. 3); 1 Hawk. c. 64, s. 26; or if effected by threats to destroy the owner's goods or cattle merely, and not by threats of personal violence, 1 Hawk. c. 64, s. 28, is not deemed a forcible entry. A mere trespass will not support an indictment for forcible entry; there must be such force or show of force as is calculated to prevent resistance. R. v. Smyth, 5 C. & P. 201; 1 M. & Rob. 155. If, however, whilst the owner is out of his house, the defendant forcibly withhold him from returning to it, and in the meantime send persons to take possession of it peaceably, this is said to be a forcible entry. 1 Hawk. c. 64, s. 26. Also, where a party having right, and whose entry is congéable, enters or makes claim, and the other party afterwards continues to hold possession by force; this is considered a forcible entry in the party so holding; because his estate is defeated by the entry or claim, and his continuance in possession is deemed a new entry. Id. ss. 22, 34; Co. Litt. 251.

Where the party entering has in fact no right of entry, all persons in his company, as well as those who do not use violence as those who do, are equally guilty; but if he have a right of entry, then those only who use or threaten violence; 3 Bac. Abr. Forc. Ent. (B.); or who actually abet those who do, are guilty. A wife may be guilty of a forcible entry into the dwelling-house of her husband, and other persons also, if they assist her in the force, although her entry in itself is lawful. R. v. Smyth, ubi supra.

Thirdly, as to the expulsion; it is necessary to prove the expulsion, and that the prosecutor is still kept out of possession, merely for the purpose of obtaining restitution of the premises; 1 Hawk. c. 64, s. 41; but it is no part of the offence described by the statute, which mentions a forcible entry merely. No restitution shall be awarded, if the defendant has been permitted to remain quietly in possession for three years, previously to the finding of the indictment. 31 Eliz. c. 11 (ante, p. 1109).

Absence of title in the prosecutor is no defence, the gist of the offence being the force. R. v. Williams, 4 Man. & Ry. 471: R. v. Studd, 14 W. R. 806; 14 L. T. (N. S.) 623: Beddall v. Maitland, 17 Ch. D. 174: cf. Edwick v. Hawkes, 18 Ch. D. 199.

A judge at the assizes may, in his discretion, refuse to award restitution, after an indictment for forcible entry and detainer has been found by a grand jury; and the High Court will not review his decision. R. v. Harland, 2 M. & Rob. 141; 8 A. & E. 826; 1 Per. & D. 93; 8 L. J. (M. C.) 60: R. v. Hake, 4 Man. & Ry. 483, n. After conviction the writ is of right and as of course: see Short and Mellor, Cr. Off. Pr. 1447. As to the form of a writ of restitution, see Dalt. c. 182.

Indictment for a Forcible Entry into a Leasehold, etc. (21 Jac. 1, c. 15, ante, p. 1109.)

This may be the same as the last precedent, with such alterations only as are necessary to adapt it to a term of years, tenancy by copy of court-roll, or tenancy by elegit, etc., as thus:]—that J. N., late of, etc., etc., was possessed of a certain messuage with the appurtenances, situate and being in, etc., for a certain term of years, whereof divers, to wit, ten years, were then to come, and are still unexpired: and the said J. N. being so possessed thereof, etc., etc. (as in the last precedent).

Evidence.

The evidence is the same as in the last case, except as to the proof of the estate of the prosecutor in the premises.

Indictment for a Forcible Detainer. (8 H. 6, c. 9, ante, p. 1108.)

The same as in the last two precedents respectively, to the end of the statement of the seisin or possession; then proceed thus:]—and the said J. N. being so seised [or possessed] thereof, J. S. afterwards, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, into the said messuage, with the appurtenances aforesaid, unlawfully did enter, and the said J. N. from the peaceable possession of the said messuage, with the appurtenances aforesaid, then and there unlawfully did expel and put out; and the said J. N. from the possession thereof so as aforesaid being unlawfully expelled and put out, the said J. S., from the said third day of August in the year aforesaid, until the day of the taking of this inquisition, from the possession of the said messuage, with the appurtenances aforesaid, with force of arms and with strong hand unlawfully and injuriously did keep out, and the said messuage with the appurtenances and the possession thereof unlawfully and forcibly did hold and detain, and still doth hold and detain with force and arms and strong hand from the said J. N.; to the great damage of the said J. N.; against the form (as ante, p. 465). See 3 Chit. Cr. L. 1136 a.

Evidence.

Prove the seisin or possession, as in the two former cases. Prove an entry; whether peaceable or not is immaterial. Proof of the expulsion, which ex vi termini implies force, is not material, as the gist of the offence is the forcible detainer merely. Holding the premises from the prosecutor by force, however, must be proved: and the same violence or terror which will make an entry forcible, will also make a detainer forcible. 1 Hawk. c. 64, s. 30; 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 311. But merely refusing to go out of the house (1 Hawk. c. 64, s. 30); or a tenant at will denying possession to his lessor; or a man keeping out of his land, by force, a person claiming common upon it (Com. Dig. Forc. Det. (B. 2)), is not a forcible holding within the meaning of the statutes. See R. v. Oakley, 4 B. & Ad. 307; 2 L. J. (M. C.) 24: R. v. Wilson, 1 A. & E. 627; 3 L. J. (M. C.) 96: R. v. Wilson, 3 A. & E. 817; 4 L. J. (M. C.) 114.

Indictment for a Forcible Entry and Detainer. (Common Law.)

For precedent of such indictment, see the 22nd edition of this work, p. 1057. It is said that an indictment will lie at common law for a forcible entry, although it is generally brought on the statutes. Per Wilmot, J., in R. v. Bake, 3 Burr. 1731: but see R. v. Storr, 3 Burr. 1698. It is said to have been proper to indict at common law where the entry was made without legal title (1 Hawk. c 64, s. 1: R. v. Wilson, 8 T. R. 357; 4 R. R. 694); or where the prosecutor would on an indictment under the old statutes have been incompetent as a witness. R. v. Williams, 9 B. & C. 549; 4 Man. & Ry. 471.

Misdemeanor at common law: fine or imprisonment, without hard labour, or both. See ante, pp. 238, 240.

Evidence.

The evidence of the forcible entry, upon this indictment, must be stronger than is required to support an indictment on the statutes; that is to say, there must be proof of such a force as constitutes a public breach of the peace, or such proceedings as constitute a riot or unlawful assembly (ante, pp. 1098, 1101). R. v. Wilson, ubi supra: R. v. Bake, ubi supra.

It is not necessary to set forth, or prove the particulars of the prosecutor's estate in the messuage, etc., because in this case there is no restitution: stating that J. N. was possessed, and proving his possession, will be sufficient. R. v. Wilson, supra. For the same reason, it does not seem to be necessary to prove the expulsion or detainer, unless where the prosecutor has failed to prove the entry to have been forcible. (See ante, p. 1111.)

Sect. 6.

POUND-BREACH AND RESCUE OF DISTRESS.

Common Law.

Pound-breach is a misdemeanor indictable at common law. It consists in the forcible release of cattle, etc., lawfully placed in a proper pound (Green v. Duckett, 11 Q. B. D. 275; 52 L. J. (Q. B.) 435), or in forcibly damaging or destroying the pound with that object. 1 Co. Inst. 47; 1 Russ, Cr. (6th ed.) 822; 2 Chit. Cr. L. 205; Steph. Dig. Cr. Law (6th ed.), 121; Bullen on Distress (2nd ed.), 248: R. v. Bradshaw, 7 C. & P. 233: R. v. Butterfield, 17 Cox, 598. For precedents of indictments, see Cro. Circ. Comp. 199; 2 Chit. Cr. L. 205; 4 Went. 314. The offence is also summarily punishable under 6 & 7 Vict. c. 30. Rescue of a distress for rent seems also to be an indictable misdemeanor at common law. R. v. Nicholson, 65 J. P. 298; and see R. v. Noonan, Ir. Rep. 10 C. L. 505; 10 Cox, 302 (C. C. R. Ir.): R. v. Walsh, Ir. Rep. 10 C. L. 511. For precedent of indictment, see Cro. Circ. Comp. 198. It consists in forcibly taking away things legally distrained from the distrainor before they are impounded. Bullen on Distress (2nd ed.), 244. But it is usual to resort to the civil remedy by treble damages under 2 W. & M. c. 5, s. 3, and 11 G. 2, c. 19, s. 10: Kemp v. Christmas [1898] 79 L. T. (N. S.) 233; 14 T. L. R. 572. Rescue of a distress for rates appears also to be indictable. R. v. Brenan, 6 Cox, 381 (Ir.); 6 Ir. Jur. (O. S.) 307: R. v. Westropp, 2 Ir. C. L. Rep. 213. It is not necessary in such a case to prove the making of the rate, or that anything is due; and it is sufficient to prove a warrant in proper form. Id. If the distress warrant is bad, the rescue is justifiable. R. v. Boyle, 6 Ir. C. L. Rep. 598; 7 Cox, 428 (C. C. R. Ir.): and cf. R. v. Pigott, 1 Ir. C. L. Rep. 471.

CHALLENGE TO FIGHT.

Indictment for sending a Challenge. (Common Law.)

Kent, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. S., being a person of a turbulent and quarrelsome temper and disposition, and contriving and intending not only to vex, injure, and disquiet one J. N., and do the said J. N. some grievous bodily harm, but also to provoke, instigate, and excite the said J. N. to break the peace, and to fight a duel with and against him the said J. S., on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——,* wickedly, wilfully, and maliciously did write, send, and deliver, and cause and procure to be written, sent, and delivered unto him the said J. N. a certain letter and paper writing containing a challenge to fight a duel with and against him the said J. S., and which said letter and paper writing is as follows, that is to say [here set out the letter, with such innuendoes as may be necessary]: to the great damage, scandal, and disgrace of the said J. N., in contempt of our lord the King and his laws, and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity. (2nd Count.)—And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said J. S., contriving and intending as aforesaid, afterwards, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, wickedly, wilfully, and maliciously did provoke, instigate, excite, and challenge the said J. N. to fight a duel with and against him the said J. S.; to the great damage, etc. (as in the first count).

Misdemeanor: fine or imprisonment, without hard labour, or both. See ante, pp. 238, 240. See 1 Hawk. c. 63, s. 3; Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (6th ed.) 54: R. v. Philipps, 6 East, 464: R. v. O'Brien, Smith and Batty (K. B. Ir.), 79; and the precedents, Cro. Circ. Comp. 102–104; 4 Went. 315; 6 Went. 385–461; 3 Chit. Cr. L. 848. From the above precedent an indictment may readily be framed against the person who delivered the challenge.

Evidence.

Give the letter in evidence, and prove the handwriting. Prove also the delivery of it to J. N. Where the letter containing the challenge was put into the post-office in the county of Middlesex, to be delivered to the prosecutor in another county, Lord Ellenborough held, that the party might be indicted in Middlesex: for sending the challenge is the offence; whether it reach the person to whom it is sent or not is immaterial. R. v. Williams, 2 Camp. 506.

Provocation, however great, is no excuse or justification on the part of the defendant (R. v. Rice, 3 East, 581; 7 R. R. 523), however it may weigh with the court in apportioning the punishment.

Indictment for provoking a Man to send a Challenge. (Common Law.)

Proceed as in the last precedent to the, and then thus:*]—wickedly, wilfully, and maliciously did utter, pronounce, declare, and say to and in the presence and hearing of the said J. N., these words following, that is to say:—"You are a scoundrel and a liar, and I shall take care to let the world know that you are so;" with intent to instigate, excite, and provoke the said J. N. to challenge him the said J. S. to fight a duel with and against the said J. N.; to the great damage, etc. (as ante, p. 1114). If there be any doubt as to the words, lay them differently in different counts; and add a general count, not setting out the words, but merely charging the defendant with having used threats and opprobrious language to the prosecutor, with intent, etc.

Misdemeanor: fine or imprisonment, without hard labour, or both. See ante, pp. 238, 240. And see R. v. Philipps, 6 East, 464.

Evidence.

Prove the words. (See ante, p. 302.) And give evidence of circumstances from which the jury may infer the defendant's intent, if such intent do not sufficiently appear from the words proved. See R. v. Philipps, 6 East, 464.

SECT. 8.

SENDING LETTERS CONTAINING THREATS TO MURDER OR TO INJURE PROPERTY.

24 & 25 Vict. c. 97 (Malicious Damage Act, 1861), s. 50—Sending letters threatening to burn or destroy houses, etc., etc.]—Whosoever shall send, deliver, or utter, or directly or indirectly cause to be received, knowing the contents thereof, any letter or writing, threatening to burn or destroy any house, barn, or other building, or any rick or stack of grain, hay, or straw, or other agricultural produce, or any grain, hay, or straw, or other agricultural produce in or under any building, or any ship or vessel, or to kill, maim, or wound any cattle, shall be guilty of felony, and being convicted thereof shall be liable, at the discretion of the court, to be kept in penal servitude for any term not exceeding ten years . . . or to be imprisoned, . . . and, if a male under the age of sixteen years, with or without whipping. [Framed from 4 G. 4, c. 54, s. 3, and 10 & 11 Vict. c. 66, s. 1, with the additions italicized. See note to next enactment.]

24 & 25 Vict. c. 100 (Offences against the Person Act, 1861), s. 16—Sending letters threatening to murder.]—Whosoever shall maliciously send, deliver, or utter, or directly or indirectly cause to be received, knowing the contents thereof, any letter or writing threatening to kill or murder any person, shall be guilty of felony, and being convicted thereof shall be liable, at the discretion of the court, to be kept in penal servitude for any term not exceeding ten years . . . or to be imprisoned, . . . and, if a male under the age of sixteen years, with or without whipping.

[This section was framed from 4 G. 4, c. 54, s. 3; and 10 & 11 Vict. c. 66, s. 1. The words secondly italicized were inserted to get rid of R. v. Paddle, R. & R. 484: R. v. Burridge, 2 M. & Rob. 296: R. v. Jones, 1 Den. 218; 2 C. & K. 398: and R. v. Grimwade, 1 Den. 30; 1 C. & K. 592, except so far as they decide that the letter must be sent to the party threatened, or put in a place where it is likely to be found and conveyed to him. Greaves, Crim. Law Cons. Acts (2nd ed.), 50. As to the word "maliciously," see Greaves, l. c., and post, p. 1117.]

Indictment under 24 & 25 Vict. c. 97, s. 50.

Commencement as ante, p. 433]—feloniously did send ("send, deliver, or utter, or directly or indirectly cause to be received") to one J. N. a certain letter ("letter or writing") directed to the said J. N., by the name and description of Mr. J. N., threatening to kill and murder the said J. N. ("any person") [or "threatening to burn and destroy a certain dwelling-house ('any house, barn, or other building, or any rick or stack of grain, hay, or straw, or other agricultural produce, or any grain, hay, or straw, or other agricultural produce in or under any building, or any ship or vessel'), the property of the said J. N., or of one E. N."], [or "threatening to kill (or 'maim' or 'wound') a horse of and belonging to him the said J. N."], he the said J. S. then well knowing the contents of the said letter, which said letter is as follows, that is to say [here set out the letter verbatim. R. v. Lloyd, 2 East, P. C. 1122 (ante, p. 75)]; against the form [as ante, p. 465]. (2*nd Count.*)—And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said J. S., on the day and in the year aforesaid, feloniously did utter a certain writing threatening to kill and murder [etc., as in the first count, substituting "writing" for "letter"]. The word "maliciously" inserted in the precedent in the 21*st edition* (p. 972) is not in 24 & 25 Vict. c. 97, s. 50, and has been omitted as unnecessary. It is, however, in 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 16, supra, and should be inserted in indictments under that section. As to the second count, see the observations immediately following the second count of the indictment, ante, p. 532. Where an indictment charged the prisoner in three several counts with three felonies in sending three separate threatening letters, Byles, J., compelled the prosecution to elect on which count they would proceed. R. v. Ward, 10 Cox, 42. Where the threat is obvious from the terms of the letter, no prefatory averments or innuendoes need be inserted. R. v. Boucher, 4 C. & P. 562.

Felony: penal servitude for not more than ten and not less than three years, or imprisonment not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour, and, if a male under sixteen years, with or without whipping. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 97, s. 50; c. 100, s. 16; 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1, sub-ss. 1, 2 (ante, p. 235). As to requiring the offender to enter into recognizances and find sureties for keeping the peace, 24 & 25 Vict. c. 97, s. 73 (ante, p. 650); c. 100, s. 71 (ante, p. 778).

Evidence.

Prove that the defendant sent or delivered the letter to J. N. as directed, ante, p. 532.

Sending a letter to A. B. threatening to burn a house of which he was owner, but let by him to and occupied by a tenant, was held not to be an offence within 4 G. 4, c. 54 (rep.), the words of which were "his or their houses," etc. R. v. Burridge, 2 M. & Rob. 296; sed quære; see R. v. Grimwade, 1 Den. 30; 1 C. & K. 592. And now the threat to burn any house, barn, etc., etc., is sufficient to satisfy 24 & 25 Vict. c. 97, s. 50.

A material variance between the letter set out and that produced in evidence will be fatal, unless amended. (See ante, pp. 297, 302).

Where the threat charged is to kill or murder, it is for the jury to say whether the letter amounts to a threat to kill or murder. R. v. Girdwood, 2 East, P. C. 1120, 1121; 1 Leach, 142: R. v. Boucher, 4 C. & P. 562: R. v. Tyler, 1 Mood. C. C. 428.

Upon an indictment on 9 G. 1, c. 22 (rep.), the words of which were "to burn the dwelling-house, outhouses," etc., where the writer of the letter threatened to burn the prosecutor's mill, and to do all the injury he was able to his farms, and the prosecutor proved that he had no mill at the time, but that he had farms, and buildings upon them: the judges held clearly that, as to the mill, the letter was not within the statute; and the majority of the judges held that, even as to the farms, as the letter did not necessarily imply that the injury to them was to be effected by fire, it was not within the Act. R. v. Jepson, 2 East, P. C. 1115. Neither would this threat as to the farms satisfy the term "destroy" in the present statute. Compare the cases under 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 44 (ante, p. 532).

Sect. 9.

DEFAMATORY LIBEL.

NOTE.—For seditious libel, see ante, p. 986; for blasphemous libel, see ante, p. 1019; for libel affecting the administration of justice, see ante, p. 1094; for obscene libel, see post, p. 1190.

Statutes.

32 G. 3, c. 60 (Libel Act, 1792 (Fox's Act)), s. 1.]—Whereas doubts have arisen whether on the trial of an indictment or information for the making or publishing any libel, where an issue or issues are joined between the King and the defendant or defendants, on the plea of not guilty pleaded, it be competent to the jury impannelled to try the same to give their verdict on the whole matter in issue: be it therefore declared and enacted, etc. that on every such trial the jury sworn to try the issue may give a general verdict of guilty or not guilty upon the whole matter put in issue upon such indictment or information, and shall not be required or directed by the court or judge, before whom such indictment or information shall be tried, to find the defendant or defendants guilty merely on the proof of the publication by such defendant or defendants of the paper charged to be a libel, and of the sense ascribed to the same in such indictment or information. [This Act is said to be declaratory of the common law. Capital and Counties Bank v. Henty, 5 C. P. D. 589, Brett, L.J. But it was passed in consequence of rulings to the effect that the question of libel or no libel was for the judge alone and not for the jury.]

Sect. 2.]—Provided always, that on every such trial the court or judge before whom such indictment or information shall be tried shall, according to their or his discretion, give their or his opinion and direction to the jury on the matter in issue between the King and the defendant or defendants, in like manner as in other criminal cases.

Sect. 3.]—Provided also, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to extend to prevent the jury from finding a special verdict, in their discretion, as in other criminal cases.

Sect. 4.]—Provided also, that in case the jury shall find the defendant or defendants guilty it shall and may be lawful for the said defendant or defendants to move in arrest of judgment, on such ground and in such manner as by law he or they might have done before the passing of this Act, anything herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Sect. 4—Punishment for knowingly publishing a false defamatory libel.] —If any person shall maliciously publish any defamatory libel, knowing the same to be false, every such person, being convicted thereof, shall be liable to be imprisoned in the common gaol or house of correction for any term not exceeding two years, and to pay such fine as the court shall award. [This section does not create or define a new offence, but merely prescribes the punishment for a common law offence. R. v. Munslow [1895] 1 Q. B. 758; 64 L. J. (M. C.) 138.]

Sect. 5—Punishment for defamatory libel.]—If any person shall maliciously publish any defamatory libel, every such person, being convicted thereof, shall be liable to fine or imprisonment, or both, as the court may award, such imprisonment not to exceed the term of one year. (See ante, pp. 238, 240). [See R. v. Mabin [1901] 20 N. Z. L. R. 451, discussing R. v. Munslow, ubi supra, and Boaler v. R., 21 Q. B. D. 284.]

Sect. 6—Plea of justification, etc.]—On the trial of any indictment or information for a defamatory libel, the defendant having pleaded such plea as hereinafter mentioned, the truth of the matters charged may be inquired into, but shall not amount to a defence, unless it was for the public benefit that the said matters charged should be published; and to entitle the defendant to give evidence of the truth of such matters charged as a defence to such indictment or information it shall be necessary for the defendant, in pleading to the said indictment or information, to allege the truth of the said matters charged in the manner now required in pleading a justification to an action for defamation, and further to allege that it was for the public benefit that the said matters charged should be published, and the particular fact or facts by reason whereof it was for the public benefit that the said matters charged should be published; to which plea the prosecutor shall be at liberty to reply generally, denying the whole thereof; and if after such plea the defendant shall be convicted on such indictment or information, it shall be competent to the court, in pronouncing sentence, to consider whether the guilt of the defendant is aggravated or mitigated by the said plea, and by the evidence given to prove or to disprove the same:

Provided always, that the truth of the matter charged in the alleged libel complained of by such indictment or information shall in no case be inquired into without such plea of justification:

Provided also, that in addition to such plea it shall be competent to the defendant also to plead a plea of not guilty:

Provided also, that nothing in this Act contained shall take away or prejudice any defence under the plea of not guilty, which it is now competent to the defendant to make under such plea to any action or indictment, or information for defamatory words or libel. [As to the law prior to this enactment, see notes to Wyatt v. Gore, Holt (N. P.), 299, at p. 306. Until s. 6 was passed, the plea of not guilty was the only plea in bar allowed, and it was held that the basis of the proceeding was the actual or possible injury to the public peace.]

Sect. 7—Evidence to rebut primâ facie case of publication by agent.]—Whensoever, upon the trial of any indictment or information for the publication of a libel, under the plea of not guilty, evidence shall have been given which shall establish a presumptive case of publication against the defendant by the act of any other person by his authority, it shall be competent to such defendant to prove that such publication was made without his authority, consent, or knowledge, and that the said publication did not arise from want of due care or caution on his part. [This section would seem not to be restricted to defamatory libel.]

Sect. 8—Costs.]—In the case of any indictment or information by a private prosecutor for the publication of any defamatory libel, if judgment shall be given for the defendant, he shall be entitled to recover from the prosecutor the costs sustained by the said defendant by reason of such indictment or information; and upon a special plea of justification to such indictment or information, if the issue be found for the prosecutor, he shall be entitled to recover from the defendant the costs sustained by the prosecutor by reason of such plea; such costs so to be recovered by the defendant or prosecutor respectively to be taxed by the proper officer of the court before which the said indictment or information is tried. [See also Crown Office Rules, 1886, rule 50, to the same effect, as to indictments, etc., tried in the King's Bench Division. And see ante, pp. 259, 260, and post, p. 1134.]

44 & 45 Vict. c. 60 (Newspaper Libel and Registration Act, 1881), s. 1—Interpretation of "newspaper"—"Proprietor."]—In the construction of this Act, unless there is anything in the subject or context repugnant thereto, the several words and phrases hereinafter mentioned shall have and include the meanings following; (that is to say), . . .

The word "newspaper" shall mean any paper containing public news, intelligence, or occurrences, or any remarks or observations therein printed for sale, and published in England or Ireland periodically, or in parts or numbers at intervals not exceeding twenty-six days between the publication of any two such papers, parts, or numbers. (See Att.-Gen. v. Bradbury and Evans, 7 Ex. 97; 21 L. J. (Ex.) 12.) Also any paper printed in order to be dispersed, and made public weekly or oftener, or at intervals not exceeding twenty-six days, containing only or principally advertisements.

The word "proprietor" shall mean and include as well the sole proprietor of any newspaper, as also in the case of a divided proprietorship the persons who, as partners or otherwise, represent and are responsible for any share or interest in the newspaper as between themselves and the persons in like manner representing or responsible for the other shares or interests therein, and no other person.

Sect. 4—Inquiry by court of summary jurisdiction as to newspaper libel being for public benefit or being true.]—A court of summary jurisdiction, upon the hearing of a charge against a proprietor, publisher, or editor, or any person responsible for the publication of a newspaper, for a libel published therein, may receive evidence as to the publication being for the public benefit, and as to the matters charged in the libel being true, and as to the report being fair and accurate, and published without malice, and as to any matter which under this or any other Act, or otherwise, might be given in evidence by way of defence by the person charged on his trial on indictment, and the court, if of opinion after hearing such evidence that there is a strong or probable presumption that the jury on the trial would acquit the person charged, may dismiss the case. [In R. v. Carden, 5 Q. B. D. 1; 49 L. J. (M. C.) 1; 14 Cox, 359, it was held that a magistrate has no jurisdiction to receive evidence of the truth of the libel where the defendant is charged before him under 6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, s. 5 (ante, p. 1119), with maliciously publishing a defamatory libel. The above enactment overrules that case as to newspaper libels. It seems that when the charge is under 6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, s. 4 (ante, p. 1118), the truth can be inquired of by the justice. See R. v. Carden, 5 Q. B. D., at pp. 11, 13, Lush, J.]

Sect. 5—Provision as to summary conviction for newspaper libel.]—If a court of summary jurisdiction upon the hearing of a charge against a proprietor, publisher, editor, or any person responsible for the publication of a newspaper for a libel published therein is of opinion that though the person charged is shown to have been guilty the libel was of a trivial character, and that the offence may be adequately punished by virtue of the powers of this section, the court shall cause the charge to be reduced into writing and read to the person charged, and then address a question to him to the following effect: "Do you desire to be tried by a jury, or do you consent to the case being dealt with summarily?" And, if such person assents to the case being dealt with summarily, the court may summarily convict him and adjudge him to pay a fine not exceeding fifty pounds. Sect. 27 of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879 (42 & 43 Vict. c. 49), shall, so far as is consistent with the tenor thereof, apply to every such proceeding as if it were herein enacted and extended to Ireland, as if the Summary Jurisdiction Acts were therein referred to instead of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1848 (11 & 12 Vict. c. 43).

Sect. 6—Application of Vexatious Indictments Act, 1859 (22 & 23 Vict. c. 17), to libels generally.]—Every libel or alleged libel, and every offence under this Act, shall be deemed to be an offence within and subject to the provisions of the Vexatious Indictments Act, 1859 (22 & 23 Vict. c. 17, ante, p. 7).

Sect. 15—Copies of entries in and extracts from register of newspaper proprietors, to be evidence.]—Every copy of an entry in or extract from the register of newspaper proprietors, purporting to be certified by the registrar or his deputy for the time being, or under the official seal of the registrar, shall be received as conclusive evidence of the contents of the said register of newspaper proprietors, so far as the same appear in such copy or extract without proof of the signature thereto or of the seal of office affixed thereto, and every such certified copy or extract shall in all proceedings, civil or criminal, be accepted as sufficient primâ facie evidence of all the matters and things thereby appearing, unless and until the contrary thereof be shown.

Sect. 18.]—The provisions as to the registration of newspaper proprietors contained in this Act shall not apply to the case of any newspaper which belongs to a joint-stock company duly incorporated under and subject to the provisions of the Companies Acts, 1862 to 1879.

51 & 52 Vict. c. 64 (Law of Libel Amendment Act, 1888), s. 1—Meaning of "newspaper."]—In the construction of this Act the word "newspaper" shall have the same meaning as in the Newspaper Libel and Registration Act, 1881. (Ante, p. 1120.)

Sect. 3—Newspaper reports of proceedings in court privileged.]—A fair and accurate report in any newspaper of proceedings publicly heard before any court exercising judicial authority shall, if published contemporaneously with such proceedings, be privileged: Provided that nothing in this section shall authorize the publication of any blasphemous or indecent matter. [See Kimber v. Press Association [1893] 1 Q. B. 65; and ante, p. 996.]

Sect. 4—Newspaper reports of proceedings of public meetings and of certain bodies and persons privileged.]—A fair and accurate report published in any newspaper of the proceedings of a public meeting, or (except where neither the public nor any newspaper reporter is admitted) of any meeting of a vestry, town council, school board, board of guardians, board or local authority formed or constituted under the provisions of any Act of Parliament, or of any committee appointed by any of the above-mentioned bodies, or of any meeting of any commissioners authorized to act by letters patent, Act of Parliament, warrant under the royal sign manual, or other lawful warrant or authority, select committees of either house of parliament, justices of the peace in quarter sessions assembled for administrative or deliberative purposes, and the publication at the request of any government office or department, officer of state, commissioner of police, or chief constable of any notice or report issued by them for the information of the public, shall be privileged, unless it shall be proved that such report or publication was published or made maliciously: Provided that nothing in this section shall authorize the publication of any blasphemous or indecent matter: Provided also, that the protection intended to be afforded by this section shall not be available as a defence in any proceedings if it shall be proved that the defendant has been requested to insert in the newspaper in which the report or other publication complained of appeared a reasonable letter or statement by way of contradiction or explanation of such report or other publication, and has refused or neglected to insert the same: Provided further, that nothing in this section contained shall be deemed or construed to limit or abridge any privilege now by law existing, or to protect the publication of any matter not of public concern and the publication of which is not for the public benefit.

For the purposes of this section "public meeting" shall mean any meeting bonâ fide and lawfully held for a lawful purpose, and for the furtherance or discussion of any matter of public concern, whether the admission thereto shall be general or restricted.

Sect. 7—Indictment for obscene libel.]—Post, p. 1192.

Sect. 8—Order of judge required for prosecution of newspaper proprietor, etc.]— . . . No criminal prosecution shall be commenced against any proprietor, publisher, editor, or any person responsible for the publication of a newspaper for any libel published therein without the order of a judge at chambers being first had and obtained.

Such application shall be made on notice to the person accused, who shall have an opportunity of being heard against such application. [The omitted words of this section repealed 44 & 45 Vict. c. 60, s. 3, as to which see ante, p. 150. This section appears to apply to newspapers published by joint-stock companies as well as to newspapers registered under 44 & 45 Vict. c. 60. See s. 18 of that Act, ante, p. 1121.]

Sect. 9—Person proceeded against criminally for libel a competent witness.]—Every person charged with the offence of libel before any court of criminal jurisdiction, and the husband or wife of the person so charged, shall be competent, but not compellable, witnesses on every hearing at every stage of such charge. [This enactment is virtually superseded by the Criminal Evidence Act, 1898 (61 & 62 Vict. c. 36), q.v. ante, p. 392, et seq.]

Indictment for a False Defamatory Libel. (6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, s. 4, ante, p. 1118.)

Kent, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. S. [contriving, and unlawfully, wickedly, and maliciously intending to injury, vilify, and prejudice one J. N., and to deprive him of his good name, fame, credit and reputation, and to bring him into public contempt, scandal, infamy and disgrace], on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, unlawfully, [wickedly and maliciously] did write and publish, and cause and procure to be written and published, a false, (a) scandalous, malicious and defamatory libel, in the form of a letter directed to the said J. N. [or, if the publication were in any other manner, omit the words "in the form, etc," and insert "according to the tenor and effect following"] containing divers false, scandalous, malicious and defamatory matters and things of and concerning the said J. N., and of and concerning the said J. N. in his capacity of, etc., according to the tenor and effect following, that is to say [here set out the libel, and if its meaning and reference to J. N. be not perfectly clear, add such innuendoes as may be necessary to show its meaning, and that it is defamatory of J. N.]; * he the said J. S. then well knowing the said defamatory libel to be false,* against the form of the statute in that case made and provided, to the great damage, scandal and disgrace of the said J. A precedent of an indictment under 6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, s. 5, can be framed from the above by omitting the words between * *, and the words "against the form, etc." The word "false" can also be omitted as unnecessary either at common law or under 6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, s. 5. Boaler v. R., ubi supra: R. v. Munslow, ubi supra. Where the only publication is to the person defamed, the libel should be described as calculated or as having a tendency to cause a breach of the peace. This does not seem absolutely essential. See R. v. Adams, 22 Q. B. D. 66; 58 L. J. (M. C.) 1: R. v. Ensor, 3 T. L. R. 366, Stephen, J.; Odgers on Libel (3rd ed.), 628, 713. *But there are decisions to the contrary. The libel 'Falsus libellus' is used in the description of the libel as falsus proditor in high treason; that is to say, wickedly, without cause or justification. In point of substance the alteration in the description would hardly be noticeable if the epithet were verus instead of falsus." This was before 6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, s. 6. Indictment for Libel on a Solicitor. (Common Law.)

Surrey, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. N., gentleman, at the time of publishing the false, scandalous, malicious, and defamatory libel hereinafter charged and stated was, and long before and from thence hitherto had been, and still is, a solicitor of the Supreme Court of Judicature in England, and in the office, practice, and business of a solicitor hath been, during all that time, retained and employed by divers subjects of this realm, to prosecute and defend for them, as their agent and solicitor, divers suits and businesses in the said court, and in other his Majesty's courts in England, and also to do and negotiate other affairs and businesses as such solicitor; and the said J. N., during all that time, hath acted in the most fair and honourable manner in the exercise of his said profession. And that also, before the publishing of the said false, scandalous, malicious, and defamatory libel hereinafter mentioned, to wit, on the first day of March, in the year of our Lord ——, the said J. N. was, in his business and profession of a solicitor, employed and retained by one A. C. to commence and prosecute a certain action upon the behalf of the said A. C. against one J. S., for the recovery of a certain sum of money then and long before due and owing to the said A. C. from and by the said J. S., and then remaining unpaid; and the said J. N., in pursuance of the instructions he then received from the said A. C. in that behalf, and of his retainer as aforesaid, did then commence and prosecute the said action against the said J. S., as in duty he was bound to do; but the said J. N., in the prosecution of the said action, so far from acting with any unnecessary severity towards the said J. S., on the contrary thereof, acted towards him the said J. S. in as lenient a manner as was consistent with his duty as solicitor to the said A. C. as aforesaid. And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said J. S., well knowing the premises, but contriving and unlawfully, wickedly, and maliciously intending to aggrieve and vilify the said J. N., and to injure him in his good name, fame, and credit, and to bring him into public scandal, infamy, and disgrace, with and amongst all his clients and neighbours, and other good and worthy subjects of this kingdom, and also to injure the said J. N. in his said business and profession of a solicitor, and to cause him to be esteemed and taken to be a negligent and corrupt practiser in his said profession, and to be a person not fit to be entrusted and employed therein, afterwards, to wit, on the first day of June, in the year last aforesaid, unlawfully, falsely, wickedly, and maliciously did write and publish, and cause and procure to be written and published, in the form of a letter directed to the said A. C., a certain false, wicked, malicious, scandalous, and defamatory libel, of and concerning the said J. N., and of and concerning his conduct in his business and profession of solicitor, and of and concerning the said action so commenced and prosecuted against the said J. S. by the said J. N., for and as the solicitor of the said A. C. as aforesaid, and of and concerning the conduct of the said J. N. as solicitor in the said action, according to the tenor and effect following, that is to say [here set out the libel, with such innuendoes as may be necessary (see ante, p. 1123)]; to the great scandal, infamy, and disgrace of the said J. N., to the evil example of all others in like case offending, and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity.

This old form, which has been slightly modernized, is retained as an example of an indictment containing prefatory averments: and because it can be adapted to an indictment under 6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, s. 5, subject to the note ante, p. 1123.

As to the evidence, see post, pp. 1130-1134.

Indictment for hanging a Man in Effigy. (Common Law.)

Commencement as ante, p. 1122]—unlawfully, wickedly, and maliciously did make, and cause and procure to be made, a certain gibbet and gallows, and also a certain effigy or figure intended to represent the said J. N., and then unlawfully, wickedly, and maliciously did erect, set up, and fix, and cause and procure to be erected, set up, and fixed, the said gibbet and gallows, in a certain yard and place near unto a certain common highway, called ——, and near to a certain ferry called "The Horse Ferry," where the said J. N. was used and accustomed to ply in the way of his trade and business of a waterman; and then unlawfully, wickedly, and maliciously did hang up and suspend, and cause and procure to be hung up and suspended, the said effigy and figure to and upon the said gibbet and gallows, with the name of the said J. N. inscribed on a piece of wood and affixed to the said effigy and figure, together with divers scandalous inscriptions and devices affixed upon and about the same, reflecting on the character of the said J. N.; and did then keep and continue, and cause and procure to be kept and continued, the said gibbet and gallows, so erected and set up as aforesaid, with the said effigy and figure hung up and suspended to and from the same as aforesaid, together with the several inscriptions and devices aforesaid, so affixed as aforesaid, for a long space of time, to wit, for the space of four days then next following, and during all that time unlawfully, wickedly, and maliciously did then publish and expose the said gibbet and gallows, with the said effigy and figure thereon, to the sight and view of divers good and worthy subjects of our said lord the King, passing and repassing in and along the highway aforesaid; to the great scandal, infamy, and disgrace of the said J. N., to the evil example of all others in the like case offending, and against the peace, etc.

Pleas and Replications.

General issue.]—The defendant was at common law entitled only to plead the general issue "not guilty." See ante, p. 179. If the prosecution is by information in the High Court, or the indictment is removed into the High Court, the plea of "not guilty" is in writing and signed by counsel or solicitor or the defendant in person.

Justification.]—Under 6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, s. 6 (ante, p. 1119), the defendant, in addition to the plea of not guilty, may plead that the matters charged were true, and that it was for the public benefit that they should be published, setting forth the particular facts by reason of which the publication was for the public benefit (see the plea, infra); and if, after such plea, the defendant be convicted, the court may take the plea, and evidence in support of it, into consideration, in aggravation, or in mitigation.

The following form, taken from form 81, scheduled to the Crown Office Rules, 1886, will serve as a precedent of pleas of not guilty and justification and of a replication:—

[In the High Court of Justice,
King's Bench Division
(Middlesex).
THE KING against A. B.]

And now, that is to say, on the —— day of ——, 1905, before our said lord the King, in the King's Bench Division of his Majesty's High Court of Justice, at the Royal Courts of Justice, London, comes the said A. B. by ——, his solicitor [or in his own proper person], and having heard the said indictment read, he says that he is not guilty thereof, and hereupon he puts himself upon the country. [And James Robert Mellor, Esquire, coroner and attorney of our said lord the King, before the King himself, who for our said lord the King in this behalf prosecutes, does the like. These words seem to have been taken from a copy of a complete record made up from error, and are not part of the plea.]

And for a further plea the said A. B. pursuant to the statute in that behalf, says that our said lord the King ought not further to prosecute the said indictment [or information] against him, because he says that it is true that [here allege the truth of every libellous part of the publication set out in the indictment].

And the said A. B. further says, that before and at the time of the publication in the said indictment [or information] mentioned [here state facts which rendered the publication of benefit to the public]; by reason whereof it was for the public benefit that the said matters so charged in the said indictment [or information] should be published, and this he, the said A. B., is ready to verify. Wherefore he prays judgment, and that by the court here he may be dismissed and discharged from the said premises in the said indictment [or information] above specified.

[In the precedent in Odgers on Libel (3rd ed.), p. 705, apparently taken from R. v. Newman, 1 E. & B. 268, 558, the plea of justification contains the words "and so the said J. S. says, that the said alleged libel consists of allegations true in substance and in fact, and of fair and reasonable comments thereon." It is submitted by the present editors that the defence of fair comment arises under the plea of "not guilty."]

Demurrer.]—As to form and effect of demurrers, see ante, pp. 164–167. The prosecutor cannot at the same time demur to a plea and reply.

Replication.]—The replication may be in the following form:—

King's Bench Division
(Middlesex).
THE KING against J. S.]

The said James Robert Mellor, Esquire, coroner and attorney of our said lord the King, before the King himself, who for our said lord the King in that behalf prosecutes [or if the case is tried at the Central Criminal Court or in a court of assize, the said H. K. A. (the clerk of arraigns or clerk of assize)], as to the plea of the said J. S. by him first above pleaded, puts himself upon the country. And to the plea of the said J. S. by him secondly above pleaded, the said J. R. M. (or H. K. A.) says that by reason of anything in the said second plea alleged, our said lord the King ought not to be precluded from further prosecuting the said indictment against the said J. S., because he says that he denies the said several matters in the said second plea alleged, and says that the same are not, nor are nor is any or either of them true. And this he the said J. R. M. (or H. K. A.) prays may be inquired of by the country, and the said J. S. doth the like. Therefore let a jury come. [This precedent is framed from form 83, scheduled to the Crown Office Rules, 1886.]

Definition of defamatory libel.]—In previous editions of this work (see 21st ed., p. 980) a classification was made of cases in which an action would lie for defamation without proof of special damage. This is now abbreviated, because of the general rule that an action lies for any words written and published which are of a defamatory character, irrespective of proof of special damage.

A defamatory libel consists in the writing and publishing of defamatory words of any living person, or words calculated or intended to provoke him to wrath or to expose him to public hatred, contempt, or ridicule, or to damage his reputation, or in the exhibition of a picture or effigy, defamatory of him; Monson v. Tussauds, Ltd. [1894] 1 Q. B. 671; 63 L. J. (Q. B.) 454; and such a libel is an indictable misdemeanor if the publication or exhibition is calculated to cause a breach of the peace; Odgers on Libel (3rd ed.) 443, and authorities there cited. As a general rule, to be indictable the libel must also be actionable. The exceptions to this rule are stated post, p. 1128, under heads 5, 6, 7, and 8. The law implies malice from the publication; but the allegation of malice is not essential in the indictment. R. v. Munslow [1895] 1 Q. B. 758, 762.

An indictment will not lie for a libel by husband on his wife. R. v. Lord Mayor of London, 16 Q. B. D. 772; 55 L. J. (M. C.) 118. An indictment may be maintained for words written, for which an action could not be maintained if they were merely spoken. Thorley v. Lord Kerry, 4 Taunt. 355; 13 R. R. 626. As, for instance, if a man write or print, and publish, of another, that he is a swindler (l'Anson v. Stuart, 1 T. R. 748; 1 R. R. 392) or villain (Bell v. Stone, 1 B. & P. 331; 4 R. R. 820), it is libel, and punishable as such; although, if this were merely spoken, it would not be actionable without special damage. Savile v. Jardine, 2 H. Bl. 531. But no indictment will lie for words spoken and not reduced into writing, even if an action would lie upon the speaking without proof of special damage (R. v. Bear, 2 Salk. 417: R. v. Langley, 6 Mod. 125), unless they be seditious (see ante, p. 986), blasphemous (ante, p. 1019), grossly immoral or obscene (post, p. 1190), or uttered to a magistrate in the execution of his office (ante, p. 1097), or uttered as a challenge to fight a duel, or with an intention to provoke the other party to send a challenge (ante, p. 1114).

1. Words written and published are defamatory if they impute to the person of whom they are published the commission of any offence, whether indictable or summarily punishable. Webb v. Beavan, 11 Q. B. D. 609: Leyman v. Latimer, 3 Ex. D. 15: Monson v. Tussauds, Ltd. [1894] 1 Q. B. 671.

2. Such words are also defamatory if they impute fraud (short of crime), dishonesty, immorality, vice, or dishonourable conduct, or affliction by an infectious disorder, or anything calculated to exclude from society the person defamed; R. v. Leng, 34 J. P. 309, Blackburn, J.: Com. Dig., Action on Case for Defamation (D. 28, 29); or if they clearly tend to injure the person of whom they are published in his profession, calling, or trade.

3. Such words are also defamatory if they hold the person to whom they refer up to hatred, R. v. Cooper, 8 Q. B. 533; 15 L. J. (Q. B.) 206; ridicule, R. v. Rosenberg [1879] cited in Odgers on Libel (3rd ed.), 21; or contempt, Parmiter v. Coupland, 6 M. & W. 105. But it has been ruled not to be a criminal libel to publish a placard merely stating that a man owes money. R. v. Coghlan, 4 F. & F. 316, Bramwell, B. If, however, the placard asserted or implied his inability to pay it, it would seem that it would be libellous. Id.

4. Writings vilifying the character of persons in a public position in England, except where the writing amounts to sedition or contempt of court, appear to be in the same position as other defamatory libels on private persons, except that in a gross case an ex-officio information or information by the Master of the Crown Office might be filed (ante, p. 145). The repeal of the Acts, de scandalis magnatum, by 50 & 51 Vict. c. 59, appears to mark the abolition of any distinction for this purpose between the character of public and private persons. See Short and Mellor, Crown Off. Pr. 257, 276.

5. Writings vilifying the characters of persons deceased are libels, and may be made the subject of an indictment; the case de libellis famosis, 5 Co. Rep. 125 a; 1 Hawk. c. 73, s. 1; 3 Chit. Cr. L. 868; but it would seem that the indictment in such a case must charge the libel to have been published with a design to bring contempt on the family of the deceased, or to stir up the hatred of the King's subjects against them, or to excite to a breach of the peace; R. v. Topham, 4 T. R. 126; otherwise it cannot be maintained. See R. v. Ensor, Cardiff Assizes [1877] Steph. Dig. Cr. Law (6th ed.), 227, n.; 3 Times L. R. 366. But cf. ante, p. 1123. Where an application for a criminal information for a libel upon a deceased person was made by his representative, the court refused in its discretion to grant it, and Lord Coleridge, C.J., in pronouncing judgment, said: "It must be, I think, some very unusual publication to justify an indictment or information for aspersing the character of the dead. If such a case should ever arise it must stand upon its own foot." R. v. Labouchere, 12 Q. B. D. 320; 53 L. J. (Q. B.) 362.

6. It is said that writings which tend to degrade, revile, and defame persons in considerable situations of power and dignity in foreign countries, may be proceeded upon here as libels, and the writers, publishers, etc., punished; particularly when such writings have a tendency to interrupt the pacific relations between the two countries. R. v. Peltier, 28 St. Tr. 529, where an information was filed against Peltier for a libel on Napoleon Buonaparte, then first consul of the French Republic; and the defendant was convicted; and see R. v. Vint, 27 St. Tr. 627; Holt on Libel, 78. In R. v. Most, 7 Q. B. D. 244, an indictment was preferred for a similar offence, and the accused convicted; but on a case reserved the court refrained from deciding whether the indictment charged any offence against English law. In R. v. Bourtzeff, 127 Cent. Cr. Ct. Sess. Pap. 284 (February, 1898), a similar indictment was preferred and found, but not proceeded with. See also R. v. D'Eon, 1 W. Bl. 510; 3 Burr. 1513.

7. And not only are libels upon individuals punishable by indictment, but writings also reflecting upon bodies of men, without mentioning any one in particular, are likewise punishable as libels, if they tend to stir up the hatred of the King's subjects against the members of the body generally, or to excite the individuals composing the body to a breach of the peace. R. v. Osborn, 2 Barnard. 138, 166: R. v. Gathercole, 2 Lewin, 237: R. v. Fergus O'Connor, 3 St. Tr., N. S. 1299; and see ante, p. 990.

8. Documents containing defamatory matter, even if published only to the person defamed, may be made the subject of indictment, though such publication would not give a cause of action. But in such case it is prudent to insert in the indictment the words "with intent to provoke the prosecutor and incite him to a breach of the peace" (R. v. Wegener, 2 Stark. (N. P.) 245; 19 R. R. 712; but see R. v. Brooke, 7 Cox, 251: R. v. Price [1881] cited in Odgers on Libel (3rd ed.), 628, and ante, p. 1123); and the document must reasonably tend or be calculated to provoke a breach of the peace. Odgers on Libel (3rd ed.), 455. A letter written and sent by a man to a young woman containing a proposal in plain terms that she should surrender her chastity to him for a sum of money is a defamatory libel, because it reasonably or probably tends to provoke a breach of the peace on her part or on the part of those connected with her. R. v. Adams, 22 Q. B. D. 66; 58 L. J. (M. C.) 1; 16 Cox, 544.

Form of imputation.]—It is immaterial whether the libel impute crime, etc., to the prosecutor, in a direct manner, or indirectly, by such hints or modes of expression as are likely to convey the intended meaning to the person to whom the libel was published; taking the words in the same sense in which the rest of mankind would ordinarily understand them, it is for the jury to say whether, in their minds, they convey the idea imputed. R. v. Watson, 2 T. R. 199, 206, Buller, J. Therefore, where one man said of another that "his character was infamous; that delicacy forbade him from bringing a direct charge, but it was a male child who complained to him," such words were understood to mean a charge of unnatural practices, and to be sufficiently certain in themselves, without the aid of an innuendo. Woolnoth v. Meadows, 5 East, 463; 7 R. R. 742. So, if a man were to write or say of J. N., "There is a vast difference between my character and his; I never robbed my master," or the like: it would be the same as if he had directly charged J. N. with having robbed his master. See Snell v. Webling, 2 Lev. 150; 1 Vent. 276; Com. Dig., Action on the Case for Defamation (E. 8). And the same where the imputation is conveyed obliquely, Id. (E. 1), or indirectly, Id. (E 7), or by way of question, Id. (E. 2), conjecture, Id. (E. 3), or exclamation, Id. (E. 6), or by irony, 1 Hawk. c. 73, s. 4, or the like. So a defamatory writing, expressing one or two letters only of a name, is as much a libel, and punishable as such, as if it expressed the name in full, if it appear evident upon the face of the libel, from the context, etc., what name was meant (1 Hawk. c. 73, s. 5), or if it appear from the evidence of persons acquainted with the parties what person was meant by such initials or letters.

In some cases it is necessary to insert prefatory averments to explain the innuendoes. Thus, for instance, in an action on the case against a man for saying of another, "He has burnt my barn," the plaintiff cannot by way of innuendo, say "meaning my barn full of corn;" Barham's case, 4 Co. Rep. 20 a; because this is not an explanation derived from anything which preceded it on the record, but from the statement of an extrinsic fact which had not previously been stated. But if, in the introductory part of the declaration, it had been averred that the defendant had a barn full of corn, and that in a discourse about that barn he had spoken the above words of the plaintiff, an innuendo of its being a barn full of corn would have been good; for, by coupling the innuendo with the introductory averment, it would have made it complete. So, in an action for the words "He is a thief," you cannot explain the defendant's meaning in the use of the word "he," by an innuendo "meaning the prosecutor," or the like, unless something appear previously upon the record to ground that explanation; but if you had previously charged the words to have been spoken of and concerning the prosecutor, then such an innuendo would be correct; for, when it is alleged that the defendant said of the prosecutor, "He is a thief," this is an evident ground for the explanation given by the innuendo, that the prosecutor was referred to by the word "he." See 1 Rolle Abr. 83, pl. 7, 85, pl. 7; Cro. Jac. 39, 126; 1 Sid. 52; 2 Str. 934; 1 Wms. Saund. (6th ed.) 212 (b), n 3: Goldstein v. Foss, 9 D. & R. 197; 6 B. & C. 154: Clement v. Fisher, 1 Man. & Ryl. 281; 7 B. & C. 459: Alexander v. Angle, 1 Cr. & J. 143: Tomlinson v. Brittlebank, 4 B. & Ad. 630; 1 Nev. & M. 455: Sweetapple v. Jesse, 5 B. & Ad. 27; 2 Nev. & M. 36: Curtis v. Curtis, 10 Bing, 477; 4 Moore & Scott, 377: Slowman v. Dutton, 10 Bing. 402; 4 Moore & Scott, 174: Day v. Robinson, 1 A. & E. 554; 4 Nev. & M. 884. But where the words or libel are in the second person, and the libel is directed to the party slandered or libelled, and it is so alleged in the indictment—as, where a declaration charges that the defendant, in a discourse with the prosecutor, said to him, "You are a thief," it is unnecessary to aver that they were spoken or written of and concerning the prosecutor; nor is there any need of an innuendo, for it is plain enough without it that "you" means the prosecutor. Scutt v. Hawkins, 2 Rolle Rep. 243, 244; and see 1 Rolle Abr. 85, pl. 8. An indictment which charged that the defendant published a libel concerning A., the prosecutor, according to the tenor and effect following, viz., "A. (meaning the said A.), game and rabbit destroyer, and his wife (meaning C., the wife of the said A.), the seller of the same in country and town," was held bad, the words used not being primâ facie libellous, and there being no innuendoes or averments showing that such words were intended to charge the prosecutor with an indictable offence or with any improper conduct. R. v. Yates, 12 Cox, 233, Quain, J.

The evidence for the prosecution is in substance the same as in an action for libel.

1. Publication.]—The prosecutor must prove the publication of the libel. As stated ante, pp. 1123, 1129, the publication proved may be to the prosecutor only or to third persons (see ante, pp. 1126, 1127). Mere possession of a libel is not publication, and to constitute a publication there must be a sending or delivery or showing to another person by a person having knowledge of the contents of the libel. See Vizetelly v. Mudies, Ltd. [1900] 2 Q. B. 170 (C. A.): Emmens v. Pottle, 16 Q. B. D. 354: R. v. Topham, 4 T. R. 126: R. v. Harvey, 2 St. Tr., N. S. 1; 2 B. & C. 257: R. v. Holt, 5 T. R. 436. Where the publication is by an innocent agent, the person who procures it is liable as principal. (See ante, p. 12.) Where the person charged with publication is not the printer nor the first or main publisher, but has taken a subordinate part in the dissemination of the libel, to determine whether he is liable for publication it is necessary to consider the particular circumstances under which he disseminated the alleged libel. Vizetelly v. Mudies, Ltd. [1900] 1 Q. B. 170, 180, Romer, L.J.; 69 L. J. (Q. B.) 645. But the burden of proof is on the defendant in such a case. The posting of a sealed letter is not publication; but production of an open letter in the handwriting of the defendant, with the post-mark on it, has been held sufficient evidence of publication. And if the fact of posting is proved, it raises a presumption that the letter was received by the person to whom it was addressed. Warren v. Warren, 1 Cr. M. & R. 250; and see ante, p. 992, and Odgers on Libel (3rd ed.), 175. As to proof of handwriting, see ante, p. 382.

Publication in a newspaper is proved by production of a copy of the paper and proof of its purchase from the defendant or at his place of business. Proof should also be given of the ownership of the paper by certificate under 44 & 45 Vict. c. 60, s. 15 (ante, p. 1121), or by certificate of the registration of the limited company which owns it. (See 44 & 45 Vict. c. 60, s. 18, ante, p. 1121.) It is also necessary to produce the judge's order for the prosecution (see ante, p. 1122); but the fact that it has been obtained need not be averred in the indictment.

2. Position of the prosecutor.]—If the libel reflect on the character of a public officer or professional man, as such, it is not in general necessary to prove his appointment to the office, or admission to the profession, because that is almost in all cases either directly or impliedly admitted by the libel itself; see Berryman v. Wise, 4 T. R. 366; 2 R. R. 413: Smith v. Taylor, 1 B. & P. (N. R.) 196, 208: Jones v. Stevens, 11 Price, 235; 25 R. R. 714: Pearce v. Whale, 5 B. & C. 38; and if it be not, proof that he was in the habit of acting as such officer or professional man would in that case be sufficient (see ante, p. 344). But if the effect of the libel be to charge the prosecutor with having acted as such officer or professional man, without a legal appointment, as, for instance, if a man libel a physician, by calling him a quack, it seems necessary to prove the appointment or admission. See Smith v. Taylor, ubi supra: Collins v. Carnegie, 1 A. & E. 695: Yrisarri v. Clement, 3 Bing. 432; 11 Moore (C. P.) 308: and see R. v. Sutton, 4 M. & Sel. 532, 548.

3. The libel and the innuendoes.]—The prosecutor must prove the words as laid in the indictment (see ante, pp. 75, 302, 993), that they apply to the prosecutor, and the innuendoes. The question whether the words can bear the innuendoes is for the judge; whether they do bear them, for the jury. 32 G. 3, c. 60, s. 1 (ante, p. 1118).

4. Falsity and malice.]—The falsity of the libel is immaterial unless justification is pleaded, and need not be proved, unless a primâ facie case of justification is made out. Nor need the prosecutor prove that the libel was maliciously published (R. v. Munslow [1895] 1 Q. B. 758), unless the defendants show that the occasion was privileged, in which case evidence of express malice is necessary (see post, p. 1132). Evidence of the publication by the defendant of other libels, previously or subsequently to the publication of the libel charged in the indictment, is admissible to prove actual malice or deliberate publication. Pearson v. Lemaitre, 5 M. & Gr. 700; 6 Scott (N. R.) 607: Macleod v. Wakley, 3 C. & P. 311: Plunkett v. Cobbett, 5 Esp. 136: Hemmings v. Gasson, E. B. & E. 346; 27 L. J. (Q. B.) 252: Darby v. Ouseley, 1 H. & N. 1. It seems, however, that evidence of subsequent libels will not be admitted, unless they distinctly refer to the libel set out in the indictment, or at least refer to the same subject-matter. Finnerty v. Tipper, 2 Camp. 72. It has been long established that the publication of false and defamatory matter concerning any person is itself evidence of malice. Vizetelly v. Mudies, Ltd. [1900] 2 Q. B. 170, at 178, Vaughan Williams, L.J.

Evidence for the Defence.

Under the plea of not guilty the defendant may prove (1) that the words are not defamatory; or (2) that they do not bear the innuendoes alleged; or (3) that the publication was accidental (Emmens v. Pottle, 16 Q. B. D. 354: R. v. Munslow [1895] 1 Q. B. 758, 765, Wills, J.: Vizetelly

v. Mudies, Ltd., ubi supra); or (4) that the matters complained of are fair comment or criticism on a matter of public interest and concern, including criticism on literary or dramatic works subject to public judgment. McQuire v. Western Morning News [1903] 2 K. B. 100; 72 L. J. (K. B.) 612: Parmiter v. Coupland, 6 M. & W. 105; and see Odgers on Libel (3rd ed.), 82. The defence in strictness is not that the occasion is privileged, but that the words are not defamatory. Merivale v. Carson, 20 Q. B. D. 275. (5) Under the plea of not guilty the defence may also be raised that the publication was on an occasion absolutely or otherwise privileged (R. v. Munslow [1895] 1 Q. B. 758, 761, Russell, L.C.J.); and if the privilege was qualified, may prove that he published the libel without malice, believing it to be true: see R. v. Fitch, 61 J. P. 233. Qualified privilege arises when the defendant has a duty or an interest to make the communication said to be defamatory, as where a master gives what he believes to be a correct character of a servant; Edmondson v. Stevenson, Bull. (N. P.) 8; 1 B. & P. 527, cit.; 4 R. R. 719, n.: R. v. Hart, 1 W. Bl. 386: Hargrave v. Le Breton, 4 Burr. 2422, 2425: Weatherston v. Hawkins, 1 T. R. 110: Taylor v. Hawkins, 16 Q. B. 308: Manby v. Witt, 18 C. B. 544; where a neighbour gives what he conceives to be a correct character of the credit and solvency of a tradesman; Bull. (N. P.) 8; or where a client makes a confidential representation injurious to a solicitor's professional character in the management of certain concerns, to other persons who are jointly interested in them with the client (1 Camp. 247), or the like. Also, if a writing, although injurious to another's character, be published, not maliciously or with intent to injure his character, but bonâ fide for the purpose of investigating a fact in which the person making it is interested, or, as it seems, in which the person to whom it is made is interested, or in the performance of a duty, it is privileged. See Brown v. Croome, 2 Stark. (N. P.) 297: R. v. Bailey, Andr. 229, cit.: Fairman v. Ives, 5 B. & Ald. 642; 24 R. R. 514: Harrison v. Bush, 5 E. & B. 344; 25 L. J. (Q. B.) 25: Coxhead v. Richards, 2 C. B. 569: Beatson v. Skene, 5 H. & N. 838: Dickeson v. Hilliard, 43 L. J. (Ex.) 37: Waller v. Loch, 7 Q. B. D. 619; 51 L. J. (Q. B.) 274: Laughton v. Bishop of Sodor and Man, 42 L. J. (P. C.) 11; L. R. 4 P. C. 495: Hart v. Gumpach, L. R. 4 P. C. 439: Jenoure v. Delmege [1891] App. Cas. 73: Stuart v. Bell [1891] 2 Q. B. 341; 60 L. J. (Q. B.) 577: Hebditch v. M'Ilwaine [1894] 2 Q. B. 54; and Odgers on Libel (3rd ed.), ch. ix. In an action for libel where the occasion is privileged, it is for the plaintiff to establish that the statements complained of were made from an indirect motive, such as anger, or with a knowledge that they were untrue, or without caring whether they were true or false, and not for the reason which would otherwise render them privileged; and if the defendant made the statements believing them to be true, he will not lose the protection arising from the privileged occasion, although he had no reasonable grounds for his belief. Clark v. Molyneux, 3 Q. B. D. 237: Pittard v. Oliver [1891] 1 Q. B. 474; 60 L. J. (Q. B.) 219. The rule is the same in the case of an indictment; i.e., where the defendant can show the occasion to be privileged the prosecution must give evidence of express malice.

Judicial proceedings.]—Defamatory statements made in the course of judicial proceedings are absolutely privileged, whether made by judge, party witness, or counsel. R. v. Skinner, Lofft, 53: Dawkins v. Lord Rokeby, L. R. 7 H. L. 744; 45 L. J. (Q. B.) 81: McCabe v. Joynt [1901] 2 Ir. Rep. 115, 127, Palles, C.B.

Fair report of judicial proceedings.]—The defence of fair and accurate report of judicial proceedings is now available even if the proceedings were ex parte. Kimber v. Press Association [1893] 1 Q. B. 65; 62 L. J. (Q. B.) 152. It is not necessary to prove that all the evidence is published if its effect is fairly stated; Milissich v. Lloyds, 46 L. J. (C. P.) 404; 13 Cox, 575; and a fair and accurate report of the judgment without the evidence is protected. Macdougall v. Knight, 17 Q. B. D. 636; 55 L. J. (Q. B.) 464, discussed and approved in Macdougall v. Knight, 25 Q. B. D. 1; 59 L. J. (Q. B.) 517. But it would seem that such report cannot be deemed fair or accurate if the judgment or summing-up did not give the reader reasonable opportunity of forming his own opinion as to the conclusion to be drawn from the evidence. Macdougall v. Knight, 14 App. Cas. 194; 58 L. J. (Q. B.) 537; and see ante, p. 996. To be entitled to this privilege the report must be published contemporaneously; 51 & 52 Vict. c. 64, s. 3 (ante, p. 1121); and if the publication is in such a form as to be calculated to interfere with the trial on the merits, criminal liability may be incurred. See R. v. Parke [1903] 2 K. B. 432, 438.

Libels in newspapers.]—Formerly the proprietor of a newspaper was answerable, criminally as well as civilly, for the acts of his servants, in the publication of a libel, although it could be shown that such publication was without the privity of the proprietor. R. v. Walker, 3 Esp. 21: R. v. Gutch, M. & M. 433; 31 R. R. 744. This rule has, however, been very materially altered by 6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, s. 7 (ante, p. 1119). Under this section it has been held that the defendants, the proprietors of a newspaper, who have appointed a competent editor to conduct it, are not criminally responsible for the publication of a libel inserted by the editor in the newspaper, upon proof by them that the publication of the libel was made without their actual authority, consent, or knowledge, and did not arise from want of due care or caution on their part. R. v. Holbrook, 3 Q. B. D. 60; 47 L. J. (Q. B.) 35: R. v. Holbrook, 4 Q. B. D. 42; 48 L. J. (Q. B.) 113: and see R. v. Bradlaugh, 15 Cox, 217: R. v. Ramsay and Foote, 15 Cox, 231: R. v. Allison, 16 Cox, 559; 37 W. R. 143 (C. C. R.). As to the qualified protection now afforded to reports published in newspapers of judicial proceedings, see 51 & 52 Vict. c. 64, s. 3 (ante, p. 1121); and as to the qualified protection now afforded to newspaper reports of the proceedings of public meetings, and of certain bodies and persons, and notices and reports issued by certain public officers and published in newspapers, see 51 & 52 Vict. c. 64, s. 4 (ante, p. 1121).

Evidence of the truth of the libel may be given only if a plea of justification is pleaded (see ante, p. 1125).

Evidence that the identical charges contained in a libel had, before the time of composing and publishing the libel which is the subject of the indictment, appeared in another publication which was brought to the prosecutor's knowledge, and against the publisher of which he took no legal proceedings, is not admissible under 6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, s. 6 (ante, p. 1119). R. v. Newman, Dears. 85; 1 E. & B. 268. Where the plea contains several charges, and the defendant fails in proof of any of the matters alleged in it, the jury must of necessity find a verdict for the crown, and the court, in giving judgment, is bound to consider whether the guilt of the defendant is aggravated or mitigated by the plea, and by the evidence given to prove or disprove it, and to form its own conclusion on the whole case. Id.; 1 E. & B. 558. In that case the libel contained a number of specific charges, and it was therefore necessary, in order to support the plea of justification, to prove the truth of all the charges. Where the libel is general, it is sufficient to prove so much of the plea as would justify the libel. R. v. Labouchere, 14 Cox, 419, Cockburn, C.J. Thus where the libel alleged generally that the prosecutor cheated at cards, without stating any specific instances of his doing so, and the plea of justification stated specific instances of the prosecutor's cheating at cards, the plea was held to be sufficiently proved by proof that in two of such instances the prosecutor did cheat at cards, although other instances alleged in the plea of his so cheating were not proved. Id.

Costs.

In the case of an indictment or information for libel by a private prosecutor, the defendant is entitled to costs if judgment be given for him; and if the issue on a special plea of justification be found for the prosecutor, he is entitled to the costs sustained by him by reason of such plea. 6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, s. 8 (ante, p. 1119). (See also Crown Office Rules, 1886, rule 50, to the same effect.) On a criminal information for a libel, the defendant having recovered a verdict and judgment, was held entitled to costs under this section, though the only plea on the record was "not guilty," and though the judge had certified, under 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 18, s. 2 (rep.), that there was reasonable cause for exhibiting the information. R. v. Latimer, 15 Q. B. 1077; 20 L. J. (Q. B.) 129 (see ante, p. 151). And on the trial of such an information, where judgment is given for the defendant, he is entitled, under s. 8 (ante, p. 1119), to recover from the prosecutor not only costs incurred subsequently to filing the information, but also costs incurred previously to filing the information. R. v. Steel, 1 Q. B. D. 482; 45 L. J. (Q. B.) 391. No appeal lies to the Court of Appeal from the decision of the K. B. D. as to such costs. R. v. Steel, 2 Q. B. D. 37; 46 L. J. (M. C.) 1. Prior to the Judicature Acts the taxation, by the clerk of assize, of the costs of an indictment for libel tried on the crown side at the assizes, was not reviewable in the Court of King's Bench. R. v. Newhouse, 22 L. J. (Q. B.) 127; 1 Bail Court C. 129. The Central Criminal Court and circuit courts of oyer and terminer and gaol delivery are now part of the High Court. R. v. Dudley, 14 Q. B. D. 273, 560: R. v. Parke [1903] 2 K. B. 432. An action lies to recover the costs on an indictment for libel given by 6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, s. 8. Richardson v. Willis (No. 2), 42 L. J. (Ex.) 68; L. R. 8 Ex. 69; and see ante, pp. 259, 260.

OFFENCES AGAINST BANKRUPTCY LAW.

Statutes.

32 & 33 Vict. c. 62 (Debtors Act, 1869), Part 2, s. 11—Punishment of fraudulent debtors. (a)]—Any person adjudged bankrupt [or in respect of whose estate a receiving order has been made] . . . shall, in each of the cases following, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be liable to be imprisoned for any time not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour; that is to say:—

(1) Non-discovery of estate to trustee.]—If he does not, to the best of his knowledge and belief, fully and truly discover to the trustee administering his estate for the benefit of his creditors all his property, real and personal, and how, and to whom, and for what consideration, and when he disposed of any part thereof, except such part as has been disposed of in the ordinary way of his trade (if any), or laid out in the ordinary expense of his family, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud: [For indictment under this sub-section, see post, p. 1140.]

(2) Non-delivery of estate to trustee.]—If he does not deliver up to such trustee, or as he directs, all such part of his real and personal property as is in his custody or under his control, and which he is required by law to deliver up, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud:

(3) Non-delivery of books, documents, etc.]—If he does not deliver up to such trustee, or as he directs, all books, documents, papers, and writings in his custody or under his control relating to his property or affairs, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud:

(a) This section and s. 12 are now printed as amended by s. 163 of 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52 (post, p. 1138), and s. 26 of 53 & 54 Vict. c. 71 (post, p. 1137). It originally included cases where the debtor liquidated his affairs by arrangement. That form of liquidation was abolished in 1883, and the portions of the section were repealed by the Statute Law Revision Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 54).

(4) Concealment of property. (a)]—If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him . . . or within four months next before such presentation . . . [or in case of a receiving order made under s. 103 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, (b)] before the date of the order, he conceals any part of his property to the value of ten pounds and upwards, or conceals any debt due to or from him, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud: [For indictment under this and the next subsection, see post, p. 1146: and cf. s. 13, sub-s. 3, post, p. 1150.]

(5) Fraudulent removal of property. (a)]—If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him . . . or within four months next before such presentation . . . [or in case of a receiving order made under s. 103 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, (b)] he fraudulently removes any part of his property of the value of ten pounds or upwards (see post, p. 1140):

(6) Material omissions in statement of affairs.]—If he makes any material omission in any statement relating to his affairs, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud:

(7) Failure to inform trustee of false claims on estate.]—If, knowing or believing that a false debt has been proved by any person under the bankruptcy . . . he fail for the period of a month to inform such trustee as aforesaid thereof:

(8) Preventing production of books, etc. (a)]—If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him . . . he prevents the production of any book, document, paper, or writing affecting or relating to his property or affairs, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to conceal the state of his affairs or to defeat the law:

(9) Destruction or concealment of books, etc. (a)]—If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him . . . or within four months next before such presentation . . . [or in case of a receiving order made under s. 103 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, (b)] before the date of the order, he conceals, destroys, mutilates, or falsifies, or is privy to the concealment, destruction, mutilation, or falsification of any book or document affecting or relating to his property or affairs, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to conceal the state of his affairs or to defeat the law:

(10) Making, etc., false entries in books. (a)]—If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him . . . or within four months next before such presentation . . . [or in case of a receiving order made under s. 103 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, (b)] before the date of this order, he makes or is privy to the making of any false entry in any book or document affecting or relating to his property or affairs, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to conceal the state of his affairs or to defeat the law: [As to the meaning of "affairs," cf. "conduct and affairs," see 53 & 54 Vict. c. 71 (Bankruptcy Act, 1890), s. 8, and In re Barker, 25 Q. B. D. 285 at p. 294. Instead of "to defeat the law," the corresponding provision in 24 & 25 Vict. c. 134, s. 221 (rep.), contained the words "to defeat the objects of the law of bankruptcy."]

(11) Fraudulently altering, etc., documents. (a)]—If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him . . . or within four months next before such presentation . . . or in case of a receiving order made under s. 103 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, before the date of the order, he fraudulently, parts with, alters, or makes any omission, or is privy to the fraudulently parting with, altering, or making any omission in any document affecting or relating to his property or affairs:

(b) In the note to s. 11 in the Statutes Revised (vol. 11, p. 544) it is assumed that the effect of 53 & 54 Vict. c. 71, s. 26, is to add the words in square brackets to sub-ss. 13, 14, and 15 only of s. 11. Sed quære.

(12) Fictitious accounts of losses, etc. (a)]—If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him . . . or at any meeting of his creditors within four months next before such presentation . . . or in case of a receiving order made under s. 103 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, before the date of the order he attempts to account for any part of his property by fictitious losses or expenses:

(13) Obtaining property on credit by fraud. (a)]—If within four months next before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him . . . or in case of a receiving order made under s. 103 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, before the date of the order, he, by any false representation or other fraud, has obtained any property on credit and has not paid for the same: [See post, p. 1147; and as to cases within s. 13 (1) and 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 31, see post, pp. 1147, 1148.]

(14) Traders obtaining goods by fraud. (a)]—If within four months next before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him . . . or in case of a receiving order made under s. 103 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, before the date of the order, he, being a trader, obtains, under the false pretence of carrying on business and dealing in the ordinary way of his trade, any property on credit and has not paid for the same, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud:

(15) Disposing of goods otherwise than in course of trade. (a)]—If within four months next before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him . . . or in case of a receiving order made under s. 103 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, before the date of the order, he, being a trader, pawns, pledges, or disposes of, otherwise than in the ordinary way of his trade, any property which he has obtained on credit, and has not paid for, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud: [The words "otherwise than," etc., govern all the preceding verbs. R. v. Justin, 61 J. P. 605, Wright, J.; and see post, p. 1142.]

(16) False representation or fraud to obtain consent of creditors.]—If he is guilty of any false representation or other fraud for the purpose of obtaining the consent of his creditors or any of them to any agreement with reference to his affairs or his bankruptcy or liquidation.

53 & 54 Vict. c. 71 (Bankruptcy Act, 1890), s. 26—Amendment of s. 11 of Debtors Act, 1869.]—Sect. 11 of the Debtors Act, 1869, shall have effect as if there were substituted therein for the words "if within four months next before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him," the words "if within four months next before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him, or in case of a receiving order made under s. 103 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, before the date of the order." [This enactment is not retrospective. R. v. Griffiths [1891] 2 Q. B. 145; 60 L. J. (M. C.) 93. It adopts the law as laid down in R. v. Beck, 16 Cox, 710; 61 L. T. (N. S.) 596, decided on s. 11, sub-s. 9, of the Debtors Act, 1869; and overrides In re Burden, Ex parte Wood, 21 Q. B. D. 24; 57 L. J. (Q. B.) 570, in which it had been held that where a bankrupt presented his own petition under the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 72), he could not be prosecuted for any of the statutory misdemeanors created by s. 11, sub-ss. 13, 14, and 15 of the Debtors Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62).]

32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 12—Absconding with property. (a)]—If any person who is adjudged a bankrupt, . . . or in respect of whose estate a receiving order has been made after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him or the commencement of the liquidation, or within four months before such presentation or commencement, quits England and takes with him, or attempts or makes preparation for quitting England and for taking with him, any part of his property to the amount of twenty pounds or upwards, which ought by law to be divided amongst his creditors, he shall (unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud) be guilty of felony, punishable with imprisonment for a time not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour.

46 & 47 Vict. c. 52 (Bankruptcy Act, 1883), s. 163—Extension of penal provisions of Debtors Act, 1869, to debtors petitioning, etc.]—(1) Sects. 11 and 12 of the Debtors Act, 1869 (ante, pp. 1135–1137), relating to the punishment of fraudulent debtors, and imposing a penalty for absconding with property, shall have effect as if there were substituted therein for the words "if after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him," the words "if after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him."

(2) The provisions of the Debtors Act, 1869, as to offences by bankrupts, shall apply to any person whether a trader or not in respect to whose estate a receiving order has been made as if the term "bankrupt" in that Act included a person in respect of whose estate a receiving order had been made.

32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 13—Fraudulently obtaining credit, etc.]—Post, pp. 1148, 1150.

Sect. 14—False claims by creditors.]—If any creditor in any bankruptcy . . . wilfully and with intent to defraud, makes any false claim, or any proof, declaration, or statement of account which is untrue in any material particular, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable with imprisonment not exceeding one year, with or without hard labour. [See ante, pp. 237–240.]

Sect. 16—Prosecution by order of court on report of trustee.]—Where a trustee in any bankruptcy [or the official receiver of a bankrupt's estate, see post, 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 164] reports to any court exercising jurisdiction in bankruptcy, that in his opinion a bankrupt (including a person in respect of whose estate a receiving order has been made, see 46 & 47 Vict c. 52, s. 163, sub-s. 2, supra) has been guilty of any offence under this Act [or under the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 164), post, p. 1139], or where the court is satisfied upon the representation of any creditor or member of the committee of inspection that there is ground to believe that the bankrupt has been guilty of any offence under this Act [or under the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 164, post, p. 1139)], the court shall, if it appears to the court that there is a reasonable probability that the bankrupt may be convicted, order the trustee [or the official receiver of a bankrupt's estate, 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 164, post, p. 1139] to prosecute the bankrupt for such offence. [See Ex parte Marsden, 2 Ch. D. 786. The costs of a prosecution by the trustee without first getting an order of the court will not, as a general rule, be allowed out of the estate even where the sanction of the committee of inspection has been given. In re Howe [1902] 2 K. B. 290.]

Sect. 17—Costs of prosecutions.]—Where the prosecution of the bankrupt under this Act is ordered by any court, then, on the production of the order of the court, the expenses of the prosecution shall be allowed, paid, and borne as expenses of prosecutions for felony are allowed, paid, and borne. [See ante, p. 246, et seq.]

under the second part of this Act shall be deemed to be an offence within and subject to the provisions of the Vexatious Indictments Act, 1859 (22 & 23 Vict. c. 17, extended by 30 & 31 Vict. c. 35, s. 1, see ante, pp. 7, 8, 9); and when any person is charged with any such offence before any justice or justices, such justice or justices shall take into consideration any evidence adduced before him or them tending to show that the Act charged was not committed with a guilty intent.

Sect. 19—Form of indictment.]—In an indictment for an offence under this Act it shall be sufficient to set forth the substance of the offence charged, in the words of this Act specifying the offence or as near thereto as circumstances admit, without alleging or setting forth any debt, act of bankruptcy, trading, adjudication, or any proceedings in, or order, warrant, or document of any court acting under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869 [or the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 149, sub-s. 2, infra); and see ante, p. 69, and R. v. Pierce, 16 Cox, 213, post, p. 1149.]

Sect. 20—Jurisdiction of quarter sessions.]—So much of the Quarter Sessions Act, 1842 (5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, ante, p. 126), as excludes from the jurisdiction of justices and recorders at sessions of the peace or adjournments thereof the trial of persons for offences against any provision of the laws relating to bankrupts, is hereby repealed as from the passing of this Act; and any offence under this Act shall be deemed to be within the jurisdiction of such justices and recorders. [See ante, p. 126.]

Sect. 23—Punishments under this Act cumulative.]—Where any person is liable under any other Act of Parliament or at common law to any punishment or penalty for any offence made punishable by this Act, such person may be proceeded against under such other Act of Parliament or at common law or under this Act, so that he be not punished twice for the same offence. (a) [Cf. 52 & 53 Vict. c. 63, s. 33, ante p. 170.]

46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 31—Undischarged bankrupt obtaining credit to extent of 20*l. without disclosing his position.*]—Post, p. 1147.

Sect. 92—Jurisdiction in bankruptcy.]—(1) The courts having jurisdiction in bankruptcy shall be the High Court and the county courts. [Sub-ss. 2–5 deal with the exclusion of certain county courts from bankruptcy jurisdiction, and the regulation of the exercise of bankruptcy jurisdiction by those county courts which have it. Bankruptcy business in the High Court was assigned to the King's Bench Division by order of 1*st January*, 1884, under 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 94. See Stat. Rules and Orders Revised (ed. 1904), vol. 1, tit. "Bankruptcy."]

Sect. 149, sub-s. 2—Construction of Acts referring to Bankruptcy Act, 1869.]—Where by any Act or instrument reference is made to the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, the Act or instrument shall be construed and have effect as if reference were made therein to the corresponding provisions to this Act.

Sect. 164—Power for court to order prosecution on report of official receiver.]—Sect. 16 of the Debtors Act, 1869, shall be construed and have effect as if the term "a trustee in any bankruptcy" included the official receiver of a bankrupt's estate, and shall apply to offences under this Act, as well as to offences under the Debtors Act, 1869.

(a) For certain statutory regulations as to proof of proceedings in bankruptcy, see ante, pp. 367, 368.

Sect. 165—Power for court to commit for trial.]—Where there is, in the opinion of the court [i.e., "the court having jurisdiction in bankruptcy under this Act," see s. 92, ante, p. 1139, and s. 168, infra], ground to believe that the bankrupt or any other person has been guilty of any offence which is by statute made a misdemeanor in cases of bankruptcy, the court may commit the bankrupt or such other person for trial.

(2) For the purpose of committing the bankrupt or such other person for trial the court shall have all the powers of a stipendiary magistrate as to taking depositions, binding over witnesses to appear, admitting the accused to bail, or otherwise.

Nothing in this sub-section shall be construed as derogating from the powers or jurisdiction of the High Court.

Sect. 166—Director of public prosecutions to act in certain cases.]—Where the court [i.e., the court having jurisdiction in bankruptcy under this Act, s. 168] orders the prosecution of any person for any offence under the Debtors Act, 1869, or Acts amending it, or for any offence arising out of or connected with any bankruptcy proceedings, it shall be the duty of the director of public prosecutions to institute and carry on the prosecution.

Sect. 167—Criminal liability after discharge or composition.]—Where a debtor has been guilty of any criminal offence, he shall not be exempt from being proceeded against therefor by reason that he has obtained his discharge, or that a composition or scheme of arrangement has been accepted or approved.

Sect. 168—Definition of "court."]—"The court" means the court having jurisdiction in bankruptcy under this Act. . . . [See s. 92, ante, p. 1139.]

Indictment against a Bankrupt for not discovering his Property to the Trustee, concealing part of his Property, and fraudulently removing part of his Property. (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 11 (1), (4), (5), ante, pp. 1135, 1136.)

City of Leeds, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that heretofore, and before the committing of the offence next hereinafter charged and stated, to wit, on the —— day of ——, in the year of our Lord ——, J. S. was adjudged bankrupt; and that the said J. S. afterwards, with intent to defraud, unlawfully did not to the best of his knowledge and belief, fully and truly discover to A. B., then being the trustee administering the estate of the said J. S. for the benefit of his creditors, two hundred yards of woollen cloth and four tuns of olive oil, being part of the [personal] property of him the said J. S., and how and to whom, and for what consideration, and when he disposed of the said two hundred yards of woollen cloth and four tuns of olive oil, the said two hundred yards of woollen cloth and four tuns of olive oil not having been disposed of in the ordinary way of the trade of the said J. S., nor laid out in the ordinary expense of his family; against the form (as ante, p. 465). (2nd Count.)—And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that heretofore, and before the committing of the offence next hereinafter charged and stated, to wit, on the—— day of ——, in the year of our Lord ——, a bankruptcy petition was presented against (by or against) the said J. S., and that the said J. S. was thereupon, to wit, on the —— day of ——, in the year of our Lord ——, adjudged bankrupt; and that the said J. S., after the presentation of the said bankruptcy petition against him ("after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him, or within four months next before such presentation"), to wit, on the —— day of ——, in the year of our Lord ——, unlawfully, and with intent to defraud, did † conceal a certain part of his property to the value of ten pounds and upwards, that is to say, two hundred yards of woollen cloth of the value of one hundred pounds, and four tuns of olive oil of the value of one hundred and fifty pounds; against the form (as ante, p. 434). (3rd Count.)—[As in the 2nd count to the †] fraudulently remove a certain part of his property of the value of ten pounds and upwards, that is to say, two hundred yards of woollen cloth of the value of one hundred pounds, and four tuns of olive oil of the value of one hundred and fifty pounds; against the form (as ante, p. 465). In framing the 1st count it has been assumed that 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 11, sub-s. 1, creates only one offence, an assumption which was stated in former editions of this work to "seem to be incorrect" on the authority of Nash v. R., 4 B. & S. 935; 33 L. J. (M. C.) 94 (infra), where this form of count was held good after verdict. It is submitted, however, by the present editors that Nash v. R. did not decide that the sub-section of the repealed statute creates two offences, and that a count under 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 11 (1), can safely be drawn in the form given above. In that case the count in question was framed upon 24 & 25 Vict. c. 184, s. 221 (rep.), which provided that "any bankrupt who shall do any of the acts or things following, with intent to defraud or defeat the rights of his creditors, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor." (Sub-s. 2.) "If he shall not (upon his examination) (these words do not appear in the present statute) fully and truly discover, to the best of his knowledge and belief, all his property, real and personal, inclusive of his rights and credits, and how and to whom, and for what consideration, and when he disposed of, assigned or tranferred any part thereof, except such part as has been really and bonâ fide before sold or disposed of in the way of his trade or business, if any, or laid out in the ordinary expense of his family, or shall not deliver up to the court, or dispose as the court directs, of all such part thereof as is in his possession, custody or power, except the necessary wearing apparel of himself, his wife and children; and deliver up to the court all books, papers and writings in his possession, custody or power, relating to his property or affairs." The count charged that the defendant, a bankrupt, upon his examination, "with intent to defraud and defeat the rights of his creditors, did not fully and truly discover, to the best of his knowledge and belief, all his property, to wit, all his personal property in money and goods; and did not, as to part of his property (not being part fully and bonâ fide before sold or disposed of in the way of his trade or business, and not laid out in the ordinary expense of his family), fully and truly discover to the best of his knowledge and belief as aforesaid, how, and to whom, and for what consideration, and when, he had disposed of, assigned or transferred such part thereof, to wit, 1,000l. sterling, one thousand sacks of corn, ten horses, five clocks, five boxes, and other goods and effects, being part of the property of the said S. N. as aforesaid," and it was held that, after verdict, the count was good; that the offence being charged in the words of the statute, any want of particularity was cured, after verdict, by 7 G. 4, c. 64, s. 21; and that if the count charged two offences, on which point no definite decision was given, duplicity was not ground of error. Nash v. R., 4 B. & S. 935; 33 L. J. (M. C.) 94.

The 2nd and 3rd counts are framed to meet the offences defined in s. 11, sub-s. 4, 5, of 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62. Counts for other offences against that statute may easily be framed from a consideration of this indictment and the provisions of the statute.

Under 12 & 13 Vict. c. 106 (Bankruptcy Act, 1849), s. 251 (rep.), the indictment must have alleged an intent to defraud the creditors; it was held that those words in the statute overrode the whole section. R. v. Hill, 1 C. & K. 168. And 24 & 25 Vict. c. 134, s. 221 (rep.), also made the intent "to defraud or defeat the rights of his creditors" an ingredient in the offences thereby created. In 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 11, the words are "with intent to defraud," simply; the words "his creditors" have therefore been omitted from the precedents of an indictment under that section in the editions of this work since the 21st. The word "unlawfully," inserted in the above form according to usage, has been held to be unnecessary. R. v. Leatherbarrow, 10 Cox, 637, Bovill, C.J.

By 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 19 (ante, p. 1139) (re-enacting 24 & 25 Vict. c. 134, s. 225 (rep.), the effect of which was to override R. v. Jones, 4 B. & Ad. 345; 2 L. J. (M. C.) 7: R. v. Lands, Dears. 567; 25 L. J. (M. C.) 14: R. v. Massey, L. & C. 206; 32 L. J. (M. C.) 21), it is enacted, that "in an indictment for an offence under this Act it shall be sufficient to set forth the substance of the offence charged, in the words of this Act, specifying the offence, or as near thereto as circumstances admit, without alleging or setting forth any debt, act of bankruptcy, trading adjudication, or any proceedings in, or order, warrant or document of any court acting under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869," or the Bankruptcy Acts, 1883 and 1890. See 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 149, sub-s. 2, ante, p. 1139.

An indictment under s. 11, sub-s. 13, of the Debtors Act, 1869, which did not set out the false representations, was held to be good after verdict, upon objection taken in arrest of judgment. R. v. Watkinson, 12 Cox, 271 (C. C. R.). But it would seem that an indictment so framed would be held to be good even upon motion to quash, by reason of s. 19 of that statute. See R. v. Pierce, 16 Cox, 213 (C. C. R.) post, p. 1149, where the indictment was under s. 13, sub-s. 1.

An indictment intended to be framed upon s. 11 (15) of 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, stated that heretofore and before the committing of the offence next hereinafter mentioned, to wit, on, etc., A. was adjudicated bankrupt, and that the said A. afterwards, with intent to defraud his creditors, unlawfully, within four months next before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him, he being a trader, did pawn, pledge, and dispose of, otherwise than in the ordinary way of his trade, certain property which he had obtained upon credit, and had not paid for. It was held, on objection after verdict, that the indictment did not show substantially an offence under the above enactment, and that an amendment could not then be made. R. v. Oliver, 13 Cox, 588 (C. C. R.).

An indictment framed upon 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 11 (14), which charged that the defendant, a trader, "did within four months next before the commencement of the liquidation by arrangement of his affairs, obtain from W. goods upon credit under the false pretence, etc., with intent to defraud," but which did not expressly state that the liquidation had ever actually commenced, was, after verdict, held good as sufficiently averring that the defendant was a person whose affairs were liquidated by arrangement within the meaning of s. 11. R. v. Knight, 14 Cox, 31 (C. C. R.).

As to the form of an indictment for a conspiracy to commit offences against s. 11 of 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62 (Debtors Act, 1869), see Heymann v. R., L. R. 8 Q. B. 102; and post, Book II. Part III. s. 1.

Misdemeanor: imprisonment not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour. 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 11 (ante, p. 1137).

Offences under 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, as amended by 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, and 53 & 54 Vict. c. 71, are triable at quarter sessions. 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 20 (ante, pp. 126, 1139).

No indictment can be preferred for any misdemeanor under the second part of 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, except on compliance with the provisions of 22 & 23 Vict. c. 17, s. 1, as extended by 30 & 31 Vict. c. 35, s. 1 (ante, pp. 7, 8). See 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 18 (ante, p. 1138). R. v. Bell, 12 Cox, 37, per Montague Smith, J. The court before which the indictment is tried has no power to order payment of the costs of the prosecution where the prosecution has not been ordered by any court. R. v. Thomas, 11 Cox, 535. See 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 17 (ante, pp. 246, et seq, 1138).

Evidence.

Petition.]—Prove the bankruptcy petition by producing the petition itself, or a copy thereof, verified as required by 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 134, (ante, p. 367).

Adjudication.]—Prove also the adjudication of bankruptcy by producing the adjudication under the seal of the court (R. v. Thomas, 11 Cox, 535, Lush, J.), or a copy thereof verified as required by 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 134 (ante, p. 367), or a copy of the London Gazette containing notice of the order of adjudication, which is conclusive evidence of the order having been made. Cf. R. v. Levi, L. & C. 597; 34 L. J. (M. C.) 174. Id., s. 132, sub-s. 2 (ante, p. 367).

Trading.]—It is now not necessary, on the trial of an indictment framed under 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 11, to prove the trading (excepting in cases falling within sub-sections 14 and 15 of that section, the petitioning creditor's debt, or the act of bankruptcy, as that section enacts, not that "any bankrupt" but that "any person adjudged bankrupt" shall, in the cases mentioned in the section, be guilty of a misdemeanor, and therefore the prosecutor need not prove the trading (except in the cases above mentioned), petitioning creditor's debt, or act of bankruptcy, but merely that the defendant was adjudged bankrupt. R. v. Thomas, 11 Cox, 535, 538, Lush, J. See also ante, p. 367.

It was formerly otherwise (see R. v. Jones, 4 B. & Ad. 345; 2 L. J. (M. C.) 7; and ante, p. 1142).

Appointment of trustee.]—Prove also the appointment of A. B. as trustee, which is done by putting in the certificate of the Board of Trade of his appointment. 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, ss. 138, 140 (ante, p. 368). Under certain circumstances the official receiver is trustee (s. 70).

Non-discovery to trustee.]—Prove also that the defendant did not fully and truly discover to the trustee the property, or some part thereof, and how he disposed of the property, and that it was not disposed of in the ordinary way of his trade, nor laid out in the ordinary expense of his family. The discovery mentioned in 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 11, sub-s. 1, is not restricted to property in possession of the bankrupt at the time of his bankruptcy, but refers also to property which may have been disposed of by him previous to his bankruptcy, unless it has been disposed of in the ordinary way of his trade, or laid out in the ordinary expense of his family. R. v. Michell, 50 L. J. (M. C.) 76; 14 Cox, 490. The second sub-section of s. 221 of 24 & 25 Vict. c. 134 (rep.), to which the first sub-section of s. 11 of 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62 (ante, p. 1137), is analogous, enacted, that if the bankrupt should not, "upon his examination," fully and truly discover, etc., and it was therefore necessary, on the trial of an indictment under that paragraph, to produce and prove the examination. The present statute, however, omits the words "upon his examination," and it would appear, therefore, that the bankrupt may be liable to an indictment for the offences mentioned in the first, second, and third counts of this indictment, although he has not been examined. If, however, he has been examined, the examination should be produced.

Locus pœnitentiæ.]—It had been ruled, that, up to and until his last examination, the bankrupt had a locus pœnitentiæ, and could not, therefore, until that were passed, be indicted for concealing property which he might, upon his last examination, give up; R. v. Walters, 5 C. & P. 138; but that decision was overruled by the case of Courtivron v. Meunier, 6 Ex. 74, in which it was held that a secreting by a bankrupt of his goods, with intent to cheat his creditors, was a concealment sufficient to avoid his certificate under 5 & 6 Vict. c. 122, s. 38 (rep.), although a full disclosure was made by him to the commissioners in bankruptcy before his last examination.

Intent to defraud.]—Upon proof of such non-discovery and concealment as is charged in the first and second counts the jury are to convict, unless they are satisfied that the defendant had no intent to defraud (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 11, sub-s. 4). This satisfaction they may gain from the evidence for the prosecution, but if the prosecutor merely proves the concealment without disclosing any facts which show that it was innocent, then it will be for the defendant to prove that he had no intent to defraud, the onus being on him to show that he had no such intent. R. v. Thomas, 11 Cox, 535; 22 L. T. (N. S.) 138, Lush, J.: R. v. Bolus, 23 L. T. (N. S.) 339. As to the third count, the case is different. The prosecutor to support it must prove not merely a removal, but a fraudulent removal (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 11, sub-s. 5). That the removal was fraudulent will generally be a matter of inference from the circumstances under which it took place. Evidence that the defendant called a meeting of his creditors and disclosed to them and the trustee the transaction for the concealment of which he was indicted, is admissible on his behalf, as tending to negative his intent to defraud. R. v. Wiseman, 20 Cox, 144; 71 L. J. (K. B.) 128; 66 J. P. 40.

The formal proof as to the second and third counts is the same as that on the first count. Prove also, as to the second and third counts, that the defendant, after the presentation of the petition, concealed or fraudulently removed the property mentioned in the indictment, or some part thereof, and that the value of the property so concealed or removed is 10*l.* Where an indictment specified various articles, without stating the value, and added "one hundred other articles of furniture, and a certain debt due from J. T. to the prisoner, of the value of 20*l.* and upwards," the judges held that the indictment was bad on the ground of the property concealed not being all specified, and no distinct value having been put upon the articles enumerated; for it did not appear that those articles were of the value required by the statute. R. v. Forsyth, R. & R. 274. Chattels which have been assigned by a non-registered bill of sale, and which are left in the possession of the assignor, are not the chattels of the assignor, and a fraudulent removal by him of such chattels within four months next before the commencement of the liquidation of his affairs in bankruptcy, does not therefore fall within sub-s. 5 of 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 11, although the bill of sale, not having been registered, is void as against the trustee in liquidation. R. v. Creese, L. R. 2 C. C. R. 105; 43 L. J. (M. C.) 51; 12 Cox, 539.

Married women.]—A married woman had carried on business and been adjudicated bankrupt upon her own petition, during the temporary absence of her husband from the country. An indictment under 24 & 25 Vict. c. 134 (rep.), charged her with concealing and embezzling certain property said to be her property, with intent to defraud her creditors. It was held, that on the fact appearing that she was a married woman, the allegation of property was disproved, as it was and continued to be her husband's property, notwithstanding the adjudication of bankruptcy, and that therefore the indictment failed. R. v. Robinson, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 80; 36 L. J. (M. C.) 78. A married woman is entitled to have and to hold and to dispose of as her separate property all earnings, money, and property gained or acquired by her in any trade which she carries on separately from her husband, 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75 (Married Women's Property Act, 1882), ss. 2, 5. And by s. 1, sub-s. 5, of the same statute, "every married woman carrying on a trade separately from her husband shall, in respect of her separate property, be subject to the bankruptcy laws in the same way as if she were a feme sole." The provisions of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, are not affected by 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52 (Bankruptcy Act, 1883: see s. 152 of that statute). Before the passing of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, a married woman could not be made bankrupt; Ex parte Jones, Re Grissell, 12 Ch. D. 484; 48 L. J. (Bank.) 109; unless she was a sole trader within the city of London; Lavie v. Phillips, 3 Burr. 1776; and since the passing of that Act it would appear that she can now only be made bankrupt where she carries on a trade separately from her husband, or in respect of debts incurred by her while carrying on such a trade. Re Dagnall [1896] 2 Q. B. 407. And this is so even where she has married after the institution of bankruptcy proceedings in respect of a debt incurred by her as a feme sole. Re a Debtor [1898] 2 Q. B. 576. Possession of separate estate is not enough, as a personal judgment cannot be entered against a married woman in respect of her separate estate. Ex parte Coulson, 20 Q. B. D. 249: Re Lynes [1893] 2 Q. B. 113. Nor can a married woman be made bankrupt even though trading separately from her husband, if the judgment on which the proceedings are founded is against her in the name of the firm under which she trades. See Re Handford [1899] 1 Q. B. 566; 68 L. J. (Q. B.) 386. A married woman who has obtained a judicial separation can, it would seem, be made bankrupt. See 20 & 21 Vict. c. 85, ss. 21, 25, 26.

Infants.]—The prisoner was convicted under s. 12 of the Debtors Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62). At the time when he quitted England and when he was adjudged bankrupt, he was an infant. The debts proved against his estate in the bankruptcy were trade debts, contracted since the passing of the Infants' Relief Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 62), and therefore void, and it did not appear that any debts for necessaries supplied to him existed. It was held that the conviction could not be upheld because the prisoner had no creditors amongst whom the property which he had taken with him ought by law to have been divided. R. v. Wilson, 5 Q. B. D. 28; 49 L. J. (M. C.) 13: and see Lovell v. Beauchamp [1894] App. Cas. 607; and ante, p. 22.

Otherwise than in the ordinary way of trade.]—Where the defendant was indicted for an offence against 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 11, sub-s. 15, and the facts proved were that he was a grocer who had obtained goods used in his trade upon credit, and that soon after receiving them and before they were paid for and within four months next before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him, he executed a bill of sale to a creditor in consideration of a pre-existing debt, which bill of sale included all his stock in trade and effects whatsoever, including the before-mentioned unpaid-for goods, it was held by Lush, J. (after conferring with Martin, B.), that disposing of the goods by bill of sale was not disposing of them in the "ordinary way of trade;" and, therefore, that as property which the defendant had obtained on credit, and had not paid for, had passed by the bill of sale, he came within sub-s. 15, unless he had no intent to defraud, but that the assigning the whole of his property to one creditor, reserving nothing for the others, showed an intent to defraud, even although it appeared that the bill of sale had been given in pursuance of a long antecedent promise to execute it when requested. R. v. Thomas, 11 Cox, 535; 22 L. T. (N. S.) 138. Where a trader being in insolvent circumstances purchased goods on credit and shipped them to Australia, and obtained advances by pledging the bills of lading, and within four months afterwards became bankrupt, stating in his examination that he could give no account of what had become of the purchase-money, it was held that there was no evidence that the goods were obtained (sub-s. 14), or disposed of (sub-s. 15), "otherwise than in the ordinary way of his trade." Ex parte Brett, 1 Ch. D. 151; 13 Cox, 128 (C. A.). "The thing aimed at (in the statute) was the obtaining of goods on credit, and then immediately selling them again at a loss; that is not in the ordinary course of business." Id., per Mellish, L.J., 1 Ch. D., at p. 153; see also Ex parte Stallard, L. R. 3 Ch. App. 408: Ex parte Marsden, 2 Ch. D. 786.

Any false representation or other fraud.]—The facts in Ex parte Brett (ubi supra) were there held not to constitute evidence of an offence against sub-s. 13. "To satisfy the words of that sub-section, I think there must be some active fraud on the part of the bankrupt similar to the making of a false representation, not simply the purchase of goods when he knows that he is not able to pay for them." Id., per Mellish, L.J.: and see s. 13, sub-s. 1 (post, p. 1148). A false representation, to be within this section, must be fraudulent, and must be proved to have been knowingly made by the defendant. R. v. Cherry, 12 Cox, 32, Martin, B. In that case the indictment was drawn on the lines of an indictment under s. 88 of the Larceny Act, 1861; sed quære, whether it is not sufficient to follow the words of the statute, provided that the representation be charged as "false and fraudulent," having regard to the provisions of 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 19, and to R. v. Pierce, 16 Cox, 213; and an indictment so drawn is good after verdict. R. v. Watkinson, 12 Cox, 271 (C. C. R.) (ante, p. 1142).

Examination of debtor.]—By 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52 (Bankruptcy Act, 1883), s. 17, sub-s. 8, "The debtor shall be examined upon oath, and it shall be his duty to answer all such questions as the court (i.e., the court having jurisdiction in bankruptcy) may put or allow to be put to him. Such notice of the examination as the court thinks proper shall be taken down in writing, and shall be read over to or by (53 & 54 Vict. c. 71 (Bankruptcy Act, 1890), s. 2, sub-s. 1), and signed by, the debtor, and may thereafter be used in evidence against him. . . ." The ordinary way of "using in evidence" the debtor's admissions on these notes is to call the shorthand writer who took the notes to prove the correctness of his transcript, or to produce the bankruptcy file containing such transcript, and then to prove the fact that the notes were read over to or by and signed by the debtor; but if they were in fact not so read over and signed, parol evidence of the person who took them may be given. R. v. Erdheim [1896] 2 Q. B. 260 (ante, pp. 328, 329); and see R. v. Pike [1902] 1 K. B. 552 (ante, p. 579).

OBTAINING CREDIT BY BANKRUPTS.

Statutes.

32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 11, sub-s. 13—Bankrupts obtaining property on credit within four months next before presentation of petition by means of any false representation or other fraud.]—See ante, p. 1137, and Ex parte Stallard, L. R. 3 Ch. App. 408: Ex parte Brett, 1 Ch. D. 151: Ex parte Marsden, 2 Ch. D. 786 (ante, p. 1146).

46 & 47 Vict. c. 52 (Bankruptcy Act, 1883), s. 31—Undischarged bankrupt obtaining credit to the amount of 20*l. and upwards without disclosing his position.*]—Where an undischarged bankrupt who has been adjudged bankrupt under this Act obtains credit to the extent of twenty pounds or upwards from any person without informing such person that he is an undischarged bankrupt, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and may be dealt with and punished as if he had been guilty of a misdemeanor under the Debtors Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62), and the provisions of that Act shall apply to proceedings under this section.

Indictment.

Commencement as ante, p. 1140]—that heretofore and before the commission of the offence by A. B. in this count charged and stated, to wit, on the —— day of ——, in the year of our Lord 19—, the said A. B. was adjudged bankrupt under the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, and that the said A. B. at the time of the committing of the said offence was an undischarged bankrupt, and that afterwards, to wit, on the —— day of ——, in the year of our Lord 19—, the said A. B., then being an undischarged bankrupt as aforesaid, unlawfully did obtain credit to the extent of twenty pounds and upwards, to wit, credit to the extent of £ , from C. D. (and E. F.), without informing the said C. D. (and E. F., or either of them) that he then was an undischarged bankrupt as aforesaid; against the form [as ante, p. 465].

In an indictment under this section it is unnecessary to allege or prove an intent to defraud. R. v. Dyson [1894] 2 Q. B. 176 (C. C. R.); 18 Cox, 1.

Misdemeanor: imprisonment with or without hard labour for not more than one year, under 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 13 (post, p. 1148). R. v. Turner [1904] 1 K. B. 181; 73 L. J. (K. B) 46; 68 J. P. 15.

Venue.]—Where the defendant ordered goods by letter, he may be indicted in the county from which he wrote the letter and to which the goods were sent. R. v. Peters, 16 Q. B. D. 636 (C. C. R.); and see R. v. Ellis [1899] 1 Q. B. 230; 68 L. J. (Q. B.) 103.

Evidence.

Prove that the defendant was adjudged bankrupt, ante, p. 1143, and that there is no order of discharge upon the file, and that he did not inform the person from whom he obtained credit that he was an undischarged bankrupt. An intent to defraud is immaterial. R. v. Dyson, ubi supra.

Obtain credit.]—The prisoner, an undischarged bankrupt, living at Newcastle-on-Tyne, bought a horse from the prosecutor, a farmer in Ireland, for 22*l.*, free of expenses to the vendor, who, by the prisoner's direction, delivered the horse on board a steamer at Larne; no stipulation was made as to the time or mode of payment, and the prisoner did not disclose the fact that he was an undischarged bankrupt. He paid for the carriage of the horse on its delivery to him at Newcastle, and immediately sold it, and refused to pay the price to the prosecutor; it was held that he was guilty of "obtaining credit" within the above section. R. v. Peters, 16 Q. B. D. 636; 54 L. J. (M. C.) 173. So also where the prisoner having ordered goods, the price of which would not amount to 20*l.*, and the vendor in execution of the order sent to him goods, the price of which amounted to 20*l.* and upwards, and the purchaser kept them without paying for them or informing the vendor that he was an undischarged bankrupt. R. v. Juby, 16 Cox, 160. It is not necessary, in order to support a charge under this section, that the goods in respect of which credit is obtained should all be supplied or ordered at the same time, provided that the total amount of credit obtained is 20*l.* or upwards, as appears from R. v. Juby, ubi supra.

As to "obtaining credit," see R. v. Peters, 16 Q. B. D. 636: R. v. Juby, 16 Cox, 160 (ante, p. 1148). It is not necessary, in order to render a person liable under this section, that he should be either a bankrupt or have liquidated his affairs by arrangement. R. v. Rowlands, 8 Q. B. D. 530; 51 L. J. (M. C.) 51. A person without means who orders a meal in a restaurant [though he makes no verbal representation at the time as to his ability to pay for the same], is liable to be convicted of "obtaining credit by means of fraud" under the latter part of the above sub-section (R. v. Jones, ubi supra); but not of obtaining goods by means of false pretences under s. 88 of the Larceny Act, 1861. (See ante, pp. 606, 613.) Evidence of similar acts committed by the defendant at a period immediately preceding the commission of that charged in the indictment is admissible for the prosecution, in order to show system and to negative mistake. R. v. Wyatt [1904] 1 *K. Where an authorized clerk in the Stock Exchange induced stock jobbers to make bargains for sale of shares for the next account, and gave the names of members of the Stock Exchange not his employers as the purchasers, it was held that credit was given to them and not to the defendant, and that he was not guilty of an offence under this section. R. v. Bryant, 63 J. P. 376, per Fulton, Common Serjeant. As to definition of credit, see R. v. Peters (ante, p. 1148). Obtaining a loan is obtaining credit within this section. Ex parte Salomons, *Q. B. (3) If he has, with intent to defraud his creditors, concealed or removed any part of his property since or within two months before the date of any unsatisfied judgment or order for payment of money obtained against him.

Indictment and Evidence. (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 13 (2), (3).)

It is not necessary in order to render a person liable under this section that he should be either a bankrupt or have liquidated his affairs by arrangement. R. v. Rowlands, 8 Q. B. D. 530; 51 L. J. (M. C.) 51; 15 Cox, 31 (C. C. R.). Where A., the defendant to an action for unliquidated damages, during the pendency of the action, but before judgment, gave a bill of sale over his furniture with intent to defeat any judgment which B. might obtain, it was held that B. was not, at the time of the execution of such bill of sale, a "creditor" within sub-s. 2 of this section, and that A. could not therefore be convicted thereunder. R. v. Hopkins [1896] 1 Q. B. 652 (C. C. R.). Where an indictment framed under sub-s. 3 of this section charged the defendant, a judgment debtor, with removing his goods since the date of the judgment "with intent to defraud his creditors," and the evidence was that the goods were removed with the object of defeating the judgment creditor, and there was no evidence of any intent on the part of the defendant to defeat any other creditors, or indeed that he had any other creditors, it was held that the defendant could not be convicted, inasmuch as an intent to defraud creditors was charged, but was not proved. R. v. Rowlands, ubi supra. But it would seem that the conviction would have been good had the indictment charged an intent to defraud the judgment creditor, naming him.

Sect. 2.

COUNTERFEITING TRADE MARKS, OR USING FALSE TRADE DESCRIPTIONS.

Statutes.

50 & 51 Vict. c. 28 (Merchandise Marks Act, 1887), s. 2—Offences as to trade marks and trade descriptions—Punishment of such offences.]—(1) Every person who—

(a) forges any trade mark (see post, ss. 3, 4); or

(b) falsely applies to goods any trade mark or any mark so nearly resembling a trade mark as to be calculated to deceive; or

(c) makes any die, block, machine, or other instrument for the purpose of forging, or of being used for forging, a trade mark; or

(d) applies any false trade description to goods; or

(e) disposes of or has in his possession any die, block, machine, or other instrument for the purpose of forging a trade mark; or shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, and unless he proves that he acted without intent to defraud, be guilty of an offence against this Act. ["Intent to defraud" in this sub-section means intent to induce the purchaser to take something which he does not know he is taking. Starey v. Chilworth Gunpowder Co., 24 Q. B. D. 90. Delivery of an invoice with goods is an application of a trade description to goods within clause (d) of this sub-section. Budd v. Lucas [1891] 1 Q. B. 408.]

(f) causes any of the things above in this section mentioned to be done,

(2) Every person who sells, or exposes for, or has in his possession for, sale, or any purpose of trade or manufacture, any goods or things to which any forged trade mark or false trade description (see post, ss. 3, 5) is applied, or to which any trade mark or mark so nearly resembling a trade mark as to be calculated to deceive is falsely applied, as the case may be, shall, unless he proves—

(a) that having taken all reasonable precautions against committing an offence against this Act, he had at the time of the commission of the alleged offence no reason to suspect the genuineness of the trade mark, mark, or trade description; and

(b) that on demand made by or on behalf of the prosecutor, he gave all the information in his power with respect to the persons from whom he obtained such goods or things; or be guilty of an offence against this Act. [A false invoice is within this sub-section, but a false oral description is not. Coppen v. Moore (No. 1) [1898] 2 Q. B. 300. As to what constitutes "application," see Langley v. Bombay Tea Co. [1900] 2 Q. B. 460; 69 L. J. (Q. Coppen v. Moore (No. 2) [1898] 2 Q. B. D. 306; and see ante, pp. 33–35.]

(3) Every person guilty of an offence against this Act shall be liable—

(i) on conviction on indictment, to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding two years, or to fine, or to both imprisonment and fine; and

(ii) on summary conviction to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding four months, or to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds, and in the case of a second or subsequent conviction to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding six months, or to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds; and

(iii) in any case, to forfeit to [his] Majesty every chattel, article, instrument, or thing by means of or in relation to which the offence has been committed.

(4) The court before whom any person is convicted under this section may order any forfeited articles to be destroyed or otherwise disposed of as the court thinks fit.

(5) If any person feels aggrieved by any conviction made by a court of summary jurisdiction, he may appeal therefrom to a court of quarter sessions.

(6) Any offence for which a person is under this Act liable to punishment on summary conviction may be prosecuted, and any articles liable to be forfeited under this Act by a court of summary jurisdiction may be forfeited, in manner provided by the Summary Jurisdiction Acts: Provided that a person charged with an offence under this section before a court of summary jurisdiction shall, on appearing before the court, and before the charge is gone into, be informed of his right to be tried on indictment, and if he requires, be so tried accordingly. [Cf. 42 & 43 Vict. c. 49, s. 17 (ante, p. 6). The justices must inform the defendant of his right to be tried on indictment. R. v. Cockshott [1898] 1 Q. B. 582; 67 L. J. (*Q. Sect. 3—Definitions of expressions used in this Act.]—(1) For the purposes of this Act—the expression "trade mark" means a trade mark registered in the register of trade marks kept under the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 57), and includes any trade mark which, either with or without registration, is protected by law in any British possession or foreign state to which the provisions of the one hundred and third section of the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Act, 1883, are, under order in council, for the time being applicable: [These orders in council are collected in the Statutory Rules and Orders Revised (ed. 1904), vol. 8, tit. "Merchandise Marks."]

The expression "trade description" means any description, statement, or other indication, direct or indirect,

(a) as to the number, quantity, measure, gauge, or weight of any goods, or

(b) as to the place or country in which any goods were made or produced, or

(c) as to the mode of manufacturing or producing any goods, or

(d) as to the material of which any goods are composed, or

(e) as to any goods being the subject of an existing patent, privilege, or copyright, and the use of any figure, word, or mark which, according to the custom of the trade, is commonly taken to be an indication of any of the above matters, shall be deemed to be a trade description within the meaning of this Act.

The expression "false trade description" means a trade description which is false in a material respect as regards the goods to which it is applied, and includes every alteration of a trade description, whether by way of addition, effacement, or otherwise, where that alteration makes the description false in a material respect, and the fact that a trade description is a trade mark, or part of a trade mark, shall not prevent such trade description being a false trade description within the meaning of this Act.

The expression "goods" means anything which is the subject of trade, manufacture, or merchandise.

The expressions "person," "manufacturer, dealer, or trader," and "proprietor" include any body of persons corporate or unincorporate.

The expression "name" includes any abbreviation of a name. [The definition of "trade description" is extended to the customs entry of imported goods by 54 & 55 Vict. c. 15, s. 1 (post, p. 1157); and includes a description in an invoice. Coppen v. Moore (No. 1) [1898] 2 Q. B. 300: and see Cameron v. Wiggins [1901] 1 K. B. 1; 70 L. J. (K. B.) 15; 19 Cox, 580.

(2) The provisions of this Act respecting the application of a false trade description to goods shall extend to the application to goods of any such figures, words or marks, or arrangement or combination thereof, whether including a trade mark or not, as are reasonably calculated to lead persons to believe that the goods are the manufacture or merchandise of some person other than the person whose manufacture or merchandise they really are.

(3) The provisions of this Act respecting the application of a false trade description to goods, or respecting goods to which a false trade description is applied, shall extend to the application to goods of any false name or initials of a person, and to goods with the false name or initials of a person applied, in like manner as if such name or initials were a trade description, and for the purpose of this enactment the expression false name or initials means as applied to any goods, any name or initials of a person which—

(a) are not a trade mark, or part of a trade mark, and

(b) are identical with, or a colourable imitation of the name or initials of a person carrying on business in connection with goods of the same description, and not having authorized the use of such name or initials, and

(c) are either those of a fictitious person or of some person not bonâ fide carrying on business in connection with such goods.

Sect. 4—Meaning of "forge a trade mark."]—A person shall be deemed to forge a trade mark who either—

(a) without the assent of the proprietor of the trade mark makes that trade mark or a mark so nearly resembling that trade mark as to be calculated to deceive; or

(b) falsifies any genuine trade mark, whether by alteration, addition, effacement, or otherwise;

and any trade mark or mark so made or falsified is in this Act referred to as a forged trade mark.

Provided that in any prosecution for forging a trade mark the burden of proving the assent of the proprietor shall lie on the defendant.

Sect. 5—Meaning of the expression "apply a trade mark or mark or trade description to goods."]—(1) A person shall be deemed to apply a trade mark or mark or trade description to goods who—

(a) applies it to the goods themselves; or

(b) applies it to any covering, label, reel, or other thing in or with which the goods are sold or exposed or had in possession for any purpose of sale, trade, or manufacture; or

(c) places, encloses, or annexes any goods which are sold or exposed or had in possession for any purpose of sale, trade, or manufacture, in, with, or to any covering, label, reel, or other thing to which a trade mark or trade description has been applied; or

(d) uses a trade mark or mark or trade description in any manner calculated to lead to the belief that the goods in connection with which it is used are designated or described by that trade mark or mark or trade description.

(2) The expression "covering" includes any stopper, cask, bottle, vessel, box, cover, capsule, case, frame, or wrapper; and the expression "label" includes any band or ticket.

A trade mark, or mark, or trade description, shall be deemed to be applied whether it is woven, impressed, or otherwise worked into, or annexed, or affixed to the goods, or to any covering, label, reel, or other thing.

(3) A person shall be deemed to falsely apply to goods a trade mark or mark, who without the assent of the proprietor of a trade mark applies such trade mark, or a mark so nearly resembling it as to be calculated to deceive, but in any prosecution for falsely applying a trade mark or mark to goods the burden of proving the assent of the proprietor shall lie on the defendant.

Sect. 6—Defences to charges under the Act where the defendant did the act complained of innocently in the ordinary course of his business.]—Where a defendant is charged with making any die, block, machine, or other instrument for the purpose of forging, or being used for forging, a trade mark, or with falsely applying to goods any trade mark or any mark so nearly resembling a trade mark as to be calculated to deceive, or with applying to goods any false trade description, or causing any of the things in this section to be done, and proves—

(a) That in the ordinary course of his business he is employed, on behalf of other persons, to make dies, blocks, machines, or other instruments for making, or being used in making, trade marks, or as the case may be, to apply marks or descriptions to goods, and that in the case which is the subject of the charge he was so employed by some person resident in the United Kingdom, and was not interested in the goods by way of profit or commission dependent on the sale of such goods; and

(b) that he took reasonable precautions against committing the offence charged; and

(c) that he had, at the time of the commission of the alleged offence, no reason to suspect the genuineness of the trade mark, mark, or trade description; and

(d) that he gave to the prosecutor all the information in his power with respect to the persons on whose behalf the trade mark, mark, or description was applied—

he shall be discharged from the prosecution, but shall be liable to pay the costs incurred by the prosecutor, unless he has given due notice to him that he will rely on the above defence.

Sect. 7—Application of the Act to watches.]—Where a watch case has thereon any words or marks which constitute, or are by common repute considered as constituting, a description of the country in which the watch was made, and the watch bears no description of the country where it was made, those words or marks shall primâ facie be deemed to be a description of that country within the meaning of this Act, and the provisions of this Act with respect to goods to which a false trade description has been applied, and with respect to selling or exposing for or having in possession for sale, or any purpose of trade or manufacture, goods with a false trade description, shall apply accordingly, and for the purposes of this section the expression "watch" means all that portion of a watch which is not the watch case.

Sect. 8—False declaration at assay office of country or place where watch case was made.]—(1) Every person who after the date fixed by order in council [see Order in Council of 28th Nov., 1887, gazetted 9th Dec., 1887, and printed in Statutory Rules and Orders Revised (ed. 1904), vol. 8, tit. "Merchandise Marks," p. 8. And as to proving the order, see ante, p. 348] sends or brings a watch case, whether imported or not, to any assay office in the United Kingdom, for the purpose of being assayed, stamped, or marked, shall make a declaration declaring in what country or place the case was made. If it appears by such declaration that the watch case was made in some country or place out of the United Kingdom, the assay office shall place on the case such a mark (differing from the mark placed by the office on a watch case made in the United Kingdom), and in such a mode as may be from time to time directed by order in council.

(2) The declaration may be made before an officer of an assay office, appointed in that behalf by the office (which officer is hereby authorized to administer such a declaration), or before a justice of the peace, or a commissioner having power to administer oaths in the Supreme Court of Judicature in England or Ireland, or in the Court of Session in Scotland, and shall be in such form as may be from time to time directed by order in council. [See the Order in Council, supra.]

(3) Every person who makes a false declaration for the purposes of this section shall be liable, on conviction on indictment, to the penalties of perjury, and on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds for each offence. [See ante, pp. 1051, 1072.]

Sect. 9—Pleading—Trade mark how described in—Copy or facsimile not necessary.]—In any indictment, pleading, proceeding, or document, in which any trade mark or forged trade mark is intended to be mentioned, it shall be sufficient, without further description and without any copy or facsimile, to state that trade mark or forged trade mark to be a trade mark or forged trade mark.

Sect. 10—Evidence—Defendant and wife or husband of defendant may be witnesses for defence—Evidence in case of imported goods.]—In any prosecution for an offence against this Act—

(1) A defendant, and his wife or her husband, as the case may be, may, if the defendant thinks fit, be called as a witness, and, if called, shall be sworn and examined, and may be cross-examined and re-examined in like manner as any other witness. [See 61 & 62 Vict. c. 36, ante, pp. 392–398.]

(2) In the case of imported goods, evidence of the port of shipment shall be primâ facie evidence of the place or country in which the goods were made or produced.

Sect. 11—Accessories liable as principals—Place of trial of.]—Any person who, being within the United Kingdom, procures, counsels, aids, abets, or is accessory to the commission, without the United Kingdom, of any act, which, if committed in the United Kingdom, would under this Act be a misdemeanor, shall be guilty of that misdemeanor as a principal, and be liable to be indicted, proceeded against, tried, and convicted in any county or place in the United Kingdom in which he may be, as if the misdemeanor had been there committed. [See post, Book II. Part IV.]

Sect. 12.]—Search warrant.

Sect. 13—Vexatious Indictments Act applicable to offences under this Act.]—The Vexatious Indictments Act, 1859 (22 & 23 Vict. c. 17, extended by 30 & 31 Vict. c. 35, s. 1), shall apply to any offence punishable on indictment under this Act, in like manner as if such offence were one of the offences specified in section one of that Act, but this section shall not apply to Scotland. [See ante, p. 7, et seq.]

Sect. 14—Costs of prosecutions.]—On any prosecution under this Act the court may order costs to be paid to the defendant by the prosecutor, or to the prosecutor by the defendant, having regard to the information given by and the conduct of the defendant and prosecutor respectively. [See ante, pp. 259, 260.]

Sect. 15—Limitation of time for prosecutions.]—No prosecution for an offence against this Act shall be commenced after the expiration of three years next after the commission of the offence, or one year next after the first discovery thereof by the prosecutor, whichever expiration first happens. [See ante, p. 96.]

Sect. 18—Certain trade descriptions lawfully used at the passing of this Act exempted from its operation—Proviso.]—Where, at the passing of this Act, a trade description is lawfully and generally applied to goods of a particular class, or manufactured by a particular method, to indicate the particular class or method of manufacture of such goods, the provisions of this Act with respect to false trade descriptions shall not apply to such trade description when so applied [see Gridley v. Swinborne, 52 J. P. 739, 791]: Provided that where such trade description includes the name of a place or country, and is calculated to mislead as to the place or country where the goods to which it is applied were actually made or produced, and the goods are not actually made or produced in that place or country, this section shall not apply unless there is added to the trade description, immediately before or after the name of that place or country, in an equally conspicuous manner with that name, the name of the place or country in which the goods were actually made or produced, with a statement that they were made or produced there.

Sect. 19—This Act not to exempt persons from civil proceedings,—nor to exempt persons from refusing to answer interrogatories in action, but answers not admissible in evidence in prosecution,—nor to render liable servant acting bonâ fide.]—(1) This Act shall not exempt any person from any action, suit, or other proceeding which might, but for the provisions of this Act, be brought against him.

(2) Nothing in this Act shall entitle any person to refuse to make a complete discovery, or to answer any question or interrogatory in any action, but such discovery or answer shall not be admissible in evidence against such person in any prosecution for an offence against this Act.

(3) Nothing in this Act shall be construed so as to render liable to any prosecution or punishment any servant of a master resident in the United Kingdom who bonâ fide acts in obedience to the instructions of such master, and, on demand made by or on behalf of the prosecutor, has given full information as to his master.

54 & 55 Vict. c. 15 (Merchandise Marks Act, 1891), s. 1—Customs entry to be trade description.]—The customs entry relating to imported goods shall for the purpose of the Merchandise Marks Act, 1887, be deemed to be a trade description applied to the goods.

Sect. 2—Prosecution of offences by Board of Trade.]—(1) The Board of Trade may, with the concurrence of the lord chancellor, make regulations providing that in cases appearing to the board to affect the general interests of the country, or of a section of the community, or of a trade, the prosecution of offences under the Merchandise Marks Act, 1887, shall be undertaken by the Board of Trade, and prescribing the conditions on which such prosecutions are to be so undertaken. The expenses of prosecutions so undertaken shall be paid out of moneys provided by parliament.

(2) All regulations made under this section shall be laid before parliament within three weeks after they are made if parliament is then sitting, and if parliament is not then sitting, within three weeks after the beginning of the next session of parliament, and shall be judicially noticed, and shall have effect as if enacted by this Act, and shall be published under the authority of [his] Majesty's stationery office. [The regulations in force, made May 21, 1892, are printed in the Statutory Rules and Orders Revised (ed. 1904), vol. 8, tit. "Merchandise Marks," p. 13.]

(3) Nothing in this Act shall affect the power of any person or authority to undertake prosecutions otherwise than under the said regulations.

57 & 58 Vict. c. 19 (Merchandise Marks Prosecution Act, 1894), s. 1—Prosecution of certain offences by Board of Agriculture.]—The power exercisable by the Board of Trade under the Merchandise Marks Act, 1891 (supra), with respect to the prosecution of offences under the Merchandise Marks Act, 1887 (supra), may in cases which appear to the Board of Agriculture to relate to agricultural or horticultural produce be exercised by that board, and in such cases the former Act shall apply as if the Board of Agriculture were referred to therein instead of the Board of Trade. [The regulations in force, made October 27, 1894, are printed in Statutory Rules and Orders Revised (ed. 1904), vol. 8, tit. "Merchandise Marks," p. 14.]

Sect. 2.]—This Act shall not extend to Ireland.

62 & 63 Vict. c. 51 (Sale of Food and Drugs Act, 1899), s. 1.]—Precautions against importation of margarine, margarine cheese, adulterated or impoverished butter, condensed separated or skimmed milk, or any adulterated or impoverished food, unless sufficiently marked with a name or description indicating the nature of the article, or that it has been adulterated or impoverished.

Sect. 3.

OFFENCES ARISING OUT OF RELATION BETWEEN EMPLOYERS AND WORKMEN.

Former Law.

The law relating to combinations by workmen for the purpose of raising wages, shortening the hours of labour, dictating to masters what workmen they shall employ, and for other purposes, interfering with the free course of trade, was formerly regulated by the common law relating to conspiracy, and by the repealed statutes 6 G. 4, c. 129; 22 Vict. c. 34; and 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 41; and was illustrated and enforced by the following cases, viz.: R. v. Bykerdyke, 1 M. & Rob. 179: R. v. Rowlands, 17 Q. B. 671; 2 Den. 364; 21 L. J. (M. C.) 81: R. v. Duffield, 5 Cox, 404: Walsby v. Anley, 30 L. J. (M. C.) 121: O'Neill v. Longman, 4 B. & S. 376: O'Neill v. Kruger, 4 B. & S. 389: Wood v. Bowron, L. R. 2 Q. B. 21: R. v. Druitt, 10 Cox, 592, 601, 602 (dissented from in Gibson v. Lawson [1891] 2 Q. B. 545): R. v. Shepherd, 11 Cox, 325. The history of the law is fully dealt with in Wright on Conspiracy; and see Encycl. Eng. Law, tit. "Conspiracy." Complaints as to the unfairness of the law led to the appointment of a Royal Commission in 1867; on its report in 1869 were passed the Trade Union Act, 1871 (34 & 35 Vict. c. 31, infra), and 34 & 35 Vict. c. 32. Sect. 7 of the latter Act repealed 6 G. 4, c. 129; 22 & 23 Vict. c. 34; and 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 41, as to assaults in pursuance of an unlawful conspiracy to raise the rate of wages, but did not affect 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, ss. 39, 40, as to assaults with intent to obstruct sale or transit of grain, or assaults on seamen to prevent their exercise of their lawful trade. 34 & 35 Vict. c. 32 was repealed by 38 & 39 Vict. c. 86, s. 17, in consequence of the decision of Brett, J., in R. v. Bunn, 12 Cox, 316 (the Gas-stokers' case), that an improper combination to control a master was still a common law offence; and 38 & 39 Vict. c. 86 (infra), was passed on the recommendation of a Royal Commission appointed in 1874.

Statutes.

34 & 35 Vict. c. 31 (Trade Union Act, 1871), s. 2—Trade union not criminal.]—The purposes of any trade union [defined 39 & 40 Vict. c. 22, s. 16, infra] shall not, by reason merely that they are in restraint of trade, be deemed to be unlawful, so as to render any member of such trade union liable to criminal prosecution for conspiracy or otherwise.

39 & 40 Vict. c. 22 (Trade Union Act, 1876), s. 16—Definition of trade union.]—So much of s. 23 of the principal Act (34 & 35 Vict. c. 31) as defines the term "trade union," except the proviso qualifying such definition (see infra), is hereby repealed, and in lieu thereof be it enacted as follows:—The term "trade union" means any combination, whether temporary or permanent, for regulating the relations between workmen and master, or between workmen and workmen, or between masters and masters, or for imposing restrictive conditions on the conduct of any trade or business, whether such combination would or would not, if the principal Act (34 & 35 Vict. c. 31) had not been passed, have been deemed to have been an unlawful combination by reason of some one or more of its purposes being in restraint of trade.

34 & 35 Vict. c. 31, s. 23.]— . . . [Proviso referred to in 39 & 40 Vict. c. 22, s. 16, supra.] Provided that this Act shall not affect—1. Any agreement between partners as to their own business; 2. Any agreement between an employer and those employed by him as to such employment; 3. Any agreement in consideration of the sale of the goodwill of a business, or of instruction in any profession, trade, or handicraft.

38 & 39 Vict. c. 86 (Conspiracy and Protection of Property Act, 1875), s. 3—Amendment of law as to conspiracy in trade disputes.]—An agreement or combination by two or more persons to do or procure to be done any act in contemplation or furtherance of a trade dispute between employers and workmen shall not be indictable as a conspiracy if such act committed by one person would not be punishable as a crime.

Nothing in this section shall exempt from punishment any persons guilty of a conspiracy for which a punishment is awarded by any Act of Parliament.

Nothing in this section shall affect the law relating to riot (ante, p. 1100), unlawful assembly (ante, p. 1098), breach of the peace, or sedition (ante, p. 986), or any offence against the state or the sovereign (ante, p. 928).

A crime for the purposes of this section means an offence punishable on indictment, or an offence which is punishable on summary conviction, and for the commission of which the offender is liable, under the statute making the offence punishable, to be imprisoned either absolutely or at the discretion of the court as an alternative for some other punishment.

Where a person is convicted of any such agreement or combination as aforesaid to do or procure to be done an act which is punishable only on summary conviction, and is sentenced to imprisonment, the imprisonment shall not exceed three months, or such longer time, if any, as may have been prescribed by the statute for the punishment of the said act when committed by one person.

[This section has been said to include all the existing law against combination in referen e to trade disputes. Gibson v. Lawson [1891] 2 *Q. Sect. 4—Breach of contract of service by person employed by municipal authority, etc., in supply of gas or water.]—Where a person employed by a municipal authority [defined s. 14, post, p. 1162], or by any company or contractor upon whom is imposed by Act of Parliament the duty [interpreted s. 14, post, p. 1162], or who have otherwise assumed the duty of supplying any city, borough, town, or place, or any part thereof, with gas or water, wilfully and maliciously [defined s. 15, post, p. 1163] breaks a contract of service with that authority or company or contractor, knowing or having reasonable cause to believe that the probable consequences of his so doing, either alone or in combination with others, will be to deprive the inhabitants of that city, borough, town, place, or part, wholly or to a great extent of their supply of gas or water, he shall on conviction thereof by a court of summary jurisdiction, or on indictment as hereinafter mentioned [s. 9, post, p. 1162], be liable either to pay a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds, or to be imprisoned for a term not exceeding three months, with or without hard labour.

Every such municipal authority, company, or contractor as is mentioned in this section, shall cause to be posted up, at the gasworks or waterworks, as the case may be, belonging to such authority or company or contractor, a printed copy of this section in some conspicuous place where the same may be conveniently read by the persons employed, and as often as such copy becomes defaced, obliterated, or destroyed, shall cause it to be renewed with all reasonable despatch.

If any municipal authority or company or contractor make default in complying with the provisions of this section in relation to such notice as aforesaid, they or he shall incur, on summary conviction, a penalty not exceeding five pounds for every day during which such default continues, and every person who unlawfully injures, defaces, or covers up any notice so posted up as aforesaid in pursuance of this Act, shall be liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings.

Sect. 5—Breach of contract of service involving serious injury to person or property.]—Where any person wilfully and maliciously [defined s. 15 post, p. 1163] breaks a contract of service or of hiring, knowing or having reasonable cause to believe that the probable consequences of his so doing, either alone or in combination with others, will be to endanger human life, or cause serious bodily injury, or to expose valuable property, whether real or personal, to destruction or serious injury, he shall on conviction thereof by a court of summary jurisdiction, or on indictment as hereinafter mentioned [s. 9, post, p. 1162], be liable either to pay a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds, or to be imprisoned for a term not exceeding three months, with or without hard labour.

Sect. 7—Intimidation, etc., to compel any person to abstain from doing or to do any act which he has a right to do or abstain from doing.]—Every person who, with a view to compel any other person to abstain from doing or to do any act which such other person has a legal right to do or abstain from doing, wrongfully and without legal authority,—

1. Uses violence to or intimidates such other person or his wife or children, or injures his property; or
2. Persistently follows such other person about from place to place;
3. Hides any tools, clothes, or other property owned or used by such other person, or deprives him of or hinders him in the use thereof; or
4. Watches or besets the house or other place where such other person resides, or works, or carries on business, or happens to be, or the approach to such house or place; or
5. Follows such other person with two or more other persons in a disorderly manner in or through any street or road, shall, on conviction thereof by a court of summary jurisdiction or on indictment as hereinafter mentioned [s. 9, infra], be liable either to pay a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds, or to be imprisoned for a term not exceeding three months, with or without hard labour.

Attending at or near the house or place where a person resides, or works, or carries on business, or happens to be, or the approach to such house or place, in order merely to obtain or communicate information, shall not be deemed a watching or besetting within the meaning of this section.

Sect. 9—Person accused before court of summary jurisdiction of offence against this Act may elect to be tried on indictment.]—Where a person is accused before a court of summary jurisdiction of any offence made punishable by this Act, and for which a penalty amounting to twenty pounds, or imprisonment, is imposed, the accused may, on appearing before the court of summary jurisdiction, declare that he objects to being tried for such offence by a court of summary jurisdiction, and thereupon the court of summary jurisdiction may deal with the case in all respects as if the accused were charged with an indictable offence and not an offence punishable on summary conviction, and the offence may be prosecuted on indictment accordingly. Sect. 12.]—Appeal to quarter sessions.

Sect. 14—Meaning of "municipal authority," "company," and "contractor."]—The expression "municipal authority" in this Act means any of the following authorities, that is to say, the Metropolitan Board of Works, the Common Council of the City of London, the Commissioners of Sewers of the City of London, the town council of any borough for the time being subject to the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 (5 & 6 W. 4, c. 76), and any Act amending the same, any commissioners, trustees, or other persons invested by any local Act of Parliament with powers of improving, cleansing, lighting, or paving any town, and any local board. [The Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, was substituted for 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 76 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 50, s. 242 (3)).]

Any municipal authority or company or contractor who has obtained authority by or in pursuance of any general or local Act of Parliament to supply the streets of any city, borough, town, or place, or of any part thereof, with gas, or which is required by or in pursuance of any general or local Act of Parliament to supply water on demand to the inhabitants of any city, borough, town, or place, or any part thereof, shall for the purposes of this Act be deemed to be a municipal authority or company or contractor upon whom is imposed by Act of Parliament the duty of supplying such city, borough, town, or place, or part thereof, with gas or water.

Sect. 15—Construction of word "maliciously."]—The word "maliciously" used in reference to any offence under this Act shall be construed in the same manner as it is required by the 58th section [ante, p. 649] of the Malicious Damage Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 97), to be construed in reference to any offence committed under such last-mentioned Act. [See ante, pp. 651, 701.]

Sect. 16.]—Nothing in this Act shall apply to seamen or to apprentices to the sea service. [This section does not exempt a person who is not a seaman from being charged with and being liable to punishment under the Act for an offence committed by him against a seaman. Kennedy v. Cowie [1891] 1 Q. B. 771; 60 L. J. (*M. Offences as to the Sale of Food and Drugs.

Common Law.

It is a misdemeanor at common law to sell food or drink with knowledge that it is dangerous or unfit for human consumption. R. v. Dixon, 3 M. & Sel. 11; 4 Camp. 12; 15 R. J. Newsp. 477. Sale by a false description is indictable as a common law cheat (ante, p. 619), or under the Merchandise Marks Act, 1887 (ante, p. 1151), or as obtaining money by false pretences. See ante, pp. 593, 602, 603. These common law offences are not abolished by the statutes set out below. See 38 & 39 Vict. c. 63, s. 28 (post, p. 1165).

Statutes.

NOTE.—The ordinary procedure under the Acts relating to the sale of bread, food, and drugs is before a court of summary jurisdiction. Only those sections under which an indictment may be preferred are given below. As to the cases on the Acts, see Bell, Scrivener & Lloyd on Sale of Food and Drugs Acts (4th ed.), 1903.

38 & 39 Vict. c. 63 (Sale of Food and Drugs Act, 1875), s. 2—Definition of "drug."]— . . . The term "drug" shall include medicine for internal or external use. . . . [As to what is or is not a drug, see Fowle v. Fowle, 18 Cox, 462; 60 J. P. 278: Houghton v. Taplin, 13 T. L. R. 386.]

62 & 63 Vict. c. 51 (Sale of Food and Drugs Act, 1899), s. 26—Definition of "food."]—For the purposes of the Sale of Food and Drugs Acts, the expression "food" shall include every article used for food or drink by man other than drugs or water, and any article which ordinarily enters into or is used in the composition or preparation of human food, and shall also include flavouring matters and condiments.

38 & 39 Vict. c. 63, s. 3—Mixing food with ingredient injurious to health or selling food so mixed—Second offence a misdemeanor.]—No person shall mix, colour, stain or powder, or order or permit any other person to mix, colour, stain or powder, any article of food with any ingredient or material so as to render the article injurious to health, with intent that the same may be sold in that state, and no person shall sell any such article so mixed, coloured, stained, or powdered, under a penalty in each case not exceeding fifty pounds for the first offence. Every offence, after a conviction for a first offence, shall be a misdemeanor, for which the person, on conviction, shall be imprisoned for a period not exceeding six months with hard labour.

Sect. 4—Mixing drug with injurious ingredient or selling drug so mixed—Second offence a misdemeanor.]—No person shall, except for the purpose of compounding as hereinafter described, mix, colour, stain, or powder, or order or permit any other person to mix, colour, stain, or powder, any drug with any ingredient or material so as to affect injuriously the quality or potency of such drug, with intent that the same may be sold in that state, and no person shall sell any such drug so mixed, coloured, stained, or powdered, under the same penalty in each case respectively as in the preceding section for a first and subsequent offence.

Sect. 5—Exemptions.]—Provided that no person shall be liable to be convicted under either of the two last foregoing sections of this Act in respect of the sale of any article of food, or of any drug, if he shows to the satisfaction of the justice or court before whom he is charged that he did not know of the article of food or drug sold by him being so mixed, coloured, stained, or powdered as in either of those sections mentioned, and that he could not with reasonable diligence have obtained that knowledge.

Sect. 8—Further exemptions—Labels.]—Provided that no person shall be guilty of any such offence as aforesaid (see s. 3) in respect of the sale of an article of food or a drug mixed with any matter or ingredient not injurious to health, and not intended fraudulently to increase its bulk, weight, or measure, or conceal its inferior quality, if at the time of delivering such article or drug, he shall supply to the person receiving the same a notice, by a label distinctly and legibly written or printed on or with the article or drug, to the effect that the same is mixed.

62 & 63 Vict. c. 51, s. 12—Labels.]—The label referred to in s. 8 of the Sale of Food and Drugs Act, 1875 (supra), shall not be deemed to be distinctly and legibly written or printed within the meaning of that section unless it is so written or printed that the notice of mixture given by the label is not obscured by other matter on the label: Provided that nothing in this enactment shall hinder or affect the use of any registered trade mark, or of any label which has been continuously in use for at least seven years before the commencement of this Act (1*st Jan.*, 1900): but the Controller-General of Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks shall not register any trade mark purporting to describe a mixture unless it complies with the requirements of this enactment.

38 & 39 Vict. c. 63, s. 28.]—Nothing in this Act contained shall affect the power of proceeding by indictment or take away any other remedy against any offender under this Act, or in any way interfere with contracts and bargains between individuals, and the rights and remedies belonging thereto. . . . [Cf. 52 & 53 Vict. c. 63, s. 33, ante, p. 170.]

62 & 63 Vict. c. 51, s. 19—Time for proceedings and regulations as to summons.]—(1) When any article of food or drug has been purchased from any person for test purposes, any prosecution under the Sale of Food and Drugs Acts in respect of the sale thereof, notwithstanding anything contained in s. 20 of the Sale of Food and Drugs Act, 1875, shall not be instituted after the expiration of twenty-eight days from the time of the purchase. [The prosecution is instituted when the information is laid. Brooks v. Bagshaw [1904] 2 K. B. 798, 68 J. P. Rep. 514.]

(2) In any prosecution under the Sale of Food and Drugs Acts the summons shall state particulars of the offence or offences alleged, and also the name of the prosecutor, and shall not be made returnable in less time than fourteen days from the day on which it is served, and there must be served therewith a copy of any analyst's certificate obtained on behalf of the prosecutor. [See McQueen v. Jackson [1903] 2 K. B. 163.]

38 & 39 Vict. c. 63, s. 27 (1)—Forgery of warranties.]—Any person who shall forge, or shall utter, knowing it to be forged for the purposes of this Act, any certificate or any writing purporting to contain a warranty, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be punishable on conviction by imprisonment for a term of not exceeding two years with hard labour.

62 & 63 Vict. c. 51, s. 20—Defence of warranty.]—A warranty or invoice shall not be available as a defence to any proceeding under the Sale of Food and Drugs Acts unless the defendant has, within seven days after service of the summons, sent to the purchaser a copy of such warranty or invoice with a written notice stating that he intends to rely on the warranty or invoice, and specifying the name and address of the person from whom he received it, and has also sent a like notice of his intention to such person. (2) The person by whom such warranty or invoice is alleged to have been given shall be entitled to appear at the hearing and to give evidence, and the court may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the hearing to enable him to do so. (3) A warranty or invoice given by a person resident outside the United Kingdom shall not be available as a defence in any proceeding under the Sale of Food and Drugs Acts unless the defendant proves that he had taken reasonable steps to ascertain and did in fact believe in the accuracy of the statement contained in the warranty or invoice. (4) Where the defendant is a servant of the person who purchased the article under a warranty or invoice, he shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be entitled to rely on section twenty-five of the Sale of Food and Drugs Act, 1875, and section seven of the Margarine Act, 1887 (50 & 51 Vict. c. 29), in the same way as his employer or master would have been entitled to do if he had been the defendant, provided that the servant further proves that he had no reason to believe that the article was otherwise than that demanded by the prosecutor. (5) Where the defendant in a prosecution under the Sale of Food and Drugs Acts has been discharged under the provisions of section twenty-five of the Sale of Food and Drugs Act, 1875, as amended by this Act; any proceedings under the Sale of Foods and Drugs Acts for giving the warranty relied on by the defendant in such prosecution, may be taken as well before a court having jurisdiction in the place where the article of food or drug to which the warranty relates was purchased for analysis as before a court having jurisdiction in the place where the warranty was given. (6) Every person who, in respect of any article of food or drug sold by him as principal or agent, gives to the purchaser a false warranty in writing, shall be liable on summary conviction, for the first offence to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds, for the second offence to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds, and for any subsequent offence to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds, unless he proves to the satisfaction of the court that when he gave the warranty he had reason to believe that the statements or descriptions contained therein were true. Indictment.

amendment, see R. v. Smith, 1 F. & F. 36. In R. v. Fraser, 1 Mood. C. C. 407, the first marriage was laid in Kent, the second in Surrey, the venue was Middlesex, and it was alleged that the prisoner was apprehended without stating any place, and the conviction was held bad, but no suggestion was made that the defect was cured by the caption; this case, therefore, may now be considered no authority. 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 665, n. The concluding averment in brackets of the form of indictment given above appears, therefore, to be unnecessary, but it is generally inserted. The words "or elsewhere" in the enactment mean "in any other part of the world," and are not limited to the King's dominions. Earl Russell's case [1901] App. Cas. 446; 70 L. J. (K. B.) 998; 20 Cox, 51. A British subject resident in England, who married a second wife in the lifetime of the first, both marriages being solemnized in Scotland, was held liable to be indicted and convicted of bigamy in England, under 9 G. 4, c. 31, s. 22, of which 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 57, is a re-enactment. R. v. Topping, Dears. 647; 25 L. J. (M. C.) 72; and see R. v. Fraser, R. v. Whiley, ubi supra. Where the second marriage took place elsewhere than in England and Ireland, it should be stated that the accused is a British subject (see ante, p. 1168).

Under 1 Jac. 1, c. 11 (rep.), the defendant might be tried in the county where he was apprehended, but the words "in custody" were not in that Act. Where, the defendant being in custody in the county of W. for larceny, a bill was preferred against him for bigamy in another county, upon which he was detained by order of the court; it was sufficient to warrant the trial in the county of W., because, being in custody upon a criminal charge, he was liable to be tried where he was imprisoned. R. v. Gordon, R. & R. 48. Where an indictment for bigamy alleged that the prisoner was apprehended in Gloucestershire, and this was not proved; Channell, B., allowed an amendment, stating that the prisoner was in custody in that county. R. v. Smith, 1 F. & F. 36.

The allegation that the defendant married again, "the said A. his former wife being then alive," sufficiently charges the offence, without any further averment, that he was still married to A. when the offence was committed. Murray v. R., 7 Q. B. 700; 14 L. J. (Q. B.) 357; 1 Cox, 202: R. v. Apley, 1 Cox, 71.

Felony: penal servitude for not more than seven nor less than three years, or imprisonment, with or without hard labour, not exceeding two years. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 57; 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1, sub-ss. 1, 2 (ante, p. 235). As to requiring the offender to enter into recognizances and find sureties for keeping the peace, 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 71 (ante, p. 778).

This offence is not triable at quarter sessions. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (ante, p. 126).

Evidence for the Prosecution.

The following matters must be proved on the part of the prosecution:—1. Celebration of the first marriage and identity of the parties. 2. The validity of the first marriage. 3. That it subsisted at the date of the second marriage. 4. Celebration of the second marriage. The first wife or husband is not a competent witness for the prosecution on any part of the case, either at common law (1 Hawk. c. 42, s. 8) or under the Criminal Evidence Act, 1898 (61 & 62 Vict. c. 36). R. v. Green, Hertford Assizes, Nov. 18, 1899, 34 L. J. Newsp. 622, Wills, J. In R. v. Ayley, 15 Cox, 328, the alleged first wife was allowed to be called on production of a certificate of her previous marriage to another man and of his death after her alleged marriage to the defendant. The second wife is a competent witness as soon as the first marriage is proved. 1 Hale, 693. See R. v. Peat, 2 Lewin, 111, 288; 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 715, n.: R. v. Wakefield, 2 Lewin, 279; Murray's Report, p. 155; M. & M. 197, n.; and ante, p. 398.

1. Celebration of the first marriage.]—It is immaterial when or where the first marriage was celebrated, whether in England or elsewhere. 2 Hale, 692; 1 Hawk. c. 42, s. 7; 3 Chit. Cr. L. 720.

There must be evidence of celebration: as evidence of acknowledgment, cohabitation, or repute will not suffice. R. v. Willshire, 6 Q. B. D. 366: Morris v. Miller, 4 Burr. 2057, 2058, Lord Mansfield, C.J. In R. v. Wilson, 4 F. & F. 119, 122, n., however, the contrary seems to have been decided. To prove the celebration, it is not essential to prove that banns were published or a licence obtained or the marriage registered; R. v. Allison, R. & R. 109: R. v. Manwaring, 26 L. J. (M. C.) 10; and it is sufficient to call a person present at the ceremony, who can describe it so as to enable the judge to determine whether it would constitute a marriage in law; R. v. Allison, ubi supra: R. v. Millis, 10 Cl. & F. 534; and can identify the parties. R. v. Manwaring, ubi supra: R. v. Simpson, 15 Cox, 423. Since the establishment of a complete system of registration of marriages it is, however, now simpler and more satisfactory, and more usual to prove the celebration by a certified copy of the marriage register obtained from the general register office, or from the custodian of the particular register.

Identity.]—Evidence of the identity of the parties must also be given, and should be by persons who were present at the ceremony, or have other adequate means of knowing the parties to the marriage. Identification by photograph has been allowed; R. v. Tolson, 4 F. & F. 103; but is unsatisfactory, and in matrimonial cases is now rejected if uncorroborated by other evidence. Frith v. Frith [1896] Prob. 74.

The special modes of proving marriages by particular ceremonies are as hereunder stated.

Marriage in Church of England.]—If celebrated in England, according to the rites of the Established Church, the marriage may be proved by the production of the original register of the marriage from the proper custody, that is, from the church itself, or from the custody of the "rector, vicar, curate or other officiating minister;" Doe v. Fowler, 14 Q. B. 700; or by a copy thereof, or extract therefrom, provided it be proved to be an examined copy or extract, or provided it purport to be signed and certified as a true copy or extract by the officer to whose custody the original is entrusted; 14 & 15 Vict. c. 99, s. 14 (ante, p. 379): Sayer v. Glossop, 2 C. & K. 694: Re Hall's Estate, 22 L. J. (Ch.) 177: Re Porter's Trusts, 25 L. J. (Ch.) 688; together with some proof either direct or presumptive of the identity of the parties. See ante, p. 353.

Where it was proved that the marriage was solemnized, not in the parish church, but in a chamber in a building a few yards from the church, while the church was under repair, and it was further proved that divine service had several times been performed in the building in question, it was held that the building must be presumed to have been licensed, and that therefore the marriage might properly be solemnized there. R. v. Cresswell, 1 Q. B. D. 446; 45 L. J. (M. C.) 77. As to marriages by banns in chapels, see R. v. Bowen, 2 C. & K. 227. As to the liability of the clergy to prosecution for a refusal to celebrate a marriage according to the directions of 6 & 7 W. 4, c. 85, and as to the requisites of the indictment and evidence in such cases, see R. v. James, 2 Den. 1; 3 C. & K. 167; 19 L. J. (M. C.) 179.

With respect to the place where the banns may be published and a marriage solemnized, see the Marriage Acts of 1823 (4 G. 4, c. 76), 1825 (6 G. 4, c. 92), and 1836 (6 & 7 W. 4, c. 85). The non-residence of the parties where the banns were published, or, if by licence, where the marriage was solemnized, is immaterial. 4 G. 4, c. 76, s. 26: R. v. Hind, R. & R. 253; 15 R. R. 740; 19 & 20 Vict. c. 119, s. 17. The Act of 1823 (4 G. 4, c. 76) does not apply to marriages beyond sea or in Scotland. See R. v. Topping, Dears. 647.

As to marriages of illegitimate children, by licence in England, see Priestly v. Hughes, 11 East, 1; 10 R. R. 406.

In Church of Rome.]—Where the marriage to be proved has been celebrated in accordance with the rites of the Church of Rome, in some part of the United Kingdom, it is not sufficient to prove the marriage by a certificate from the officiating priest; but it is also necessary to prove that the statutory requirements in the case of such marriages have been complied with; i.e., either (1) that the marriage has been celebrated in the presence of the registrar under 6 & 7 W. 4, c. 85, s. 20, or that the church where the marriage was celebrated was registered under the Marriage Act, 1898 (61 & 62 Vict. c. 58). In R. v. Savage, 13 Cox, 178, it was held by Lush, J., that in an indictment for bigamy everything must be proved most strictly, and therefore that evidence of the first marriage in Scotland, by a Roman Catholic priest who had many times previously performed similar ceremonies there, would not suffice, without proof of the law of Scotland as to such marriage, and this decision was followed by Walton, J., in R. v. Lindsay, 66 J. P. 505; 18 T. L. R. 761; and see R. v. Povey, Dears. 82; 22 L. J. (M. C.) 19 (post, p. 1173). But where the only evidence of the second marriage was that of the second wife, who proved that she had been married to the prisoner in the State of Illinois by a Roman Catholic priest according to the rites of his church, this was held to be sufficient evidence of the second marriage, without proof of the law of that state relating to marriage. R. v. Griffin, 14 Cox, 308; 4 L. R. Ir. 497. Where the first marriage was celebrated abroad, it is submitted that evidence should be given to prove that a religious marriage according to the rites of the Church of Rome was accepted as valid by the civil authorities of the state in which it was celebrated. But in R. v. Brampton, 10 East, 282; 10 R. R. 299, followed in R. v. Griffin (ubi supra), it would seem to have been considered that proof that the ceremony was performed by a person appearing and officiating as a priest, and that it was understood by the parties to be the marriage ceremony according to the rites and customs of the foreign country, would be sufficient presumptive evidence of it, so as to throw upon the defendant the onus of impugning its validity. Where a man and woman were married in Ireland with the ceremonies making a marriage of Roman Catholics valid, they declaring themselves to be Roman Catholics, it was held that the man could not, on an indictment for bigamy, set up his alleged Protestantism to defeat such marriage. R. v. Orgill, 9 C. & P. 80.

In Greek Church.]—A first marriage in England according to the rites of the Greek Church must be proved under the Marriage Act, 1898 (61 & 62 Vict. c. 58), if the church where the marriage took place is registered under that Act, otherwise a proof of marriage in the presence of or before a registrar (6 & 7 W. 4, c. 85, s. 20) will be necessary to establish the validity of the marriage in England. See the Greek Marriages Act, 1884 (47 & 48 Vict. c. 20). Where the second marriage was according to the Greek rite, it is submitted that it is enough to prove celebration (see post, p. 1177).

Of Jews.]—Marriages between persons of the Jewish faith were excepted out of 4 G. 4, c. 76 (see s. 31), and 61 & 62 Vict. c. 58 (see s. 13); but they are provided for by 6 & 7 W. 4, c. 85, ss. 2, 16, 39; 3 & 4 Vict. c. 72, s. 5; 19 & 20 Vict. c. 119, ss. 20–22. As to such marriages, see Lindo v. Belisario, 1 Hagg. Consist. Rep. 216: Goldsmid v. Bromer, Id. 324: Ruding v. Smith, 2 Hagg. Consist. Rep. 371; 1 St. Tr., N. S. 1053, 1064, 1065, Lord Stowell: R. v. Millis, 10 Cl. & F. 534; 8 Eng. Rep. 844. Where the marriage is alleged to have been celebrated according to Jewish law, evidence must be given of a written contract between the parties; Horn v. Noel, 1 Camp. 61: R. v. Althausen, 17 Cox, 630: R. v. Nasillski, 61 J. P. 520: R. v. Weinberg, 33 L. J. Newsp. 239; and that the witnesses to the marriage were not blood relations of the parties. Nathan v. Woolf [1899] 15 T. L. R. 250. Jews domiciled in England cannot validly contract a marriage within the degrees prohibited by English law. Re De Wilton [1900] 2 Ch. 481.

Of Quakers.]—Marriages between Quakers (see Deane v. Thomas, M. & M. 361) are excepted out of 4 G. 4, c. 76 (see s. 31), and 61 & 62 Vict. c. 58 (see s. 13; but are provided for by 6 & 7 W. 4, c. 85, ss. 2, 16, 39; 3 & 4 Vict. c. 72, s. 5; 19 & 20 Vict. c. 119, ss. 20, 21; 23 & 24 Vict. c. 18; 35 & 36 Vict. c. 10. The two last-mentioned Acts apply even when one only or neither of the parties is a Quaker.

Of Protestant dissenters.]—Where the marriage was celebrated under the Marriage Act, 1898 (61 & 62 Vict. c. 58), in a registered building without the presence of the registrar, it may be proved by a certified copy from the general register office given under 6 & 7 W. 4, c. 86, s. 38, or by a certified copy given by the minister in charge of the register belonging to the building.

Where the marriage was celebrated in a registered building in the presence of the registrar under ss. 18–21 of the Marriage Act, 1836 (6 & 7 W. 4, c. 85), it may be proved by certified copies of the register from the general registry office at Somerset House (6 & 7 W. 4, c. 86, s. 38), or from the registrar who has custody of the original register (Id. s. 35).

Where the marriage was solemnized under 6 & 7 W. 4, c. 85, the certificate authorized by the 7th section of that Act (now rep.), and under 6 & 7 W. 4, c. 86, s. 38, coupled with evidence of the identity of the parties by persons present at the marriage, was held to be sufficient primâ facie evidence of a valid marriage. R. v. Hawes, 1 Den. 270; 2 Cox, 432. Proof of marriage before a registrar, or in a chapel not duly licensed has been held sufficient. R. v. Tilson, 1 F. & F. 54. Proof that the marriage took place in a dissenting chapel, in the presence of the registrar, that the entry in the registrar's book was signed by a person who proved the fact of the marriage, as a witness to the marriage, and that the parties afterwards cohabited for some years, was held to be sufficient primâ facie evidence that the chapel was duly registered, and was a place in which marriages might be lawfully solemnized under the above Act. R. v. Manwaring, Dears. & B. 132; 26 L. J. (M. C.) 10. So where it was proved that the marriage was celebrated in a dissenting chapel by a dissenting minister in the presence of the registrar of the district and two witnesses, and the certificate was produced, it was held unnecessary to prove that the chapel was registered. R. v. Cradock, 3 F. & F. 837.

By registrar.]—A marriage solemnized before a registrar under s. 21 of the Marriage Act, 1836 (6 & 7 W. 4, c. 85), may be proved by certified copies under ss. 35 or 38 of the Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1836 (6 & 7 W. 4, c. 86), coupled with proof of the identity of the parties. As to certificates of marriages in the presence of the registrar and in buildings registered under s. 18 of the Marriage Act, 1836, vide supra.

Marriages in Scotland.]—Regular marriages in Scotland are best proved by certified extracts from the marriage register given under 17 & 18 Vict. c. 56, s. 58, which, if authenticated as required, are admissible in evidence in all parts of the King's dominions. See also Lyell v. Kennedy [1889] 14 App. Cas. 437, 449.

Marriages in Ireland.]—A marriage in Ireland, if according to the rites of the Church of Rome, is best proved by certified copies from the general register office or the superintendent registrar of the district in which the marriage was celebrated: 26 & 27 Vict. c. 90, ss. 17, 18. Marriages in Ireland (other than Roman Catholic) are best proved by certified copies of the register under 7 & 8 Vict. c. 81, ss. 68, 69, 70.

Marriages abroad.]—A marriage celebrated abroad may be proved by any person who was present at it; circumstances should also be proved from which the jury may infer that it was a valid marriage according to the laws of the country in which it was celebrated, or according to the national law of the parties if celebrated outside the state to which they belong. On this subject oral but not written evidence by experts is admissible. Sussex Peerage Claim, 6 St. Tr., N. S. 79; 11 Cl. & F. 85; 8 Eng. Rep. 1034. As to French marriages, see Lacon v. Higgins, D. & R. (N. P.) 88; 3 Stark. (N. P.) 178. Marriages celebrated abroad by British officials under the Foreign Marriage Act, 1892 (55 & 56 Vict. c. 23), are proved under s. 13 of that Act.

2. Validity of the marriage.]—The second marriage is not bigamous unless the first marriage was valid; and the validity of the first marriage must be proved by the prosecution; R. v. Kay, 16 Cox, 292; for the law will not presume it in the case of bigamy as it will in civil cases. Smith v. Huson, 1 Phillimore, 287. And the first marriage must also have been a monogamous marriage as understood in Christian countries. See Ardaseer Curseljee v. Perozeboye, 10 Moore, P. C. 575; 14 Eng. Rep. 533: Re Ullee, 54 L. T. (N. S.) 286: Re Bethell, 38 Ch. D. 220: Hyde v. Hyde, L. R. 1 P. & D. 130: Brinkley v. Att.-Gen. 15 P. D. 76; Mayne, Ind. Cr. L. (1896) p. 771.

In R. v. Newton, 2 M. & Rob. 503, the prisoner's admission of a prior marriage was held to be evidence that it was lawfully solemnized. See same case reported as R. v. Simmonsto, 1 C. & K. 164; and as R. v. Simmonite, 1 Cox, 30. But in R. v. Savage, 13 Cox, 178, Lush, J., refused to act upon R. v. Newton, as being inconsistent with the Sussex Peerage Claim, 11 Cl. & F. 85, 134; 8 Eng. Rep. 1034, and held that the prisoner's admission upon being apprehended that he had been married to his first wife in Scotland, was no evidence that that marriage had been lawfully solemnized, and this view seems to be supported by R. v. Truman, 1 East, P. C. 470: R. v. Flaherty, 2 C. & K. 782, and was adopted by Walton, J., in R. v. Lindsay, 66 J. P. 505; 18 T. L. R. 761.

How proved.]—The validity of a marriage in point of form is substantially the same as due celebration, and in the case of a marriage in England no further proof is needed except that the persons married were not within the prohibited degrees, or were not already married. If the defence seek to defeat the validity of the marriage by setting up an earlier and subsisting marriage of one of the parties, they must prove it. Dalrymple v. Dalrymple, 2 Hagg. Consist. Rep. 54: R. v. Millis, 10 Cl. & F. 504; 8 Eng. Rep. 844.

It was decided in R. v. Millis, ubi supra, that by the common law of England a marriage between British subjects is void unless solemnized in the presence of a person in holy orders or episcopally ordained in the Anglican, Greek, or Roman churches, and therefore that all marriages not so solemnized, in those parts of the British dominions to which the Marriage Act, 26 G. 2, c. 33 (rep.), did not extend, were void, and would not subject the parties, if they afterwards contracted a second marriage in the lifetime of both parties, to the penalties of bigamy. The decision in R. v. Millis has been much doubted, but binds English courts in cases where a statutory authority for the form of marriage in question does not exist. See Dicey, Conflict of Laws, 634. See also Lautour v. Teesdale, 8 Taunt, 830: Re McLoughlin, 1 L. R. Ir. 421. A priest in holy orders cannot lawfully solemnize a marriage between himself and another person. Beamish v. Beamish, 9 H. L. C. 274; 11 Eng. Rep. 735.

A marriage is valid at common law if celebrated on a British ship at sea by an episcopally-ordained minister; Culling v. Culling [1896] Prob. 116: Du Moulin v. Druitt, 13 Ir. C. L. Rep. 212; or on a British public ship in accordance with the Foreign Marriage Act, 1892 (55 & 56 Vict. c. 23); or within the lines of a British army in a foreign country, if celebrated by an episcopally-ordained minister and if one party is subject to military law. R. v. Brampton (Inhabitants), 10 East, 282; 10 R. R. 299: Burn v. Farrar, 2 Hagg. Consist. Rep. 369: Ruding v. Smith, 2 Id. 371; 1 St. Tr., N. S. 1053: Waldegrave Peerage Claim, 4 Cl. & F. 649. Such a marriage is also valid if celebrated as prescribed by the Foreign Marriage Act, 1892, s. 22.

A marriage abroad between British subjects is not valid at common law if celebrated before a layman (Catherwood v. Caslon, 13 M. & W. 261: but see Catterall v. Catterall, 1 Rob. Eccl. 304; 3 Id. 580: Burt v. Burt, 29 L. J. (Matr.) 133); but may be validly celebrated by a marriage officer under the Marriage Act, 1892 (55 & 56 Vict. c. 23). As to forms and regulations, see Stat. Rules and Orders Revised (ed. 1904), vol. 8, tit. "Marriage," p. 36.

To be valid the marriage, if contracted in England, must have been celebrated in a manner recognized by the law of England and between persons capable of contracting marriage, and who might lawfully intermarry; and if contracted elsewhere must have been according to the lex loci contractûs, or if contracted abroad must be valid under English law as to such marriages so contracted (55 & 56 Vict. c. 23, s. 19), or if celebrated in England not in accordance with English law, then only if celebrated in a foreign embassy or embassy chapel between subjects of the ambassador's sovereign. Ruding v. Smith, 2 Hagg. Consist. Rep. 371; 1 St. Tr., N. S. 1066: Pertreis v. Tondear, 1 Hagg. Consist. Rep. 136. The latter class of marriage is treated as ex-territorial. Dicey, Conflict of Laws, 631.

Consent.]—It is not now necessary in order to establish the validity of a marriage in England between parties, one or both of whom is a minor, to prove that the consent of parent or guardian required by law has been given. See Marriage Act, 1823 (4 G. 4 c. 76), s. 14: R. v. Birmingham, 8 B. & C. 29: Marriage Registration Act, 1856 (19 & 20 Vict. c. 119), s. 17, which applies to marriages celebrated under that Act or the Acts of 1836 (6 & 7 W. 4, c. 85), 1837 (7 W. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 22), and 1840 (3 & 4 Vict. c. 72): Prowse v. Spurway, 46 L. J. (Prob.) 49. In the case of an illegitimate minor for whom no guardian has been appointed, no consent has ever been needed. Horner v. Horner, 1 Hagg. Consist. Rep. 337: Priestley v. Hughes, 11 East 1 (and see 4 G. 4, c. 76, ss. 14, 16, 17). In the case of a marriage in a foreign country where the consent of parents, etc., is necessary, it is submitted that such consent must be proved on a prosecution in England for bigamy.

If the marriage was celebrated in England, under English law, between foreigners not domiciled here, and in defiance of their national law, it would seem to be valid for purposes of a prosecution for bigamy. But this cannot be treated as absolutely settled. See Sottomayor v. De Barros, 5 P. D. 94: Scott v. Att.-Gen., 11 P. D. 128: Warter v. Warter, 15 P. D. 152.

Effect of marriage in false name or without due notice.]—Under the Marriage Act, 1823 (4 G. 4, c. 76, s. 22), in order to invalidate a marriage for want of due publication of the banns, the misdescription in the banns must be knowingly and wilfully consented to by both parties. The rule under Lord Hardwicke's Act (26 G. 2, c. 33, rep.) was different. See R. v. Tibshelf, 1 B. & Ad. 190: R. v. Wroxton, 4 B. & Ad. 640; 38 R. R. 356: R. v. Clarke, 10 Cox, 474; 15 W. R. 796. Upon a prosecution for bigamy it appeared that the first marriage was by banns, and that the prisoner on procuring the publication of the banns fraudulently misstated the name of his intended wife, and that she was married in that name. There being no affirmative evidence that the woman was unaware of the misstatement, it was held that the first marriage was void. R. v. Kay, 16 Cox, 292, Huddleston, B.; sed quære. Under the same enactment, to invalidate a marriage for want of a licence, it must be established affirmatively that at the time the ceremony was solemnized both the parties were cognizant of the fact that the licence had not issued, and, knowing that fact, that they wilfully intermarried. Greaves v. Greaves, 41 L. J. (P. & M.) 66. To render a marriage invalid within 6 & 7 W. 4, c. 85, s. 42, which enacts, "that if any persons shall knowingly and wilfully intermarry under the provisions of this Act (inter alia), without due notice to the superintendent-registrar, the marriage of such persons shall be null and void," it must be contracted with a knowledge by both parties that no due notice had been given; and therefore when one of the parties under s. 4 of the Act, which requires that the notice shall state (inter alia) the name and surname of each of the parties intending marriage, gave a notice stating therein a false christian name for such party, but it did not appear that that was done with the knowledge of the other party, the marriage was held to be valid. R. v. Rea, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 365; 41 L. J. (M. C.) 92: and see Nathan v. Woolf [1899] 15 T. L. R. 250: Re Knox, 23 L. R. Ir. 542: R. v. Clarke, ubi supra.

Scotch marriages.]—As to what is necessary to constitute a valid marriage in Scotch law, see R. v. Graham, 2 Lewin, 97: R. v. Savage, 13 Cox, 178: Dalrymple v. Dalrymple (ante, p. 1174): Ruding v. Smith, 2 Hagg. Consist. Rep. 371, 376: Ilderton v. Ilderton, 2 H. Bl. 145: Compton v. Bearcroft, Bull. (N. P.) 113: R. v. Povey, Dears. 32; 22 L. J. (M. C.) 19: R. v. Topping, Dears. 647; 25 L. J. (M. C.) 72; Fraser on Husband and Wife (Sc.). Gretna Green marriages were treated as valid in England until 1856, when they were made invalid unless celebrated in compliance with 19 & 20 Vict. c. 96. Compton v. Bearcroft, ubi supra: Lawford v. Davis, 4 P. D. 61. The validity of a Scotch marriage must be proved by an expert in Scotch law. R. v. Povey, Dears. 32; 22 L. J. (M. C.) 19.

Irish marriages.]—In Ireland marriages between Protestant Episcopalians, or where one party is such, are regulated by 33 & 34 Vict. c. 110; between Presbyterians, by 7 & 8 Vict. c. 81; between Roman Catholics, by the law of their church; R. v. Orgill, 9 C. & P. 80; 7 & 8 Vict. c. 81, s. 3; or in case of mixed marriages, by 33 & 34 Vict. c. 49, and 33 & 34 Vict. c. 110: and see Re Knox, 23 L. R. Ir. 542. These statutes override the decision in R. v. Harley, Carr. Sup. 254. As to the view of the Irish courts as to Irish law, see R. v. Fanning, 17 Ir. C. L. R. 289; 10 Cox, 411 (C. C. R.): R. v. Griffin, 14 Cox, 308; 4 L. R. Ir. 497; and as to mixed marriages, see R. v. Sunderland, 2 Lewin, 139: R. v. Fanning, ubi supra.

Foreign marriages.]—In addition to proof of celebration, expert evidence as to the validity of the marriage should be called. Marriages between foreign Christians in Eastern countries appear to be valid if in accordance with the ecclesiastical law of their communion. Parapano v. Happaz [1894] App. Cas. 165. But such a marriage abroad between persons domiciled in England would appear to be insufficient to support a prosecution for bigamy. De Mette v. De Mette, 28 L. J. (Matr.) 117; Dicey, Conflict of Laws, 645.

Colonial marriages.—In the case of colonial marriages, the validity of the marriage should also be proved by an expert in the law of the colony.

Void and voidable marriages.]—A marriage between persons within the prohibited degrees of consanguinity or affinity is absolutely void under Lord Lyndhurst's Act (5 & 6 W. 4, c. 54) if celebrated in England; R. v. Chadwick, 11 Q. B. 173; 17 L. J. (M. C.) 33; 2 Cox, 381; or if celebrated abroad between British subjects who at the time of celebration were domiciled in England. Re De Wilton [1900] 2 Ch. 481: Brook v. Brook, 9 H. L. C. 193; 11 Eng. Rep. 703. It would seem that if a marriage validly celebrated in the country of the husband's domicile between persons who are within the prohibited degrees of consanguinity or affinity according to English law, the parties would be indictable in England on a second marriage there, as the first marriage would be valid in England for succession to personalty (Brook v. Brook, ubi supra); though not for succession to realty. Proof of a marriage which is voidable merely, will support an indictment for bigamy. 3 Co. Inst. 88. Thus a marriage by a minor in Ireland, without consent, which by the Irish Marriage Act was voidable only within a year, will support a conviction for bigamy, if the marriage be not vacated (R. v. Jacobs, 1 Mood. C. C. 140), and the same rule applies to a marriage voidable for impotence of one of the parties. B., alias A. v. B., 27 L. R. Ir. 587, 608. But it is otherwise if the marriage be not voidable merely, but void; as, for instance, if a woman marry A., and in the lifetime of A. marry B.; and after the death of A., and whilst B. is alive, she marry C., she cannot be indicted for bigamy, in her marriage with C., because her marriage with B. was a mere nullity. 1 Hale, 693. And so if a man marry A., and in the lifetime of A. marry B., and afterwards, in the lifetime of A. and B. marry C., he cannot be indicted for bigamy in marrying C., his wife "B." being then alive, because the marriage with B. was void. See R. v. Willshire, 6 Q. B. D. 366. So the marriage of an idiot, or of a lunatic not in a lucid interval, is void, because he is deemed in law incapable of entering into such a contract. 1 Bl. Com. 438, 439: Durham (Earl) v. Durham (Countess) 10 P. D. 80. The law on this subject is fully considered in Wood Renton on Lunacy, 17–28. So, if a boy under fourteen or a girl under twelve contract matrimony, it is void, unless both husband and wife consent to and confirm the marriage after the minor arrives at the age of consent. Co. Litt. 79. See R. v. Gordon, R. & R. 48.

In 1864 W. married A. In 1868 he was charged with bigamy in marrying B. in 1868, his wife A. being then alive, and was on such charge convicted. In 1879 he married C., and in 1880, C. being then alive, he married D. Afterwards, upon a charge of bigamy in marrying D., C. being then alive, W. was convicted, it being held by the presiding judge that there was no evidence that A. was alive when W. married C., or that the marriage with C. was invalid by reason of A. being then alive. It was held that the conviction could not be sustained, as the question should have been left to the jury whether upon the above facts A. was alive or not when W. married C. R. v. Willshire, L. R. 6 Q. B. D. 366; 50 L. J. (M.C.) 57. See also R. v. Lumley, infra.

3. That the first marriage was subsisting.]—On the trial of an indictment for bigamy it is incumbent on the prosecution to prove to the satisfaction of the jury that the first wife or husband was alive at the date of the second marriage, and that is purely a question of fact. This may be done by some one who was acquainted with her, or saw her at the time of the second marriage or afterwards, or by her production in court and identification as the first wife. The existence of the first wife at a period antecedent to the second marriage may or may not afford a reasonable inference that she was living at the time of the second marriage. If, for example, it was proved that she was in good health on the day preceding the second marriage, the inference would be strong, almost irresistible, that she was living on the day of the second marriage, and the jury would in all probability find that she was so. If, on the other hand, it was proved that she was in a dying condition on the day preceding the second marriage, and nothing further was proved, they would probably decline to draw the inference that she was living on the day of the second marriage. Thus the question is entirely for the jury, and the law makes no presumption either way. R. v. Lumley, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 196; 38 L. J. (M. C.) 86. Therefore, where, on the trial of a woman for bigamy, the proof was that the second marriage took place in 1847, and that the first husband had been last seen alive in 1843, and the judge directed the jury that, there being no circumstances leading to any reasonable inference that he had died, he must be presumed to have been living at the date of the second marriage, this direction was held to be erroneous, and the jury having found the prisoner guilty, the conviction was quashed. Id. See also R. v. Willshire, supra.

A marriage is a subsisting marriage even after a decree nisi for its dissolution and until the decree is made absolute. Hulse v. Hulse, L. R. 2 P. & D. 259.

The prosecution need not prove, but the defence may prove, that the first marriage was validly dissolved before the celebration of the second. See post, p. 1179.

Though the defendant cannot be convicted unless the jury are satisfied that the defendant knew that the first wife (or husband) was alive, the prosecution need not as a general rule prove this affirmatively. R. v. Jones, 11 Cox, 358: R. v. Ellis, 1 F. & F. 309: and see post, p. 1179.

4. The subsequent marriage.]—The prosecutor must prove the defendant's subsequent marriage with M. Y. (i.e., that the defendant went through a form of marriage with M. Y.). Though the subsequent marriage would have been void, as for consanguinity or the like, the defendant is guilty of bigamy. R. v. Brawn, 1 C. & K. 144. The following general rule on this subject was laid down in a case reserved for the consideration of all the judges, viz.: that where a person already bound by an existing marriage goes through a form of marriage known to and recognized by the law as capable of producing a valid marriage, for the purpose of a pretended and fictitious marriage, the case is not the less within the statute (24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 57, ante, p. 1167) by reason of any special circumstances, which independently of the bigamous character of the marriage may constitute a legal disability in the particular parties, or make the form of marriage resorted to specially inapplicable to their individual case. R. v. Allen, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 367, 369; 41 L. J. (M. C.) at p. 101. And therefore where A., having a wife living, married another woman, to whom he stood within the prohibited degrees of affinity, so that the second marriage, even if not bigamous, would have been void under 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 54, s. 2, he was held to be guilty of bigamy. Id. The case of R. v. Fanning, 17 Ir. C. L. R. 289; 10 Cox, 411, in which the Irish Court of Criminal Appeal held that to constitute the offence of bigamy, the second marriage must have been one which, but for the existence of the previous marriage, would have been a valid marriage, was fully considered in R. v. Allen, ubi supra, and disapproved. Under the Act of James I. this must have been proved to have taken place in England; for it is the second marriage which constitutes the offence (1 Hale, 692, 693); but under the present enactment it is immaterial whether the second marriage takes place in England, or elsewhere, provided that, if the second marriage take place out of England, the defendant is a subject of his Majesty. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 57 (ante, pp. 1167, 1168). Earl Russell's case [1901] App. Cas. 446; 20 Cox, 51. The celebration of the second marriage is proved in the same manner as that of the first (ante, p. 1170). Proof of marriage merely by evidence of acknowledgment, cohabitation, or reputation is insufficient. 1 Hawk. c. 42, s. 9 (and see ante, p. 1170).

The offence will be complete though the defendant assume a fictitious name at the second marriage. R. v. Allison, R. & R. 109. And where, upon an indictment for marrying Anna T., the defendant's first wife being alive, it appeared that her name was not Anna but Susanna; but the defendant wrote her name Anna in the note for the publication of banns, and signed the register in which she was so called; it was held, that, although her name might not be Anna, he could not defend himself on the ground that he did not marry Anna T. R. v. Edwards, R. & R. 283. So also, where the second wife was married by the name of Eliza Thick, which name she had assumed when the banns were published, purposely, that she might not be known to be the person intended (her name being Eliza Brown), Gurney, B., held it to be no answer to the charge. R. v. Penson, 5 C. & P. 412. And a man, who being married, marries a woman after stating a false name in his notice to the registrar without it appearing that she knew of that fact at the time, is guilty of bigamy. R. v. Rea, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 365; 31 L. J. (M. C.) 92 (ante, p. 1175).

Evidence for the Defence.

The first wife or husband is a competent witness for the defence, and may be called on the application of the defendant. 61 & 62 Vict. c. 36, s. 1 (ante, pp. 892–897).

The following are good defences to an indictment for bigamy:—

1. Seven years' absence.]—That the wife or husband of the party indicted has been "continually absent from the other for the space of seven years then last past, and has not been known to the other to be living within that time" (i.e., has not been known at any period during the seven years to be alive, R. v. Cullen, 9 C. & P. 681). 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 57 (ante, p. 1167). Where the defendant's first wife had left him sixteen years, and it was proved by the second wife that she had known him for nine years living as a single man, and had never heard of the first wife, who it appeared had been living seventeen miles from where the defendant (a poor labouring man) resided; he was held entitled to an acquittal under this proviso. R. v. Jones, C. & Mar. 614. On the trial of a woman for bigamy, whose first husband had been absent from her for more than seven years, the jury found that they had no evidence that, at the time of her second marriage, she knew that he was alive; but that she had the means of acquiring knowledge of that fact, had she chosen to make use of them. It was held, that upon this finding the conviction could not be supported. R. v. Briggs, Dears. & B. 98; 26 L. J. (M. C.) 7. See R. v. Dane, 1 F. & F. 323: R. v. Cross, Id. 510. As to presumptions in favour of the accused in such cases, see R. v. Twyning, 2 B. & Ald. 386; 20 R. R. 480.

Where, on a trial for bigamy, absence for seven years is proved, it is for the prosecution to show that the prisoner knew his wife to be alive at some time during the seven years, and if they fail in doing so, the prisoner is entitled to an acquittal. R. v. Curgerwen, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 1; 35 L. J. (M. C.) 58: R. v. Heaton, 3 F. & F. 819. But where on the trial of an indictment for bigamy, it was proved that the prisoner had married W. in 1865, and lived with her after the marriage, but for how long was not known; that in 1882, W. being still alive, prisoner had gone through the form of marriage with another woman, but there was no evidence as to the prisoner and W. having ever separated, or as to when, if separated, they last saw each other, it was held that the prisoner was rightly convicted. R. v. Jones, 11 Q. B. D. 118; 52 L. J. (M. C.) 96; 15 Cox, 284.

2. Bonâ fide belief of death.]—It is a good defence to an indictment for bigamy to prove that the prisoner, even though the seven years have not elapsed before the second marriage, at the time of the second marriage, in good faith and on reasonable grounds, believed that his first wife was dead. R. v. Tolson, 23 Q. B. D. 168; 58 L. J. (M. C.) 97; 16 Cox, 629. In R. v. Faulkes, 19 T. L. R. 250; 114 L. T. J. 383, 413, 439, Kennedy, J., held that the fact that the prisoner had wilfully deserted his first wife did not deprive him of this defence.

3. Dissolution of marriage.]—That, before the second marriage, the party indicted was divorced from the bond of the first marriage. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 57 (ante, p. 1167). The English courts will accept as valid a divorce a vinculo granted by any competent court of the country in which the husband was bonâ fide domiciled at the time of the grant of the decree, but will treat as invalid divorces granted by a court having jurisdiction only by reason of the so-called "matrimonial domicile," or when resort has been had to the jurisdiction merely for the purpose of divorce. Le Mesurier v. Le Mesurier [1895] App. Cas. 517: Shaw v. Gould, L. R. 3 H. L. 55: Green v. Green [1893] Prob. 89: Harvey v. Farnie, 8 App. Cas. 43. The grounds of divorce in the state where the husband was domiciled when he obtained the decree need not be those recognized by English law, but the decree must have been obtained in good faith, and without fraud or collusion. See Dicey, Conflict of Laws, 387, 430. In R. v. Lolley,

R. & R. 237; 2 Cl. & F. 567, n.; 15 R. R. 737, it had been laid down that "no sentence or Act of any foreign country or any state can dissolve an English marriage a vinculo matrimonii for grounds on which it is not liable to be dissolved a vinculo matrimonii in England." But this decision was overruled in Harvey v. Farnie, ubi supra, and it was pointed out in the judgment of the Court of Appeal in that case (6 P. D. 35) that the Scotch divorce a vinculo, on the ground of the husband's adultery, which in R. v. Lolley was held to be invalid in England, was that of persons whose marriage had not only been solemnized in England, but whose domicil at the time of the divorce was English, so that the rule as above laid down in R. v. Lolley went much further than, and was not necessary to support, the actual decision in that case. See also Le Mesurier v. Le Mesurier [1895] App. Cas. 517 (ante, p. 1179), where R. v. Lolley was considered.

4. That the former marriage was absolutely null and void by reason of the consanguinity or affinity of the parties (ante, p. 1176), or because of the incapacity of one or both of the parties to contract the marriage by reason of a prior subsisting marriage; Dalrymple v. Dalrymple, 2 Hagg. Consist. Rep. 54: R. v. Millis, 10 Cl. & F. 534; or of non-age or lunacy (ante, pp. 22, 23), or that the former marriage was declared to be void by the sentence of a court of competent jurisdiction. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 57. The corresponding clause of 1 Jac. 1, c. 11, s. 3 (rep.), was held not to extend to the sentence of an ecclesiastical court in a cause of jactitation; Duchess of Kingston's case, 20 St. Tr. 355; 2 Sm. L. C. (11th ed.) 731, 739 (see ante, p. 364); and even sentences within this clause of the Act may be impeached on the part of the crown, upon the ground of fraud or collusion. Id. It has been pointed out (ante, p. 1176) that it is not enough for the defence to prove the first marriage voidable. (a)

COMMON NUISANCE.

Common Law.

Every person is guilty of a misdemeanor at common law, known as common nuisance, who (a) does an act not warranted by law, or (b) omits to discharge a legal duty, if the effect of the act or omission is to endanger the life, health, property, morals, or comfort of the public, or to obstruct the public in the exercise or enjoyment of rights common to all his Majesty's subjects. 2 Chit. Cr. L. 565; 1 Hawk. c. 75; Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (6th ed.) p. 140: Hubert v. Groves, 1 Esp. 147, and earlier cases there collected: Wilkes v. Hungerford Market Co., 2 Bing. N. C. 281: Barber v. Penley [1893] 2 Ch. 447. It is immaterial whether the annoyance arises from noise, stench, unwholesomeness, or interference with public comfort or convenience. See Att.-Gen. v. Keymer Brick & Tile Co., 67 J. P. Rep. 431.

If the legal duty does not exist at common law, and a particular penalty is imposed by the statute creating the duty, the remedy by indictment for common nuisance would seem to be excluded. Bulbrook v. Goodere, 3 Burr. 1768, 1770; and cf. Saunders v. Holborn District Board [1895] 1 Q. B. 64; 61 L. J. (Q. B.) 101.

(a) In the U.S. it has been held no defence to a charge of bigamy that the defendant by his religion was under an obligation to commit polygamy. See Reynolds v. U.S. [1878] 98 U.S. 145, where a woman was held to have been rightly convicted of bigamy. But if the first marriage was non-Christian, a second marriage would not be bigamy (see ante, p. 1173).

The object with which the act or omission is done or made is immaterial if the probable result is to affect injuriously, in any of the ways above stated, the public (R. v. Moore, 3 B. & Ad. 184; 37 R. R. 383: R. v. Carlisle, 6 C. & P. 636: Barber v. Penley [1893] 2 Ch. 447) or any appreciable part of it (R. v. Lloyd, 4 Esp. 200), and if the effect is such, the nuisance cannot be legalized by long continuance. Dewell v. Saunders, Cro. Jac. 490. It is only in this respect, and in the quantum of annoyance, that public differs from private nuisance.

Many forms of nuisance can now be punished summarily under statutes or bye-laws, but with few, if any, exceptions the remedy by indictment is preserved. See 52 & 53 Vict. c. 63, s. 33 (ante, p. 170).

Some acts which have been treated as nuisances are difficult to classify at all—i.e., the offences of eavesdropping; 1 Hawk. c. 61, s. 4; Burn's Justice (30th ed.), tit. "Eavesdropping"; being a common scold (communis rixatrix), 1 Hawk. c. 61, ss. 4, 15; 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 752; 4 Bl. Comm. 109; night-walking; 2 Hawk. c. 10, s. 58; refusal by a common innkeeper to admit traveller when he has accommodation. R. v. Rymer, 2 Q. B. D. 136; 46 L. J. (M. C.) 108: R. v. Ivens, 7 C. & P. 213: R. v. Sprague, 63 J. P. 233 (Surrey Quarter Sessions); R. v. Smith [1901] 65 J. P. 521; and see 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 740. Keeping booths and stages for rope-dancers and the like, or unlicensed stage plays, are not nuisances per se, but only as they draw together great numbers of people or coaches and sharpers thither; 1 Hawk. c. 75, s. 7: R. v. Betterton, cas. temp. Holt, 538; 5 Mod. 142: Barber v. Penley [1893] 2 Ch. 447, 449—i.e., they may be indictable as disorderly houses (post, p. 1194), or as causing obstruction and nuisance to a highway (post, p. 1210; and see Bellamy v. Wells, 39 W. R. 158; 7 T. L. R. 135).

Public nuisances which are indictable may be thus classified:—

(b) Acts dangerous to public safety (post, p. 1186).

(c) Acts injurious to public morals or decency (post, p. 1188).

(d) Unlawful treatment of dead bodies (post, p. 1207).

Statutes.

1 & 2 G. 4, c. 41 (Steam Engine Furnaces Act, 1821), s. 1—Costs of prosecution.]—Whereas great inconvenience has arisen, and a great degree of injury has been and is now sustained by his Majesty's subjects, in various parts of the United Empire, from the improper construction as well as from the negligent use of furnaces employed in the working of engines by steam: and whereas by law every such nuisance, being of a public nature, is abateable as such by indictment; but the expense attending the prosecution thereof has deterred parties suffering thereby from seeking the remedy given by law: be it therefore enacted, etc., that it shall and may be lawful for the court by which judgment ought to be pronounced in case of conviction on any such indictment to award such costs as shall be deemed proper and reasonable to the prosecutor or prosecutors, to be paid by the party or parties so convicted as aforesaid, such award to be made either before or at the time of pronouncing final judgment, as to the court may seem fit.

Sect. 2—Order to prevent repetition of nuisance.]—If it shall appear to the court by which judgment ought to be pronounced, in case of conviction on any such indictment, that the grievance may be remedied by altering the construction of the furnace so employed in the working of engines by steam, it shall be lawful for the court, without the consent of the prosecutor, to make such order touching the premises, as shall be by the said court thought expedient for preventing the nuisance in future, before passing final sentence upon the defendant or defendants so convicted.

Sect. 3—Exemptions from the Act.]—Provided always, that the provisions of this Act, as far as they relate to the payment of costs and the alteration of furnaces, shall not extend or be construed to extend to the owners, or proprietors, or occupiers of any furnaces of steam-engines erected solely for the purpose of working mines of different descriptions, or employed solely in the smelting of ores and minerals, or in the manufacturing of the produce of such ores or minerals, on or immediately adjoining the premises where they are raised.

Sect. 111.]—The provisions of this Act relating to nuisances shall be deemed to be in addition to, and not to abridge or affect, any right remedy or proceeding under any other provision of this Act or under any other Act, or at law or in equity. Provided that no person shall be punished for the same offence both under the provisions of this Act relating to nuisances, and under any other law or enactment. [Cf. 52 & 53 Vict. c. 63, s. 33 (ante, p. 170). Provisions similar to those of ss. 91, 111, are contained in the Public Health (London) Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 76), s. 138.]

Indictment for carrying on an Offensive Trade. (Common Law.)

Middlesex, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. S., on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, at the parish of B., in the county of M., near unto divers public streets, being the King's common highways, and also near unto the dwelling-houses of divers liege subjects of our said lord the King there situate and being, unlawfully and injuriously did make, erect, and set up, and did cause and procure to be made, erected, and set up, a certain furnace and boiler, for the purpose of boiling tripe and other entrails and offal of beasts: and that the said J. S., on the day and year aforesaid, and on divers other days * and times between that day and the day of the taking of this inquisition, at the parish aforesaid, in the county aforesaid, unlawfully and injuriously did boil, and cause and procure to be boiled, in the said boiler, divers large quantities of tripe and other entrails and offal of beasts; by reason of which said premises, divers noisome (see R. v. White, 1 Burr. 333), and offensive [and "unwholesome": this word is not essential

(R. v. White, supra)] smokes, smells, and stenches, during the time aforesaid, were from thence emitted and issued, so that the air then and there was and yet is greatly filled and impregnated with the said smokes, smells, and stenches, and was and is rendered and become, and was and is corrupted, offensive, and uncomfortable [and unwholesome], to the great damage and common nuisance of all the liege subjects of our said lord the King there inhabiting, being, and residing, and going, returning, and passing through the said streets and highways; and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity. (2nd Count, for continuing the nuisance.)—And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said J. S., on the said first day of June, in the year aforesaid, and from that day until the day of the taking of this inquisition, at the parish aforesaid, in the county aforesaid, a certain other furnace and boiler, for the purpose of boiling tripe and other entrails and offal of beasts, before that time made, erected, and set up by certain persons to the jurors aforesaid unknown, unlawfully and injuriously did continue and yet doth continue; and that the said J. S., on the said first day of June, in the year aforesaid, and on divers other days, etc., as in the first count from the asterisk to the end.

Since 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 24 (ante, pp. 54, 85), the conclusion in commune nocumentum is not essential. R. v. Holmes, Dears. 207; 22 L. J. (M. C.) 122; 6 Cox, 216.

Incautious inoculation for small-pox was indictable. R. v. Burnett, 4 M. & Sel. 272. Inoculation is now absolutely forbidden. 30 & 31 Vict. c. 84, s. 32. Burning arsenic so as to emit poisonous fumes is indictable. R. v. Garland, 5 Cox, 165: and see the Alkali Works Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 37) and 1892 (55 & 56 Vict. c. 30).

Misdemeanor at common law: fine or imprisonment, without hard labour (ante, pp. 238, 240), or both; and judgment for prostration or abatement if the nuisance is alleged and proved to be then continuing. See R. v. Incledon, 13 East, 164. 12 & 13 Vict. c. 45, s. 18, by which any order of quarter sessions may be removed into the High Court (K. B. D.) and enforced as a rule of court, does not apply to an order of quarter sessions to abate a nuisance made after the trial of an indictment for such nuisance. R. v. Bateman, 8 E. & B. 584; 27 L. J. (M. C.) 95.

Evidence.

Prove that the defendant erected the boiler in question, or that he continued it after being erected by some other person; prove that he used it for the purposes alleged in the indictment; prove that the smoke or smell arising from it was either injurious to health, or so offensive as to detract sensibly from the enjoyment of life and property in its neighbourhood; see R. v. White, 1 Burr. 333; it is not necessary that the smells produced by it should be injurious to health, it is sufficient if they be offensive to the senses; R. v. Neil, 2 C. & P. 485; 31 R. R. 685: Malton Local Board v. Malton Farmers' Trading Co., 4 Ex. D. 302; 49 L. J. (M. C.) 90; Bishop Auckland Local Board v. Bishop Auckland Iron Co., 10 Q. B. D. 138. Prove also that it is in a populous neighbourhood, or near a highway; R. v. Pappineau, 2 Str. 686; for its being a nuisance depends in a great measure upon the number of houses and the concourse of people in its vicinity; and which is a matter of fact to be determined by the jury. R. v. White (ubi supra). As to the quantum of annoyance necessary to justify proceedings, see St. Helens Smelting Co. v. Tipping, 11 H. L. C. 642; 11 Eng. Rep. 1483; 35 L. J. (Q. B.) 66. Nuisance by noise, if sufficiently great, is indictable (see Walker v. Brewster, L. R. 5 Eq. 25: Bellamy v. Wells, 39 W. R. 158: 7 T. L. R. 135: Christie v. Davey [1893] 1 Ch. 316), unless made in exercise of statutory powers and without negligence. Harrison v. Southwark and Vauxhall W. W. Co. [1891] 2 Ch. 409: Colwell v. Mayor, etc., of St. Pancras [1904] 1 Ch. 707; 68 J. P. Rep. 286.

A distinction has been drawn between quiet and noisy neighbourhoods in considering whether the quantum of noise is sufficient to justify legal proceedings. Sturges v. Bridgman, 11 Ch. D. 852; 48 L. J. (Ch.) 875.

It has been held that the defendant may prove that the business complained of as a nuisance was set up before the houses were built, or the roads constructed. R. v. Cross, 2 C. & P. 483; 31 R. R. 684. But in Hole v. Barlow, as reported in 27 L. J. (C. P.) 208, Byles, J., said that "it used to be thought that if a man knew there was a nuisance, and went and lived near it, he could not recover, because it was said it is he that goes to the nuisance, and not the nuisance to him. That used to be thought 100 years ago to be the law. That, however, is not the law now." But proof of its long continuance may justify a finding that it is not a nuisance in fact. Id. In R. v. Russell, 6 B. & C. 566; 9 D. & R. 566; 5 L. J. (K. B.) 221; 30 R. R. 432, it was said if a private person who goes to a nuisance may maintain an action in respect of it, it is difficult to see why, where the public go to a nuisance, an indictment may not be sustained for its continuance: or in a neighbourhood where there were already established other trades, etc., emitting smells extremely offensive or insalubrious, and which smells were not perceptibly increased by the alleged nuisance in question. R. v. Neville, Peake (3rd ed.), 125; 3 R. R. 662: R. v. Watts, M. & M. 281. It is no defence to say that the alleged nuisance has existed for a number of years: for no length of time will legalize a public nuisance. Dewell v. Saunders, Cro. Jac. 490: R. v. Cross, ubi supra: and see Weld v. Hornby, 7 East, 195, 199, Ellenborough, C.J.: Bliss v. Hall, 4 Bing. N. C. 183; 7 Rep. Crim. Law Commissioners, 59; Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (6th ed.) 140, n.. In R. v. Russell, ubi supra, it was said that in judging of a public nuisance the public good it does might in some cases, where the public health was not concerned, be taken into consideration, to see if the public benefit outweighed the public annoyance; but this doctrine was overruled in R. v. Ward, 4 A. & E. 384; 6 Nev. & M. 38; 5 L. J. (K. B.) 221, where it was held to be no answer to an indictment for a nuisance in a harbour, by erecting an embankment, that although the work was in some degree a hindrance to navigation, it was advantageous in a greater degree to the other uses of the port. See also the observations of Jessel, M.R., on R. v. Russell, in Att.-Gen. v. Terry, L. R. 9 Ch. 423, 426, n: and see Att.-Gen. v. L. N. W. R. [1900] 2 Q. B. 78: R. v. Morris, 1 B. & Ad. 441: R. v. Tindall, 1 Nev. & P. 719; 6 A. & E. 143; 6 L. J. (M. C.) 97: R. v. Randall, C. & Mar. 496: R. v. Betts, 16 Q. B. 1022: R. v. Train, 2 B. & S. 640; 31 L. J. (M. C.) 169; 9 Cox, 180. A statute may, however, authorize and legalize acts which would otherwise amount to a nuisance. Defendants were authorized by Act of Parliament to make a railway, which ran by the side of a highway, and to use locomotives upon the railway. Horses upon the highway were frightened by the locomotives, but it was held, by the Court of King's Bench, that the defendants were not liable to be indicted for a nuisance, as the Act of Parliament had given them unqualified authority to use the locomotives. R. v. Pease, 4 B. & Ad. 30; 2 L. J. (M. C.) 26; 38 R. R. 207. The authority of R. v. Pease was impugned by Bramwell, B., in Powell v. Fall, 5 Q. B. D. 597, but appears to be fully established by the decisions of the House of Lords in Hammersmith, etc., Rail. Co. v. Brand, L. R. 4 H. L. 171, and London, Brighton and South Coast Rail. Co. v. Truman, 11 App. Cas. 45: Withington Local Board v. Mayor, etc., of Manchester [1893] 2 Ch. 19: Att.-Gen. v. Mayor, etc., of Nottingham [1904] 1 Ch. 673. But the statutory authority will not protect those who have it unless (1) it is given specifically or by necessary implication (Metrop. Asylums Managers v. Hill, 6 App. Cas. 193, and cases above cited: Canadian Pacific Rail. Co. v. Parke [1899] App. Cas. 535); and (2) the manner of doing it follows the authority of the statute, and avoids causing a nuisance if it can be avoided by reasonable care. London, Brighton and South Coast Rail. Co. v. Truman, 11 App. Cas. 45; Beven, Negligence (2nd ed.), 345; Hardcastle on Statutes (3rd ed.), 278. It is not unusual for a statute expressly to reserve liability to indictment for nuisance. This is done as to gasworks by the Gas Works Clauses Acts, 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 15, s. 29) and 1871 (34 & 35 Vict. c. 41, s. 9). See Att.-Gen. v. Gas Light and Coke Co., 7 Ch. D. 217: Jordeson v. Hull Gas Co. [1899] 2 Ch. 217; 68 L. J. (Ch.) 457: and as to electric lighting authorities by their provisional orders or special Acts, see Colwell v. Mayor, etc., of St. Pancras [1904] 1 Ch. 707; and as to the use of locomotives on highways by 24 & 25 Vict. c. 70, s. 13; 28 & 29 Vict. c. 83, s. 12 (post, p. 1214); and as to alkali works by 44 & 45 Vict. c. 37, s. 1, and 55 & 56 Vict. c. 30.

The provisions for summary prosecution of nuisances under the Public Health Act, 1875, do not take away the remedy by indictment. 38 & 39 Vict. c. 55, s. 111 (ante, p. 1182); 54 & 55 Vict. c. 76, s. 138 (London): Att.-Gen. v. Logan [1891] 2 Q. B. 100. A summary conviction for causing noxious effluvia by a trade process has been held inadmissible in favour of the Crown on a subsequent indictment at common law for the same offence. R. v. Fairrie, 8 Cox, 66.

It was laid down in Hole v. Barlow, 4 C. B. (N. S.) 334; 27 L. J. (C. P.) 208, that an action does not lie for the reasonable use of a lawful trade in a convenient place, although it may annoy another. But this case was overruled by Bamford v. Turnley, 3 B. & S. 62, 66; 31 L. J. (Q. B.) 286 (Ex. Ch.). See also Cavey v. Leadbitter, 13 C. B. (N. S.) 470; 32 L. J. (C. P.) 104: St. Helens Smelting Co. (Limited) v. Tipping, 11 H. L. C. 642: Shotts Iron Co. v. Inglis, 7 App. Cas. 518: Att.-Gen. v. Cole [1901] 1 Ch. 205. These decisions appear to apply equally to indictments.

Where works are so carried on as to be a nuisance, it is no answer to an indictment against the master for the nuisance, that he did not personally superintend the works, and that he had given express orders to the workmen that they should be carried on in a mode which, if followed, would have prevented their causing a nuisance. R. v. Stephens, L. R. 1 Q. B. 702; 35 L. J. (Q. B.) 251; 7 B. & S. 510; 11 Cox, 340. It was, however, held that an employer was not criminally responsible for a smoke nuisance caused by his servant using a furnace in a negligent manner, and that the employer could not be convicted under such circumstances of an offence under the Smoke Nuisance (Metropolis) Act (16 & 17 Vict. c. 128), s. 1 (rep.). Chisholm v. Doulton, 22 Q. B. D. 736; 58 L. J. (M. C.) 133 (and see ante, p. 33). That Act is repealed and superseded by 54 & 55 Vict. c. 76, s. 23.

Indictment for selling Food unfit for Human Consumption.
(Common Law.)

A precedent for this will be found in R. v. Dixon, 3 M. & Sel. 11; 15 R. R. 381. The offence is now usually dealt with summarily under ss. 116–119 of the Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 55), and in London under s. 47 of the Public Health (London) Act, 1891. Under the latter section the defendant can elect to be indicted (see 42 & 43 Vict. c. 49, s. 17, ante, p. 6). For a precedent of such indictment, see R. v. Dennis [1894] 2 Q. B. 458 (C. C. R.). To expose for sale, or to have possession of, with intent to sell, meat unfit for food, is a nuisance at common law; Shillito v. Thompson, 1 Q. B. D. 12; 45 L. J. (M. C.) 18, and cases collected ante, p. 1163; and if death results from eating such meat, the seller may be indicted for manslaughter. R. v. Stevenson, 2 F. & F. 106: R. v. Kempson, 28 L. J. Newsp. 477 (ante, p. 798). It may be questioned whether the offence is a public nuisance or a common law cheat, as to which see ante, pp. 618–620, and R. v. Roebuck, Dears. & B. 24; 25 L. J. (M. C.) 101 (ante, p. 612). If the latter, knowledge of the condition of the food is essential.

(b) ACTS INJURIOUS TO PUBLIC SAFETY.

Common Law.

Under this head fall such cases as keeping a fierce and unruly bull in a field crossed by a public footway, Cro. Circ. Comp. 310; keeping a ferocious dog unmuzzled, Cro. Circ. Comp. 311; baiting a bull in the highway, 4 Went. 213; keeping naphtha in a populous place in such quantities as to cause terror or danger, R. v. Lister, D. & B. 209; 26 L. J. (M. C.) 196: see, too, Williams v. H. E. I. C., 3 East, 192; 6 R. R. 589; keeping gunpowder or other explosives in dangerous proximity to streets or houses, 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 784, n.: R. v. Taylor, 2 Str. 1167; allowing a house near a highway to be ruinous, R. v. Watts, 1 Salk. 357: R. v. Watson, 2 Ld. Raym. 856; having an unfenced excavation near a highway, Hardcastle v. South Yorks. Ry. Co., 4 H. & N. 67: Barnes v. Ward, 9 C. B. 392. Negligently blasting stone in a quarry, and thereby projecting large pieces of stone so as to endanger the safety of persons in houses and on the highways adjoining the quarry, is a misdemeanor indictable at common law. R. v. Mutters, L. & C. 491; 34 L. J. (M. C.) 22. As to allowing a quarry near a highway to be unfenced, see Hounsell v. Smith, 7 C. B. (N. S.) 731; 29 L. J. (C. P.) 203: R. v. Clerk of Assize of Oxford Circuit [1897] 1 Q. B. 370; 18 Cox, 518. The making and selling of fireworks or throwing them about in the street was declared a common nuisance by 9 & 10 W. 3, c. 7 (rep.). R. v. Bennett, Bell, 1; 28 L. J. (M. C.)

27; 8 Cox, 74. The manufacture is now regulated by the Explosives Act, 1875, and lighting them in a street is summarily punishable under s. 80 of that Act, but apparently without prejudice to a remedy by indictment where a nuisance is created. (See post, p. 1188.) In R. v. Meade [1903] 19 T. L. R. 540, Wills, J., held an indictment good which contained a count for going abroad in a public street armed without lawful occasion so as to be a nuisance and terror to the public (and see ante, p. 1107).

Statutes.

Storage of petroleum.]—The Petroleum Acts, 1871 (34 & 35 Vict. c. 105), 1879 (42 & 43 Vict. c. 47), and 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 67), which are to be read together, provide numerous penalties summarily recoverable for breach of their regulations as to storage, carriage, etc., of inflammable substances. The penalties are for the most part recoverable summarily (see 34 & 35 Vict. c. 105, s. 15), but s. 18 of the Act of 1871 provides "that nothing in this Act contained shall be deemed to exempt any person from any penalty to which he would otherwise be subject in respect of a nuisance." In the case of petroleum, etc., for the use of light locomotives, the Acts apply only subject to Home Office regulations under 59 & 60 Vict. c. 36, s. 5. See Statutory Rules and Orders Revised (ed. 1904), vol. 8, tit. "Locomotive," p. 3.

Storage of explosives.]—The Explosives Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 17), is "An Act to amend the law with respect to manufacturing, keeping, selling, carrying, and importing gunpowder, nitro-glycerine, and other explosive substances," and contains a variety of regulations on all these subjects, enforcing them by forfeitures and pecuniary penalties, with the alternative of imprisonment. In order to give a complete view of the subject, it would be necessary to insert the whole statute; but as the branch of law to which it relates is not likely, excepting in few cases, to form the subject of inquiry on indictment, as it may generally be enforced by courts of summary jurisdiction, it has not been thought desirable to do more than insert the following sections, which show when offences against the Act may, and when they must, be prosecuted by indictment.

38 & 39 Vict. c. 17, s. 91.]—Every offence under this Act may be prosecuted, and every penalty under this Act may be recovered, and all explosives and ingredients liable to be forfeited under this Act may be forfeited either on indictment or before a court of summary jurisdiction, in manner directed by the Summary Jurisdiction Acts. Provided that the penalty imposed by a court of summary jurisdiction shall not exceed one hundred pounds exclusive of costs, and exclusive of any forfeiture or penalty in lieu of forfeiture, and the term of imprisonment imposed by any such court shall not exceed one month. . . .

Sect. 92.—Election to be tried on indictment.]—Where a person is accused before a court of summary jurisdiction of any offence under this Act, the penalty for which offence as assigned by this Act, exclusive of forfeiture, exceeds one hundred pounds, the accused may, on appearing before the court of summary jurisdiction, declare that he objects to being tried for such offence by a court of summary jurisdiction, and thereupon the court of summary jurisdiction may deal with the case in all respects as if the accused were charged with an indictable offence, and not an offence punishable on summary conviction, and the offence may be prosecuted on indictment accordingly. [See R. v. Chambers, 65 L. J. (M. C.) 214; 18 Cox, 401, ante, p. 1162.]

Sect 102.]— . . . This Act shall not exempt any person from any indictment or other proceeding for a nuisance, or for an offence which is indictable at common law, or by any Act of Parliament other than this Act, so that no person be punished twice for the same offence. [See 52 & 53 Vict. c. 63, s. 38, ante, p. 170.]

When proceedings are taken before any court against any person in respect of any offence under this Act which is also an offence at common law, or by some Act of Parliament other than this Act, the court may direct that, instead of such proceedings being continued, proceedings shall be taken for indicting such person at common law or under some Act of Parliament other than this Act. . . .

(c) ACTS INJURIOUS TO PUBLIC DECENCY, MORALS, OR ORDER. OPEN AND NOTORIOUS LEWDNESS.

Common Law.

It is a misdemeanor indictable at common law publicly to expose the naked person. R. v. Sedley, 17 St. Tr. 155, n.; 1 Sid. 168; 1 Keb. 620; and see 1 East, P. C. p. 3: R. v. Gallard, 1 Sess. Cas. 231: R. v. Newcastle-on-Tyne Justices, 1 B. & Ad. 933: R. v. Rowed, 3 Q. B. 180; 11 L. J. (M. C.) 74 (see ante, p. 926).

An indecent exposure, though in a place of public resort, if visible only by one person, is not indictable as a common nuisance. R. v. Webb, 1 Den. 338; 18 L. J. (M. C.) 39; 2 C. & K. 933; 3 Cox, 183: R. v. Watson, 2 Cox, 376: see R. v. Elliott, L. & C. 103: R. v. Farrell, 9 Cox, 446 (C. C. R. Ir.). An omnibus is a public place sufficient to support the indictment. R. v. Holmes, Dears. 207; 22 L. J. (M. C.) 122. In R. v. Orchard, 2 Cox, 248, an enclosed urinal, to which the public had free access, in a public market, was held not to be a public place. But in R. v. Harris, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 282; 40 L. J. (M. C.) 67, Bovill, C.J., said that he could not think that all the facts had been stated in the report of R. v. Orchard, and that he could not understand that case as reported. In R. v. Harris, ubi supra, it was held, that an urinal open to the public and approached by a gate opening from a public footpath, but built in compartments, is such a public place as to make an act of indecency committed in the urinal and witnessed by two persons an indictable nuisance. It is not necessary that the exposure should be made in a place open to the public; it is sufficient if it be made where a number of persons may be offended by it, and several see it. R. v. Thallman, L. & C. 326; 33 L. J. (M. C.) 58; 9 Cox, 388. The prisoner was convicted of indecently exposing his person to divers subjects of the Queen in a certain public place, upon evidence showing that the place in question was out of sight of the public footpath, but was a place to which the prisoner had gone with several little girls, though without any legal right to go there, and was a place to which persons were in the habit of going without any strict legal right so to do, and that persons so going were never in any way hindered or interfered with. On a case reserved, the court held that the conviction was correct, and that the jury were justified in finding that the place was public. R. v. Wellard, 14 Q. B. D. 63; 54 L. J. (M. C.)

14. Semble, that the offence of indecent exposure of the person may be indictable if committed before several persons, even if the place be not public. Id. (a). Men who bathe without any screen or covering, so near to a public footpath that exposure of their persons must necessarily occur, are guilty of an indictable nuisance. R. v. Reed, 12 Cox, 1, Cockburn, C.J.; and see 41 & 42 Vict. c. 14, s. 11. Nor is it any defence that there has been, so long as living memory extends, an usage so as to bathe at the place, and that there has been no exposure beyond what is necessarily incidental to such bathing. Id. See also R. v. Crunden, 2 Camp. 89; 11 R. R. 671.

As to obscene libels and exhibitions, see post, p. 1190.

Indictment against a Man for publicly exposing his Naked Person. (Common Law.)

Middlesex, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. S., being a scandalous and evil-disposed person, and devising, contriving, and intending the morals of divers liege subjects of our lord the King to debauch and corrupt, on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, on a certain public and common highway situate in the parish of ——, in the county of M., in the presence of divers liege subjects of our said lord the King then there being, and within sight and view of divers other liege subjects through and on the said highway then there passing and repassing, unlawfully, wickedly, and scandalously did expose to the view of the said persons so present, and so passing and repassing as aforesaid, the body and person of him the said J. S. naked and uncovered, for a long space of time, to wit, for the space of one hour; to the great scandal of the said liege subjects of our said lord the King, to the manifest corruption of their morals, in contempt of our said lord the King and his laws, to the evil example of all others in the like case offending, and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity. The allegation that the offence was committed "within sight and view of divers liege subjects," etc., appears to be necessary. See R. v. Webb, 1 Den. 338; 2 C. & K. 938; 18 L. J. (M. C.) 39; 3 Cox, 183. The indictment need not conclude in commune nocumentum. R. v. Holmes, Dears. 207; 22 L. J. (M. C.) 122; 6 Cox, 216; and see 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 25 (ante, pp. 54, 86).

Misdemeanor at common law: fine or imprisonment (with or without hard labour, 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 29, ante, p. 238), or both.

The offence is now usually punished summarily under s. 4 of the Vagrancy Act, 1824 (5 G. 4, c. 83), where the intent is to insult any female; and cf. 2 & 3 Vict. c. 47, s. 54 (12); 10 & 11 Vict. c. 89, s. 28 (which is applied to urban districts by 38 & 39 Vict. c. 55, s. 171); and 41 & 42 Vict. c. 14, s. 11.

Evidence.

Prove the place to be public, (a) the exposure to be deliberate, and that it took place in the view of several persons.

(a) In R. v. Madercine [1899] 20 N. S. W. Rep. (Law), 86, on a case reserved, it was held that exposure of the person on the verandah of a private house, in the presence of a number of children, was indictable at common law, and it seems to have been considered that the word "public" in the indictment was unnecessary. The court relied on the dicta of the judges in R. v. Wellard, and on R. v. Bunyan, 1 Cox, 74, where a conviction took place on evidence that two persons had locked themselves in a room in a public-house, and had been seen behaving indecently through the window of another room by a servant, who fetched a constable.

OBSCENE LIBELS, EXHIBITIONS, ETC.

Common Law.

Libels.]—The publication of any obscene libel is a misdemeanor punishable at common law on indictment or information. 1 Hawk. c. 73, s. 9: R. v. Curl, 2 Str. 788: R. v. Wilkes, 4 Burr. 2527, 2574: R. v. Hicklin, L. R. 3 Q. B. 360; 37 L. J. (M. C.) 80. "The test of obscenity is whether the tendency of the matter charged as obscenity is to deprave and corrupt those whose minds are open to such immoral influences and into whose hands a publication of this sort may fall." R. v. Hicklin, L. R. 3 Q. B. at p. 371, Cockburn, C.J.

In R. v. Thompson, 64 J. P. 456, a prosecution for publishing the Heptameron, Bosanquet, Common Serjeant, directed the jury to consider the book as a whole, as well as the extracts referred to in the particulars, and to consider the circumstances of the publication and the nature of the general business of the defendant before deciding whether the publication was with "intent to corrupt" public morals.

The obtaining and procuring of obscene prints, with intent to sell them, is a misdemeanor (see ante, p. 3); but the mere keeping of them with that intent is not. Dugdale v. R., 1 E. & B. 435; Dears. 64; 22 L. J. (M. C.) 50. But may be the subject of summary proceedings under 20 & 21 Vict. c. 83, s. 1 (post, p. 1191).

The indiscriminate publication of a pamphlet, half of which relates to controversial questions which are not obscene, but the other half of which is obscene, as relating to impure acts and words, is a misdemeanor, and proper to be prosecuted as such, although the publisher does not sell the pamphlet for the purposes of gain, nor to prejudice good morals,—although the indiscriminate sale of it is calculated to have that effect,—but sells it as a member of a politico-religious society, to promote the objects of that society, and to expose what he deems to be the errors of the Church of Rome, and particularly the immorality of the confessional. R. v. Hicklin, ubi supra: Steele v. Brannan, L. R. 7 C. P. 261; 41 L. J. (M. C.) 85. And the publication of an accurate report of a trial for the misdemeanor of publishing an obscene pamphlet, in which report such obscene pamphlet, which was in evidence on the trial, is fully set out, is not privileged on the ground of being a report of proceedings in a court of justice, but such publication of the trial is itself an indictable misdemeanor. Steele v. Brannan, ubi supra. 51 & 52 Vict. c. 64, s. 3 (ante, p. 1121), which gives a modified protection to newspaper reports of judicial proceedings, and s. 4 of the same statute (ante, p. 1121), which gives a modified protection to newspaper reports of public meetings; both contain provisoes that nothing in those sections shall authorize the publication of any indecent matter. As to whether such a publication can in any case be justified, see Steph. Dig. Cr. Law (6th ed.), pp. 133, 134.

Exhibitions.]—The prisoners were indicted in one count for keeping a booth for the purpose of showing an indecent exhibition; in a second, for showing for gain an indecent exhibition in a booth; in a third, for showing an indecent exhibition in a public place. It was proved that during the Epsom races the prisoners kept a booth on Epsom Downs for the purpose of an indecent exhibition, that they invited people to enter, and that those who paid entered and saw an indecent exhibition. It was held, that the prisoners had committed an indictable offence, and that it was well laid in the indictment. R. v. Saunders, 1 Q. B. D. 15; 45 L. J. (M. C.) 11; 13 Cox, 116. Where the exhibition is exposed to view in a street, road, highway, or public place, or in the window or other part of any shop or building situate in any street, etc., it is also punishable under s. 4 of the Vagrancy Act, 1824 (5 G. 4, c. 83), and s. 2 of the Vagrancy Act, 1838 (1 & 2 Vict. c. 38).

A herbalist who publicly exposes in his shop, on a highway, a picture of a man naked to his waist and covered with sores, is guilty of a nuisance although there is nothing immoral or indecent in the picture, and the motive for its exhibition is innocent. R. v. Grey, 4 F. & F. 73; and see R. v. Clark, 15 Cox, 170 (post, p. 1208).

Statutes.

20 & 21 Vict. c. 83 (Obscene Publications Act, 1857: "Lord Campbell's Act"), s. 1—Search under warrant for, and destruction of, obscene prints, etc.]—"Whereas it is expedient to give additional powers for the suppression of the trade in obscene books, prints, drawings, and other obscene articles:" be it enacted as follows:

1. It shall be lawful for any metropolitan police magistrate, or other stipendiary magistrate, or for any two justices of the peace, upon complaint made before him or them upon oath that the complainant has reason to believe, and does believe, that any obscene books, papers, writings, prints, pictures, drawings, or other representations are kept in any house, shop, room, or other place within the limits of the jurisdiction of any such magistrate or justices, for the purpose of sale or distribution, exhibition for purposes of gain, lending upon hire, or being otherwise published for purposes of gain, which complainant shall also state upon oath that one or more articles of the like character have been sold, distributed, exhibited, lent, or otherwise published as aforesaid, at or in connection with such place so as to satisfy such magistrate or justices that the belief of the said complainant is well founded, and upon such magistrate or justices being also satisfied that any of such articles so kept for any of the purposes aforesaid are of such a character and description that the publication of them would be a misdemeanor and proper to be prosecuted as such, to give authority by special warrant to any constable or police officer into such house, shop, room, or other place, with such assistance as may be necessary, to enter in the daytime, and if necessary to use force, by breaking open doors or otherwise, and to search for and seize all such books, papers, writings, prints, pictures, drawings, or other representations as aforesaid found in such house, shop, room, or other place, and to carry all the articles so seized before the magistrate or justices issuing the said warrant, or some other magistrate or justices exercising the same jurisdiction; and such magistrate or justices shall thereupon issue a summons calling upon the occupier of the house or other place which may have been so entered by virtue of the said warrant to appear within seven days before such police, stipendiary magistrate, or any two justices in petty sessions for the district, to show cause why the articles so seized should not be destroyed; and if such occupier or some other person claiming to be the owner of the said articles shall not appear within the time aforesaid, or shall appear, and such magistrate or justices shall be satisfied that such articles or any of them are of the character stated in the warrant, and that such or any of them have been kept for any of the purposes aforesaid, it shall be lawful for the said magistrate or justices, and he or they are hereby required to order the articles so seized, except such of them as he or they may consider necessary to be preserved as evidence in some further proceeding, to be destroyed at the expiration of the time hereinafter allowed for lodging an appeal (see s. 4), unless notice of appeal as hereinafter mentioned be given, and such articles shall be in the meantime impounded; and if such magistrate or justices shall be satisfied that the articles seized are not of the character stated in the warrant or have not been kept for any of the purposes aforesaid, he or they shall forthwith direct them to be restored to the occupier of the house or other place in which they were seized. [A warrant or an order under the section is bad unless it states that the publication of the prints, etc., ordered to be destroyed are of such a character that the publication would be a misdemeanor fit to be prosecuted as such. Ex parte Bradlaugh, 8 Q. B. D. 509; 47 L. J. (M. C.) 107.]

51 & 52 Vict. c. 64 (Law of Libel Amendment Act, 1888), s. 7—Obscene matter need not be set forth in indictment or other judicial proceeding.]—It shall not be necessary to set out in any indictment or other judicial proceeding instituted against the publisher of any obscene libel the obscene passages; but it shall be sufficient to deposit the book, newspaper, or other documents containing the alleged libel with the indictment or other judicial proceeding, together with particulars showing precisely by reference to pages, columns, and lines in what part of the book, newspaper, or other document the alleged libel is to be found, and such particulars shall be deemed to form part of the record, and all proceedings may be taken thereon as though the passages complained of had been set out in the indictment or judicial proceeding. [This was enacted in consequence of Bradlaugh v. R., 8 Q. B. D. 607; 48 L. J. (*M. Indictment for publicly selling an Obscene Print. (Common Law.)

Central Criminal Court, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. S., being a scandalous and evil-disposed person, and devising, contriving, and intending the morals as well of youth as of divers other liege subjects of our said lord the King to debauch and corrupt, and to raise and create in their minds inordinate and lustful desires, and the clergy of this kingdom to bring into great contempt, hatred, scandal, infamy, and disgrace, on the third day of April, A.D. ——, at the parish of ——, in the county of London, and within the jurisdiction of the said court, in a certain open and public shop of him the said J. S. there situate, unlawfully, wickedly, maliciously, and scandalously * did sell, utter, and publish to one J. N., a certain lewd, wicked, scandalous, and obscene print, or paper, intituled, "The Parson receiving Tithes in Kind," representing a man in the habit of a clergyman, in an obscene, impudent, and indecent posture with a woman; and which said lewd, wicked, scandalous, and obscene print or paper is contained in a certain printed pamphlet then and there uttered and sold by him the said J. S. to the said J. N., intituled "The Covent Garden Magazine, or Amorous Repository, calculated solely for the Entertainment of the Polite World, for April, 1773;" to the manifest corruption of the morals as well of youth as of other liege subjects of our said lord the King, to the great scandal, infamy, and disgrace of the clergy of this kingdom; in contempt, etc. [as ante, p. 1189]. See the precedents, 2 Chit. Cr. L. 42, et seq. It would seem that a count charging the "publishing" merely is good: and that it is unnecessary to state to whom the print was uttered.

A count charging possession of an obscene print "with intent to publish" states no indictable offence. R. v. Rosenstein, 2 C. & P. 414; 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 633, n.: Dugdale v. R., Dears. 64 (ante, p. 1190). But such possession may be the subject of summary proceedings under 20 & 21 Vict. c. 83, s. 1 (ante, p. 1189).

Where the print or picture is publicly exposed to view in a street, highway, road, or public place, or in a shop window, the publication is also punishable summarily under s. 4 of the Vagrancy Act, 1824 (5 G. 4, c. 83, s. 4): see the Vagrancy Act, 1838 (1 & 2 Vict. c. 38, s. 2).

For precedents of indictments for keeping a room for the purpose of exhibiting obscene prints or performances, see 2 Chit. Cr. L. 48: R. v. Saunders, 1 Q. B. D. 15; 13 Cox, 116.

Misdemeanor at common law: fine or imprisonment, or both. R. v. Wilkes, 4 Burr. 2527, 2574. Imprisonment may be with hard labour if the book was publicly sold or exposed to public view or for public sale. 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 29 (ante, p. 238).

Indictment for selling and publishing Obscene Books, etc. (Common Law.)

An indictment for selling or publishing an obscene book may be in the form of the preceding precedent down to the * [omitting the words referring to the clergy], and continuing]—did sell, publish, and utter to one E. F. a certain indecent, lewd, wicked, scandalous, and obscene libel in the form of a book intituled "The ——," and containing divers lewd, impure, gross, bawdy, and obscene matters; to the manifest corruption, etc. [as ante].

A second count may be added for "unlawfully obtaining and procuring" the said book "in order and for the purpose of afterwards unlawfully and wickedly uttering and publishing, selling, and disseminating and causing to be uttered, published, sold, and disseminated the said book to and amongst the liege subjects of our said lord the King, and thereby contaminating, vitiating, and corrupting the morals of the said liege subjects, and bringing the said liege subjects into a state of wickedness, lewdness, debauchery, and immorality; in contempt," etc. [as ante, p. 1189]. As to this count, see Dugdale v. R. (ante, p. 1190). It seems to be no defence that the libel is in a foreign language. R. v. Hirsch, London County Sessions, March, 1899, 34 L. J. Newsp. 132. But if it is, a translation of the obscene words must be included in the particulars. See R. v. Peltier, 28 St. Tr. 589; and ante, p. 991.

It is unnecessary to set out the obscene passages on an indictment for publication of an obscene libel (51 & 52 Vict. c. 64, s. 7, ante, p. 1119); but it would seem still to be necessary to do so in an indictment for "procuring" with intent to publish. When the indictment is for publishing, it is sufficient to deposit with the indictment particulars as provided by that section, which may be in the following form:—

R. v. ——.

Particulars of Obscene Libels contained in (Books) intituled ——.

Count 1 of indictment]—book intituled the ——, beginning at page ——, line ——, and ending at page ——, line ——, with the words —— (and so on with other counts and passages).

Evidence.

Under the indictment on p. 1192 give the print in evidence, and prove that J. N. purchased it of the defendant, or of his servant, at his shop.

Put in evidence the print or book, or the passages of the book included in the particulars, and prove that it was purchased of the defendant, or his servant, or at his shop, or otherwise published by him. As to publication of libels generally, see ante, pp. 993, 1130.

The tables and contents of other books on sale upon the premises where the book is said to have been sold may be relevant evidence on the question whether the sale was with intent to corrupt public morals. R. v. Thompson, 64 J. P. 546, Bosanquet, Common Serjeant.

DISORDERLY HOUSES: INCLUDING BAWDY-HOUSES, GAMING-HOUSES, AND BETTING-HOUSES.

General Statutory Provisions as to Disorderly Houses.

25 G. 2, c. 36 (Disorderly Houses Act, 1751), s. 2—Unlicensed places of public entertainment within certain limits declared disorderly houses.]—And whereas the multitude of places of entertainment for the lower sort of people is another great cause of thefts and robberies, as they are thereby tempted to spend their small substance in riotous pleasures, and in consequence are put on unlawful methods of supplying their wants and renewing their pleasures: in order, therefore, to prevent the said temptation to thefts and robberies, and to correct as far as may be the habit of idleness which is becoming general over the whole kingdom, and is productive of much mischief and inconvenience, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid that:

From and after the 1st day of December, 1752, any house, room, garden, or other place kept for public dancing, music, or other public entertainment of the like kind, in the cities of London and Westminster, or within twenty miles thereof [except in the administrative county of Middlesex, 56 & 57 Vict. c. 15], without a licence had for that purpose from the last preceding Michaelmas quarter sessions of the peace to be holden for the county, city, riding, liberty, or division in which such house, room, garden, or other place is situate (who are hereby authorized and empowered to grant such licence as they in their discretion shall think proper), signified under the hands and seals of four or more of the justices there assembled, shall be deemed a disorderly house or place . . .

[provisions as to mode of granting licence and entry of police] . . . and every person keeping such house, room, garden, or other place without such licence as aforesaid shall forfeit the sum of 100*l.* to such person as will sue for the same, and be otherwise punishable as the law directs in cases of disorderly houses. [See R. v. Tucker, 2 Q. B. D. 417; 46 L. J. (M. C.) 197; 13 Cox, 600. This enactment applies only to the old cities of London and Westminster, and places within twenty miles thereof. The functions of the justices within this area were transferred by s. 3 of the Local Government Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 41), to County Councils. The present administrative county of Middlesex is no longer subject to the Act, 56 & 57 Vict. c. 15. The licensing of such places outside the twenty-mile limit is regulated by 53 & 54 Vict. c. 59, s. 51.]

Sect. 3.]—Inscription over licensed places; conditions and revocation of licence.

Sect. 4.]—Saving as to theatres carried on under letters patent or licence from the Lord Chamberlain.

Sect. 5.]—Provisions for prosecution of disorderly houses on complaint of inhabitants. [Amended 58 G. 3, c. 70; and see post, p. 1196.]

Sect. 6.]—Warrant to arrest keepers of such houses; and provisions for committal for trial. [See R. v. Newton [1892] 1 Q. B. 648, and post, p. 1196.]

Sect. 8—Persons to be deemed to keep disorderly houses.]—And whereas, by reason of the many subtle and crafty contrivances of persons keeping bawdy-houses, gaming-houses, or other disorderly houses, it is difficult to prove who is the real owner or keeper thereof, by which means many notorious offenders have escaped punishment: be it enacted, etc., that any person who shall at any time hereafter appear, act, or behave him or herself as master or mistress, or as the person having the care, government, or management of any bawdy-house, gaming-house, or other disorderly house, shall be deemed and taken to be the keeper thereof, and shall be liable to be prosecuted and punished as such, notwithstanding he or she shall not in fact be the real owner or keeper thereof.

Sect. 10—No certiorari.]—And . . . no indictment which shall at any time after the said 1st day of June [1752] be preferred against any person for keeping a bawdy-house, gaming-house, or other disorderly house, shall be removed by any writ of certiorari into any other court; but such indictment shall be heard, tried, and finally determined at the same general or quarter session (sic) or assizes where such indictment shall have been preferred (unless the court shall think proper, upon cause shown, to adjourn the same), any such writ or allowance thereof notwithstanding.

Bawdy-houses.

A common bawdy-house is a house or room, or set of rooms in any house, kept for purposes of prostitution. Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (6th ed.) 142. A "brothel" is the same thing as a "bawdy-house," and is a term which in its legal acceptation applies to a place resorted to by persons of both sexes for the purposes of prostitution. Singleton v. Ellison [1895] 1 Q. B. 608, Wright, J. A woman who occupies a house frequented by men for the purpose of committing fornication with her, cannot be convicted of keeping a "brothel." Id. Until the passing of 48 & 49 Vict. c. 69, s. 13, infra, the offence of keeping a bawdy-house was only punishable on indictment at common law.

Statute.

48 & 49 Vict. c. 69 (Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1885), s. 13—Suppression of brothels, etc.]—Any person who—

(1) Keeps or manages or assists in the management of a brothel; or,

(2) Being the tenant, lessee, or occupier of any premises, knowingly permits such premises or any part thereof to be used as a brothel or for the purposes of habitual prostitution; or,

(3) Being the lessor or landlord of any premises, or the agent of such lessee or landlord, lets the same or any part thereof with the knowledge that such premises or some part thereof are or is to be used as a brothel, or is wilfully a party to the continued use of such premises or any part thereof as a brothel,

Shall on summary conviction, in manner provided by the Summary Jurisdiction Acts, be liable—

(1) To a penalty not exceeding 20*l.*, or, in the discretion of the court, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding three months, with or without hard labour; and

(2) On a second or subsequent conviction, to a penalty not exceeding 40*l.*, or, in the discretion of the court, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding four months, with or without hard labour. [Here follow provisions as to recognizances on a third or subsequent conviction and appeals from summary convictions, and as to application of ss. 5, 6, 7 of the Disorderly Houses Act, 1751, supra. See R. v. Newton [1892] 1 Q. B. 648: Kirwin v. Hines, 54 L. T. (N. S.) 610. A person accused under the section after a first conviction may elect to be indicted. 42 & 43 Vict. c. 49, s. 17 (ante, p. 6). And the indictment need not aver the fact of his election. R. v. Chambers, 65 L. J. (M. C.) 14; 18 Cox, 401.

The offence committed by a publican in permitting his house to be used as a brothel, contrary to s. 15 of the Licensing Act, 1872 (35 & 36 Vict. c. 94), is a continuing offence. Ex parte Burnby [1901] 2 K. B. 458; 20 Cox, 25.

Indictment for keeping a Bawdy-house. (Common Law.)

County of London, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. S., and A. his wife, on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, and on divers other days and times between that day and the day of the taking of this inquisition, at the parish of B., in the county of L., unlawfully did keep and maintain a certain common ill-governed and disorderly house; and in the said house, for the lucre and gain of him the said J. S., certain persons, as well men as women, of evil name and fame, and of dishonest conversation, then and on the said other days and times, there unlawfully and wilfully did cause and procure to frequent and come together; and the said men and women, in the said house of him the said J. S., at unlawful times, as well in the night as in the day, then and on the said other days and times, there to be and remain drinking, tippling, whoring, and misbehaving themselves, unlawfully and wilfully did permit, and yet do permit; to the great damage and common nuisance of all the liege subjects of our said lord the King there inhabiting, being, residing, and passing, to the evil example of all others in the like case offending, and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity.

Misdemeanor at common law: imprisonment (with or without hard labour, 3 G. 4, c. 114, ante, p. 287), or fine, or both. Counts may be joined for keeping a disorderly house other than a bawdy-house, or for keeping several bawdy-houses. 1 Burn's Justice (30th ed.), 1395; and see R. v. Higginson, 2 Burr. 1232, and 2 Chit. Cr. L. 39. Local description of the parish in which the house is situate seems to be necessary. The indictment may be in general terms, but particulars may be ordered. I'Anson v. Stuart, 1 T. R. 748, 752; 1 R. R. 392: Clarke v. Periam, 2 Atk. 337, 339. See ante, pp. 70, 71. No indictment can be preferred for keeping a bawdy-house, unless one or other of the preliminary steps required by 22 & 23 Vict. c. 17, s. 1, as extended by 30 & 31 Vict. c. 35, s. 1, has been taken. See ante, p. 7. If proceedings are taken under 25 G. 2, c. 36, ss. 5, 6, the magistrate need not take any depositions. A married woman may be indicted with her husband for this offence. R. v. Williams, 1 Salk. 384; 10 Mod. 63; and see R. v. Dixon, 10 Mod. 335. The indictment shall not be removed by certiorari; 25 G. 2, c. 36, s. 10 (ante, p. 1195); unless upon the part of the crown; R. v. Davies, 5 T. R. 626; 2 R. R. 683; and it shall be determined at the same sessions or assizes at which it is preferred, unless the court, upon cause shown, think proper to adjourn the same. 25 G. 2, c. 36, s. 10 (ante, p. 1195): see 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 27 (ante, p. 123). This offence is triable at the court of quarter sessions for a borough. R. v. Charles, L. & C. 90; 31 L. J. (M. C.) 69; 9 Cox, 18. Where the offence is committed within the limits of 25 G. 2, c. 36, s. 2 (ante, p. 1194), except the administrative county of Middlesex (ante, p. 1195), the indictment, if the facts so warrant, may also contain a count for keeping the house for public music or dancing without the licence of the county council or other licensing authority. As to the offence of procuring the defilement of girls, see ante, pp. 912, 920, et seq.

Evidence.

Prove that the house in question, or a room or rooms in it, were let out for the purposes mentioned in the indictment. And if a lodger let her apartment for the purpose of indiscriminate prostitution, it is as much a bawdy-house as if she held the whole house. R. v. Peirson, 2 Ld. Raym. 1197; 1 Salk. 382; 3 Co. Inst. 204. It is not necessary that there should be evidence of any indecency or disorderly conduct being perceptible from the exterior of the house. R. v. Rice, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 21; 35 L. J. (M. C.) 93: I'Anson v. Stuart, 1 T. R. 748; 1 R. R. 392: and cf. R. v. MacNamara, 20 Ontario, 489, as to evidence of reputation.

Secondly, prove that the defendants "acted or behaved as master or mistress, or as the persons having the care, government, or management" of the house in question; which is sufficient evidence that the defendants kept the house. 25 G. 2, c. 36, s. 8 (ante, p. 1195). Mere frequenters of the house seem not to be indictable; but see Wood's Inst. bk. 8, c. 3: Dalton, Country Justice, c. 124.

If a weekly tenant of a house use it as a brothel, and the landlord receive no additional rent by reason of its immoral occupation, the latter cannot be convicted of keeping a brothel merely because, having notice of the nature of the occupation, he does not give the tenant notice to quit; R. v. Barrett, L. & C. 263; 32 L. J. (M. C.) 86; 9 Cox, 255; nor would the landlord be liable to be so convicted even if at the time he let the house he knew that it was to be used for purposes of prostitution, and, by reason of its occupation as such, received an additional rent. R. v. Stannard, L. & C. 349; 33 L. J. (M. C.) 61; 9 Cox, 405: but the facts in this case would now justify proceedings under 48 & 49 Vict. c. 69, s. 13 (ante, p. 1196).

And thirdly, prove the house to be situate in the parish mentioned in the indictment; for this being matter of local description, it must be proved as laid, unless amended. [See ante, pp. 67, 298.]

On an indictment under 48 & 49 Vict. c. 69, s. 13, the evidence appears to be in substance the same as above. See Mead and Bodkin, Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1885, p. 72.

Gaming-houses.

33 H. 8, c. 9—Punishment of unlawful games.]—Excessive gaming, per se, is no longer a criminal offence, but may be evidence of unlawful gaming. As to what is now an unlawful game, see Jenks v. Turpin, 13 Q. B. D. 505: R. v. Rogier, 1 B. & C. 252; 2 D. & R. 431; 25 R. R. 393, and post, p. 1202.

8 & 9 Vict. c. 109 (Gaming Act, 1845), s. 2—Evidence of house being common gaming-house.]—In default of other evidence proving any house or place to be a common gaming-house, it shall be sufficient in support of the allegation in any indictment or information that any house or place is a common gaming-house, to prove that such house or place is kept or used for playing therein at any unlawful game, and that a bank is kept there by one or more of the players, exclusively of the others, or that the chances of any game played therein are not alike favourable to all the players, including among the players the banker or other person by whom the game is managed, or against whom the other players stake, play or bet; and every such house or place shall be deemed a common gaming-house, such as is contrary to law, and forbidden to be kept by the said Act of King Henry VIII. (33 H. 8, c. 9), and by all other Acts containing any provision against unlawful games or gaming-houses.

Sect. 4—Penalty for keeping common gaming-house.]—The owner or keeper of any common gaming-house, and every person having the care or management thereof, and also every banker, croupier, and other person who shall act in any manner in conducting the business of any common gaming-house, shall on conviction thereof, by his own confession, or by the oath of one or more credible witnesses, before any two justices of the peace, beside any penalty or punishment to which he may be liable under the provisions of the said Act of King Henry VIII. (33 H. 8, c. 9), be liable to forfeit and pay such penalty, not more than 100*l.* as shall be adjudged by the justices before whom he shall be convicted, or, in the discretion of the justices before whom he shall be convicted, may be committed to the house of correction, with or without hard labour, for any time not more than six calendar months [levy of penalties by distress] . . . Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall prevent any proceeding by indictment against the owner or keeper, or other person having the care or management of a common gaming-house: but no person who shall have been summarily convicted of any such offence shall be liable to be proceeded against by indictment for the same offence. [On a charge under this section the accused may elect to be indicted. 42 & 43 Vict. c. 49, s. 17, ante, p. 6; and see note to s. 4 of 17 & 18 Vict. c. 38, post, p. 1202.]

Sect. 5.]—It shall not be necessary, in support of any information for gaming in, or suffering any games or gaming in, or for keeping or using, or being concerned in the management or conduct of, a common gaming-house, to prove that any person found playing at any game was playing for any money, wager, or stake.

Sect. 6.]—Power to commissioners of metropolitan police to authorize superintendents and constables to enter gaming-houses in metropolitan police district and arrest persons there found and seize instruments of gaming, etc.

Sect. 7.]—Power to such superintendent and constable to search, etc.

Sect. 8—Evidence of gaming.]—Where any cards, dice, balls, counters, tables, or other instruments of gaming used in playing any unlawful game shall be found in any house, room, or place suspected to be used as a common gaming-house, and entered under a warrant or order issued under the provisions of this Act, or about the person of any of those who shall be found therein, it shall be evidence, until the contrary be made to appear, that such house, room, or place is used as a common gaming-house, and that the persons found in the room or place where such tables or instruments of gaming shall have been found were playing therein, although no play was actually going on in the presence of the superintendent or constable entering the same under a warrant or order issued under the provisions of this Act, or in the presence of those persons by whom he shall be accompanied as aforesaid. . . . [Power to magistrate to order destruction of instruments of gaming.]

Sect. 9.]—Persons concerned in gaming and giving evidence to be exempt from prosecution.

17 & 18 Vict. c. 38 (Gaming Houses Act, 1854), s. 2—Obstructing entry of constable to be evidence that house is a gaming-house.]—Where any constable or officer, authorized as aforesaid [under the Gaming Act, 1845 (8 & 9 Vict. c. 109, s. 3)] to enter any house, room, or place, is wilfully prevented from, or obstructed or delayed in entering the same, or any part thereof, or where any external or internal door of, or means of access to any such house, room, or place, so authorized to be entered, shall be found to be fitted or provided with any bolt, bar, chain, or any means or contrivance for the purpose of preventing, delaying, or obstructing the entry into the same, or any part thereof, of any constable or officer authorized as aforesaid, or for giving an alarm in case of such entry, or if any such house, room, or place, is found fitted or provided with any means or contrivance for unlawful gaming, or with any means or contrivance for concealing, removing, or destroying any instruments of gaming, it shall be evidence, until the contrary be made to appear, that such house, room, or place is used as a common gaming-house within the meaning of this Act and of the former Acts relating to gaming, and that the persons found therein were unlawfully playing therein.

Sect. 4—Penalty for keeping house, etc., for unlawful gaming.]—Post, p. 1201.

Indictment for keeping a Common Gaming-house. (Common Law.)

Commencement as in the last precedent]—at the parish of B., in the county of M., unlawfully did keep and maintain a certain common gaming-house; and in the said common gaming-house, for lucre and gain, on the said first day of June, in the year aforesaid, and on the said other days and times, there unlawfully and wilfully did cause and procure divers idle and evil-disposed persons to frequent and come, to play together at a certain unlawful game of cards called Rouge et noir:

and in the said common gaming-house, on the said first day of June, in the year aforesaid, and on the said other days and times, there unlawfully and wilfully did permit and suffer the said idle and evil-disposed persons to be and remain, playing and gaming at the same unlawful game called Rouge et noir, for divers large and excessive sums of money; to the great damage and common nuisance of all the liege subjects of our said lord the King, to the evil example [as ante, p. 1196]. (2nd Count.)—And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said J. S. afterwards, to wit, on the said first day of June, in the year aforesaid, and on divers other days and times between that day and the day of the taking of this inquisition, at the parish aforesaid, in the county aforesaid, unlawfully did keep and maintain a certain common gaming-room in the house of one J. N. there situate; and in the said common gaming-room, etc., etc., as in the last count, only substituting "gaming-room" for "gaming-house." The offence is a continuing offence. See Onley v. Gee, 30 L. J. (M. C.) 222: Ex parte Burnby [1901] 2 K. B. 458; 20 Cox, 28. This precedent was held good in R. v. Rogier, 2 D. & R. 431; 1 B. & C. 272; 25 R. R. 393: cf. the form in R. v. Taylor, 3 B. & C. 502. In R. v. Rogier, Holroyd, J., said that, in his opinion, it would be sufficient merely to have alleged that the defendant kept a common gaming-house.

Misdemeanor: fine or imprisonment (with or without hard labour, 3 G. 4, c. 114, ante, p. 237), or both. No indictment can be preferred for keeping a gaming-house, unless one or other of the preliminary steps required by 22 & 23 Vict. c. 17, s. 1, as extended by 30 & 31 Vict. c. 35, s. 1, has been taken (see ante, p. 7). A married woman may be indicted with her husband for this offence. R. v. Dixon, 10 Mod. 335. The indictment shall not be removed by certiorari; 25 G. 2, c. 36, s. 10; unless on the part of the crown; R. v. Davies, 5 T. R. 626; 2 R. R. 683; and it shall be determined at the same sessions or assizes at which it is preferred, unless the court, upon cause shown, think proper to adjourn the same. 25 G. 2, c. 36, s. 10. This offence is triable at the court of quarter sessions for a borough. R. v. Charles, L. & C. 90; 31 L. J. (M. C.) 69; 9 Cox, 18. (See ante, p. 126.)

Evidence.

Prove that the house in question, or a room or rooms in it, were used as a "common gaming-house." See 5 T. R. 338. As to the evidence sufficient for this purpose, see 8 & 9 Vict. c. 109, ss. 2, 5, 8, and 17 & 18 Vict. c. 38, s. 2 (ante, pp. 1198, 1199).

Prove that the defendant "acted or behaved as master or mistress, or as the person having the care, government, or management" of the house or room in question; which is sufficient evidence that the house or room was kept by the defendant. 25 G. 2, c. 36, s. 8, ante, p. 1195. And, lastly, prove the house to be situate within the parish mentioned in the indictment. [See ante, pp. 67, 298.]

Keeping and maintaining a common gaming-house for lucre and gain, and causing and procuring idle and disorderly persons to come there to play at Rouge et noir, and permitting such persons to play there at such a game for money, is an indictable offence at common law. R. v. Rogier, ubi supra. To constitute "unlawful gaming," it is not necessary that the games played should be "unlawful games;" it is enough that the play is carried on in a "common gaming-house." Jenks v. Turpin, 13 Q. B. D. 505. It makes no difference that play is confined to members of a club; it is not a public but a common gaming-house that is prohibited. Id., and see post, p. 1202.

After an indictment for keeping a gaming-house has been preferred by a private prosecutor, the court will allow any other person to go on with it, even against the consent of the prosecutor. R. v. Wood, 3 B. & Ad. 657; 1 L. J. (M. C.) 98.

Statute.

17 & 18 Vict. c. 38 (Gaming Houses Act, 1854) s. 4—Penalty for keeping or using house, etc., for unlawful gaming.]—Any person being the owner or occupier or having the use of any house, room, or place, who shall open, keep, or use the same for the purpose of unlawful gaming being carried on therein, and any person who being the owner or occupier of any house or room, shall knowingly and wilfully permit the same to be opened, kept, or used by any other person for the purpose aforesaid, and any person having the care or management of or in any manner assisting in conducting the business of any house, room, or place opened, kept, or used for the purpose aforesaid, and any person who shall advance or furnish money for the purpose of gaming with persons frequenting such house, room, or place, may, on summary conviction thereof before any two justices of the peace, be adjudged by such justices to forfeit and pay such penalty, not exceeding 500*l.*, as to such justices shall seem fit, and may be further adjudged by such justices to pay such costs attending such conviction as to them shall seem reasonable: and [on non-payment of such penalty and costs, or in the first instance (rep. 47 & 48 Vict. c. 43, s. 4)], if to the said justices shall seem fit, may be committed to the common gaol or house of correction, with or without hard labour, for any time not exceeding twelve calendar months. [The accused may elect to be tried on indictment. 42 & 43 Vict. c. 49, s. 17, ante, p. 6. And the fact of election need not be averred. R. v. Chambers, 65 L. J. (M. C.) 214; 18 Cox, 401, ante, p. 1162. As to scope of the section, see Jenks v. Turpin, 13 Q. B. D. 505.

Indictment under 17 & 18 Vict. c. 38, s. 4.

County of London (Northern Division), to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that A. B., on the first day of January, A.D. 1905, and on divers days thereafter between that day and the tenth day of February, A.D. 1905, in the parish of ——, in the county of London, then being the occupier (owner or occupier) of a certain house (house, room, or place) known as No. 10, —— Street, situate in the parish and county aforesaid,* unlawfully did use (open, keep, or use) the said house for the purpose of unlawful gaming being carried on therein; against the form, etc. (as ante, p. 465). (2nd Count.)—And the jurors aforesaid, etc. (as in Count 1 down to the *) unlawfully, knowingly, and wilfully did permit the said house (house or room) to be used (opened, kept, or used) by a certain other person, to wit, by one C. D., for the purpose of unlawful gaming being carried on therein; against the form, etc. (3rd Count.)—And the jurors, etc., do further present that the said C. D., on the first day, etc., then being a person having the use of the said house (house, room, or place) unlawfully did use (open, keep, or use) the said house for the purpose of unlawful gaming being carried on therein; against the form, etc. Add counts, if necessary, charging E. F. with "having the care and management," or "assisting in conducting the business" of the house, as the case may be: also a count charging the keeping of a common gaming-house (ante, p. 1199).

Misdemeanor: punishment, fine not exceeding 500*l.*, and in default of payment, or in the first instance, imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for not more than twelve months. 17 & 18 Vict. c. 38, s. 4.

Evidence.

See evidence in support of indictment for keeping a common gaming-house, ante, p. 1200.

Unlawful games.]—Various games have been made unlawful by 33 H. 8, c. 9, and other statutes, some of which have been repealed. The effect of this legislation is considered in Jenks v. Turpin, 13 Q. B. D. 505. "The unlawful games now are—ace of hearts, faro, basset, hazard, passage, roulette, every game of dice except backgammon, and every game of cards which is not a game of mere skill; and, I incline to add, any other game of mere chance." Id., per Hawkins, J., at p. 524. Baccarat is an unlawful game. Id. "To play at a game of cards for money in a common gaming-house is unlawful gaming," Id., per A. L. Smith, J., at p. 531. The question of whether a particular game of cards is an unlawful game is a question of law for the judge, and not of fact for the jury, who must apply the facts to the definition of the law given by the judge. R. v. Davies [1897] 2 Q. B. 199.

Keep or use.]—Where the defendant with three friends went to his house, and after playing whist there, played an unlawful game of cards, but there was no evidence that they or any one else had ever played an unlawful game of cards at the defendant's house or on any other occasion, it was held that he could not be convicted of opening, keeping, or using the room within s. 4. R. v. Davies, ubi supra; but see R. v. Preedy, 17 Cox, 433, 437, Hawkins, J.: and cf. R. v. Mean, 69 J. P. Rep. 27 (post, p. 1204). Where the defendant kept in his shop an automatic machine, by means of insertion of a penny into which money would be won or lost without the exercise of skill on the part of the operator, it was held that he was rightly convicted of keeping, etc., his shop for the purpose of unlawful gaming within s. 4. Fielding v. Turner [1903] 1 K. B. 867; 67 J. P. Rep. 252.

Care and management—assisting in conducting the business.]—In Jenks v. Turpin (ubi supra) it was held that the mere players at an unlawful game in a club which was a common gaming-house, as distinct from the proprietor and committee men of the club, were not liable to be summarily convicted of an offence under this branch of the section. But a "banker" at faro, who has "bought the bank," is a person assisting in conducting the business, etc., within this section. Derby v. Bloomfield, 68 J. P. Rep. 391.

Betting-houses.

16 & 17 Vict. c. 119 (Betting Act, 1853), s. 1—Betting-houses a common nuisance.]—No house, office, room, or other place, shall be opened, kept, or used for the purpose of the owner, occupier, or keeper thereof, or any person using the same, or any person procured or employed by or acting for or on behalf of such owner, occupier, or keeper, or person using the same, or of any person having the care or management, or in any manner conducting the business thereof betting with persons resorting thereto;

Or for the purpose of any money or valuable thing being received by or on behalf of such owner, occupier, keeper, or person aforesaid, as or for the consideration for any assurance, undertaking, promise or agreement, express or implied, to pay or give thereafter any money or valuable thing on any event or contingency of or relating to any horse-race, or other race, fight, game, sport, or exercise, or as or for the consideration for securing the paying or giving by some other person of any money or valuable thing on any such event or contingency as aforesaid;

And every house, office, room, or other place opened, kept, or used for the purposes aforesaid, or any of them, is hereby declared to be a common nuisance and contrary to law. [An offence declared to be a nuisance is indictable as such, though the statute creating the offence renders it punishable on summary conviction. R. v. Crawshaw, Bell, 303; 30 L. J. (M. C.) 58; 8 Cox, 375.]

Sect. 2—Betting-houses to be deemed gaming-houses within 8 & 9 Vict. c. 109.]—Every house, room, office, or place opened, kept, or used for the purposes aforesaid, or any of them, shall be taken and deemed to be a common gaming-house within the meaning of the Gaming Act, 1845 (8 & 9 Vict. c. 109). [As to what is evidence of a house being a common gaming-house, see ss. 2, 5, and 8 of that statute (ante, pp. 1189, 1190).]

Sect. 3—Penalty on owner or occupier of betting-house.]—Any person who being the owner or occupier of any house, office, room, or other place, or a person using the same, shall open, keep, or use the same for the purposes hereinbefore mentioned, or either of them; and any person who being the owner or occupier of any house, room, office, or other place, shall knowingly and wilfully permit the same to be opened, kept, or used by any other person for the purposes aforesaid, or either of them; and any person having the care or management of or in any manner assisting in conducting the business of any house, office, room, or place, opened, kept, or used for the purposes aforesaid, or either of them, shall on summary conviction thereof before any two justices of the peace, be liable to forfeit and pay such penalty, not exceeding 100*l.*, as shall be adjudged by such justices, and may be further adjudged by such justices to pay such costs attending such conviction as to the said justices shall seem reasonable; [and on the non-payment of such penalty and costs] or in the first instance, if to the said justices it shall seem fit, may be committed to the common gaol or house of correction, with or without hard labour, for any time not exceeding six calendar months. [Words in italics rep. 47 & 48 Vict. c. 43, s. 4. The accused can elect to be tried on indictment, and the election to be so tried need not be averred. R. v. Chambers, 65 L. J. (M. C.) 14; 18 Cox, 401.

Sect. 4.]—Penalty on persons receiving money on condition of paying money on event of any bet, etc. (not indictable).

Sect. 7.]—Penalty on persons exhibiting placards or advertising betting-houses (not indictable).

Sect. 11.]—Power of justice to authorize search of suspected houses.

37 & 38 Vict. c. 15 (Betting Act, 1874).]—Extension of provisions as to penalties for advertising as to betting.

Indictment for using a Room contrary to 16 & 17 Vict. c. 119, ss. 1, 3.

Commencement as ante, p. 1201]—that A. B., on the, etc., (as in the precedent, ante, p. 1201), in the parish, etc., being persons using a certain room (house, office, room, or other place), situate and being upon certain premises known as No. 2, —— Street, in the parish and county aforesaid,* unlawfully did use the said room for the purpose of betting with persons resorting thereto; against the form, etc. (2nd Count) (as in count 1 down to the *, then proceed) * unlawfully did use the said room for the purpose of money being received by and on behalf of him the said A. B., a person using the same as and for the consideration of undertakings, promises, and agreements to pay thereafter money on events and contingencies of and relating to horse-races. A set of counts may be added describing the room used as a "place," also a set charging the defendant as "having the care and management," or "assisting in conducting the business," etc. The indictment should conclude with a count charging the defendant with keeping a common gaming-house. See s. 2 of the Act and notes thereto, supra. See the summary of the indictment in R. v. Currie, 68 J. P. Rep. 294. For a precedent of an indictment against an occupier, see R. v. Hobbs [1898] 2 Q. B. 647.

Misdemeanor: punishment, fine not exceeding 100*l., and in default of payment, or in the first instance imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for not more than six months.* 16 & 17 Vict. c. 119, s. 3.

Evidence.

The two branches of this section create distinct offences. Bond v. Plumb [1894] 1 Q. B. 169. As to its scope and effect, see Powell v. The Kempton Park Racecourse Co. [1899] App. Cas. 143: Brown v. Patch [1899] 1 Q. B. 892. Various forms of "coupon competitions" have been held to be within the section. See R. v. Stoddart [1901] 1 K. B. 177; 70 L. J. (Q. B.) 189; 19 Cox, 587; 64 J. P. 774: Mackenzie v. Hawke [1902], 2 K. B. 216; 71 L. J. (K. B.) 565; 66 J. P. 709: Lennox v. Stoddart [1902] 2 K. B. 21; 71 L. J. (K. B.) 747; 66 J. P. 469: Stoddart v. Hawke [1902] 2 K. B. 351; 71 L. J. (K. B.) 133; 20 Cox, 111; 66 J. P. 469.

Use.]—In order to convict a bookmaker of using the bar of a public-house within this section, he must "have something in the nature of a right or licence to use the bar for the purposes of his betting business over and above the right of an ordinary member of the public to resort there." Belton v. Busby [1899] 2 Q. B. 380; 68 L. J. (Q. B.) 859: Tromans v. Hodkinson [1903] 1 K. B. 30. Where therefore it was proved that the defendant was in the habit of frequenting the bar of a public house for the purpose of carrying on a business of ready money betting with persons resorting thereto, but for the purposes of his business did not occupy any specific portion of the bar, it was held that the question whether he was guilty of "using" the bar within the section depended upon whether he carried on his betting business there with the knowledge and consent of the occupier of the house. R. v. Deaville: R. v. Simpson [1903] 1 K. B. 468; 67 J. P. Rep. 82 (C. C. R.). The contents of betting slips and other documents found upon the defendants, or in the house which they are charged with using, is admissible evidence against them, though such documents do not relate to the days on which the offence is alleged in the indictment to have been committed. R. v. Mean [1904] 69 J. P. Rep. 27 (C. C. R.).

Resorting.]—An offence against this branch of the section may be proved by showing that the house was opened and advertised as a betting-house, although no person ever physically resorted thereto. But where "resorting" is relied upon as evidence of the offence there must be some evidence of a physical resorting, and it is not sufficient to show that letters and telegrams were sent to the defendant directing him to make bets with the senders. R. v. Brown [1895] 1 Q. B. 119; 64 L. J. (M. C.) 1; 18 Cox, 81.

Paying in the bar of a public-house bets previously made elsewhere is not using such bar for the purpose of betting with persons resorting thereto within the section. Bradford v. Dawson [1897] 1 Q. B. 307; but see Lennox v. Stoddart, infra.

Receipt of money.]—It has been held that in order to convict under the second branch of s. 1, the money must be received in the house, or if received outside the house the defendant must resume possession of it in the house; Davies v. Stephenson, 24 Q. B. D. 529; but proof that the house has been used by the occupier for an essential part of operations carried on for the purpose of money being received by him in contravention of the section is sufficient. Lennox v. Stoddart [1902] 2 K. B. 21, ubi supra. A sweepstake is not within the section. R. v. Hobbs [1898] 2 Q. B. 647.

Betting in clubs.]—Members of a bonâ fide club who make bets with other members upon the club premises cannot be convicted of using the club for the purpose of betting with persons resorting thereto within the section. Downes v. Johnson [1895] 2 Q. B. 203. But where the jury found that the club was "used as a blind for betting purposes," and there was evidence that the members of the club were divided into two classes, the defendants being the bookmakers, and other members going there to bet with them, it was held that the defendants were properly convicted under the section. R. v. Corrie and Watson [1904] 68 J. P. Rep. 294 (C. C. R.).

LOTTERIES.

The offence of keeping a lottery is rarely punished on indictment. For a precedent, see R. v. Crawshaw, Bell, 303; 30 L. J. (M. C.) 58; 8 Cox, 375.

Statutes.

10 W. 3, c. 23 (10 & 11 W. 3, c. 17, Ruffhead), s. 1 (1698).]—All lotteries declared to be common and public nuisances.

[Sects. 2, 3 impose specific penalties on persons opening or drawing at lotteries. These and subsequent enactments of a similar character do not take away the right to indict for a common and public nuisance under s. 1. R. v. Crawshaw, Bell, 303; 30 L. J. (M. C.) 58; 8 Cox, 375.]

8 G. 1, c. 2 (Lotteries Act, 1721).]—Erection of offices for sales by way of lot and the publishing of a proposal or scheme for the same made punishable by fine before two justices: appeal to quarter sessions.

9 G. 1, c. 19 (Lotteries Act, 1722), s. 4—Foreign lotteries.]—Similar provisions with regard to any person who after 1*st July*, 1723, "shall . . . by virtue or colour of any grant or authority from any foreign prince, state, or government whatsoever, erect, set up, continue, or keep, or shall cause or procure to be erected, set up, continued, or kept, any lottery or undertaking in the nature of a lottery, under any denomination whatsoever, or shall make, print, or publish, or cause to be made, printed, or published, any proposal or scheme for any such lottery or undertaking, or shall within this kingdom sell or dispose of any ticket or tickets in any foreign lottery. . . ."

6 G. 2, c. 35 (Lotteries Act, 1732), s. 29—Foreign lotteries.]—Similar provisions, also penalty recoverable by action by informer with regard to any person who after 24th June, 1833, "shall sell, procure, or deliver any ticket, receipt, chance, or number in or belonging to any foreign lottery or pretended foreign lottery or in or belonging to any class, part, or division of such lottery, or pretended lottery, or in or belonging to any undertaking whatsoever in the nature of a lottery, or shall sell, procure, or deliver any ticket, receipt, chance, or number in or belonging to any duplicate, or pretended duplicate, of any foreign lottery or pretended foreign lottery, or shall receive or cause to be received any money whatsoever for any such ticket, receipt, chance, or number, or for or in consideration of any money to be repaid in case any ticket or tickets, number or numbers, in any foreign lottery or pretended foreign lottery, or any class, part, or division thereof shall prove fortunate . . ."

42 G. 3, c. 119 (Gaming Act, 1802), s. 2.]—Every person to forfeit 500*l.* at the suit of the Attorney-General, and to be deemed a rogue and vagabond, who "shall publicly or privately keep any office or place to exercise, keep open, show, or expose to be played, drawn, or thrown at or in, either by dice, lots, cards, balls, or by numbers or figures, or by any other way, contrivance, or device whatsoever, any game or lottery called a little goe, or any other lottery whatsoever not authorized by parliament, or shall knowingly suffer to be exercised, kept open, shown, or exposed to be played, drawn, or thrown at or in, either by dice, lots, cards, balls, or by numbers or figures, or by any other way, contrivance, or device whatsoever, any such game or lottery in his or her house, room, or place . . ." [As to what is a lottery, see infra, p. 1207.]

4 G. 4, c. 60 (Lotteries Act, 1823), s. 41.]—After authorizing a Treasury lottery, all persons to forfeit 50*l.*, and to be deemed rogues and vagabonds, who "shall sell any ticket or tickets, chance or chances, share or shares of any ticket or tickets, chance or chances in any lottery or lotteries authorized by any foreign potentate or state, or to be drawn in any foreign country, or in any lottery or lotteries, except such as are or shall be authorized by this or some other Act of Parliament to be sold, or shall publish any proposal or scheme for the sale of any ticket or tickets, chance or chances, share or shares of any ticket or tickets, chance or chances, except such lottery or lotteries as shall be authorized as aforesaid . . ."

6 & 7 W. 4, c. 66 (Lotteries Act, 1836), s. 1—Advertising lotteries.]—Every person to forfeit 50*l.* in proceedings by action at law or information who after August 13, 1866, "shall print or publish, or cause to be printed or published, any advertisement or other notice of or relating to the drawing or intended drawing of any foreign lottery, or of any lottery or lotteries not authorized by some Act or Acts of Parliament;" or who "shall print or publish, or cause to be printed or published, any advertisement or other notice of or for the sale of any ticket or tickets, chance or chances, or of any share or shares of any ticket or tickets, chance or chances of or in any such lottery or lotteries as aforesaid, or any advertisement or notice concerning or in any manner relating to any such lottery or lotteries, or any ticket, chance, or share, tickets, chances, or shares thereof or therein . . ."

Evidence.

A lottery is a distribution of prizes by lot or chance without the use of any skill. See R. v. Harris, 10 Cox, 352 ("The Eastern Bazaar"): Taylor v. Smetten, 11 Q. B. D. 207 (sale of pound packages of tea with prize coupon): Caminada v. Hulton, 60 L. J. (M. C.) 116; 17 Cox, 307 (racing coupon competition): Barclay v. Pearson [1893] 2 Ch. 154 ("missing word competition"): Stoddart v. Sagar [1895] 2 Q. B. 474 (racing coupon competition): Hall v. Cox [1899] 1 Q. B. 198 (C. A.) (prediction of coming event): Hall v. McWilliam, 20 Cox, 33; 65 J. P. 742 ("spot" competition in newspaper).

A publican who promotes a sweepstakes on his premises is guilty of an offence against s. 2 of the Gaming Act, 1802 (42 G. 3, c. 119), ante, p. 1206, at all events if he makes any profit out of the transaction. Hardwick v. Lane [1904] 1 K. B. 204; 68 J. P. Rep. 94: cf. R. v. Hobbs [1898] 2 Q. B. 647.

As to breach of the Lottery Acts by societies or public companies, see Sykes v. Beadon, 11 Ch. D. 170: Wallingford v. Mutual Benefit Society, 5 App. Cas. 685: McNee v. Persian Investment Corporation, 44 Ch. D. 306.

UNLICENSED SUBURBAN RACECOURSES.

Statute.

42 & 43 Vict. c. 18.]—By this statute a horse-race within ten miles of Charing Cross is prohibited, and shall be deemed to be a nuisance, unless held under licence by the justices (now the county council) of the county in which it is held.

(d) Offences as to Corpses.

Common Law.

There is no property in a corpse; it is therefore not the subject of larceny (see ante, p. 437); though the executors have a right to its possession. Williams v. Williams [1882] 20 Ch. D. 659; 51 L. J. (Ch.) 385; 15 Cox, 39. But larceny may be committed with respect to coffins, shrouds, or property interred with the corpse. As to laying the property in such goods, see ante, p. 57.

To leave unburied the corpse of a person for whom the defendant was bound to provide "Christian burial" (which probably means only "decent burial:" Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (6th ed.) 138), such as a wife or child, is also an indictable misdemeanor, if he be shown to have been of ability to provide such burial. R. v. Vann, 2 Den. 325; 21 L. J. (M. C.) 39; 5 Cox, 379: R. v. Stewart, 12 A. & E. 773, 778; 4 P. & D. 349: Jenkins v. Tucker [1788] 1 H. Bl. 90. But the mere burning of a dead body, instead of burying it, is not a misdemeanor; yet if it be burnt in such a place and such a manner as to annoy persons passing along public roads or other places where they have a right to go, this is an indictable nuisance. R. v. Price [1884] 12 Q. B. D. 247; 53 L. J. (M. C.) 51; 15 Cox, 389. See 7 & 8 Vict. c. 101, s. 31: 12 & 13 Vict. c. 103, ss. 16, 17; 31 & 32 Vict. c. 122, s. 13; 53 & 54 Vict. c. 5, s. 297, as to the burial of poor persons by the parish officers. And as to burial of persons dying of infectious disease, etc., see 38 & 39 Vict. c. 55, s. 142; 54 & 55 Vict. c. 76, s. 89. As to preventing burial, see 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 942. And now the burning of dead bodies is regulated by the Cremation Act, 1902 (2 Edw. 7, c. 8) (vide infra), which (s. 10) expressly provides that nothing therein contained shall authorize the creation or permission of a nuisance.

Any disposition of a corpse with intent to obstruct or prevent a coroner's inquest, (a) when one ought to be held, is a misdemeanor at common law. R. v. Stephenson, 13 Q. B. D. 331; 56 L. J. (M. C.) 176: R. v. Price, ubi supra.

Exposing the naked dead body of a child in or near, and within view of, the highway is a common law nuisance. R. v. Clark, 15 Cox, 171. As to secret disposition of the bodies of newly-born infants with intent to conceal their birth, see ante, pp. 823–826.

It is a misdemeanor at common law to remove, without lawful authority, a corpse from a grave, whether in a churchyard or in the burial-ground of a congregation of Protestant dissenters; and it is no defence to such a charge that the motives of the defendant were pious and laudable. R. v. Sharpe, Dears. & B. 160: 26 L. J. (M. C.) 47; 7 Cox, 214. In R. v. Kenyon [1901] 36 L. J. Newsp. 571, four persons were indicted before Phillimore, J., for unlawfully, wilfully, and indecently digging open graves in a Roman Catholic burial-ground, which had been closed for burials by order in council in 1859, and for taking out portions of bodies of deceased persons interred therein. The indictment also contained a count for contravening the Disused Burial Grounds Act, 1884 (47 & 48 Vict. c. 72), by building on the disused burial-ground in question. Pleas of guilty were entered, and sentences of imprisonment imposed. For precedent of indictment in such cases, see R. v. Jacobson, 14 Cox, 522. Penalties are imposed by s. 25 of the Burials Act, 1857 (20 & 21 Vict. c. 81), for removal of bodies from any place of burial without the licence of a Secretary of State, except in the cases of removal under faculty from one consecrated place of burial to another. R. v. Tristram [1898] 2 Q. B. 371; 68 L. J. (Q. B.) 637. These penalties appear to be alternative to the common law remedy (see 52 & 53 Vict. c. 63, s. 33, ante, p. 170). A person who without lawful authority disposes of a dead body for the purpose of dissection, is indictable at common law. R. v. Lynn, 2 T. R. 733; 1 Leach, 497; 1 R. R. 607: R. v. Gilles, R. & R. 366, n. It appears to be immaterial whether the body was disposed of for gain or not. R. v. Cundick, Dowl. & Ry. (N. P.) 13. But where the master of a workhouse, having as such the lawful possession of the bodies of paupers who died therein, and who therefore was authorized under the 7th section of the Anatomy Act (2 & 3 W. 4, c. 75, rep.) to permit the bodies of such paupers to undergo anatomical examination, unless to his knowledge the deceased person had expressed in his lifetime, in the manner therein mentioned, his desire to the contrary, "or unless the surviving husband or wife, or any known relative of the deceased person, should require the body to be interred without such examination,"—in order to prevent the relatives of the deceased paupers from making this requirement, and to lead them to believe that the bodies were buried without dissection, showed the bodies to the relatives in coffins, and caused the appearance of a funeral to be gone through; and, having by this fraud prevented the relatives from making the requirement, then sold the bodies for dissection; he was held not to be indictable at common law. R. v. Feist, Dears. & B. 590; 27 L. J. (M. C.) 164; 8 Cox, 18.

(a) The coroner at common law can legally direct disinterment for the purposes of an inquest (ante, p. 154). R. v. Clerk [1702] cas. temp. Holt, 167: R. v. Bond [1716] 1 Str. 22; 1 Hawk. c. 9, s. 27; Jervis on Coroners (6th ed.), 37, 38. But in practice the disinterment is made under the authority of the Home Secretary under 20 & 21 Vict. c. 81, s. 25, or of the High Court under s. 6 of the Coroners Act, 1887 (50 & 51 Vict. c. 71). See Jervis on Coroners (6th ed.), pp. 58–56.

Statute.

2 Edw. 7, c. 8 (Cremation Act, 1902), s. 8, sub-s. (1).]—Every person who shall contravene any such regulation as aforesaid, or shall knowingly carry out or procure or take part in the burning of any human remains except in accordance with such regulations and the provisions of this Act, shall (in addition to any liability or penalty which he may otherwise incur) be liable, on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding fifty pounds. . . . [Appeal to quarter sessions. See regulations contained in Stat. Rules and Orders Revised (ed. 1904), vol. 4, tit. "Cremation, E."]

(2) Every person who shall wilfully make any false declaration or representation, or sign or utter any false certificate, with a view to procuring the burning of any human remains, shall (in addition to any penalty or liability which he may otherwise incur) be liable to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, not exceeding two years.

(3) Every person who, with intent to conceal the commission or impede the prosecution of any offence, procures or attempts to procure the cremation of any body, or, with such intent, makes any declaration or gives any certificate under this Act, shall be liable to conviction on indictment to penal servitude for a term not exceeding five years.

Indictment for digging up and carrying away a Dead Body.
(Common Law.)

Central Criminal Court to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. S., on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, the churchyard of and belonging to the parish church of the parish of B., in the county of M., unlawfully and wilfully did break and enter, and the grave there in which one J. N., deceased, had lately before then been interred, and then was, unlawfully, wilfully, and indecently did dig open, and the body of him the said J. N. out of the grave aforesaid unlawfully, wilfully, and indecently did then take and carry away; in contempt of our lord the King and his laws, to the evil example of all others in like case offending, and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity; and see R. v. Kenyon [1901] 36 L. J. Newsp. 571 (ante, p. 1208).

If the corpse cannot be recognized, state it to be the body of a person to the jurors aforesaid unknown, and where it is doubtful from what place the body is taken, the statement of place can be omitted. R. v. Gilles, R. & R. 366, n.

Misdemeanor: fine or imprisonment without hard labour, or both. (See ante, pp. 238, 240.)

Evidence.

Prove that the defendant dug up the corpse; and the slightest removal of it would, it seems, be sufficient to constitute the offence. Or, prove that the corpse was found in the defendant's possession, and that it had been previously interred in the churchyard mentioned in the indictment; from which the jury may fairly presume that the defendant was the person who dug it up or removed it. R. v. Jacobson, 14 Cox, 522.

41 & 42 Vict. c. 77 (Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878), s. 10—Mode of proceeding where county authority has made an order for the repair of a highway on a highway authority, and the highway authority disputes its liability to repair.]—Where complaint is made to the county authority (i.e., the county council) that the highway authority of any highway area within their jurisdiction has made default in maintaining or repairing all or any of the highways within their jurisdiction, the county authority, if satisfied after due inquiry and report by their surveyor that the authority has been guilty of the alleged default, shall make an order limiting a time for the performance of the duty of the highway authority in the matter of such complaint. . . .

Where an order has been made by a county authority for the repair of a highway on a highway authority alleged to be in default, if such authority, within ten days after service on them of the order of the county authority, give notice to the clerk of the peace that they decline to comply with the requisitions of such order until their liability to repair the highway in respect to which they are alleged to have made default has been determined by a jury, it shall be the duty of the county authority either to satisfy the defaulting authority by cancelling or modifying in such manner as the authority may desire the order of the county authority, or else to submit to a jury the question of the liability of the defaulting authority to repair the highway.

If the county authority decide to submit the question to a jury, they shall direct a bill of indictment to be preferred to the next practicable assizes to be holden in and for their county, with a view to try the liability of the defaulting authority to repair the highway. Until the trial of the indictment is concluded the order of the county authority shall be suspended. On the conclusion of the trial, if the jury find the defendants guilty, the order of the county authority shall forthwith be deemed to come into force; but if the jury acquit the defendants the order of the county authority shall forthwith become void.

The costs of the indictment, and of the proceedings consequent thereon, shall be paid by such parties to the proceedings as the court before whom the case is tried may direct. Any costs directed to be paid by the county authority shall be deemed to be expenses properly incurred by such authority, and shall be paid accordingly out of the county rate; and any costs directed to be paid by the highway authority shall be deemed to be expenses properly incurred by such authority in maintenance of the roads within their jurisdiction, and shall be paid out of the funds applicable to the maintenance of such roads.

Prove the obstruction, as stated in the indictment; and prove that it was productive of inconvenience to persons passing through the street, either in carriages or on foot. Where a waggoner occupied one side of a public street in a city, before his warehouses, in loading and unloading his waggons, for several hours at a time, both day and night, and having one waggon at least usually standing before his warehouses, so that no carriages could pass on that side of the street, and sometimes even foot passengers were incommoded by cumbrous goods lying upon the ground ready for loading; this was held to be a public nuisance, although it appeared that there was room for two carriages to pass on the opposite side of the street. R. v. Russell, 6 East, 427; 8 R. P. 724, turns on the fact that the strips were proved to be waste of a manor. Where the road runs over unfenced land, there is no such presumption. Easton v. Richmond Highway Board, L. R. 7 Q. B. 69; and see Pratt on Highways (15th ed.), pp. 36, 37. A permanent obstruction erected upon a highway without lawful authority, and which renders the way less commodious than before to the public, is a public nuisance at common law. R. v. United Kingdom Electric Telegraph Co., ubi supra. Where, therefore, the defendants placed telegraph posts upon a highway and permanently kept them there, such posts being of such size and solidity as to obstruct the passage of carriages and horses, or foot passengers, upon the parts of the highway where they stood, the defendants were held liable to be found guilty upon an indictment for a nuisance. And it was also held, that it made no difference in the defendant's liability to conviction that the posts were not placed upon the hard or metalled part of the highway, or upon a footpath artificially formed upon it, or that sufficient space was left for the public traffic. Id. On an indictment for the continuance of a nuisance, viz., the continuance of a wall obstructing a highway, the record of the judgment on a former indictment for the same nuisance against the same defendant on which he was convicted is conclusive evidence that the locus in quo is a highway, and that the wall is a nuisance. R. v. Maybury, 4 F. & F. 90. Although an Act of Parliament authorizes alterations in a public highway, yet if those alterations are not made with reasonable care, and cause unnecessary danger to persons using the highway, the contractor executing the works may be indicted for obstructing the highway. R. v. Burt, 11 Cox, 399, Hawkins, J.

The use of locomotives and motor-cars on highways and other roads is regulated by 24 & 25 Vict. c. 70, and 28 & 29 Vict. c. 83, and by 41 & 42 Vict. c. 77, part ii.; 59 & 60 Vict. c. 36; 61 & 62 Vict. c. 29, and 3 Edw. 7, c. 36; but the two first-mentioned Acts in ss. 13 and 12 respectively (ante, p. 1214) forbid their being so constructed or used as to be a nuisance at common law; and it has been held that the use of locomotives and trucks on a highway does not amount to a nuisance by obstruction to the highway, unless such use creates a substantial obstruction, and occasions delay and inconvenience to the public substantially greater than would have been caused by horses and carts. R. v. Chittenden, 15 Cox, 725, Hawkins, J. Uninterrupted use of part of a street as a fair or market for rags has been held an answer to an indictment for obstruction. R. v. Smith [1802] 4 Esp. 111 (Rag Fair case), Lord Ellenborough, C.J.

Where a statute enacted, that the erection of a building within certain limits should be deemed a "common nuisance," and also gave a summary remedy, by proceedings before magistrates, it was held that the offender might be indicted for the nuisance. R. v. Gregory, 5 B. & Ad. 555; 3 L. J. (M. C.) 25. (See ante, pp. 3–5; and R. v. Charlesworth, 16 Q. B. 1012.)

Where the way is proved to be a highway, and to be obstructed, the only defence is the existence of statutory authority to obstruct it, or that it has been closed by order of justices under 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 50, s. 84, or in London under Michael Angelo Taylor's Act (57 G. 3, c. xxix.), with the consents required by that Act and the Local Government Acts of 1888 and 1894. See Pratt on Highways (15th. ed.), chap. vi.; or that, if it is a street in a town, it has been closed under s. 66 of the Towns Police Clauses Act, 1847. See R. v. Platts, 49 L. J. (Q. B.) 848; 28 W. R. 915.

Upon the trial of an indictment for obstructing a highway, an agreement was approved by the judge that the prosecutor should consent to a verdict of "not guilty" if defendants restored the highway within seven years. The defendants did not carry out their part of the agreement, and an action was thereupon brought against them for specific performance or damages. It was held, however, that the action would not lie, as the consideration, the consenting to the verdict of "not guilty," was illegal. Windhill Local Board v. Vint, 45 Ch. D. 351; 59 L. J. (Ch.) 608.

In some cases the consent of the highway authority may be lawful, and an answer to an indictment for encroachment or obstruction. See R. v. Burrell, 10 Cox, 462 (C. C. R.).

Indictment for obstructing the Navigation of a Public River.
(Common Law.)

Gloucester, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that the river Severn, that is to say, a certain part of the said river lying and being in the county of Gloucester, is [and from the time whereof the memory of man is not to the contrary, hath been] an ancient river, and King's ancient and common highway for all the liege subjects of our lord the King and his predecessors, with their ships, barges, lighters, boats, wherries, and other vessels, to navigate, sail, row, pass, repass, and labour at their free will and pleasure, without any impediment or obstruction whatsoever. And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that J. S., on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, at the parish of ——, in the county aforesaid, unlawfully, wilfully, and injuriously did erect, fix, put up, place, and set in the said river and King's ancient and common highway, near a certain place called Guy's Sharl, a certain snare, trap, machine, and engine, commonly called putts, for the taking and catching of fish, and composed of wood, wooden stakes, and twigs; and that he the said J.S., on the said first day of June, in the year last aforesaid, and on divers other days and times between that day and the day of the taking this inquisition at the parish aforesaid, in the county aforesaid, in the said river and King's ancient and common highway there, the said snare, trap, machine, and engine, called putts, unlawfully, wilfully, and injuriously did continue, and still doth continue, so erected, fixed, put, placed, and set in the said river and King's ancient and common highway as aforesaid; by means whereof the navigation and free passage of, in, through, along, and upon the said river Severn and King's ancient and common highway, on the day and year aforesaid, and on the said other days and times, hath been, and still is, greatly straitened, obstructed, and confined, so that the liege subjects of our said lord the King, navigating, sailing, rowing, passing, repassing, and labouring with their ships, barges, lighters, boats, wherries, and other vessels, in, through, along, and upon the said river and King's ancient and common highway there, on the same day and year aforesaid, and on the said other days and times, could not, nor yet can go, navigate, sail, row, pass, repass, and labour with their ships, barges, lighters, boats, wherries, and other vessels, upon and about their lawful and necessary affairs and occasions, in, through, along, and upon the said river and King's ancient and common highway there, in so free and uninterrupted a manner as of right they ought, and before have been used and accustomed to do; to the great damage and common nuisance of all the liege subjects of our said lord the King, navigating, sailing, rowing, passing, repassing, and labouring with their ships, barges, lighters, boats, wherries, and other vessels, in, through, along, and upon the said river Severn and King's ancient and common highway there; to the great obstruction to the trade and navigation of and upon the said river, to the evil example of all others in the like case offending, and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity. [The words in brackets are not essential; see post, p. 1221.]

Misdemeanor: fine, or imprisonment without hard labour, or both (see ante, pp. 238, 240). Also, to divert a part of a public river, whereby the current of it is weakened, and rendered incapable of carrying vessels of the same burthen as it could before, is a common nuisance. 1 Hawk. c. 75, s. 11. See R. v. Grosvenor, 2 Stark. (N. P.) 511; 20 R. R. 732, an indictment for erecting a wharf in the Thames to the injury of navigation: R. v. Ward, 4 A. & E. 384: Att.-Gen. v. Terry, L. R. 9 *Ch. Evidence.

The defendant and his wife are admissible as witnesses and compellable to give evidence on the trial of this indictment. 40 & 41 Vict. c. 14, s. 1 (ante, pp. 892, 1214).

Prove that the river in question is public and navigable in that part of it which was obstructed (see R. v. Betts, 16 Q. B. 1022: Simpson v. Att.-Gen. [1904] App. Cas. 476); and prove the obstruction stated in the indictment, in the same manner as under the last precedent. Upon the trial of an indictment for a nuisance in a navigable river, by erecting staiths therein, for loading ships with coals, the jury were directed to acquit the defendant, if they thought the abridgment of the right of passage occasioned by these staiths was for a public purpose, and occasioned a public benefit; and if the erections were in a reasonable situation, and a reasonable space was left for the passage of vessels on the river; and the judge pointed out to the jury that, by reason of the staiths, the coals were supplied better and at a cheaper rate than they otherwise could be, which was a public benefit; and it was held that this direction was right. R. v. Russell (ubi supra), Lord Tenterden, C.J., dissentiente. But the opinion of the majority was dissented from in R. v. Ward, 4 A. & E. 384; in R. v. Betts, 16 Q. B. 1022, and in Att.-Gen. v. Terry (ante, p. 1185); and see Mayor, etc., Norwich v. Norfolk Ry. Co., 4 E. & B. 397, 440, and the cases collected (supra).

The building of a bridge, or of a wall or embankment, partly in the bed of a navigable river, does not necessarily constitute a nuisance; the question whether in fact it is so or not in the particular instance is for a jury; and where the verdict of a jury negatives any actual obstruction, that is in effect an acquittal. R. v. Betts, 16 Q. B. 1022: see R. v.

Charlesworth, Id. 1012. Where the judge at the trial asked the jury whether they thought the erection would be "a material nuisance;" in which case they were to find a verdict of guilty: but told them that if they thought the "nuisance" was so slight, uncertain and rare, that the defendant ought not to be made criminally liable for it, they should acquit him; and the jury saying that they considered the erection, "although a nuisance, was not sufficiently so to render the defendant criminally liable," he directed an acquittal: the court held that the charge was to be understood as meaning, not that a party may legally commit a small nuisance, but that an obstruction might be so insignificant as not to constitute a nuisance; and that the jury must be understood as finding that the obstruction in question was so insignificant; and so that there was not a misdirection which would warrant a new trial. R. v. Russell, 3 E. & B. 942; 23 L. J. (M. C.) 173: and see R. v. Tindall, 6 A. & E. 143, 152; 6 L. J. (M. C.) 97. It is a defence to an indictment for obstructing a public navigable river to prove that the obstruction was erected under statutory authority. Jolliffe v. Wallasey L. B., L. R. 9 C. P. 62, 82: Lyon v. Fishmongers Co., 1 App. Cas. 662.

Where the workmen of the defendant, in working his colliery, stacked the refuse in such a manner that it fell into and obstructed a navigable river, and the defendant was indicted for a nuisance in causing such obstruction, it was held, that the fact of his not having personally superintended the works, of his having given express orders to the workmen that the refuse should be deposited in a particular place where it would not do any harm, and that it was not to be thrown into the river, would not relieve him from liability upon the indictment. R. v. Stephens, L. R. 1 Q. B. 702; 35 L. J. (Q. B.) 251; 7 B. & S. 710; 10 Cox, 340. Cf. Chisholm v. Doulton, 22 Q. B. D. 736 (ante, pp. 33–35).

NON-REPAIR OF HIGHWAYS.

Indictment against a Parish for not repairing a Highway. (a) (Common Law).

Middlesex to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that [from the time whereof the memory of man is not to the contrary] there [was and yet] is a certain common and ancient King's highway, leading from the town of Hatfield, in the county of Hertford, towards and unto the city of London, used by and for all the liege subjects of our lord the King and his predecessors, with their horses, coaches, carts, and other carriages, to go, return, pass, repass, ride and labour at their free will and pleasure; and that a certain part of the said common and ancient King's highway called —— lane, situate in the parish of Fryern Barnet, in the county of Middlesex, extending from a certain field there called ——, unto a certain bridge called —— bridge, containing in length forty yards, and in breadth eight yards, on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, and continually afterwards until the day of the taking of this inquisition, at the parish aforesaid, in the county last aforesaid, was and is yet very ruinous, miry, deep, broken, and in great decay, for want of due reparation and amendment of the same, so that the liege subjects of our said lord the King, during the time last aforesaid, could not go, return, pass, repass, ride and labour with their horses, coaches, carts, and other carriages, in, through and along the King's common highway aforesaid, as they ought and were wont and accustomed to do, without great danger of their lives, and the loss of their goods; to the great damage and common nuisance of all his Majesty's liege subjects going, returning, passing, repassing, riding and labouring, in, through and along the King's common highway aforesaid; to the evil example of all others in the like case offending, and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown, and dignity: * And that the inhabitants of the said parish of Fryern Barnet, in the said county of Middlesex, the common highway as aforesaid, so as aforesaid being in decay, ought to repair and amend, when and so often as it should or shall be necessary.

(a) This precedent is retained notwithstanding the changes in the law as to highways affected by the Local Government Acts of 1888 and 1894 (ante, p. 1213), because the procedure under ss. 94, 95 of the Highway Act, 1835 (ante, p. 1210), is not impliedly repealed by subsequent legislation. R. v. Morse [1904] W. N. 114 (K. B. D.); and see the precedents, 3 Chit. Cr. L. 576, et seq.

The question has been raised, but not decided, whether in the case of indictments by order of justices under 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 50, s. 95, or 41 & 42 Vict. c. 77, s. 10, it is necessary to set out the preliminary proceedings. It is safer to set them out. R. v. Biggleswade R. D. C. 64: 64 J. P. 442, Wright, J.: R. v. Mayor, etc., of Poole, 19 Q. B. D. 810.

An indictment against a parish for not repairing a horse and footway is the same as the above, only substituting for the word "highway" the words "pack and prime way," and for the words "with their horses, coaches, carts," etc., in the commencement, substituting the words "on horseback and on foot, to go, return, pass, repass, ride, labour and drive their cattle at their free will and pleasure;" and for the words "with their horses, coaches, carts, and other carriages," near the end of the count, substituting the words "with their horses and cattle."

If there be other parts of the highway out of repair, within the same parish, insert other counts specifying them.

The indictment usually states the highway to have been so immemorially, but this is unnecessary; it is sufficient to allege that it is a common public highway, without showing how it became so, and the words in brackets are not essential. Aspindall v. Brown, 3 T. R. 265: R. v. Turweston, 16 Q. B. 109; 20 L. J. (M. C.) 46. Although usual, it is unnecessary to show the termini of the way; 2 *Wms. must go four miles along the C. turnpike road, then all along F. lane, and then cross the W. turnpike road, and for a short distance go along a road which goes from the W. turnpike road to the village of E.: it was held, that the road was not misdescribed. Plea of General Issue.

And J. S. and J. N., two of the inhabitants of the said parish of Fryern Barnet, by A. B., their attorney, for themselves and the rest of the inhabitants of the said parish, come into court here, and having heard the said indictment read, say they are not guilty of the said premises in the said indictment above specified and charged upon them; and of this they put themselves upon the country, etc. (See ante, p. 179.)

Evidence for the Prosecution under the General Issue.

The parishioners of the defendant parish and their wives may be compelled to give evidence for the prosecution. 40 & 41 Vict. c. 14, s. 1 (ante, pp, 392, 1214).

1. The prosecutor must prove that the road or street in question is a public highway—that is to say, a way open and common to all persons. 1 Hawk. c. 76, s. 1; see 3 Chit. Cr. L. 565, et seq.: R. v. Richards, 8 T. R. 634; 5 *R. A highway may be so by prescription—i.e., user as a highway for the time of legal memory—or by dedication and acceptance. Highways are not within the Prescription Act, 1832 (2 & 3 W. 4, c. 71), and proof of common law prescription is in practice never now given, proof of dedication being simpler. See Mann v. Brodie, 10 App. Cas. 378, 386. Once the way is proved to be a highway, mere disuse for however long does not deprive the public of their right of way. Harvey v. Truro R. D. C. [1903] 2 Ch. 638: R. v. Edwards [1847] 11 J. P. 602. Where a footway was laid out under an inclosure award, it was held that user by wheeled traffic for forty or fifty years was in its inception illegal, and could not be legalized by length of time. Sheringham U. D. C. v. Halsey [1904] 68 J. P. Rep. 395. If the termini be set out in the indictment, they must be proved as laid. R. v. Great Canfield (ante, p. 1221): R. v. St. Weonard's (ante, p. 1221). A misdescription of the termini may, however, be amended under 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 1 (ante, p. 52), if the variance be not calculated to prejudice the defence. R. v. Sturge, 3 E. & B. 734; 23 L. J. (M. C.) 172. As to the admissibility and effect of maps, see ante, pp. 352, 1216. A road or street may in law be a public highway, though it be not a thoroughfare; it is a question of fact for the jury in each case whether it is so or not. Bateman v. Bluck, 18 Q. B. 870; 21 L. J. (Q. B.) 406: Bourke v. Davis, 44 Ch. D. 110, 123. But although the lawful stoppage of access to one end of a highway does not make it cease to be a highway (Wood v. Veal, 5 B. & Ald. 454: R. v. Downshire (Marquis), 4 Ad. & E. 698), a highway ceases to be such where the access to it at both ends has become impassable by reason of other highways leading to it having been legally stopped up. Bailey v. Jamieson, 1 C. P. D. 329. A road dedicated to and used by the public becomes (subject to 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 50, s. 23) a highway which the parish must repair, although neither such dedication nor such use have been adopted or acquiesced in by the parish, and although the parish may in fact never have repaired the road. R. v. Leake, 5 B. & Ad. 469; 2 Nev. & M. 583: R. v. Newbold, 11 Cox, 231: see Roberts v. Hunt, 15 Q. B. 17: R. v. Lordsmere, 15 Q. B. 689; 89 L. J. (M. C.) 215. The absence of repair by the parish is, however, a circumstance (to be weighed with the other evidence in the case) going to prove that the road is not a public one. R. v. Leake: R. v. Newbold (ubi supra). Public user of a road for many years is evidence from which the jury may infer a dedication, though it may not be clear in whom the ownership of the soil is vested. R. v. East Mark, 11 Q. B. 877; 11 L. J. (Q. B.) 177: see Poole v. Huskinson, 11 M. & W. 827: R. v. Petrie, 4 E. & B. 737. A public user, even for less than twenty years, may be sufficient evidence for this purpose, if clearly shown to have been acquiesced in by the owner of the soil. R. v. Chorley, 12 Q. B. 515. Such user, if uninterrupted and with the knowledge and consent of the owner, is sufficient evidence of intention to dedicate. Leckhampton Quarries Co. v. Ballinger, 68 J. P. Rep. 464, Eady, J. The Highway Act, 1835 (5 & 6 W. 4, c. 50), does not apply retrospectively to roads completely public by dedication before the Act, but only to roads then made, and in progress of dedication. R. v. West Mark, 2 M. & Rob. 305. Where a road has been dedicated to the public, but the conditions have not yet been fulfilled which, under the 23rd section of that Act, make it repairable by the parish, the owner of the soil is not liable for its repair. R. v. Wilson, 18 Q. B. 348: see Roberts v. Hunt, 15 Q. B. 17. A road newly formed, or continued under an award made under an Inclosure Act, is not repairable by the parish until it has been declared by justices in special sessions to be fully and sufficiently formed, completed, and repaired, under 41 G. 3, c. 109, s. 9: R. v. Hatfield, 4 A. & E. 156; even though the parish had in fact repaired it before and after the award, which was made eighteen years ago. R. v. East Hagbourne, Bell, 135; 8 Cox, 135 (C. C. R.). There is no such inconsistency between the powers and duties of commissioners of sewers to keep up a sea or river wall, and a right of way enjoyed by the public along such a wall, as to prevent such a right of way being acquired:—evidence of long and uninterrupted user may establish the right of way in such a case as well as in the ordinary case of a right of way claimed and used over the land of an individual. Greenwich District Board of Works v. Maudslay, L. R. 5 Q. B. 397; 39 L. J. (Q. B.) 205.

There cannot in point of law be a dedication to a part of the public, but it seems that there may be a dedication partial as to the use of the road by the whole public; e.g., that it shall be used on foot only; or for all purposes except carrying coals; or that it shall continue subject to such use of portions of it as the occupiers of adjoining houses had been accustomed to make. See Marquis of Stafford v. Coyney, 7 B. & C. 257: Le Neve v. Vestry of Mile End Old Town, 8 E. & B. 1054: Morant v. Chamberlin, 6 H. & N. 541. So a foot road may be dedicated to and accepted by the public as a highway, subject to the inconvenience of being occasionally ploughed up, and there is no legal objection to such a limited dedication of a way. Mercer v. Woodgate, L. R. 5 Q. B. 26; 39 L. J. (M. C.) 21. There cannot in point of law be a dedication to the public for a limited time. R. v. Lordsmere, 15 Q. B. 689; 19 L. J. (M. C.) 220, Byles, J. There must be acceptance by the public. Att.-Gen. v. Biphosphated Guano Co., 11 Ch. D. 327: Cubitt v. Maxse, L. R. 8 C. P. 715; 42 L. J. (C. P.) 278.

Where a highway is supported by a wall, and such wall becomes dangerous by reason of non-repair, the inhabitants of the place in which such highway is situate, if liable to repair the highway, can be convicted upon an indictment for non-repair, it being a question for the jury whether the walls form part of the highway or not. R. v. Lordsmere, 16 Cox, 65 (C. C. R.). Cf. Kent County Council v. Sandgate U. D. C., 61 J. P. 517 (C. A.); 79 L. T. 425: Att.-Gen. v. Staffordshire County Council [1905] 1 Ch. 336.

A parish cannot be convicted for not rebuilding a sea wall washed away by the sea, over the top of which the alleged highway used to pass. R. v. Paul, 2 M. & Rob. 307. So, where part of a highway had, at the time when the indictment was preferred, been destroyed by the encroachments of the sea, and the surface of the existing road was in good repair up to the point from which it had been destroyed, at which point the road was terminated by a perpendicular cliff, caused by successive encroachments; it was held that there was no obligation on the parish to provide an available carriage-way from that point, in the line of the former road, down to the beach. R. v. Hornsea, Dears. 291; 23 L. J. (M. C.) 59: see also R. v. Bamber, 5 Q. B. 279; 1 Dav. & M. 367; 13 L. J. (M. C.) 13 (post, p. 1231). Where, however, part of a highway which ran along the slope of a hill several hundred feet above the level of a valley beneath, was carried away into the valley by a landslip and its place filled up with débris, but the line of the part of the highway so carried away was known and admitted, and there was evidence that it was practicable to form a road along the old track of a similar character to the adjoining parts of the old road at a cost of 341*l.*, it was held that there was no proof of such destruction of the highway as to exempt the parish from their liability to repair it. R. v. Greenhow, 1 Q. B. D. 703; 45 L. J. (M. C.) 141.

The record of a former conviction of the parish or of a former judgment against them on a presentment for non-repair of the same road is, where not guilty alone is pleaded, conclusive evidence against the defendants (in the absence of fraud or want of notice) that the highway is in the parish, and that the parish was liable to repair it. R. v. St. Pancras, Peake (3rd ed.), 286: R. v. Whitney, 7 C. & P. 208: R. v. Haughton,

1 E. & B. 501; 6 Cox, 101. And a conviction on an indictment against an adjoining parish, for non-repair of a piece of road in continuation of the way in question, was held admissible in evidence to prove that the way in question was a highway. R. v. Brightside Bierlow, 13 Q. B. 933; 19 L. J. (M. C.) 50.

2. He must prove that that part of the road in question which is out of repair, is within the parish charged by the indictment, and any local description given of the part out of repair must be proved as laid. (See ante, pp. 67, 298.) A previous conviction for non-repair has been held conclusive that the highway is within the parish. R. v. Nether Hallam, 6 Cox, 435. Want of certainty in such description cannot be taken advantage of under the general issue. R. v. Hammersmith, 1 Stark. (N. P.) 357.

3. He must prove the part of the road so described to be out of repair, as stated in the indictment. See R. v. Stretford, 2 Ld. Raym. 1169. The liability either at common law or by statute is general, to repair and maintain the highway, leaving the person liable to find out the best or an adequate means of discharging the liability. See Att.-Gen. v. Staffordshire County Council [1905] 1 Ch. 336, and cases there cited.

4. It is not necessary to prove the liability of the parish to repair; for the law presumes that until the contrary is shown. R. v. Great Broughton, 5 Burr. 2700: R. v. Leake, 5 B. & Ad. 469. And this primary liability of the inhabitants of the parish was held not to be taken away even by a statute which imposed on a canal company the liability to repair the same highway, out of tolls granted to them for that purpose. R. v. Brightside Bierlow, 13 Q. B. 933; 19 L. J. (M. C.) 50. In the case of highways created since 1835, the liability of the parish, etc., to repair must be proved. As to the effect of the transfer to rural district councils and parish councils of the control of highways, etc., under the Local Government Act, 1894, see R. v. Shipley Parish Council, 18 Cox, 531; 61 J. P. 488; and see R. v. Morse (ante, p. 1220, n.).

Evidence for the Parish, under the General Issue.

The parishioners of the defendant parish and their wives are competent and compellable witnesses. 40 & 41 Vict. c. 14, s. 1 (ante, p. 1214).

Under the general issue, the parish may prove that the road in question is not a common highway, or that it is in good and sufficient repair, or that the part out of repair is not within the parish. 2 Wms. Saund. 158 (a), in notis: R. v. Norwich, 1 Str. 177, 181. As to rebutting the presumption of dedication, see Neeld v. Hendon U. D. C. [1899] 63 J. P. 724; 81 L. T. 481, explained in Harvey v. Truro R. D. C. [1903] 2 Ch. 638. As to the presumption with reference to ownership of ditches, see R. v. Waring [1899] 63 J. P. 788: Simcox v. Yardley R. D. C. [1905] 69 J. P. Rep. 66; and of the soil of the highway, see Mappin Bros. v. Liberty & Co. [1903] 1 Ch. 118. They cannot prove the liability of particular persons, ratione tenuræ, or the like, or the liability of a particular part of the parish by custom, to repair the road in question; for those defences must be made the subject of a special plea in all cases; R. v. St. Andrew's, Holborn, 1 Mod. 112; Keb. 301 (as to which see R. v. Weston, 4 Burr. 2511, Mansfield, L.C.J.); Anon., 1 Vent. 256; 1 Hawk. c. 76, s. 9; 2 Wms. Saund. 159 (a), n. (10); R. v. Sheffield, 2 T. R. 106: R. v. Penderryn, Id. 513: R. v. Hatfield, 4 B. & Ald. 75: R. v. Netherthong, 2 B. & Ald. 179; unless the parish have been relieved of their liability by a public statute. R. v. St. George, Hanover Square, 3 Camp. 222:

The inhabitants of a parish are not bound to repair a way used by the public and repaired by the parish for twenty years if there be no owner who could dedicate it, and the repairs by the parish be shown to have been begun and continued under a mistaken notion of the liability to repair. R. v. Edmonton, 1 M. & Rob. 24. See R. v. Leake (ante, p. 1225).

After verdict for the defendants for the non-repair of a highway, the court in one case refused to grant a new trial on the ground of the improper rejection of evidence, but suspended the judgment, in order that another indictment might be preferred. R. v. Sutton, 5 B. & Ad. 52; 2 Nev. & M. 57; 2 L. J. (M. C.) 75. See further as to the grant of a new trial in such cases, ante, p. 292.

Plea that others, ratione tenuræ, are bound to repair.

And J. S. and J. N., two of the inhabitants of the said parish of Fryern Barnet, by A. B., their solicitor, for themselves and the rest of the inhabitants of the said parish (excepting one A. C.), come in to court here, and having heard the said indictment read, say, that our lord the King ought not further to prosecute the said indictment against the inhabitants of the parish aforesaid (excepting the said A. C. as aforesaid); because they say, that as to the said part of the said highway in the said indictment described to be ruinous, miry, deep, broken, and in great decay, the said A. C., by reason of his tenure of certain lands and tenements called ——, lying and being in the said parish, ought to repair and amend the said part of the said highway so alleged to be ruinous, miry, deep, broken, and in decay as aforesaid, when and so often as there should be occasion [as the said A. C., and all those who held the said lands and tenements for the time being, from the time whereof the memory of man is not to the contrary, hitherto were used and accustomed, and of right ought to do]. And this they, the said J. S. and J. N., are ready to verify: wherefore they pray judgment, and that they and the rest of the inhabitants of the said parish of Fryern Barnet (excepting the said A. C. as aforesaid) by the court here may be dismissed and discharged from the said premises in the said indictment above specified. See the precedents, Cro. Circ. Comp. 322, 391; 4 Went. 162, 171, 176, 184; 6 Went. 411.

It is usual, but not necessary, to allege the prescription as in the above precedents between the brackets. 2 Wms. Saund. 159 (c), n. (9). It is usual, also, after stating the liability to repair, ratione tenuræ, to add a special traverse of the liability of the parish to repair; but this is improper, and probably demurrable, as being a traverse of a conclusion of law. See 1 Saund. 23, n. (5); 2 Wms. Saund. 159 (a), n. (10). See, however, R. v. Eccles field, 1 B. & Ald. 348 (post, p. 1227).

An individual cannot be bound by prescription to repair a highway, unless it be in respect of the tenure of his land, taking of toll or other profit. 2 Wms. Saund. 158 (f), n. (9).

It seems that a parish cannot be liable by prescription to repair a highway situate in another parish. R. v. Ashby Folville, L. R. 1 Q. B. 213; 35 L. J. (M. C.) 154. Nor can a parish get rid of its liability to repair, and throw the liability to indictment upon an individual, by reason of any agreement between the individual and others. R. v. Liverpool (Mayor, etc.), 3 East, 86: R. v. Beeby, 8 L. J. (M. C.) 38. It is therefore necessary, in all cases where the parish in which the road is situate throws the liability to repair upon an individual or upon another parish, etc., to state in the plea the consideration for such liability; merely stating a prescription will not be sufficient, except in the case of a corporation sole or aggregate, who may be bound by a prescription or usage, without consideration; R. v. St. Giles, Cambridge, 5 M. & Sel.

260; 17 R. R. 320: R. v. Ashby Folville, L. R. 1 Q. B. 213; 35 L. J. (M. C.) 154; and except, also, where the liability is thrown upon a district or township in the same parish, there an immemorial custom for the district to repair all the roads within it may be pleaded, without expressly stating any consideration for it, for the consideration appears sufficiently upon the face of it. R. v. Eccleşfield, 1 B. & Ald. 348; 19 R. R. 335: and R. v. W. R. of Yorkshire, 4 B. & Ald. 623; 23 R. R. 421. To an indictment against the inhabitants of the parish of A. for the non-repair of a highway within the parish, there was a plea that the inhabitants of the parish of G. from time immemorial, and in consideration of levying and receiving certain rates in respect of certain lands in the parish of A. adjacent to the highway, had repaired and ought to repair the highway so often as there should be occasion. Replication, that the agreement in the plea mentioned was duly determined by notice. On demurrer to the replication the plea was held bad, since the alleged consideration was insufficient to support the liability of G., because it could not be enforced, and because it could not from its nature be immemorial, and the repairs must have been done by G. under some arrangement between the two parishes which might be, and had been, put an end to. R. v. Ashby Folville, ubi supra. See also R. v. Ardsley (post, p. 1233).

Form of Replication.

And hereupon N. W. [the clerk of the court], who prosecutes for our said lord the King in this behalf, says, that by reason of anything in the said plea above pleaded in bar alleged our said lord the King ought not to be precluded from prosecuting the said indictment against the said inhabitants of the said parish of Fryern Barnet: because he says,* that the said A. C. ought not to repair and amend the said part of the said highway so alleged to be ruinous, miry, deep, broken and in decay as aforesaid, by reason of his said tenure, in manner and form as in and by the said plea is above supposed and alleged; and this he the said N. W. prays may be inquired of by the country. And the said J. S. and J. N., for themselves and the rest of the inhabitants of the parish of Fryern Barnet aforesaid (excepting the said A. C.), do the like. Therefore let a jury, etc., etc.

Evidence.

In order to support this plea, the defendants must prove that A. C. is the occupier of the lands and tenements mentioned in the plea: for it is the occupier who is liable, whether he be owner or not. R. v. Watts, 1 Salk. 357: R. v. Watson, 2 Ld. Raym. 856: R. v. Bucknell, 7 Mod. 55: R. v. Barker, 25 Q. B. D. 213; 59 L. J. (M. C.) 106 (post, p. 1231). Prove also, either that these lands were formerly granted to be holden by the service of repairing this part of the highway in question, or that A.C., or those who occupied the land before him, were always used and accustomed to repair it, from which circumstance such a grant will be presumed. A grant from the Crown may be a legal origin of an obligation to repair ratione tenuræ; Esher U. D. C. v. Marks, 71 L. J. (K. B.) 309; and prescription is not the only way of proving the obligation. But in cases where prescription is relied on the liability must exist from time out of memory; and therefore, if it appear that the tenement in respect of which the liability is charged originated within time of memory, the plea will not be supported. R. v. Hayman, M. & M. 401; 31 R. R. 742. Evidence of reputation is admissible to prove the liability ratione tenuræ.

R. v. Sutton, 8 A. & E. 516: R. v. Bedfordshire, 4 E. & B. 535 (overruling R. v. Wavertree, 2 M. & Rob. 353): R. v. Cotton, 3 Camp. 444; 14 R. R. 780. Where the occupier of land is bound, ratione tenuræ, to repair a highway, and the land is afterwards divided among several occupiers, each occupier is liable for the repair of the whole, and he may have his remedy over against the others for contribution. R. v. Bucklugh (Duchess), 1 Salk. 358; 2 Wms. Saund. 159, n. An indictment for the non-repair of a highway in parish A., alleging the liability by reason of the tenure of lands in A., is not supported by proof of a liability to repair a way extending through A. and other parishes, by reason of the tenure of a farm made up of lands in A. and the other parishes. R. v. Mixen, 2 M. & Rob. 382.

The record of an acquittal upon a former indictment against the parish, with respect to the same piece of highway, is no evidence for the defendants; for it might have proceeded upon other grounds than the non-liability of the parish to repair. R. v. St. Pancras, Peake (3rd ed.), 286. So, the record of a former conviction, although conclusive against the parish upon the plea of not guilty; Id.: R. v. Whitney, 7 C. & P. 208: R. v. Haughton, 1 E. & B. 501; 22 L. J. (M. C.) 89; unless fraud or want of notice can be shown; 2 Wms. Saund. 160 (a), n.; yet is not, it should seem, evidence against them, when they plead specially that an individual or corporation, etc., are bound to repair. But the record of a judgment after verdict against the parish upon such a plea would, it would seem, be conclusive evidence against the parish, upon their pleading the same plea to any subsequent indictment. See R. v. Eardisland, 2 Camp. 494.

Plea that a particular Division of the Parish is bound to repair.

And J. S. and J. N., two of the inhabitants of a certain district or township called A. in the said parish of Fryern Barnet, by A. B., their solicitor, for themselves and the rest of the inhabitants of the said district or township, came into court here, and having heard the said indictment read, say, that our lord the King ought not further to prosecute the said indictment, so far as respects the inhabitants of the district or township aforesaid; because they say that the said parish of Fryern Barnet is, and, from time whereof the memory of man is not to the contrary, hitherto hath been, divided into three districts or townships called A., B., and C,; and that the inhabitants respectively of the several districts or townships of A. and C. have, from time whereof the memory of man is not to the contrary, hitherto been used and accustomed to repair and amend the several and respective highways situate and lying in their said respective districts or townships independently of each other; and that so much of the said highway in the said indictment mentioned as leads from —— to —— lies within the said district or township of A., and so much of the said highway as leads from —— to —— lies within the said district or township of B., and so much of the said highway as leads from —— to —— lies within the said district or township of C. (see R. v. Bridekirk, 11 East, 304; 10 R. R. 514); and that the said part of the said highway in the said indictment described to be ruinous, miry, deep, broken and in great decay, lies in that part of the said parish of Fryern Barnet called the district or township of C.; and by reason of the premises aforesaid the inhabitants of the said district or township of C. ought to repair and amend the part of the said highway last aforesaid, independently of the inhabitants of the said district or township of A., in the said parish; and this they the said J. S.

and J. N. are ready to verify; wherefore, for themselves and the rest of the inhabitants of the said district or township of A., they pray judgment, and that they and the rest of the said inhabitants of the said district or township by the court here may be dismissed and discharged from the premises in the said indictment above specified. See 2 Wms. Saund. 160, n. (10); Pratt on Highways (15th ed.), 61. The inhabitants of B. should in this case plead a similar plea, and the inhabitants of C. should, it seems, plead the general issue. If the plea alleges that the particular district has been accustomed to repair all the roads within it, which otherwise would be repairable by the parish at large, it must show not only that the road in question is within the particular district, but also that it is one which, but for the custom, would be repairable by the parish. R. v. Eastrington, 5 A. & E. 765; 6 L. J. (M. C.) 17; and see R. v. Eccleafield (ante, p. 1227). It is necessary that the prescription should be pleaded: for if judgment were given against the parish, whether after verdict on the general issue, or by default, it would be conclusive evidence afterwards that the whole parish is bound to repair; R. v. St. Pancras, Peake (3rd ed.), 286: R. v. Whitney, 7 C. & P. 208; unless fraud could be shown; Id.; or unless the defence in the former case were managed by the district in which the road lay, and the other districts had no notice of the prosecution, in which case the court would give leave to the other districts to plead the prescription to the subsequent indictment. R. v. Townshend, 2 Doug. 421; 2 Wms. Saund. 160 (a), n. (10): and see R. v. Eardisland, 2 Camp. 494. See the precedents, Cro. Circ. Comp. 392; 6 Went, 394, 410, 411; and see particularly R. v. Eccleafield (ante, p. 1227). Where an indictment charged that the inhabitants of the township of Bondgate in Auckland, Newgate in Auckland, and the borough of Auckland, in the parish of St. Andrew, Auckland, were immemorially liable to repair a highway in the town of Bishop Auckland, in the parish of St. Andrew, Auckland, and no consideration was laid for such liability, the indictment was held bad in arrest of judgment. But it was held to be no objection that the three townships were charged conjointly. R. v. Bishop Auckland, 1 A. & E. 744.

Form of Replication.

Commencement as ante, p. 1227, to the asterisk, and then thus] :—that the inhabitants respectively of the several districts or townships of A. and C. have not, from time whereof the memory of man is not to the contrary, hitherto been used or accustomed to repair and amend the several respective highways situate and lying in their said respective districts or townships, independently of each other; and this he the said N. W. prays may be inquired of by the country, etc. (See ante, p. 168.) Or the prosecutor may traverse the fact of the part of the road out of repair being within the district of C.

Evidence.

Prove that the districts of A. and C. have been accustomed, as far as aged witnesses can recollect, each to repair the highways within its own district. The liability is an exception to the primâ facie liability of the parish as a whole. R. v. Barnoldswick, 4 Q. B. 499; 12 L. J. (M. C.) 44. Proof of a highway extinguished, as such, sixty years before, by an Inclosure Act, but since used by the public, and repaired by the district charged, is not sufficient to support the indictment. R. v. West Mark, 2 M. & Rob. 305. That the way is out of repair is impliedly admitted by the plea, and that the part in question lies within the district of C. is impliedly admitted by the above replication.

Proof of immemorial exemption of a township from highway rate, without proof that it has repaired its own highways, is not sufficient to establish usage charging it with its own highways and exempting it from the highway rate. R. v. Rollet, L. R. 10 Q. B. 469.

Proof of a previous conviction of the inhabitants of a hamlet for non-repair is evidence of the customary liability. R. v. Lordsmere, 16 Cox, 65 (C. C. R.); and see ante, p. 1224.

Quære whether, on an indictment against inhabitants of a district, charging them with liability to repair a highway out of the district, it is necessary to prove a specific consideration for such liability, or whether consideration may be inferred from the fact of repair without other evidence. Semble, it may. R. v. Denton, 18 Q. B. 761; 21 L. J. (M. C.) 207, n. 2; 1 Dears, 3: but see R. v. Ardsley (post, p. 1233).

As to the repair of roads and streets in towns governed by local improvements Acts, incorporating the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, see Slater v. Mayor, etc., of Ashton-under-Lyne, 18 Q. B. 398.

Indictment against an Individual for not repairing ratione tenuræ. (a)

Same as the precedent ante, p. 1220, to the asterisk, and then thus]:—and that A. C., late of the parish of Fryern Barnet, in the county aforesaid, esquire, by reason of his tenure of certain lands and tenements called ——, lying and being in the said parish, ought to repair and amend that part of the highway aforesaid, so as aforesaid being ruinous, miry, deep, broken and in decay, when and so often as there shall be occasion [as the said A. C., and all those who held the said lands and tenements for the time being, from time whereof the memory of man is not to the contrary, hitherto were used and accustomed, and of right ought to do, and the said A. C. still of right ought to do], and that the said A. C. hath not yet done the same, etc. See the precedents, Cro. Circ. Comp. 319; 4 Went. 190. Although usual, it is not necessary to allege a prescription, as in the above precedent between the square brackets. 2 Wms. Saund. 158 (e), n. (9). If land adjoining a highway not enclosed be afterwards enclosed by the owner (not being done by virtue of a writ of ad quod damnum [now disused; see Glen on Highways (2nd ed.), 416, 417; Pratt on Highways (14th ed.)] or other legal proceedings), he thereby renders himself liable during the continuance of the enclosure to repair that part of the highway adjoining the land so enclosed; 2 Wms. Saund. 161, n. (12); and he may be indicted for allowing it to be out of repair. The indictment must set out the special matter. And these or the like considerations for the liability to repair must be stated in all cases where the indictment is against an individual, or against another parish than that in which the road is situate. To state a prescription alone is not sufficient, except in the case of a corporation sole or aggregate, which may be bound to repair by prescription or usage, without consideration. R. v. St. Giles, Cambridge, 5 M. & Sel. 260; 17 R. R. 320; 1 Hawk. c. 76, s. 8.

General Issue.

"And the said A. C., by A. B., his solicitor, comes into court here, and having heard the said indictment read, says, that he is not guilty of the said premises in the said indictment above specified and charged upon him; and of this he puts himself upon the country, etc."

(a) Instead of trying liability ratione tenuræ by indictment, it is now more usual to try it by civil proceedings under 56 & 57 Vict. c. 73, s. 25 (2). See Esher U. D. C. v. Marks, 71 L. J. (K. B.) 309; 66 J. P. 248, and note ante, p. 1214.

Evidence.

A. C. and his wife are admissible witnesses and compellable to give evidence. 40 & 41 Vict. c. 14, s. 1 (ante, pp. 392, 1214).

Prove the liability of A. C. to repair the part of the highway in question ratione tenuræ, as directed ante, p. 1227. If it appear that the tenement in respect of which the liability is charged originated within the time of legal memory, the defendant must be acquitted. R. v. Hayman, M. & M. 401; 31 R. R. 742: see R. v. Sheffield Canal Co., 13 Q. B. 913; 19 L. J. (M. C.) 44: R. v. Ramsden, E. B. & E. 949; 27 L. J. (M. C.) 296. Prove that A. C. is the occupier of the lands, for an owner of lands who is not the occupier of them cannot be charged ratione tenuræ with the repair of a common highway. R. v. Barker, 25 Q. B. D. 213; 59 L. J. (M. C.) 105: Daventry R. D. C. v. Parker [1900] 1 Q. B. 1. And prove the highway to be out of repair, as directed ante, p. 1225.

The defendant may prove, under the general issue, either that the road is not out of repair, or that, instead of his being bound to repair it, the parish at large, or some district of it, by prescription or custom, or some individual ratione tenuræ, is bound to repair it; a special plea is not necessary in such a case. 2 Wms. Saund. 159, n. (10). If he plead specially, after pleading the liability of the parish, district, or person, he must conclude with a special traverse of his own liability. Id. 159 (a), n. (10).

An infant, whose guardian in socage is in possession of the property, is not such owner or occupier of the land as to be chargeable ratione tenuræ for the non-repair of a bridge or highway; the guardian must be charged. R. v. Sutton, 3 A. & E. 597; 5 Nev. & M. 353; 4 L. J. (K. B.) 215. But it seems that infancy would not exempt if there were no other person against whom the performance of the repairs could be enforced. Id.

Where, on an indictment in the common form for not repairing a highway, alleging the defendant's liability ratione tenuræ, it was found by a special verdict that the defendant's land adjoined the sea; that anciently a highway went over this land, and that the defendant's predecessors had repaired it, etc.; that within living memory the sea had encroached, and that the ancient highway was covered by the sea; that the defendant's predecessors had from time to time gradually removed the ancient highway as the sea encroached, and appropriated other parts of the estate for the site of a highway, so as to keep a highway along the sea-coast, and that they had always repaired such highway; that the highway mentioned in the indictment passed over a different part of the estate from that formerly occupied by any part of the ancient road; that the sea had, shortly before the finding of the indictment, made an encroachment and washed away part of the highway alleged to be out of repair, and washed away large quantities of the earth, so that the residue of the road was too narrow for passage, and was made to stand at the edge of a precipitous bank of about seventy feet; it was held, that the defendant was entitled to judgment. R. v. Bamber, 5 Q. B. 279; 13 L. J. (M. C.) 13; 1 Dav. & M. 367. Where a highway repairable ratione tenuræ is, under statutory powers, as under a Turnpike Act, so altered in its nature and course as to be practically destroyed, the liability to repair ratione tenuræ ceases. R. v. Barker, 25 Q. B. D. 213; 59 L. J. (M. C.) 105: Heath v. Weaverham Overseers [1894] 2 Q. B. 108. Payment under s. 35 of the Highway Act, 1862, of a composition in respect of liability to repair ratione tenuræ, does not extinguish a previous exemption from highway rates. N. E. Ry. v. Dalton Overseers [1900]

App. Cas. 345. Liability to repair ratione tenuræ and exemption from highway rate often co-exist. R. v. Browne [1845] 13 Q. B. 654. But liability to repair a highway ratione tenuræ can exist with or without exemption from other burdens, and the existence of any such exemption is in each case a matter of fact to be proved by the person claiming it. Bingley U. D. C. v. Ferrand, 67 J. P. Rep. 370.

Where the defendant was charged with a liability to repair a highway by reason of his tenure of land called Saw-pit Field, evidence of the conviction of a former owner and occupier of the Saw-pit Field, for the non-repair of the same highway (on a presentment preferred against him, alleging his liability to repair it ratione tenuræ, to which he pleaded guilty): together with evidence of the subsequent repair of the highway by the occupiers of the same lands, and of the sale of them, with public notice that they were subject to such liability; was held sufficiently to prove the liability charged: and some of the judges thought that the conviction was an estoppel on the defendant, although not pleaded. R. v. Blakemore, 2 Den. 410; 21 L. J. (M. C.) 60: see R. v. St. Pancras (ante, p. 1224).

The liability to repair a highway ratione clausuræ is only on the occupier of the lands inclosed, and not on the owner. R. v. Ramsden, E. B. & E. 949; 27 L. J. (M. C.) 296. As to this form of liability, see Pratt, Highways (15th ed.), 78: Glen, Highways (2nd ed.), 141.

Indictment against a particular District of a Parish for not Repairing.
(Common Law.)

Same as the precedent ante, p. 1220, to the asterisk, except that instead of saying, "situate, lying, and being in the parish of Fryern Barnet," you say, "situate, lying, and being in a certain district or township called C., in the parish of Fryern Barnet," etc.; and then thus]:—and that the inhabitants of the said district or township of C., in the said parish of Fryern Barnet, in the county aforesaid, have, from time whereof the memory of man is not to the contrary, hitherto been used and accustomed to repair and amend that part of the highway aforesaid, so as aforesaid being ruinous, miry, deep, broken and in decay, when and so often as there should be occasion, and that the said inhabitants of the said district or township aforesaid have not yet done the same, etc. See the precedents, 4 Went. 157, 160, 178, 184; Cro. Circ. Comp. 320; and see 2 Wms. Saund. 158 (f), n. (9): R. v. Eccleafield, 1 B. & Ald. 348; 19 R. R. 335. Whether an indictment may be sufficient which only alleges that the defendants the common highway aforesaid, so as aforesaid being in decay, etc., from time whereof, etc., ought to repair and still ought to repair, etc., quære: see R. v. Tryddyn, 21 L. J. (M. C.) 108. Or the liability of the township may be set out specially, as in the plea ante, p. 1228. See R. v. Netherthong, 2 B. & Ald. 179; and vide infra.

General Issue.

"And J. S. and J. N., two of the inhabitants of the said district or township called C., in the said parish of Fryern Barnet, by A. B., their solicitor, for themselves and the rest of the inhabitants of the said district or township, come into court here, and having heard the said indictment read say, that they are not guilty of the said premises in the said indictment above specified and charged upon them: and of this they put themselves upon the country, etc."

Evidence.

Prove the liability of the township of C. to repair the part of the highway in question, by proving that the township has been used and accustomed to do so heretofore. (See ante, p. 1222.) Townships are now in most, if not all, cases poor-law parishes, and might be combined by justices under 27 & 28 Vict. c. 101, s. 7, into highway parishes. Under the Local Government Act, 1894, highway parishes have now, in all cases, been included in urban or rural districts, and no separate highway rate is levied for townships or parishes in such districts. See Pratt on Highways (15th ed.), 650. It is now well established that a township may be liable, to the same extent and in the same way as if it were a parish, to maintain its highways. R. v. Ardsley, 3 Q. B. D. 255, 257. Prove the highway to be out of repair, as directed ante, p. 1225.

The defendants, under the general issue, may prove either that the road is in repair, or that, instead of their district being bound to repair it, the parish at large, or some other district in the parish (see R. v. Ardsley, ubi supra), or some individual ratione tenuræ, is bound to repair it. A special plea is not necessary in such a case. 2 Wms. Saund. 159, n. (10). If a special plea is put in, it must, after pleading the liability of the parish, district, or person, conclude with a special traverse of the liability of the district indicted. Id. 159 (a), n. (10). See the precedents, 4 Went. 161, 166; 6 Went. 414. If the indictment charge the district or township with the repair of all roads within it generally, a special plea would be necessary; for such a prescription makes the township, for all legal purposes, as to the repair of roads, a parish, and they must plead, etc., in the same manner as a parish would under the same circumstances. R. v. Hatfield, 4 B. & Ald. 75; 22 R. R. 631: R. v. Lordsmere, 16 Cox, 65 (C. C. R.). And where the indictment charges the district or township with the repair of all the highways within it generally, and there is no special plea that some individuals ratione tenuræ are bound to repair the highway in question, evidence of repairs to such highway by individuals is inadmissible. R. v. Hatfield, ubi supra. Evidence of a previous conviction of the inhabitants of a particular district in a parish for the non-repair of one of the highways in such district is admissible to prove that the district is liable by immemorial custom to repair all the highways within its limits, for the repair of which the inhabitants of the whole common law parish would be otherwise primâ facie liable. Id. Upon the trial of an indictment against the township of A. for the non-repair of a highway within it, it appeared that A. was one of seven townships forming the parish of D. The parish itself had never repaired any highway, nor levied highway rates, nor appointed surveyors, each township having appointed its own surveyors and levied its own highway rates. With the exception of the highway in question, and one other, each of the seven townships had from time immemorial repaired its own highways. The highway in question had always been repaired by the adjoining township of W., but there was no evidence of any consideration for such repair. It was held that A. was liable, for it must be presumed that the repairs had been done by W. under some arrangement between the two townships, and such arrangement, in the absence of sufficient consideration, was not binding on W. R. v. Ardsley, 3 Q. B. D. 255; 47 L. J. (M. C.) 65.

25 & 26 Vict. c. 61, s. 32, does not subject places formerly extra-parochial to the common law liability to indictment for non-repair of highways. R. v. Central Wingland, 2 Q. B. D. 349; 46 L. J. (M. C.) 282.

Costs of highway indictments.]—The power to award costs on highway indictments rests wholly on statute. There are three enactments giving such power, which vary in terms, and are below considered seriatim.

1. Where an indictment is directed by justices under s. 95 of the Highway Act, 1835 (5 & 6 W. 4 c. 50, ante, p. 1210), it is, as a general rule, the duty of the court before which the indictment is tried to order payment of the costs of the prosecution out of the highway rate. See R. v. Surrey JJ., 1 Bail. Ct. Cas. 70; 21 L. J. (M. C.) 195.

The right attaches when the defendant is convicted (R. v. Yarkhill, C. & P. 218), or pleads guilty (R. v. Haslemere, 3 B. & S. 313; 32 L. J. (M. C.) 30 (overruling R. v. Linton, 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 823: R. v. Aston Ingham, Id.: R. v. Vowchurch, 2 C. & K. 393: R. v. Stainhall, 1 F. & F. 363: R. v. Langley, 2 F. & F. 170)), and even where the defendant pleads and the jury finds that another is liable to repair ratione tenuræ (R. v. Surrey JJ., 21 L. J. (M. C.) 195; 1 Bail. Ct. Cas. 70); but not where the jury fail to agree on a verdict (R. v. Heytesbury, 8 L. T. (N. S.) 315), nor where the justices' order can be proved to be invalid, or the conduct of the prosecutor is successfully attached. R. v. Surrey JJ., 21 L. J. (M. C.) 196.

Thus it does not attach unless the way is a highway; R. v. Chedworth, 9 C. & P. 285: R. v. Paul, 2 M. & Rob. 307: R. v. Heanor, 6 Q. B. 745; 14 L. J. (M. C.) 38: R. v. Downholland, 15 L. J. (M. C.) 25; 2 New Sess. Cas. 177; and is the highway set out in the justices order. R. v. Fifehead, 3 Cox, 59. Nor where, the justices having ordered a prosecution as to a general highway, the indictment at the trial is restricted, by amendment, to a highway for horses, as to which the justices had no power to order a prosecution, the liability to repair the highway as a highway for horses not being in dispute. R. v. Lee, 1 Q. B. D. 198; 45 L. J. (M. C.) 54.

The powers as to costs given by 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 50, s. 95, cannot be exercised by the High Court when the indictment has been removed by certiorari. R. v. Ipstones, L. R. 8 Q. B. 216; 37 L. J. (M. C.). 37.

Where the indictment is not removed by certiorari, but is tried in the ordinary way on the crown side at the assizes, the amount of the costs, where ordered by the judge of assize to be paid under s. 95, must be ascertained by the clerk of assize during the continuance of the commission. R. v. Clark, 5 Q. B. 887; 13 L. J. (M. C.) 91.

5 & 6 W. 4, c. 50, s. 95 (ante, p. 1210), extends not only to rates made or levied at the time of the judge's order for payment, but to the highway rate in general; and if there be not sufficient funds in the hands of the surveyors at that time, they must make a rate for the purpose. And the order binds, not only the surveyors in office at the time, but their successors, until the costs be paid. R. v. Eyton, 8 E. & B. 890.

The costs provided for by s. 95 are not within any of the words of s. 103, and therefore cannot be recovered by distress under the proceedings directed by that section; but a mandamus will issue to compel the taking of the proper steps. R. v. Arnould, 8 E. & B. 550; 27 L. J. (M. C.) 52.

An order for costs under this section is enforceable by mandamus and not by distress. R. v. Eyton, 8 E. & B. 390; Pratt on Highways (15th ed.), 315.

2. Under s. 98 of the Highway Act, 1835 (5 & 6 W. 4, c. 50), the court before which any indictment shall be preferred for not repairing highways may order the defendant to pay the costs of the prosecution if satisfied that the defence is frivolous or vexatious. This enactment applies even where the indictment is removed by certiorari (R. v. Pembridge, 3 Q. B. 901; 12 L. J. (Q. B.) 47; R. v. Preston (No. 2), 7 Dowl. 593), and empowers the court of trial to make the defendant pay costs on an indictment under 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 50, s. 95. Where a plea of guilty is made at the earliest opportunity, the defence cannot be treated as frivolous or vexatious. R. v. Denton, 34 L. J. (M. C.) 13; 10 Cox, 61:

R. v. Langley, 2 F. & F. 170. An order for costs under s. 98 may be enforced by distress or attachment. R. v. Pembridge, ubi supra; and see Pratt on Highways (15th ed.), 309.

3. Where the indictment is directed by justices under s. 19 of the Highway Act, 1862 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 61), ante, p. 1211, the costs of the prosecution are to be paid by such party to the proceedings as the court may direct, and if directed to be paid by the parish are to be treated as part of the expense of keeping the highway in repair, and to be paid accordingly. The court under this section has a discretion to direct by which party the costs are to be paid. But costs cannot be given under this section where the jury find the alleged highway not to be a highway, and the section does not alter the law of costs as laid down in s. 95 of the Highway Act, 1835 (ante, p. 1210). R. v. Buckland, 6 B. & S. 397; 34 L. J. (M. C.) 178; 10 Cox, 116; Pratt on Highways (15th ed.), 367.

NON-REPAIR OF BRIDGES.

Common Law.

At common law and under the early statutes (post, p. 1236) the primary liability for the repair of a bridge falls on the inhabitants of the county, city, or town corporate within which the bridge lies (see 2 Chit. Cr. L. 588 a), unless they can prove under a special plea sufficient to throw the burden on the inhabitants of a parish (R. v. Hendon, 4 B. & Ad. 628; 2 L. J. (M. C.) 55; 38 R. R. 333), or township (R. v. Yorkshire (W. R.), 4 B. & Ald. 623; 23 R. R. 421), or district of the county (such as a hundred; R. v. Oswestry, 6 M. & Sel. 361; 18 R. R. 398), as being bound to repair it by immemorial usage (R. v. Sutton, 3 A. & E. 597; 4 L. J. (K. B.) 215); or upon some individual or body corporate or politic bound to repair it ratione tenuræ (R. v. Kerrison, 1 M. & Sel. 435; 14 R. R. 491) or by prescription (R. v. Yorkshire (W. R.), 7 East, 588; 8 R. R. 688), or by the terms on which they have received statutory powers to interfere with public rights. R. v. Kerrison, 3 M. & Sel. 526; 16 R. R. 342. The liability of the inhabitants of a county appears to be transferred to the county council by 51 & 52 Vict. c. 41, s. 79 (2) (post, p. 1241): but that of the inhabitants of a borough, parish, or township to be unaltered. R. v. Poole (Mayor, etc.), 19 Q. B. D. 602; 56 L. J. (M. C.) 131; 16 Cox, 323. The pleas and evidence are the same, mutatis mutandis, with the pleas and evidence in the case of an indictment for not repairing a highway. (See ante, pp. 1220–1233.) The liability extends to bridges built by private individuals prior to 43 G. 3, c. 59, if of utility to and used by the county. R. v. Wilts, 6 Mod. 307: R. v. Yorkshire (W. R.), 5 Burr. 2594: R. v. Yorkshire (W. R.), 2 East, 342; 6 R. R. 439: R. v. Bucks, 12 East, 192; 11 R. R. 347: R. v. Salop, 13 East, 95; 12 R. R. 307: R. v. Kent, 13 East, 220: R. v. Devon, 14 East, 477; 13 R. R. 285: R. v. Oxfordshire, 16 East, 223: R. v. Same, 4 B. & C. 194: R. v. Same, 1 B. & Ad. 297, n.: R. v. Kent, 2 M. & Sel. 513; 15 R. R. 330: R. v. Isle of Ely, 15 Q. B. 827; Burn's Justice (30th ed.), tit. "Bridges;" Pratt on Highways (15th ed.), 84. A bridge always open to the public, but only used in time of flood, has been held to be a public bridge. R. v. Devon, Ry. & M. 144. Where a bridge has been built on a public highway before 1803, the county can only avoid its common law liability by proving that it has been cast on some other person. Att.-Gen. v. West Riding of Yorkshire County Council, 67 J. P. Rep. 103; 1 Loc. Govt. Rep. 223: Yorkshire (W. R.) v. R., 2 Dow (H. L.) 1; 3 Eng. Rep. 767. As to the liability of the county to repair a bridge built by a private individual and used by the public, and the evidence necessary to support such liability, see R. v. Southampton, 17 Q. B. D. 424; 19 Q. B. D. 590. In that case it was held that there must be evidence of acceptance by the county: hereon see Pratt on Highways (15th ed.), 90. Bridges built since 43 G. 3, c. 59, cannot become county bridges except under that Act, or under 33 & 34 Vict. c. 73, s. 12, or 41 & 42 Vict. c. 77, s. 21, or 51 & 52 Vict. c. 41, ss. 6, 11 (post, p. 1240). And see New Windsor (Mayor, etc.) v. Taylor [1899] App. Cas. 41; 68 L. J. (Q. B.) 87. As to partial dedication of a bridge, see R. v. Northampton, 2 M. & Sel. 262; 15 R. R. 241.

As to what is a bridge, and what a culvert, and so part of the highway, see R. v. Oxfordshire, 1 B. & Ad. 289; 35 R. R. 302: R. v. Whitney, 3 A. & E. 69; 7 C. & P. 208; 4 L. J. (M. C.) 86: R. v. Derbyshire, 2 Q. B. 745; 2 G. & D. 97; 11 L. J. (M. C.) 51: R. v. Lancaster, 32 J. P. 711. A footbridge formed by three planks, nine or ten feet long, and a hand-rail, which carried a public footpath over a small stream, was held not to be such a bridge as the county was bound to repair. R. v. Southampton, 18 Q. B. 841; 21 L. J. (M. C.) 201. Where a county bridge, which had been washed away, was, after 43 G. 3, c. 59, built wider than before, and without notice to the county surveyor, by the parish, partly with the old materials, and in the same line of passage over the river, it was held that this was not a new bridge within the meaning of the Act, and that the county was still liable to repair it. R. v. Devon, 5 B. & Ad. 383; 2 L. J. (M. C.) 74; 2 Nev. & M. 212: see R. v. Adderbury East, Dav. & M. 324; 13 L. J. (M. C.) 9. The county is not compellable to widen a bridge; R. v. Devon, 4 B. & C. 670; 28 R. R. 440; but if a county bridge is accidentally destroyed, the county is liable to rebuild it. R. v. Yorkshire (W. R.), 5 Burr. 2594. The Locomotives Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 70, s. 7), does not apply to public bridges repairable by the inhabitants of a county so as to relieve them from their common law liability to repair, or to render the owner of a locomotive liable to an indictment for non-repair of a county bridge damaged by such locomotive. R. v. Kitchener, L. R. 2 C. C. R. 88; 43 L. J. (M. C.) 9. The transfer of part of a county to another county transfers the liabilities as to bridges within the transferred portion, unless the liability rested on statute or prescription. R. v. Brecon.shire, 15 Q. B. 813: Re Staffordshire and Derbyshire County Councils, 54 J. P. 566. Where a borough, incorporated by charter with a non-intromittant clause, was enlarged, under 2 & 3 W. 4, c. 64, s. 35 (rep.), and 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 76, s. 7 (rep.), by the addition of a parish within the same county, containing a bridge which until that time the county had repaired, it was held that this transfer of the new district did not of itself, without evidence that the borough had been used to maintain any bridges, render the borough liable to repair such bridge. R. v. New Sarum, 7 Q. B. 941; 15 L. J. (M. C.) 15: see 45 & 46 Vict. c. 50, s. 119 (post, p. 1240).

Statutes.

22 H. 8, c. 5, s. 1—Jurisdiction of quarter sessions.]— . . . The justices of the peace in every shire of this realm, franchise, city, or borough, or four of them at the least whereof one to be of the quorum, shall have power and authority to inquire, hear and determine in the King's general sessions of the peace of all manner of anoysances (nuisances) of bridges broken in the highways to the damage of the King's liege people; and to make such process and pains upon every presentment afore them for the reformation of the same again such as owen (ought) to be charged for the making or amending of such bridges as the King's justices of his bench use commonly to do, or as it shall seem by their discretion to be necessary and convenient for the speedy amendment of such bridges.

Sect. 2.]—And where in many parts of this realm it cannot be known and proved what hundred, riding, wapentake, city, borough, town or parish, nor what person certain or body politic ought of right to make such bridges decayed, by reason whereof such decayed bridges for lack of knowledge of such as owen (ought) to make them for the most part lyen long without any amendment, to the great annoyance of the King's subjects; for the remedy thereof, be it enacted by authority aforesaid, that in every such case the said bridges, if they be without city or town corporate, shall be made by the inhabitants of the shire or riding within which the said bridge decayed shall happen to be: and if it be within any city or town corporate then by the inhabitants of every such city or town corporate wherein such bridges shall happen to be; and if part of any such bridges so decayed happen to be in one shire, riding, city, or town corporate, and the other part thereof in another shire, riding, city or town corporate, or if part be within the limits of any city or town corporate and part without, or part within one riding and part within another, that then in every such case the inhabitants of the shires, ridings, cities or towns corporate shall be charged and chargeable to amend, make and repair such part and portion of such bridges so decayed as shall lie and be within the limits of the shire, riding, city or town corporate, wherein they be inhabited at the time of the same decay. 33 & 34 Vict. c. 73, s. 12—Bridges in disturnpiked roads.]—Where a turnpike road shall have become an ordinary highway, all bridges which were previously repaired by the trustees of the turnpike road shall become county bridges and shall be kept in repair accordingly: Provided that for the purposes of this Act such bridges shall be treated as if they were bridges built subsequently to the passing of the Highway Act, 1835. [See 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 50, s. 21, supra.]

41 & 42 Vict. c. 77 (Highways, etc., Amendment Act, 1878), s. 21.]—Any bridge erected before the passing of this Act (16th August, 1878) in any county without such superintendence as is provided in s. 5 of the Bridges Act, 1803 (ante, p. 1239), and which is certified by the county surveyor or other person appointed in that behalf by the county authority to be in good repair and condition, shall, if the county authority see fit so to order, become and be deemed to be a bridge which the inhabitants of the county shall be liable to maintain and repair.

45 & 46 Vict. c. 50 (Municipal Corporations Act, 1882), s. 119—Bridges in boroughs.]—(1) Every bridge which is either wholly or in part in a borough, and which the borough and not the county in which it is situate is legally bound to maintain or repair, shall as to the whole of the bridge if it is wholly in the borough or as to such part only as is in the borough be maintained, widened, repaired, improved, or rebuilt under the sole management and control of the (borough) council.

(2) For that purpose the council shall have all the powers which the justices of a county have with respect to a county bridge, but the notices required in the case of a county bridge shall not be required in the case of a borough bridge. . . . [See R. v. Dorset, 45 L. T. (N. S.) 308: R. v. Southampton, 17 Q. B. D. 424; 19 Q. B. D. 590.]

51 & 52 Vict. c. 41 (Local Government Act, 1888), s. 3.]—There shall be transferred to the council of each county . . . the administrative business of the justices of the county in quarter sessions assembled, that is to say, all business done by the quarter sessions or any committee appointed by the quarter sessions in respect of the several matters following, namely: . . .

(viii.) Bridges and roads repairable with bridges, and any powers vested by the Highways and Locomotives Amendment Act, 1878 (41 & 42 Vict. c. 77), in the county authority.

Sect. 11—Bridges in main roads.]—(1) Every road in a county which is for the time being a main road within the meaning of the Highways and Locomotives Amendment Act, 1878 (41 & 42 Vict. c. 77), inclusive of every bridge carrying such road, if repairable by the highway authority, shall after the appointed day be wholly repaired by the council of the county in which the road is situate. . . . [As to the nature and extent of the liability created by this sub-section, see Att.-Gen. v. Staffordshire County Council [1905] 1 Ch. 336; 69 J. P. Rep. 97.]

(2) (3) Empower urban authorities to claim the right to retain the powers and duties of maintaining and repairing main roads within their districts, in which event the road vests in the urban authority, and the county council contributes a sum agreed, or settled by arbitration.

Sect. 34 (2)—Bridges in a county borough.]—On the appointed day there shall be transferred to the mayor, aldermen, and burgesses of each county borough "all such bridges and approaches thereto or parts thereof situate within the borough as were previously repairable by the county or any hundred therein." . . . [The cost of repair is payable out of the borough fund.]

Sect. 78 (3)—Presentments.]— . . . a presentment by a grand jury in relation to any such powers, duties, or liabilities (arising as to business transferred (inter alia) under s. 3 (viii.), supra), shall cease to be made otherwise than by way of indictment.

Sect. 79 (2)—Transfer to county council of liabilities of inhabitants.]—All duties and liabilities of the inhabitants of a county shall become and be duties and liabilities of the council of such county. [This seems to transfer liability to indictment from the inhabitants to the council. See Pratt on Highways (15th ed.), 591; Glen on Highways (2nd ed.), 106.]

Indictment for not repairing a Bridge.

Middlesex, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that [from time whereof the memory of man is not to the contrary], there was and yet is a certain common public stone bridge, commonly called D. Bridge, situate and being in the several parishes of B. and C., in the county of M., in the King's common highway leading from the town of H., in the county of H., towards and unto the city of London, used by and for all the liege subjects of our said lord the King and his predecessors, on foot, and with their horses, coaches, carts, and other carriages, to go, return, pass, repass, ride, and labour, at their free will and pleasure; and that the said bridge, on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, and continually afterwards until the day of the taking of this inquisition, at the several parishes of B. and C. aforesaid, in the county aforesaid, was and yet is very ruinous, broken, dangerous, and in great decay, for want of upholding, maintaining, amending, and repairing the same, so that the liege subjects of our said lord the King upon and over the said bridge, with their horses, coaches, carts, and other carriages, could not during the time last aforesaid, nor yet can go, return, pass, repass, ride, and labour, as they before used and were accustomed to do, and still of right ought to do, without great danger of their lives, and the loss of their goods; to the great damage and common nuisance of all the liege subjects of our said lord the King, upon and over the said bridge, going, returning, passing, repassing, riding, and labouring; and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity: And that the said bridge is not within any city or town corporate: and that it cannot be known and proved that any hundred, riding, wapentake, city, borough, or parish, or any person certain, or any body politic or corporate, ought of right to make, rebuild, repair, or amend the said bridge; and that the county council of the administrative county of Middlesex (see infra) aforesaid ought to make, rebuild, repair, and amend the said bridge, when and so often as it should or shall be necessary; against the form of the statutes in such case made and provided. See also the precedent, Cro. Circ. Comp. 313; 6 Went. 427; 2 Chit. Cr. L. 593 b.

The words in brackets are unnecessary (see ante, p. 1222). The liability to indictment formerly resting on the inhabitants of the county appears to be transferred to the council of the administrative county in which the bridge lies. See note to 51 & 52 Vict. c. 41, s. 79 (2) (supra). But the matter has not been judicially decided, and it is prudent to add a second count on the same lines as the first, but with the substitution of the words "the inhabitants of the whole county of Middlesex," for the alleyation as to the county council.

Misdemeanor: fine.

Sect. 3.

Inciting Infants to Betting or Wagering or to Borrowing Money.

Statutes.

55 & 56 Vict. c. 4 (Betting and Loans (Infants) Act, 1892), s. 1—Sending documents to an infant inviting him to bet.—(1) If any one, for the purpose of earning commission, reward, or other profit, sends or causes to be sent to a person whom he knows to be an infant any circular, notice, advertisement, letter, telegram, or other document which invites or may reasonably be implied to invite the person receiving it to make any bet or wager, or to enter into or take any share or interest in any betting or wagering transaction, or to apply to any person or at any place, with a view to obtaining information or advice for the purpose of any bet or wager, or for information as to any race, fight, game, sport, or other contingency upon which betting or wagering is generally carried on, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be liable, if convicted on indictment, to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding three months, or to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds, or to both imprisonment and fine, and if convicted on summary conviction, to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding one month, or to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds, or to both imprisonment and fine.

(2) If any such circular, notice, advertisement, letter, telegram, or other document as in this section mentioned, names or refers to any one as a person to whom any payment may be made, or from whom information may be obtained, for the purpose of or in relation to betting or wagering, the person so named or referred to shall be deemed to have sent or caused to be sent such document as aforesaid, unless he proves that he had not consented to be so named, and that he was not in any way a party to, and was wholly ignorant of, the sending of such document.

Sect. 2—Sending to infants circulars inviting to borrow money.]—(1) If any one, for the purpose of earning interest, commission, reward, or other profit, sends or causes to be sent to a person whom he knows to be an infant any circular, notice, advertisement, letter, telegram, or other document which invites or may reasonably be implied to invite the person receiving it to borrow money, or to enter into any transaction involving the borrowing of money, or to apply to any person or at any place with a view to obtaining information or advice as to borrowing money, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be liable, if convicted on indictment, to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding three months, or to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds, or to both imprisonment and fine, and if convicted on summary conviction, to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding one month, or to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds, or to both imprisonment and fine.

(2) If any such document as above in this section mentioned sent to an infant purports to issue from any address named therein, or indicates any address as the place at which application is to be made with reference to the subject-matter of the document, and at that place there is carried on any business connected with loans, whether making or procuring loans or otherwise, every person who attends at such place for the purpose of taking part in or who takes part in or assists in the carrying on of such business shall be deemed to have sent or caused to be sent such document as aforesaid, unless he proves that he was not in any way a party to and was wholly ignorant of the sending of such document.

Sect. 3—Presumption of knowledge of infancy.]—If any such circular, notice, advertisement, letter, telegram, or other document as in the preceding sections or either of them mentioned is sent to any person at any university, college, school, or other place of education, and such person is an infant, the person sending or causing the same to be sent shall be deemed to have known that such person was an infant, unless he proves that he had reasonable ground for believing such person to be of full age.

63 & 64 Vict. c. 51 (Money Lenders Act, 1900), s. 5—Presumption of knowledge of infancy.]—Where in any proceeding under s. 2 of the Betting and Loans (Infants) Act, 1892, it is proved that the person to whom the document was sent was an infant the person charged shall be deemed to have known that the person to whom the document was sent was an infant, unless he proves that he had reasonable ground for believing the infant to be of full age.

55 & 56 Vict. c. 4, s. 4—Soliciting infant to make affidavit in connection with loan.]—If any one, except under the authority of any court, solicits an infant to make an affidavit or statutory declaration for the purpose of or in connection with any loan, he shall be liable, if convicted on summary conviction, to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding one month, or to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds, or to both imprisonment and fine, and if convicted on indictment, to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding three months, or to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds.

Sect. 6—Defendant and wife or husband of defendant a competent witness.]—In any proceeding against any person for an offence under this Act such person and his wife or husband, as the case may be, may, if such person thinks fit, be called, sworn, examined, and cross-examined as an ordinary witness in the case. [This enactment seems to be superseded by the Criminal Evidence Act, 1898 (61 & 62 Vict. c. 36), ante, p. 392, et seq.]

Sect. 4—Poaching.

Taking game by night after two previous convictions.

Statutes.

9 G. 4, c. 69 (Night Poaching Act, 1828), s. 1.]—[Whereas the practice of going out by night, for the purpose of destroying game, has very much increased of late years, and has in very many instances led to the commission of murder, and of other grevious offences; and it is expedient to make more effectual provisions than now by law exist for repressing such practice (rep.).]—If any person shall, by night, unlawfully take or destroy any game or rabbits in any land, whether open or enclosed, or shall by night unlawfully enter or be in any land, whether open or enclosed, with any gun, net, engine, or other instrument for the purpose of taking or destroying game, such offender shall, upon conviction thereof before two justices of the peace, be committed, for the first offence, to the common gaol or house of correction, for any period not exceeding three calendar months, there to be kept to hard labour, and at the expiration of such period shall find sureties by recognizance, or in Scotland by bond of caution, himself in ten pounds, and two sureties in five pounds each, or one surety in ten pounds, for his not so offending again for the space of one year next following; and in case of not finding such sureties, shall be further imprisoned and kept to hard labour for the space of six calendar months, unless such sureties are sooner found; and in case such person shall so offend a second time, and shall be thereof convicted before two justices of the peace, he shall be committed to the common gaol or house of correction for any period not exceeding six calendar months, there to be kept to hard labour, and at the expiration of such period shall find sureties by recognizance or bond as aforesaid, himself in twenty pounds, and two sureties in ten pounds each, or one surety in twenty pounds, for his not so offending again for the space of two years next following; and in case of not finding such sureties, shall be further imprisoned and kept to hard labour for the space of one year, unless such sureties are sooner found; and in case such person shall so offend a third time, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, being convicted thereof, shall be liable, at the discretion of the court, to be transported beyond seas for seven years, or to be imprisoned and kept to hard labour in the common gaol or house of correction for any term not exceeding two years; and in Scotland, if any person shall so offend a first, second, or third time, he shall be liable to be punished in like manner as is hereby provided in each case.

Sect. 4—Limitation of proceedings.]— . . . The prosecution for every offence punishable upon indictment, or otherwise than upon summary conviction, by virtue of this Act, shall be commenced within twelve calendar months after the commission of such offence. [Rep. as to summary proceedings in England, 47 & 48 Vict. c. 43, s. 4. For cases on this section, see p. 97.]

Sect. 8—Conviction—Evidence.]—On every conviction under this Act for a first or second offence, the convicting justices shall return the same to the next quarter sessions for the county, riding, division, city, or place wherein such offence shall have been committed: and the record of such conviction, or any copy thereof, shall be evidence in any prosecution to be instituted against the party thereby convicted for a second or third offence: and the clerk of the peace shall immediately on such return make, or cause to be made, a memorandum of such conviction in a register to be kept by him of the names and places of abode of the persons so convicted, and shall state whether such conviction be the first or second conviction of the offending party. [See ante, p. 360.]

Sect. 9—Three or more persons armed taking game, etc.]—If any persons, to the number of three or more together, shall by night unlawfully enter or be in any land, whether open or enclosed, for the purpose of taking or destroying game or rabbits, any of such persons being armed with any gun, cross-bow, fire-arms, bludgeon, or any other offensive weapon, each and every of such persons shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, being convicted thereof before the justices of gaol delivery [or of the court of great sessions (abolished)] of the county or place in which the offence shall be committed, shall be liable, at the discretion of the court, to be transported beyond seas for any term not exceeding fourteen years, nor less than seven years, or to be imprisoned and kept to hard labour for any term not exceeding three years; and in Scotland any person so offending shall be liable to be punished in like manner. [See ante, p. 235, et seq.]

Sect. 12—"Night" defined.]—Provided always that, for the purpose of this Act, the night shall be considered and is hereby declared to commence at the expiration of the first hour after sunset, and to conclude at the beginning of the last hour before sunrise. [The computation seems to be by the actual time of sunset at the place, and not by Greenwich mean time, under 43 & 44 Vict. c. 9, s. 1 (ante, p. 620); see Gordon v. Cann, 68 L. J. (Q. B.) 434; 63 J. P. 284: Curtis v. Marsh, 3 H. & N. 866.]

Sect. 13—"Game" defined.]—For the purposes of this Act, the word "game" shall be deemed to include hares, pheasants, partridges, grouse, heath or moor game, black game, and bustards.

7 & 8 Vict. c. 29 (Night Poaching Act, 1844), s. 1—Taking game or rabbits on highways, etc.]—All the pains, punishments, and forfeitures imposed by the said Act (9 G. 4, c. 69), upon persons by night unlawfully taking or destroying any game or rabbits in any land open or enclosed, as therein set forth, shall be applicable to and imposed upon any person by night unlawfully taking or destroying any game or rabbits on any public road, highway, or path, or the sides thereof, or at the openings, outlets, or gates, from any such land into any such public road, highway, or path, in the like manner as upon any such land, open or enclosed; and it shall be lawful for the owner or occupier of any land adjoining either side of that part of such road, highway, or path, where the offender shall be, and the gamekeeper or servant of such owner or occupier, and any person assisting such gamekeeper or servant, and for all the persons authorized by the said Act to apprehend any offender against the provisions thereof, to seize and apprehend any person offending against the said Act or this Act; and the said Act, and all the powers, provisions, authorities, and jurisdictions therein or thereby contained or given, shall be as applicable for carrying this Act into execution, as if the same had been herein specially set forth. [This enactment seems to override the decision in R. v. Meadham, 2 C. & K. 633.]

Indictment under 9 G. 4, c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 1244).

Commencement as ante, p. 434]—on the first day of June in the year ——, by night, to wit, about the hour of eleven in the night of the same day, did unlawfully take and destroy certain game and rabbits, to wit, one pheasant and two rabbits, in certain land ("any land whether open or enclosed") in the occupation of J. N., situate at the parish of B., in the county of M. [or did unlawfully enter certain land in the occupation of of J. N., situate, etc., and was then by night unlawfully in the said land with a certain gun ("gun, engine, or other instrument"), for the purpose, by night as aforesaid, of therein taking and destroying game]; against the form, etc. [as ante, p. 465]. And the jurors aforesaid do further present, that heretofore, and before the committing of the offence by the said J. S. hereinbefore charged and stated, to wit, on the, etc. [Here state two former convictions under s. 1. Previous convictions under s. 9 will not suffice. R. v. Lines [1902] 1 K. B. 199; 71 L. J. (K. B.) 125; 20 Cox, 142; 66 J. P. 24.] This precedent has been altered from that appearing in previous editions in consequence of the ruling of Hawkins, J., in R. v. Woodfield (post, p. 1247). If the offence was committed on any public road, highway, or path, or the sides thereof, or at any opening, outlet, or gate from any land into any such road, etc., state it accordingly. 7 & 8 Vict. c. 29, s. 1, supra.

Where the indictment, in setting out the second of the two former convictions, stated that the defendant afterwards, to wit, on the 27th November, 1858, was duly convicted before, etc., for that he, within six calendar months next before, etc., to wit, on the 24th November, in the year aforesaid, in the night of the same day, at, etc., by night unlawfully did enter and be in and upon certain enclosed land in, etc., with certain instruments [not stating what they were], for the purpose of killing, taking, and destroying game thereon, this being his second offence, contrary, etc., and was then adjudged to be imprisoned for six calendar months, etc., this was held a sufficient statement of such conviction. Cureton v. R., 1 B. & S. 208; 30 L. J. (M. C.) 149.

Misdemeanor: penal servitude for not more than seven nor less than three years, or imprisonment, with or without hard labour, not exceeding two years. 9 G. 4, c. 69, s. 1; 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3 (ante, p. 235); 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235).

Evidence.

Prove the two former convictions under s. 1 by the production of the originals, or by examined copies (see ante, p. 345, and 9 G. 4, c. 69, s. 8, ante, p. 1245), or in the manner prescribed by 14 & 15 Vict. c. 99, s. 13 (ante, p. 360), or by 34 & 35 Vict. c. 112, s. 18 (ante, p. 361). A conviction for an offence under s. 9 (ante, p. 1245) cannot be treated as a conviction under s. 1 so as to enable the court to deal with the prisoner as for a third offence under s. 1. R. v. Lines [1902] 1 K. B. 199; 71 L. J. (K. B.) 125; 20 Cox, 142 (C. C. R.). As to what is a sufficient averment of a previous conviction, see R. v. Merry, 2 Cox, 240: Fletcher v. Calthrop, 6 Q. B. 880; 14 L. J. (Q. B.) 95: Cureton v. R., ubi supra. Prove the identity of the defendant. And prove the third offence, as stated in the indictment.

In R. v. Woodfield, 16 Cox, 314, Hawkins, J., refused to allow evidence to be given of the previous convictions, until the jury had found the prisoner guilty of the third offence. The offence must have been committed in the night-time—that is, some time between the expiration of the first hour after sunset, and the beginning of the last hour before sunrise; 9 G. 4, c. 69, s. 12 (and see ante, pp. 620, 1245); but a variance between the hour stated and that proved will not be material. It must also appear that the offence was committed within twelve calendar months before the prosecution. See the evidence under the next precedent.

Indictment under 9 G. 4, c. 69, s. 9 (ante, p. 1245).

Surrey, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. S., W. S., E. G., and divers other persons to the jurors aforesaid unknown, to the number of three and more together, on the first day of November, in the year of our Lord ——, about the hour of eleven in the night of the same day, being then, by night as aforesaid, respectively armed with guns and other offensive weapons ("any gun, cross-bow, fire-arms, bludgeon, or other offensive weapon"), did then together, by night as aforesaid, and armed as aforesaid, unlawfully enter ("enter or be in") certain land ("any land whether opened or enclosed") in the occupation of J. N., situate at the parish of B., in the county of S., for the purpose therein of destroying game ("game or rabbits"); against the form [as ante, p. 465]. Add a count charging that the defendants "were by night as aforesaid, and armed as aforesaid, together unlawfully in the said land for the purpose," etc. A count for assaulting a gamekeeper may also be added if necessary: see ante, p. 865; and R. v. Handley, 5 C. & P. 565.

This offence is of a local nature, and the indictment must describe the land by name or occupation; R. v. Ridley, R. & R. 515; or ownership. R. v. Riley, 3 C. & K. 116. It is not, however, necessary to state both the name and the occupation of the land; but, if both be stated, both must be proved, and a variance will be fatal (R. v. Owen, 1 Mood. C. C. 118), unless amended under 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 1 (ante, p. 52). R. v. Sutton, 13 Cox, 648, Lindley, J. In R. v. Crick, 5 C. & P. 508, decided before the passing of that Act, the words "a certain cover in the parish of A." were held too general a description. The indictment need not specify whether the land was open or enclosed. R. v. Andrews, 2 M. & Rob. 37: R. v. Morris, 5 Cox, 205. Nor is it necessary to name a certain close; if the land described comprehend several closes, and the offence be committed on any part of such land, it is sufficient. R. v. Uezzell, 2 Den. 274; 3 C. & K. 150; 20 L. J. (M. C.) 192; 5 Cox, 188. As to the proper mode of describing the arming, see R. v. Goodfellow, 1 Den. 81; 1 C. & K. 724. The indictment must show that the entry and the arming were by night; where, therefore, an indictment stated that the defendants, on, etc., did by night enter divers closes, and were then and there in the said closes armed, etc., the judgment was arrested, because the word "night" was confined to the first branch of the sentence, and the words "then and there" referred only to the day and place before stated. Davies v. R., 10 B. & C. 89; 5 Man. & Ry. 78: see Cureton v. R., 1 B. & S. 208; 30 L. J. (M. C.) 149; 8 Cox, 481. In R. v. Kendrick, 7 C. & P. 184, it was held that the indictment is sufficient if it alleges that the defendants were together in the land by night, armed, for the purpose of destroying game, without a distinct averment, in the earlier part of it, that the defendants being armed, did together unlawfully enter, etc. But in a subsequent case, R. v. Wilks, 7 C. & P. 811, Parke, B., intimated that it would be advisable to introduce such an averment in future; and the above indictment has been framed in compliance with this suggestion.

Misdemeanor: penal servitude for not more than fourteen and not less than three years, or imprisonment, with or without hard labour, not exceeding two years. 9 G. 4, c. 69, s. 9; 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3 (ante, p. 235); 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235). A court of quarter sessions has no jurisdiction over this offence. 9 G. 4, c. 69, s. 9 (ante, p. 1245; and see p. 126).

Evidence.

Prove that the defendants, with others, to the number of three or more, entered and were, in the night-time (that is to say, some time between the expiration of the first hour after sunset, and the beginning of the last hour before sunrise; 9 G. 4, c. 69, s. 12, ante, p. 1245), in certain land in the occupation of J. N., and situate as described in the indictment. As to variances between statement and proof of the position of the land, see ante, pp. 298, 299.

Prove that they entered the land for the purpose of taking and destroying game (that is, hares, pheasants, partridges, grouse, heath or moor game, black game or bustards; 9 G. 4, c. 69, s. 13, ante, p. 1245) or rabbits there. Upon an indictment on 57 G. 3, c. 90 (rep.), for having entered a close, etc., with intent then and there illegally to destroy game, etc., the jury found that the defendant was in pursuit of game, but could not say whether in the close mentioned in the indictment or not; and the defendant having been convicted, the judges held the conviction wrong, because the entry with intent to kill was confined by the indictment to the close specified, and it was therefore necessary to prove the intent as to that close. R. v. Barham, 1 Mood. C. C. 151: see R. v. Capewell, 5 C. & P. 549: R. v. Gainer, 7 C. & P. 231: Fletcher v. Calthrop, 6 Q. B. 880; 14 L. J. (M. C.) 95: sed quære; see per Hill, J., Cureton v. R., 1 B. & S. 208; 30 L. J. (M. C.) 149. Where people are out at night in pursuit of game, intending to take it when they can find any, they are in pursuit of game in every field through which they pass. If they are out with a general intent to take game, there is an intent to take it in any field they may pass through where game may be expected to be found. R. v. Higgs, 10 Cox, 527, Willes, J.: R. v. Sutton, 13 Cox, 648, Lindley, J. And therefore where the prisoners were charged with being by night, armed, in a certain close for the purpose of destroying game therein, and the evidence was that they passed through the close without doing anything in it, and that after being lost sight of for two hours, they were found three miles off with game in their possession, it was held that there was evidence that they were in the close mentioned in the indictment for the purpose of destroying game. R. v. Higgs, ubi supra. The intent is proved by circumstances from which the jury may infer it, as that the land was a preserve for game, or that the defendants discharged guns there, or had nets or dogs; R. v. Turner, 3 Cox, 304; or that they actually took game or rabbits there, which is the best possible evidence of the intent. All who are at the place, each acting his part with the common intent of taking game in the land mentioned in the indictment, are equally guilty, though some of them only are bodily on the land; if, therefore, some (though less than three) enter the land described in the indictment (whether it be open land, or consist of one or more closures or enclosures) armed, and others be watching on the outside of the land to give an alarm if necessary, they may equally be convicted with those who actually enter the land, on an indictment charging them all with having entered the land armed. R. v. Passey, 7 C. & P. 282: R. v. Lockett, Id., 300: R. v. Andrews, 2 M. & Rob. 37: R. v. Whittaker, 1 Den. 310; 2 C. & K. 636; 17 L. J. (M. C.) 127: R. v. Scotton, 5 Q. B. 493: R. v. Uezzell, 2 Den. 274; 3 C. & K. 150; 20 L. J. (M. C.) 192. See now 7 & 8 Vict. c. 29, s. 1 (ante, p. 1245). But not so if, some of them being on the land in question, another is poaching independently of them on adjoining land. R. v. Nickless, 8 C. & P. 757, Patteson, J. And where the indictment charged that the prisoners were with others on Redborough-hill Brake, and one only was seen there, the others being in a wood separated therefrom by a high road, Patteson, J., held the indictment not proved. R. v. Dowsell, 6 C. & P. 398. The sending in of a dog to drive hares into a net set in the fence, is not an entering of the land within the statute. R. v. Nickless, supra; see R. v. Pratt, 4 E. & B. 860; Dears. 502. It is not necessary, in order to prove that the defendants were on the land unlawfully, to negative any permission to them by the owner or tenant of the land to be there. R. v. Wood, Dears. & B. 1; 25 L. J. (M. C.) 96.

"Armed," etc.]—Prove that the defendants, or some or one of them, were armed with a gun or other offensive weapon, as stated in the indictment. See ante, p. 1247. A stick or bludgeon is not an offensive weapon, unless the jury find that the defendant took it with him for the purpose of offence. R. v. Palmer, 1 M. & Rob. 70: R. v. Fry, 2 M. & Rob. 42: R. v. Turner, 8 Cox, 304: R. v. Williams, 14 Cox, 59. Large stones are offensive weapons, if the jury are satisfied that they were of a description capable of inflicting serious injury if used offensively, and that they were brought and used by the defendants for that purpose. R. v. Grice, 7 C. & P. 803. Indeed any instrument, however innocent in its ordinary use, may be an offensive weapon, if brought out by the poachers for offensive purposes, although they may also intend to use it for other purposes. R. v. Sutton, 13 Cox, 648, Lindley, J. The words of the statute are "any of such persons being armed," etc.: and if one of the party be armed with the knowledge of the rest, it will support the allegation that they were all armed; R. v. Smith, R. & R. 368: R. v. Goodfellow, 1 Den. 81; 1 C. & K. 724; and it is not necessary that any of the party should be actually armed at the moment they are discovered, if there be evidence to satisfy the jury that they were armed on the land. Upon an indictment on the repealed statute, for being found armed, it appeared that the flash of a gun was seen in a wood, but before the defendants were discovered, they had abandoned their arms, and were found creeping away upon their knees; the judges held that they were armed within the meaning of that statute. R. v. Nash, R. & R. 386. It would be within the words of this statute if one of the party was armed without the knowledge of his companions; but the contrary was decided upon the repealed statute; R. v. Southern, R. & R. 444; and it may be doubtful how far such a case would come within the intention of the legislature in this particular Act. Where the indictment charged that the defendants A. and B., together with another person, entered certain land, "the said A. and B. then and there being armed," it was held that this allegation was not supported by proof that the third person was armed, and that A. and B. were not so. R. v. Davis, 8 C. & P. 759: but see R. v. Goodfellow, 1 Den. 81; 1 C. & K. 724, contra.

Lastly, it must be proved that the offence was committed within twelve calendar months next before the prosecution. 9 G. 4, c. 69, s. 4 (ante, p. 1245). See the cases collected ante, p. 97.

Sect. 5.

Refusing to execute a public office.

Common Law.

It is a misdemeanor indictable at common law to refuse to serve a public office. 2 Chit. Cr. L. 266: R. v. Bower, 1 B. & C. 585; 2 D. & R. 842; 25 R. R. 476: R. v. Denison, 2 Ld. Kenyon, 259. As to refusal of sheriff to serve, R. v. Woodrow, 2 T. R. 731; and see ante, p. 148. As to refusal to serve the offices of high constable or parish constable, see R. v. Bower, ubi supra: R. v. Mosley, 3 A. & E. 488; 4 L. J. (M. C.) 106: R. v. Brain, 3 B. & Ad. 614; 1 L. J. (M. C.) 53. In the case of municipal office, a fine on non-acceptance is now provided in the case of county councils by 51 & 52 Vict. c. 41, s. 75, in the case of town councils by 45 & 46 Vict. c. 50, s. 34, in the case of metropolitan borough councils by 62 & 63 Vict. c. 14, ss. 7 (1), 34, and in the case of the councils of urban and rural districts and of parishes by 56 & 57 Vict. c. 73, s. 48. But the fact of there being such a fine seems not to have been conclusive at common law against liability to indictment. R. v. Denison, ubi supra: R. v. Bower, ubi supra.

Indictment for refusing to serve the Office of Overseer of the Poor.

Middlesex, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. S., on the —— day of ——, in the year of our Lord ——, and long before, was and still is a substantial householder in the parish of B., in the county of M., and an inhabitant and resident in the said parish, and a fit and able person to execute the office of overseer of the poor for the said parish; and that the said J. S. on the day and year aforesaid, by warrant under the hands and seals of A. C., esquire, and J. P., clerk, two of the justices of our said lord the King assigned to keep the peace of our said lord the King in and for the county aforesaid, and also to hear and determine divers felonies, trespasses, and other misdeeds committed in the said county (both of the said justices then dwelling in [or near] the parish aforesaid, in the county aforesaid), was lawfully nominated and appointed to be one of the overseers of the poor of the said parish, according to the direction of the statute in such case made and provided; whereof the said J. S. afterwards, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, had notice. Nevertheless, the said J. S., not regarding his duty in that behalf, but contriving and intending to render the said warrant of appointment of no effect, afterwards, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, unlawfully, wilfully, obstinately, and contemptuously did refuse, and from thence continually until the day of the taking of this inquisition, unlawfully, wilfully, obstinately, and contemptuously hath refused, and still doth refuse, to take upon himself and execute the said office of overseer of the poor of the said parish; contrary to his duty in that behalf, to the great damage of the said parish and the parishioners thereof, in delay of the provision for and care of the poor of the said parish, in contempt of our lord the King and his laws, to the evil example of all others in the like case offending; against the form of the statute in such case made and provided, and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity. (See the precedents, 4 Went.

388, 439.) In stating the appointment, let the terms of the warrant be particularly attended to.

The precedents of indictments for refusing to serve as high constable or parish constable (see Archbold, Cr. Pl. (22nd ed.), pp. 1182, 1884) are omitted as being of no practical utility, since high constables have not been appointed since 32 & 33 Vict. c. 47, and parish constables, other than the regular police, are now appointed only under 35 & 36 Vict. c. 92.

Misdemeanor: fine and imprisonment. R. v. Jones, 2 Str. 1146: and see 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 428.

Evidence.

Produce the warrant and prove it. Prove that the defendant had notice of it, as mentioned in the indictment. And prove that he had notice of his appointment (see R. v. Harpur, 5 Mod. 96), and that he had actually refused to execute the office, or that he did not afterwards execute it, from which his refusal to execute it will be implied.

Upon an indictment against a defendant, for refusing to serve the office of overseer, it was held that he was a substantial householder (i.e., a person occupying as a tenant and not as a servant) within the Poor Relief Act, 1601 (43 Eliz. c. 2), and liable to serve such office, although he occupied a house and paid rent and taxes in the parish by means of a clerk only, and slept in another parish. R. v. Poynder, 1 B. & C. 178; 2 D. & R. 258: and see R. v. Hall, 1 B. & C. 123; 2 D. & R. 241; 25 *R. SENDING UNSEAWORTHY SHIP TO SEA.

Statute.

57 & 58 Vict. c. 60 (Merchant Shipping Act, 1894), s. 457—Sending unseaworthy ship to sea a misdemeanor.]—(1) If any person sends or attempts to send, or is party to sending or attempting to send a British ship to sea in such an unseaworthy state that the life of any person is likely to be thereby endangered, he shall, in respect of each offence, be guilty of a misdemeanor, unless he proves either that he used all reasonable means to insure her being sent to sea in a seaworthy state, or that her going to sea in such an unseaworthy state was, under the circumstances, reasonable and justifiable, and for the purpose of giving that proof he may give evidence in the same manner as any other witness. [As to limits of owner's liability, see Massey v. Morriss [1894] 2 Q. B. 412.]

(2) If the master of a British ship knowingly takes the same to sea in such an unseaworthy state that the life of any person is likely to be thereby endangered, he shall, in respect of each offence, be guilty of a misdemeanor, unless he proves that her going to sea in such an unseaworthy state was, under the circumstances, reasonable and justifiable, and for the purpose of giving that proof he may give evidence in the same manner as any other witness. [See R. v. Freeman, Ir. Rep. 9 C. L. 527. As to present law relating to evidence by the defendant, see ante, p. 392, et seq.]

SECT. 7.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

The Cruelty to Animals Acts of 1849 (12 & 13 Vict. c. 92) and 1854 (17 & 18 Vict. c. 60) do not create any offence punishable on indictment. Sect. 2 of the Act of 1849 applies to cock-fighting. Allen v. Small [1904] 2 Ir. Rep. 705: Budge v. Parsons, 3 B. & S. 382. Where a gamekeeper shot a dog (which he found disturbing pheasants in a field over which the keeper's master had sporting rights), meaning not to kill it, but to injure it, if necessary, for the purpose of frightening it away, it was held that proof of the existence of such intent as above stated did not necessarily render the keeper liable to conviction under 12 & 13 Vict. c. 92, s. 2. Armstrong v. Mitchell, 67 J. P. Rep. 329.

The Cruelty to Animals Act, 1876 (39 & 40 Vict. c. 77), as appears from its preamble, was passed to amend the law relating to cruelty to animals, by extending it to the cases of animals which for medical, physiological, or other scientific purposes are subjected when alive to experiments calculated to inflict pain. For this purpose it enacts in s. 2, That a person shall not perform on a living animal any experiment calculated to give pain, except subject to the restrictions imposed by the Act, under a penalty not exceeding 50*l.* for the first offence, and not exceeding 100*l.* or imprisonment for not exceeding three months for a second or any subsequent offence. And in s. 6, That an exhibition to the general public, whether admitted on payment of money or gratuitously, of experiments on living animals calculated to give pain, shall be illegal, and shall subject the offender to a penalty not exceeding 50*l.* for the first offence, and not exceeding 100*l.* or imprisonment for not exceeding three months for a second or any subsequent offence. By s. 14, In England offences against this Act may be prosecuted and penalties under this Act recovered before a court of summary jurisdiction in manner directed by the Summary Jurisdiction Acts; but by s. 15, "In England, where a person is accused before a court of summary jurisdiction of any offence against this Act, in respect of which a penalty of more than five pounds can be imposed, the accused may, on appearing before the court of summary jurisdiction, declare that he objects to being tried for such offence by a court of summary jurisdiction, and thereupon the court of summary jurisdiction may deal with the case in all respects as if the accused were charged with an indictable offence, and not an offence punishable on summary conviction, and the offence may be prosecuted on indictment accordingly." (Cf. 42 & 43 Vict. c. 49, s. 17, ante, p. 6.) By s. 21, "A prosecution under this Act against a licensed person shall not be instituted except with the assent in writing of the secretary of state."

SENDING POSTAL PACKETS ENCLOSING DELETERIOUS, EXPLOSIVE, INFLAMMABLE, OBSCENE, OR INDECENT MATTER.

47 & 48 Vict. c. 76 (Post Office Protection Act, 1884), s. 4—Prohibition of sending by post explosive, inflammable, or deleterious substances, or indecent prints, words, etc.]—(1) A person shall not send or attempt to send a postal packet which either—(a) Encloses any explosive substance, any dangerous substance, any filth, any noxious or deleterious substance, any sharp instrument not properly protected, any living creature which is either noxious or likely to injure other postal packets in course of conveyance or an officer of the post office, or any article, or thing whatsoever, which is likely to injure either other postal packets in course of conveyance or an officer of the post office; or (b) Encloses any indecent or obscene print, painting, photograph, lithograph, engraving, book or card, or any indecent or obscene article, whether similar to the above or not; or (c) Has on such packet, or on the cover thereof, any words, marks, or designs of an indecent, obscene, or grossly offensive character.

(2) Any person who acts in contravention of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be liable, on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding ten pounds, and on conviction on indictment, to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a period not exceeding twelve months.

(3) The detention in the post office of any postal packet on the ground of its being in contravention of this section, shall not exempt the sender thereof from any proceedings which might have been taken if the same had been delivered in due course of post.

Sect. 9.

CORRUPT PRACTICES AND OTHER INDICTABLE OFFENCES AT PARLIAMENTARY ELECTIONS.

Common Law.

Treating appears to be indictable at common law. Hughes v. Marshall, 2 Cr. & J. 118; 5 C. & P. 150: R. v. Hollis, 20 St. Tr. 1225. In R. v. Pitt, 3 Burr. 1335; 1 W. Bl. 380, there is said to be no precedent of an indictment at common law for bribery at a parliamentary election; but in R. v. Hollis, ubi supra, will be found a precedent of an information, and in R. v. Pitt, 3 Burr. at 1338, Lord Mansfield said that bribery at parliamentary elections must undoubtedly always have been a crime at common law. In R. v. Bent, 1 Den 157; 2 C. & K. 179, it was held that fraudulent personation at a municipal election was not an offence at common law.

In R. v. Clarke [1900] 2 Ir. Rep. 304, Palles, C.B., refused to follow R. v. Bent.

Statutes.

46 & 47 Vict. c. 51—Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883.] —This Act is temporary, and is annually continued by the Expiring Laws Continuance Act (see 4 Edw. 7, c. 29).

Sect. 64—"Election" and "indictment" defined.]—In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires—The expression "election" means the election of a member or members to serve in parliament; . . . The expression "indictment" includes information. . . .

Sect. 1—"Treating" defined.]—(1) Any person who corruptly by himself or by any other person, either before, during, or after an election, directly or indirectly gives or provides, or pays wholly or in part the expense of giving or providing, any meat, drink, entertainment or provision to or for any person, for the purpose of corruptly influencing that person or any other person to give or refrain from giving his vote at the election, or on account of such person or any other person having voted or refrained from voting, or being about to vote or refrain from voting at such election, shall be guilty of treating.

(2) And every elector who corruptly accepts or takes any such meat, drink, entertainment, or provision shall be guilty of treating.

Sect. 2—"Undue influence" defined.]—Every person who shall directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf, make use of or threaten to make use of any force, violence, or restraint, or inflict or threaten to inflict, by himself or by any other person, any temporal or spiritual injury, damage, harm, or loss upon or against any person in order to induce or compel such person to vote or refrain from voting, or on account of such person having voted or refrained from voting at any election, or who shall by abduction, duress, or any fraudulent device or contrivance impede or prevent the free exercise of the franchise of any elector, or shall thereby compel, induce or prevail upon any elector either to give or to refrain from giving his vote at any election, shall be guilty of undue influence.

Sect. 3—"Corrupt practice" defined.]—The expression "corrupt practice" as used in this Act means any of the following offences; namely, treating and undue influence, as defined by this Act, and bribery, and personation, as defined by the enactments set forth in Part III. of the third schedule to this Act [post, p. 1261], and aiding, abetting, counselling, and procuring the commission of the offence of personation, and every offence which is a corrupt practice within the meaning of this Act shall be a corrupt practice within the meaning of the Parliamentary Elections Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 125).

Sect. 6—Punishment of person convicted on indictment of corrupt practices.]—(1) A person who commits any corrupt practice other than personation, or aiding, abetting, counselling, or procuring the commission of the offence of personation, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction on indictment shall be liable to be imprisoned, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding one year, or to be fined any sum not exceeding two hundred pounds.

(2) A person who commits the offence of personation (see post, p. 1262), or of aiding, abetting, counselling, or procuring the commission of that offence, shall be guilty of felony, and any person convicted thereof on indictment shall be punished by imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, together with hard labour.

(3) A person who is convicted on indictment of any corrupt practice shall (in addition to any punishment as above provided) be not capable during a period of seven years from the date of his conviction:—

(a) of being registered as an elector or voting at any election in the United Kingdom, whether it be a parliamentary election or an election for any public office within the meaning of this Act; or

(b) of holding any public or judicial office within the meaning of this Act, and if he holds any such office the office shall be vacated.

(4) Any person so convicted of a corrupt practice in reference to any election shall also be incapable of being elected to and of sitting in the House of Commons during the seven years next after the date of his conviction, and if at that date he has been elected to the House of Commons his election shall be vacated from the time of such conviction.

Sect. 33, sub-s. 7—False declaration respecting election expenses.]—If any candidate or election agent knowingly makes the declaration [respecting election expenses] required by this section falsely, he shall be guilty of an offence, and on conviction thereof on indictment shall be liable to the punishment for wilful and corrupt perjury; such offence shall also be deemed to be a corrupt practice within the meaning of this Act.

Sect. 38, sub-s. 8—Bribery or treating by licensed person on licensed premises.]—With respect to a person holding a licence or certificate under the Licensing Acts (in this section referred to as a licensed person) the following provisions shall have effect:—

(a) If it appears to the court by which any licensed person is convicted of the offence of bribery or treating that such offence was committed on his licensed premises, the court shall direct such conviction to be entered in the proper register of licences. . . .

["Licensing Acts" is defined by s. 64 to mean the Licensing Acts 1872 to 1874. As to the register of licences, see 35 & 36 Vict. c. 94, s. 36; 2 Edw. 7, c. 28, s. 9.]

Sect. 41, sub-s. 4—Fraudulent withdrawal of election petition.]—If any person makes any agreement or terms, or enters into any undertaking, in relation to the withdrawal of an election petition, and such agreement, terms, or undertaking is or are for the withdrawal of the election petition in consideration of any payment, or in consideration that the seat shall at any time be vacated, or in consideration of the withdrawal of any other election petition, or is or are (whether lawful or unlawful) not mentioned in the aforesaid affidavits [i.e., the affidavits mentioned in the former part of this section], he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding twelve months, and to a fine not exceeding two hundred pounds.

Sect. 43—Attendance of director of public prosecutions on trial of election petition, and prosecution by him of offenders.]—(1) On every trial of an election petition the director of public prosecutions shall by himself, or by his assistant, or by such representative as hereinafter mentioned, attend at the trial, and it shall be the duty of such director to obey any directions given to him by the election court with respect to the summoning and examination of any witness to give evidence on such trial, and with respect to the prosecution by him of offenders, and with respect to any person to whom notice is given to attend with a view to report him as guilty of any corrupt or illegal practice.

(2) It shall also be the duty of such director, without any direction from the election court, if it appears to him that any person is able to give material evidence as to the subject of the trial, to cause such person to attend the trial, and with the leave of the court to examine such person as a witness.

(3) It shall also be the duty of the said director, without any direction from the election court, if it appears to him that any person who has not received a certificate of indemnity has been guilty of a corrupt or illegal practice, to prosecute such person for the offence before the said court, or if he thinks it expedient in the interests of justice before any other competent court.

(4) Where a person is prosecuted before an election court for any corrupt or illegal practice, and such person appears before the court, the court shall proceed to try him summarily for the said offence, and such person, if convicted thereof upon such trial, shall be subject to the same incapacities as he is rendered subject to under this Act upon conviction, whether on indictment or in any other proceeding for the said offence; and further, may be adjudged by the court, if the offence is a corrupt practice, to be imprisoned, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding six months, or to pay a fine not exceeding two hundred pounds, and if the offence is an illegal practice, to pay such fine as is fixed by this Act for the offence;

Provided that, in the case of a corrupt practice, the court, before proceeding to try summarily any person, shall give such person the option of being tried by a jury.

(5) Where a person is so prosecuted for any such offence, and either he elects to be tried by a jury, or he does not appear before the court, or the court thinks it in the interests of justice expedient that he should be tried before some other court, the court, if of opinion that the evidence is sufficient to put the said person upon his trial for the offence, shall order such person to be prosecuted on indictment or before a court of summary jurisdiction, as the case may require, for the said offence; and in either case may order him to be prosecuted before such court as may be named in the order; and for all purposes preliminary and of and incidental to such prosecution the offence shall be deemed to have been committed within the jurisdiction of the court so named. [See R. v. Ripley, 17 Cox, 120 (C. C. R.), post, p. 1269.]

(6) Upon such order being made,

(a) If the accused person is present before the court, and the offence is an indictable offence, the court shall commit him to take his trial, or cause him to give bail to appear and take his trial for the said offence; and

(b) If the accused person is present before the court, and the offence is not an indictable offence, the court shall order him to be brought before the court of summary jurisdiction before whom he is to be prosecuted, or cause him to give bail to appear before that court; and

summary jurisdiction, and that court, if the offence is an indictable offence, shall, on proof only of the summons or warrant and the identity of the accused, commit him to take his trial, or cause him to give bail to appear and take his trial for the said offence, or if the offence is punishable on summary conviction, shall proceed to hear the case, or if such court be not the court before whom he is directed to be prosecuted, shall order him to be brought before that court.

(7) The director of public prosecutions may nominate, with the approval of the attorney-general, a barrister or solicitor of not less than ten years' standing to be his representative for the purpose of this section, and that representative shall receive such remuneration as the . . . Treasury may approve. There shall be allowed to the director and his assistant or representative, for the purposes of this section, such allowance for expenses as the . . . Treasury may approve.

Sect. 45—Duty of director of public prosecutions to institute prosecutions for corrupt practices.]—Where information is given to the director of public prosecutions that any corrupt or illegal practices have prevailed in reference to any election, it shall be his duty, subject to the regulations under the Prosecution of Offences Act, 1879 (42 & 43 Vict. c. 22), to make such inquiries and institute such prosecutions as the circumstances of the case appear to him to require. [For these regulations see Statutory Rules and Orders Revised (ed. 1904), vol. 4, tit. "Criminal Procedure, E." pp. 7, 9.]

Sect. 50—Trial in Central Criminal Court or at Royal Courts of Justice of indictment for corrupt practices at instance of attorney-general.]—Where an indictment as defined by this Act (see s. 64, ante, p. 1255), for any offence under the Corrupt Practices Prevention Acts (a) or this Act is instituted in the high court or is removed into the high court by a writ of certiorari issued at the instance of the attorney-general, and the attorney-general suggests on the part of the crown that it is expedient for the purposes of justice that the indictment should be tried in the Central Criminal Court, or if a special jury is ordered, that it should be tried before a judge and jury at the royal courts of justice, the High Court may, if it think fit, order that such indictment shall be so tried upon such terms as the court may think just, and the High Court may make such orders as appear to the court necessary or proper for carrying into effect the order for such trial.

Sect. 51—Limitation of time for prosecution.]—(1) A proceeding against (a) By s. 65, the enactments described in the third schedule to this Act (post, p. 1261) are in this Act referred to as the "Corrupt Practices Prevention Acts." The enactments described in that schedule are 17 & 18 Vict. c. 102; 26 & 27 Vict. c. 29; 31 & 32 Vict. c. 125; 35 & 36 Vict. c. 33, part 3; and 42 & 43 Vict. c. 75, so far as they are unrepealed; and 30 & 31 Vict. c. 102, ss. 11, 49, 50. So far as those statutes relate to indictable offences and are still in force, they will be found set out in schedule 3, part 3 (post, p. 1261, et seq.), and in the series of enactments beginning with 17 & 18 Vict. c. 102, s. 10 (post, p. 1262), and ending with 35 & 36 Vict. c. 33, s. 24 (post, p. 1265).

a person in respect of the offence of a corrupt or illegal practice or any other offence under the Corrupt Practices Prevention Acts or this Act shall be commenced (see ante, p. 97) within one year after the offence was committed, or if it was committed in reference to an election with respect to which an inquiry is held by election commissioners shall be commenced within one year after the offence was committed, or within three months after the report of such commissioners is made, whichever period last expires, so that it be commenced within two years after the offence was committed, and the time so limited by this section shall, in the case of any proceeding under the Summary Jurisdiction Acts for any such offence, whether before an election court or otherwise, be substituted for any limitation of time contained in the last-mentioned Acts.

(2) For the purposes of this section the issue of a summons, warrant, writ, or other process shall be deemed to be a commencement of a proceeding, where the service or execution of the same on or against the alleged offender is prevented by the absconding or concealment or act of the alleged offender, but save as aforesaid the service or execution of the same on or against the alleged offender, and not the issue thereof, shall be deemed to be the commencement of the proceeding.

Sect. 52—Verdict of guilty of illegal practice on indictment for corrupt practice.]—Any person charged with a corrupt practice may, if the circumstances warrant such finding, be found guilty of an illegal practice [as to what are illegal practices, see ss. 7 to 12 of this statute, and ss. 1, 2 of the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1895 (58 & 59 Vict. c. 40)] (which offence shall for that purpose be an indictable offence), and any person charged with an illegal practice may be found guilty of that offence, notwithstanding that the act constituting the offence amounted to a corrupt practice, and a person charged with illegal payment, employment, or hiring, may be found guilty of that offence, notwithstanding that the act constituting the offence amounted to a corrupt or illegal practice.

Sect. 53—Application of enactments of 17 & 18 Vict. c. 102, and 26 & 27 Vict. c. 29, relating to prosecutions for bribery—Evidence.]—(1) Sects. 10, 12, and 13 of the Corrupt Practices Prevention Act, 1854 [17 & 18 Vict. c. 102, post, p. 1262], and s. 6 of the Corrupt Practices Prevention Act, 1863 [26 & 27 Vict. c. 29, post, p. 1263] (which relate to prosecutions for bribery and other offences under those Acts), shall extend to any prosecution on indictment for the offence of any corrupt practice within the meaning of this Act, and to any action for any pecuniary forfeiture for an offence under this Act, in like manner as if such offence were bribery within the meaning of those Acts, and such indictment or action were the indictment or action in those sections mentioned, and an order under the said s. 10 may be made on the defendant; but the director of public prosecutions or any persons instituting any prosecution in his behalf or by direction of an election court shall not be deemed to be a private prosecutor, nor required under the said sections to give any security.

(2) On any prosecution under this Act, whether on indictment or summarily, and whether before an election court or otherwise, and in any action for a pecuniary forfeiture under this Act, the person prosecuted or sued, and the husband or wife of such person, may, if he or she think fit, be examined as an ordinary witness in the case. (See ante, p. 392, et seq.)

(3) On any such prosecution or action as aforesaid it shall be sufficient to allege that the person charged was guilty of an illegal practice, payment, employment, or hiring within the meaning of this Act, as the case may be (see R. v. Stroulger, post, p. 1263), and the certificate of the returning officer at an election that the election mentioned in the certificate was duly held, and that the person named in the certificate was a candidate at such election, shall be sufficient evidence of the facts therein stated.

Sect. 56—Exercise of jurisdiction of high court.]—(1) Subject to any rules of court, any jurisdiction vested by this Act in the High Court may, so far as it relates to indictments or other criminal proceedings, be exercised by any judge of the [King's] Bench Division. . . .

Sect. 57—Director of public prosecutions and expenses of prosecutions.]—(1) The director of public prosecutions in performing any duty under this Act shall act in accordance with the regulations under the Prosecution of Offences Act, 1879 [42 & 43 Vict. c. 22: the regulations are printed in Statutory Rules and Orders Revised (ed. 1904), vol. 4, tit. "Criminal Procedure, E.," pp. 7, 9], and subject thereto in accordance with the directions (if any) given to him by the attorney-general; and any assistant or representative of the director of public prosecutions in performing any duty under this Act shall act in accordance with the said regulations and directions, if any, and with the directions given to him by the director of public prosecutions.

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the costs of any prosecution on indictment for an offence punishable under this Act, whether by the director of public prosecutions or his representative or by any other person, shall, so far as they are not paid by the defendant, be paid in like manner as costs in the case of a prosecution for felony are paid [see ante, p. 246].

Sect. 58—Recovery of costs ordered to be paid by any person.]—(2) Where any costs or other sums are, under the order of an election court or otherwise under this Act, to be paid by any person, those costs shall be a simple contract debt due from such person to the person or persons to whom they are to be paid, and if payable to the . . . Treasury shall be a debt to [his] Majesty, and in either case may be recovered accordingly [see s. 53, ante, p. 1259; 17 & 18 Vict. c. 102, ss. 10, 12, 13, post, pp. 1262, 1263].

Sect. 59—Obligation of witness to answer and certificate of indemnity—Evidence.]—(1) A person who is called as a witness respecting an election before any election court shall not be excused from answering any question relating to any offence at or connected with such election, on the ground that the answer thereto may criminate or tend to criminate himself or on the ground of privilege;

Provided that—

(a) A witness who answers truly all questions which he is required by the election court to answer shall be entitled to receive a certificate of indemnity under the hand of a member of the court, stating that such witness has so answered: and

(b) An answer by a person to a question put by or before any election court shall not, except in the case of any criminal proceeding for perjury in respect of such evidence, be in any proceeding, civil or criminal, admissible in evidence against him:

(2) Where a person has received such a certificate of indemnity in relation to an election, and any legal proceeding is at any time instituted against him for any offence under the Corrupt Practices Prevention Acts or this Act committed by him previously to the date of the certificate at or in relation to the said election, the court having cognizance of the case shall on proof of the certificate stay the proceeding, and may in their discretion award to the said person such costs as he may have been put to in the proceeding :

(3) Nothing in this section shall be taken to relieve a person receiving a certificate of indemnity from any incapacity under this Act or from any proceeding to enforce such incapacity (other than a criminal prosecution) :

(4) This section shall apply in the case of a witness before any election commissioners, in like manner as if the expression "election court" in this section included election commissioners.

Sect. 60—Submission of report of election court or commissioners to attorney-general.]—An election court or election commissioners, when reporting that certain persons have been guilty of any corrupt or illegal practice, shall report whether those persons have or not been furnished with certificates of indemnity; and such report shall be laid before the attorney-general (accompanied in the case of the commissioners with the evidence on which such report was based) with a view to his instituting or directing a prosecution against such persons as have not received certificates of indemnity, if the evidence should, in his opinion, be sufficient to support a prosecution.

Third Schedule.—Part III.

Enactments defining the offences of Bribery and Personation.

The Corrupt Practices Prevention Act, 1854 (17 & 18 Vict. c. 102), ss. 2, 3 [continued by the Expiring Laws Continuance Act, 4 Edw. 7, c. 29].

Sect. 2.]—Bribery.—The following persons shall be deemed guilty of bribery, and shall be punished accordingly :—

(1) Every person who shall, directly or indirectly, by himself, or by any other person on his behalf, give, lend, or agree to give or lend, or shall offer, promise, or promise to procure or to endeavour to procure, any money or valuable consideration to or for any voter, or to or for any person on behalf of any voter, or to or for any other person in order to induce any voter to vote or refrain from voting, or shall corruptly do any such act as aforesaid on account of such voter having voted or refrained from voting at any election :

(2) Every person who shall, directly or indirectly, by himself, or by any other person on his behalf, give or procure, or agree to give or procure, or offer, promise, or promise to procure or to endeavour to procure, any office, place, or employment to or for any voter, or to or for any person on behalf of any voter, or to or for any other person in order to induce such voter to vote or refrain from voting, or shall corruptly do any such act as aforesaid on account of any voter having voted or refrained from voting at any election :

(3) Every person who shall, directly or indirectly, by himself, or by any other person on his behalf, make any such gift, loan, offer, promise, procurement, or agreement as aforesaid to or for any person, in order to induce such person to procure or endeavour to procure the return of any person to serve in parliament, or the vote of any voter at any election : [As to former law, see Henslow v. Fawcett, 3 A. & E. 51 : Harding v. Stokes, 2 M. & W. 233.]

(4) Every person who shall, upon or in consequence of any such gift, loan, offer, promise, procurement, or agreement, procure or engage, promise, or endeavour to procure the return of any person to serve in parliament, or the vote of any voter at any election:

(5) Every person who shall advance or pay, or cause to be paid, any money to or to the use of any other person with the intent that such money or any part thereof shall be expended in bribery at any election, or who shall knowingly pay or cause to be paid any money to any person in discharge or repayment of any money wholly or in part expended in bribery at any election. Provided always, that the aforesaid enactment shall not extend or be construed to extend to any money paid or agreed to be paid for or on account of any legal expenses bonâ fide incurred at or concerning any election. [As to the meaning of the section, see Cooper v. Slade, 6 H. L. C. 746.]

Sect. 3—Bribery.]—The following persons shall also be deemed guilty of bribery, and shall be punishable accordingly:—

(1) Every voter who shall, before or during any election, directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf, receive, agree, or contract for any money, gift, loan, or valuable consideration, office, place, or employment, for himself or for any other person, for voting or agreeing to vote, or for refraining or agreeing to refrain from voting at any election:

(2) Every person who shall, after any election, directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf, receive any money or valuable consideration on account of any person having voted or refrained from voting, or having induced any other person to vote or refrain from voting at any election. [See 46 & 47 Vict. c. 51, s. 28.]

30 & 31 Vict. c. 102 (Representation of the People Act, 1867), s. 49—Bribery.]—Any person, either directly or indirectly, corruptly paying any rate on behalf of any ratepayer for the purpose of enabling him to be registered as a voter, thereby to influence his vote at any future election, and any candidate or other person, either directly or indirectly, paying any rate on behalf of any voter for the purpose of inducing him to vote or refrain from voting, shall be guilty of bribery, and be punishable accordingly; and any person on whose behalf and with whose privity any such payment as in this section is mentioned is made, shall also be guilty of bribery, and punishable accordingly.

35 & 36 Vict. c. 33 (Ballot Act, 1870), s. 24—Personation.]—A person shall for all purposes of the laws relating to parliamentary and municipal elections be deemed to be guilty of the offence of personation who, at an election for a county or borough, or at a municipal election, applies for a ballot paper in the name of some other person, whether that name be that of a person living or dead, or of a fictitious person, or who, having voted once at any such election, applies at the same election for a ballot paper in his own name. . . . [As to extension of this enactment to other elections, see post, p. 1271].

17 & 18 Vict. c. 102 (Corrupt Practices Prevention Act, 1854), s. 10—Costs and expenses of prosecution—Indictment for bribery or undue influence not triable at quarter sessions.]—It shall be lawful for any criminal court, before which any prosecution shall be instituted for any offence against the provisions of this Act, to order payment to the prosecutor of such costs and expenses as to the said court shall appear to have been reasonably incurred in and about the conduct of such prosecution: Provided always, that no indictment for bribery or undue influence shall be triable before any court of quarter sessions. [See 46 & 47 Vict. c. 51, s. 53, ante, p. 1259; Id., s. 58, ante, p. 1260.]

Sect. 12—In case of private prosecutions, if judgment be given for defendant, he shall recover costs from prosecutor.]—In case of any indictment or information by a private prosecutor for any offence against the provisions of this Act, if judgment shall be given for the defendant, he shall be entitled to recover from the prosecutor the costs sustained by the defendant by reason of such indictment or information, such costs to be taxed by the proper officer of the court in which such judgment shall be given. Sect. 13—Prosecutor not to be entitled to costs unless he shall have entered into a recognizance to conduct prosecution and pay costs.]—It shall not be lawful for any court to order payment of the costs of a prosecution for any offence against the provisions of this Act, unless the prosecutor shall, before or upon the finding of the indictment or the granting of the information, enter into a recognizance, with two sufficient sureties, in the sum of two hundred pounds (to be acknowledged in like manner as is now required in cases of writs of certiorari awarded at the instance of a defendant in an indictment), with the conditions following; that is to say, that the prosecutor shall conduct the prosecution with effect, and shall pay to the defendant or defendants, in case he or they shall be acquitted, his or their costs. [See 46 & 47 Vict. c. 51, s. 53, ante, p. 1259.]

26 & 27 Vict. c. 29 (Corrupt Practices Prevention Act, 1862), s. 6—Form of indictment—Evidence.]—In any indictment or information for bribery or undue influence, and in any action or proceeding for any penalty for bribery, treating, or undue influence, it shall be sufficient to allege that the defendant was at the election at or in connection with which the offence is intended to be alleged to have been committed, guilty of bribery, treating, or undue influence (as the case may require); and in any criminal or civil proceedings in relation to any such offence, the certificate of the returning officer in this behalf shall be sufficient evidence of the due holding of the election, and of any person therein named having been a candidate thereat. [See 46 & 47 Vict. c. 51, s. 53 (ante, p. 1259). As to proof of register of voters, see Reed v. Lamb, 6 H. & N. 75: R. v. Clarke, 1 F. & F. 654.

Where the defendant was indicted under 46 & 47 Vict. c. 51, *for "corrupt practices" at a parliamentary election, without setting out the nature of such corrupt practices as "bribery," "undue influence," etc., it was held that after verdict, no objection could be taken to the indictment for want of certainty, although the majority of the judges were of opinion that if the objection had been taken by way of motion to quash the indictment, it must have prevailed. 30 & 31 Vict. c. 102 (Representation of the People Act, 1867), s. 11—Voting by elector who has been employed for reward within six months of an election, a misdemeanor.]—No elector who, within six months before or during any election for any county or borough, shall have been retained, hired, or employed for all or any of the purposes of the election for reward by or on behalf of any candidate at such election as agent, canvasser, clerk, messenger, or in other like employment, shall be entitled to vote at such election, and if he shall so vote he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

Sect. 50—Returning officer, his deputy, partner, or clerk, acting as agent, a misdemeanor.]—No returning officer for any county or borough, nor his deputy, nor any partner or clerk of either of them, shall act as agent for any candidate in the management or conduct of his election as a member to serve in parliament for such county or borough; and if any returning officer, his deputy, the partner or clerk of either of them, shall so act, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [See also 35 & 36 Vict. c. 33, s. 11, post, p. 1266.]

6 & 7 Vict. c. 18 (Parliamentary Registration Act, 1843), s. 81.]—In all elections whatever of a member or members to serve in parliament for any county, riding, parts or division of a county, or for any city or borough, in England or Wales, no inquiry shall be permitted at the time of polling as to the right of any person to vote, except only as follows; (that is to say) that the returning officer or his respective deputy shall, if required on behalf of any candidate, put to any voter at the time of his tendering his vote, and not afterwards, the following questions or either of them:

1. Are you the same person whose name appears as A. B. on the register of voters now in force for the county of [or for the riding, parts or division of the county of] or for the city [or borough] of [as the case may be]?

2. Have you already voted, either here or elsewhere at this election for the county of [or for the riding, parts or division of the county of] or for the city [or borough] of [as the case may be]?

And if any person wilfully make a false answer to either of the questions aforesaid he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall and may be indicted and punished accordingly; and the returning officer or his deputy . . . shall, if required on behalf of any candidate at the time aforesaid, administer an oath to any voter in the following form:

You do swear [or affirm as the case may be] that you are the same person whose name appears as A. B. on the register of voters now in force for the county of [or for the riding, parts or division of the county of], or for the city [or borough] of [as the case may be], and that you have not before voted, either here or elsewhere, at the present election for the county of [or for the riding, parts or division of the county of] or for the city [or borough] of [as the case may be].

So help you God.

35 & 36 Vict. c. 33 (Ballot Act, 1872), s. 24—Definition of personation—Institution of prosecution—Costs of prosecution.]—The following enactments shall be made with respect to personation at parliamentary and municipal elections:

A person shall for all purposes of the laws relating to parliamentary and municipal elections be deemed to be guilty of the offence of personation (ante, pp. 1256, 1262), who at an election for a county or borough, or at a municipal election, applies for a ballot paper in the name of some other person, whether that name be that of a person living or dead, or of a fictitious person, or who having voted once at any such election applies at the same election for a ballot paper in his own name. [Provisions as to punishment rep. 45 & 47 Vict. c. 51, s. 66, and replaced by s. 3 of that Act, ante, p. 1255]. It shall be the duty of the returning officer to institute a prosecution against any person whom he may believe to have been guilty of personation, or of aiding, abetting, counselling, or procuring the commission of the offence of personation by any person, at the election for which he is returning officer, and the costs and expenses of the prosecutor and the witnesses in such case, together with compensation for their trouble and loss of time, shall be allowed by the court in the same manner in which courts are empowered to allow the same in cases of felony.

[This section supersedes 6 & 7 Vict. c. 18, ss. 83, 84, but not ss. 85–89. For cases on former law, see R. v. Hague, 4 B. & S. 715; 33 L. J. (M. C.) 81 (parliamentary elections): R. v. Thompson, 2 M. & Rob. 255: R. v. Bent, 1 Den. 157; 2 C. & K. 179: R. v. Haslam, 1 Den. 73: R. v. Turner, 12 Cox, 318. Two witnesses are necessary to prove the offence. 6 & 7 Vict. c. 18, s. 88 (ante, p. 409).

If a person applies for a ballot paper in a name other than his own, or the name by which he is generally known, but in a name which appears on the register of voters, and which was inserted therein by the overseers in the belief that it was the name of the applicant, and for the purpose of putting him on the register, he is entitled to vote and is not guilty of the offence of personation within this section. OTHER ENACTMENTS RELATING TO OFFENCES AT PARLIAMENTARY ELECTIONS.

35 & 36 Vict. c. 33 (a) (Ballot Act, 1872), s. 3—Offences in respect of nomination papers, ballot papers, and ballot boxes—Attempts to commit such offences—Form of indictment.]—Every person who—(1) Forges or fraudulently defaces or fraudulently destroys any nomination paper, or delivers to the returning officer any nomination paper, knowing the same to be forged; or (2) Forges, or counterfeits, or fraudulently defaces, or fraudulently destroys any ballot paper or the official mark on any ballot paper; or (3) Without due authority supplies any ballot paper to any person; or (4) Fraudulently puts into any ballot box any paper other than the ballot paper which he is authorized by law to put in; or (5) Fraudulently takes out of the polling station any ballot paper; or (6) Without due authority destroys, takes, opens, or otherwise interferes with any ballot box or packet of ballot papers then in use for the purposes of the election, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and be liable, if he is a returning officer or clerk in attendance at a polling station, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour, and if he is any other person, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding six months, with or without hard labour.

Any attempt to commit any offence specified in this section shall be punishable in the manner in which the offence itself is punishable.

In any indictment or other prosecution for an offence in relation to the nomination papers, ballot boxes, ballot papers, and marking instruments at an election, the property in such papers, boxes, and instruments may be stated to be in the returning officer at such election, as well as the property in the counterfoils.

Sect. 10.

CORRUPT PRACTICES AND OTHER INDICTABLE OFFENCES AT MUNICIPAL AND CERTAIN OTHER ELECTIONS.

Common Law.

Bribery in municipal elections is a misdemeanor indictable at common law. R. v. Plympton, 2 Ld. Raym. 1377. So is payment or promise of payment for votes at the election of an assistant overseer of a parish. R. v. Lancaster, 16 Cox, 377, Wills, J.

Statutes.

47 & 48 Vict. c. 70, s. 1—Short title.]—This Act may be cited as the Municipal Elections (Corrupt and Illegal Practices) Act, 1884.

Sect. 34—Definitions.]—In this Act expressions have the same meaning as in the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, and in the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883 (ante, p. 1255); except that the words "borough," "election petition," "election court," and "candidate," shall, unless the context otherwise requires, have the meaning given by the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 50), and not the meaning given by the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 51); and except that "election" shall, unless the context otherwise requires, mean a municipal election.

Sect. 35—Application of Act to city of London.]—This Act and Part IV. of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, shall apply to a municipal election in the city of London, subject as follows . . . [See now 50 & 51 Vict. c. xiii., as to elections in the city of London.]

Sect. 36—Application of Act to certain other elections.]—(1) Subject as hereinafter mentioned, the provisions of this Act and of Part IV. of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, as amended by this Act, shall extend to elections for the offices mentioned in the first column (post, p. 1270) of the first schedule to this Act as if re-enacted herein and in terms made applicable thereto, and petitions may be presented and tried, and offences prosecuted and punished, and incapacities incurred in reference to each such election accordingly.

Sect. 2—Definition and punishment of corrupt practices at municipal elections.]—(1) The expression "corrupt practice" in this Act means any of the following offences, namely, treating, undue influence, bribery, and personation as defined by the enactments set forth in Part One of the third schedule to this Act [post, p. 1270], and aiding, abetting, counselling, and procuring the commission of the offence of personation. [As to the common law, see ante, p. 1266. As to the law in Ireland, see R. v. Clarke [1900] 2 Ir. Rep. 304.]

(2) A person who commits any corrupt practice in reference to a municipal election shall be guilty of the like offence, and shall on conviction be liable to the like punishment, and subject to the like incapacities, as if the corrupt practice had been committed in reference to a parliamentary election.

Sect. 21, sub-s. 5—Candidate knowingly making false declaration respecting election expenses.]—If the candidate without such authorized excuse as is mentioned in this Act fails to make the said return and declaration he shall be guilty of an illegal practice, and if he knowingly makes the said declaration [respecting election expenses] falsely he shall be guilty of an offence, and on conviction thereof on indictment shall be liable to the punishment for wilful and corrupt perjury, and such offence shall also be deemed to be a corrupt practice within the meaning of this Act.

Sect. 23—Application of sections 37 & 38 of 46 & 47 Vict. c. 51.]—So much of sections thirty-seven and thirty-eight of the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883, as is set forth in Part Two of the third schedule to this Act [post, p. 1271] shall apply as part of this Act.

Sect. 26, sub-s. 4—Fraudulent withdrawal of election petition.]—If any person makes any agreement or terms, or enters into any undertaking, in relation to the withdrawal of an election petition, and such agreement, terms or undertaking is or are for the withdrawal of the election petition in consideration of any payment, or in consideration that the seat shall at any time be vacated, or in consideration of the withdrawal of any other election petition, or is or are (whether lawful or unlawful) not mentioned in the aforesaid affidavits [i.e., the affidavits mentioned in the former part of this section], he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding twelve months, and to a fine not exceeding two hundred pounds.

Sect. 28—Attendance by Director of Public Prosecutions on trial of election petition, and prosecution by him of offenders.]—(1) On every trial of a municipal election petition the Director of Public Prosecutions shall by himself or by his assistant, or by such representative as hereinafter mentioned, attend at the trial, and it shall be the duty of such director to obey any directions given to him by the election court with respect to the summoning and examination of any witness to give evidence on such trial, and with respect to the prosecution by him of offenders, and with respect to any person to whom notice is given to attend with a view to report him as guilty of any corrupt or illegal practice.

(3) It shall also be the duty of the said director, without any direction from the election court, if he thinks it expedient in the interests of justice so to do, to prosecute, either before the said court or before any other competent court, any person who has not received a certificate of indemnity, and who appears to him to have been guilty of a corrupt or illegal practice at a municipal election.

(4) Where a person is prosecuted before an election court for any corrupt or illegal practice, and such person appears before the court, the court shall proceed to try him summarily for the said offence, and such person, if convicted thereof upon such trial, shall be subject to the same incapacities as he is subject to under this or any other Act, upon conviction, whether on indictment or in any other proceeding for the said offence; and further, may be adjudged by the court, if the offence is a corrupt practice, to be imprisoned, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding six months, or to pay a fine not exceeding two hundred pounds, and if the offence is an illegal practice, to pay such fine as is fixed by this Act for the offence:

Provided that, in the case of a corrupt practice, the court, before proceeding to try summarily any person, shall give such person the option of being tried by jury.

(5) Where a person is so prosecuted for any such offence, and either he elects to be tried by a jury or he does not appear before the court, or the court thinks it in the interests of justice expedient that he should be tried before some other court, the court, if of opinion that the evidence is sufficient to put the said person upon his trial for the offence, shall order such person to be prosecuted on indictment or before a court of summary jurisdiction, as the case may require, for the said offence; and in either case may order him to be prosecuted before such court as may be named in the order; and for all purposes preliminary and of and incidental to such prosecution the offence shall be deemed to have been committed within the jurisdiction of the court so named.

(6) Upon such order being made,

(a) if the accused person is present before the court, and the offence is an indictable offence, the court shall commit him to take his trial, or cause him to give bail to appear and take his trial for the said offence; and

(b) if the accused person is present before the court, and the offence is not an indictable offence, the court shall order him to be brought before the court of summary jurisdiction before whom he is to be prosecuted, or cause him to give bail to appear before that court; and

or a warrant to apprehend him and bring him before a court of summary jurisdiction, and that court, if the offence is an indictable offence, shall, on proof only of the summons or warrant and the identity of the accused, commit him to take his trial, or cause him to give bail to appear and take his trial for the said offence, or if the offence is punishable on summary conviction, shall proceed to hear the case, or if such court be not the court before whom he is directed to be prosecuted shall order him to be brought before that court.

(7) Any order or act of an election court under this section shall not be subject to be discharged or varied under sub-section six of section ninety-two of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 50).

(8) The Director of Public Prosecutions may nominate, with the approval of the attorney-general, any barristers or solicitors of not less than ten years' standing, one of whom shall, when required, act as the representative for the purposes of this section of such director, and when so acting shall receive such remuneration as the Treasury may approve. There shall be allowed to the director and his assistant or representative, for the purposes of this section, such allowance for expenses as the treasury may approve.

(9) The costs incurred in defraying the expenses of the Director of Public Prosecutions under this section (including the remuneration of his representatives) shall, in the first instance, be paid by the treasury, and so far as they are not in the case of any prosecution paid by the defendant, shall be deemed to be expenses of the election court, and shall be paid as the expenses of that court are directed by section one hundred and one of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, to be paid; but if for any reasonable cause it seems just to the court so to do, the court shall order all or part of the said costs to be repaid to the Treasury by the parties to the petition or such of them as the court may direct.

[In the case of the trial of a petition against a municipal election, the election court may, under sub-s. 5 of s. 28, order a person against whom it directs a prosecution to be had in a county other than that in which the borough out of which the petition arises is situate, and the venue in the margin of the indictment is properly laid in the county in which the election court directs the trial to take place, and the mere fact that in the body of the indictment the offence is alleged to have been committed, as it actually was, in another county than that mentioned in the venue in the margin is immaterial. R. v. Ripley, 17 Cox, 120 (C. C. R.). The indictment in such a case is properly preferred before the grand jury of the county in which the election court orders the trial to take place, and it is unnecessary that it should set out on the face of it facts which conferred the power to indict and try in that county. Id. Where the order of the election court directs the prosecution of the defendant for "a corrupt practice," this is sufficient to authorize the charging of the defendant in several counts of the indictment with several separate and distinct corrupt practices. Id.]

Sect. 30—General provisions as to prosecution of offences under this Act.]—Subject to the other provisions of this Act, the procedure for the prosecution of a corrupt or illegal practice or any illegal payment, employment, or hiring committed in reference to a municipal election, and the removal of any incapacity incurred by reason of a conviction or report relating to any such offence, and the duties of the Director of Public Prosecutions in relation to any such offence, and all other proceedings in relation thereto (including the grant to a witness of a certificate of indemnity), shall be the same as if such offence had been committed in reference to a parliamentary election; and sections forty-five [ante, p. 1258] and forty-six and sections fifty to fifty-seven [ante, pp. 1258–1260] (both inclusive), and sections fifty-nine and sixty [ante, pp. 1260, 1261] of the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Prevention Act, 1883, shall apply accordingly as if they were re-enacted in this Act with the necessary modifications, and with the following additions:—

(a) Where the Director of Public Prosecutions considers that the circumstances of any case require him to institute a prosecution before any court other than an election court for any offence other than a corrupt practice committed in reference to a municipal election in any borough, he may, by himself or his assistant, institute such prosecution before any court of summary jurisdiction in the county in which the said borough is situate or to which it adjoins, and the offence shall be deemed for all purposes to have been committed within the jurisdiction of such court; and

(b) General rules for the purposes of Part Four of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, shall be made by the same authority as rules of court under the said sections; and

(c) The giving or refusal to give a certificate of indemnity to a witness by the election court shall be final and conclusive.

BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION OF OR BY MEMBERS AND SERVANTS OF CERTAIN PUBLIC BODIES.

Common Law.

As to the cases in which the bribery of public officials is punishable at common law, see ante, pp. 145, 1080.

Statute.

52 & 53 Vict. c. 69 (Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act, 1889), after reciting that it is expedient more effectually to provide for the prevention and punishment of bribery and corruption of and by members, officers, or servants of corporations, councils, boards, commissions, or other public bodies, enacts that:—

Sect. 1—Corruption of or by members or servants of public bodies a misdemeanor.]—(1) Every person who shall by himself or by or in conjunction with any other person corruptly solicit or receive, or agree to receive, for himself, or for any other person, any gift, loan, fee, reward, or advantage whatever as an inducement to, or reward for, or otherwise on account of any member, officer, or servant of a public body as in this Act defined (see post, p. 1274), doing or forbearing to do anything in respect of any matter or transaction whatsoever, actual or proposed, in which the said public body is concerned, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

(2) Every person who shall by himself or by or in conjunction with any other person corruptly give, promise, or offer any gift, loan, fee, reward, or advantage whatsoever to any person, whether for the benefit of that person or of another person, as an inducement to or reward for or otherwise on account of any member, officer, or servant of any public body as in this Act defined, doing or forbearing to do anything in respect of any matter or transaction whatsoever, actual or proposed, in which such public body as aforesaid is concerned, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [See Mayor, etc., of Salford v. Lever, 25 Q. B. D. 363; [1891] 1 Q. B. 168; 60 L. J. (Q. B.) 39.]

Sect. 2—Punishment of misdemeanors mentioned in s. 1.]—Any person on conviction for offending as aforesaid shall, at the discretion of the court before which he is convicted, (a) be liable to be imprisoned for any period not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour, or to pay a fine not exceeding five hundred pounds, or to both such imprisonment and such fine; and (b) in addition be liable to be ordered to pay to such body, and in such manner as the court directs, the amount or value of any gift, loan, fee, or reward received by him or any part thereof; and (c) be liable to be adjudged incapable of being elected or appointed to any public office for seven years from the date of his conviction, and to forfeit any such office held by him at the time of his conviction; and (d) in the event of a second conviction for a like offence he shall, in addition to the foregoing penalties, be liable to be adjudged to be for ever incapable of holding any public office, and to be incapable for seven years of being registered as an elector, or voting at an election either of members to serve in parliament or of members of any public body, and the enactments for preventing the voting and registration of persons declared by reason of corrupt practices to be incapable of voting shall apply to a person adjudged in pursuance of this section to be incapable of voting; and (e) if such person is an officer or servant in the employ of any public body upon such conviction he shall, at the discretion of the court, be liable to forfeit his right and claim to any compensation or pension to which he would otherwise have been entitled.

Sect. 3—Right to prosecute at common law or under any other enactment preserved—Invalidity of appointment to office no bar to prosecution.]—(1) Where an offence under this Act is also punishable under any other enactment, or at common law, such offence may be prosecuted and punished either under this Act, or under the other enactment, or at common law, but so that no person shall be punished twice for the same offence [cf. 52 & 53 Vict. c. 63, s. 33, ante, p. 170]. (2) A person shall not be exempt from punishment under this Act by reason of the invalidity of the appointment or election of a person to a public office.

Sect. 4—Attorney-general's consent necessary to institution of prosecution.]—(1) A prosecution for an offence under this Act shall not be instituted except by or with the consent of the Attorney-General. (2) In this section the expression "Attorney-General" means the Attorney or Solicitor General for England, and as respects Scotland means the Lord Advocate, and as respects Ireland means the Attorney or Solicitor General for Ireland.

Sect. 5—Expenses of prosecution.]—The expenses of the prosecution of an offence against this Act shall be defrayed in like manner as in the case of a felony. [See ante, p. 246, et seq.]

Sect. 6—Jurisdiction of quarter sessions.]—A court of general or quarter sessions shall in England have jurisdiction to inquire of, hear, and determine an offence under this Act. [See ante, p. 126]

Sect. 7—Interpretation.]—In this Act—

The expression "public body" means any council of a county or county of a city or town, any council of a municipal borough, also any board, commissioners, select vestry, or other body which has power to act under and for the purposes of any Act relating to local government, or the public health, or to poor law, or otherwise to administer money raised by rates in pursuance of any public general Act [including the Metropolitan Police Acts (R. v. Silberston [1899] 129 Cent. Crim. Ct. Sess. Pap. 372; 34 L. J. Newsp. 232)], but does not include any public body as above defined existing elsewhere than in the United Kingdom:

The expression "public office" means any office or employment of a person as a member, officer, or servant of such public body:

The expression "person" includes a body of persons, corporate or unincorporate:

The expression "advantage" includes any office or dignity, and any forbearance to demand any money or money's worth or valuable thing, and includes any aid, vote, consent, or influence, or pretended aid, vote, consent, or influence, and also includes any promise or procurement of or agreement or endeavour to procure, or the holding out of any expectation of any gift, loan, fee, reward, or advantage, as before defined.

Indictments under 52 & 53 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 1272).

Central Criminal Court, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that A. B., on the —— day of ——, A.D. ——, and on divers days between that day and the —— day of ——, in the year aforesaid, in the parish of ——, in the county of ——, and within the jurisdiction of the said court, did unlawfully and corruptly solicit for himself from one —— and —— a gift, to wit, the sum of 3*l.* in money, as an inducement to and reward for an officer [to wit, a theatres and music-hall inspector of the London County Council], then being a public body as in the Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act, 1889, defined, forbearing to give evidence in respect of a proposed matter in which the said [London County Council] was concerned, to wit [an application to the said London County Council for a music and dancing licence for premises known as the ——, No. ——, in the said parish]; against the form of the statute in such case made and provided, and against the peace, etc. This precedent is framed from the indictment in R. v. Edwards [1895] 121 Cent. Crim. Court, Sess. Pap. 332.

Commence as in the last precedent]—that heretofore, to wit, on the —— day of ——, A.D. ——, A. B. entered into a contract with a certain public body within the meaning of Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act, 1889, to wit, with the receiver of the Metropolitan Police District, to supply from time to time to the said [receiver, etc.] helmets and other articles of uniform for the use of the Metropolitan Police Force, of a quality and as regards workmanship in all respects in accordance with the terms of the said contract, and that on the —— day of ——, A.D. ——, one C. D. was a servant of the said public body, to wit, the said [receiver], and employed by the said public body to examine helmets and other articles of uniform delivered for the use of the said [receiver] by the said A. B. under and in pursuance of the said contract.

And the jurors, etc., further present, that the said A. B. and E. F., on the —— day of ——, A.D. ——, unlawfully and corruptly did give a certain gift, to wit, the sum of 10*s.*, to the said C. D., so being such officer and servant of the said public body, to wit, the said receiver as aforesaid, the said receiver being a public body within the meaning of the Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act, 1889, as an inducement to the said C. D. to forbear to do something in respect of a certain matter in which the said public body was then concerned, to wit, as an inducement to the said C. D. to forbear to reject such of the helmets from time to time supplied by the said A. B. for the use of the Metropolitan Police Force under the said contract hereinbefore mentioned, as did not comply as regards their quality or workmanship with the terms of the said contract hereinbefore mentioned; contrary to the Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act, 1889, and against the peace, etc. Add counts charging the promises of gifts, etc., if the facts so warrant. (This precedent is framed from the indictment in R. v. Silberston, 129 Cent. Crim. Court, Sess. Pap. 372; 34 L. J. Newsp. 232.)

CONSPIRACY.

Statutes.

33 Edw. 1—Ordinacio de Conspiratoribus.]—Conspirators be they that do confeder or bind themselves by oath, covenant, or other alliance that every of them shall aid and sustain the enterprise of the other, falsely and maliciously to indict or cause to be indicted or falsely to acquit people, or falsely to move or maintain pleas (and also such as cause children within age to appeal men of felony whereby they are imprisoned and sore grieved), and such as retain men in the country with liveries or fees for to maintain their malicious enterprises and to drown the truth: and this extendeth as well to the takers as to the givers, and stewards and bailiffs of great lords which by their seigniory, office or power undertake to maintain or support pleas or quarrels for parties other than such as touch the estate of their lords or themselves. This ordinance and final definition of conspirators was made and finally accorded by the King and his council in this parliament the 33rd year of his reign, and it was further ordained that justices assigned to the hearing and determining of felonies and trespasses in the several counties of England should have the transcript hereof. [The definition of conspiracies in this ordinance is not exhaustive. R. v. Tibbits and Windust [1902] 1 K. B. 77, 89; 71 L. J. (*K. Sect. 4.]—Provided always, and be it enacted, that nothing in this Act shall be construed to apply to the offence of knowingly spreading or conspiring to spread any false rumour with intent to enhance or decry the price of any goods or merchandise (post, pp. 1281, 1282), or to the offence of preventing or endeavouring to prevent by force or threats any goods, wares, or merchandise being brought to any fair or market, but that every such offence may be inquired of, tried and punished as if this Act had not been made.

Common Law.

Conspiracy is an indictable misdemeanor, consisting in the agreement of two or more persons (1 Hawk. c. 72, s. 8) to do an unlawful act, or to do a lawful act by unlawful means. Unless two persons are found to have combined there can be no conviction. R. v. Thorp, 5 Mod. 221; Comb. 458: R. v. Plummer [1902] 2 K. B. 339; 71 L. J. (K. B.) 805; 20 Cox, 269; 66 J. P. 647. So long as such a design rests in intention only it is not indictable. When two agree to carry it into effect the very plot is an act itself, and the act of each of the parties, promise against promise, actus contra actum, capable of being enforced if lawful, is punishable if for a criminal object or the use of criminal means. Willes, J., in Mulcahy v. R., L. R. 3 H. L. 306, 317; and see R. v. Warburton, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 274, post, p. 1279: R. v. Tibbits and Windust [1902] 1 K. B. 77, 89; 71 L. J. (K. B.) 5; 20 Cox, 70. The offence cannot exist without the consent of two or more persons (not being husband and wife, 1 Hawk. c. 72, s. 8), and their agreement is an advancement of the intention which each has conceived in his mind, which then passes from a secret intention to the overt act of mutual consultation and agreement. R. v. Mulcahy, L. R. 3 H. L. 326, Lord Chelmsford. Thus an engagement by two or more is conspiracy, even if the conspirators do nothing in pursuance of the engagement. O'Connell v. R., 5 St. Tr., N. S. 1; 11 Cl. & F. 155; 8 Eng. Rep. 155; 1 Cox, 413.

Some forms of conspiracy were indictable as early as 1293 (see 1 Rot. Parl. 96). The origin of the offence is by some traced to the Ordinacio de Conspiratoribus (33 Edw. 1 ante, p. 1276), which deals with certain forms of combination to abuse or pervert justice, and forms the foundation of the action of malicious prosecution. The history of the offence is fully dealt with in Wright on Conspiracies; 3 Steph. Hist. Cr. Law, 201; Encycl. Eng. Law, tit. "Conspiracy;" and see 3 Chit. Cr. Law, 1138. The term

"unlawful" in the definition has been held to include civil wrongs as well as acts punishable criminally if done by one person. R. v. Rowlands, 17 Q. B., 671: R. v. Parnell, 14 Cox, 508 (Ir.): O'Connell v. R., ubi supra. But so far as this rule affected combinations in restraint of trade, it has been abrogated by 34 & 35 Vict. c. 31, and 38 & 39 Vict. c. 86 (ante, pp. 1158, 1159).

The forms of indictable conspiracy may be classified under the following heads:—

1. Conspiracy to commit an offence punishable by law (infra).
2. Conspiracy to cheat and defraud (post, p. 1278).
3. Conspiracy to injure individuals by wrongful acts otherwise than by fraud (post, p. 1280).
4. Conspiracy to prevent, obstruct, pervert, or defeat justice (post, p. 1231).
5. Conspiracy or combination affecting trade (post, p. 1281).

1. Conspiracy to commit any offence punishable by law.]—Every agreement between two or more persons to commit any offence is conspiracy, and indictable whether the offence is punishable on indictment or on summary conviction. R. v. Pollman, 2 Camp. 229; 11 R. R. 698: R. v. Whitchurch, 24 Q. B. D. 420; 59 L. J. (M. C.) 77; 16 Cox, 743. It is immaterial that the offence agreed on is one which one of the conspirators could not singly commit. Thus a woman who, believing herself but not being with child, conspires with other persons to administer drugs to herself, or to use instruments on herself, with intent to procure abortion, is liable to be convicted of conspiracy to procure abortion, although if she had merely done the acts to herself with like intent, and had not been party to any conspiracy, she could not have been convicted under 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 58, of the felony created by that section, she not being with child. R. v. Whitchurch, ubi supra. Conspiracy to commit treason is an overt act of treason, and may be tried as treason (ante, p. 923), or as treason felony under 11 & 12 Vict. c. 12 (ante, p. 948): see Mulcahy v. R., L. R. 3 H. L. 306: R. v. Stone, 6 T. R. 527; 25 St. Tr. 1155; 3 R. R. 253: R. v. O'Donnell, 7 St. Tr., N. S. 637: R. v. Davitt, 11 Cox, 676; but the fact that the overt acts of an offence charged as a conspiracy amount to treason does not make the indictment bad. R. v. O'Donnell, ubi supra: R. v. Deasy, 15 Cox, 334. As to seditious conspiracy, see R. v. Cooper, 4 St. Tr., N. S. 1249: O'Connell v. R. (ante, p. 1277). As to conspiracy to commit a breach of the peace, see R. v. Holberry, 4 St. Tr., N. S. 1347, and ante, pp. 998, 1098. Conspiracies to commit murder are now statutory offences. See 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 4 (ante, p. 813). As to conspiracy to kill an unborn child, see R. v. Banks, 12 Cox, 393. It is an indictable conspiracy to combine to violate the provisions of a statute or a bye-law made under statutory authority, or of a proclamation made under like authority (R. v. O'Connell, 2 St. Tr., N. S. 629: R. v. Thompson, 16 Q. B. 832; 20 L. J. (M. C.) 183), if the violation of the statute or bye-law would be a misdemeanor at common law, or is criminally punishable in some specific manner. See R. v. Bunn, 12 Cox, 316: R. v. Whitchurch (ubi supra). In many cases it has been held indictable to conspire to do acts which at the time of the decision were probably offences at common law or under ecclesiastical law, but which are now offences by statute. (See 1 Hawk. c. 72, s. 2: R. v. Best, 2 Ld. Raym. 1167; 1 Salk. 174.) Thus it is indictable to conspire to obtain money by procuring an appointment to an office in the customs. R. v. Pollman, 2 Camp. 229; 11 R. R. 689: and see R. v. Vaughan, 4 Burr. 2494; 49 G. 3, c. 126 (ante, p. 1081); or to conspire by violence, threats, contrivances, or other sinister means to induce a pauper in one parish to marry a pauper in another parish in order to saddle one of the parishes with the maintenance of both paupers. R. v. Tarrant, 4 Burr. 2106: R. v. Seward, 1 A. & E. 706; 3 L. J. (M. C.) 103: R. v. Herbert, 2 Ld. Ken. 466: R. v. Watson, 1 Wils. (K. B.) 41; and see 1 East, P. C. 461; 8 Mod. 320. As to other conspiracies to bring about a marriage, see R. v. Wakefield, 2 Lewin 1: Wade v. Broughton, 3 V. & B. 173. By 7 & 8 Vict. c. 101, s. 8, the endeavour, by any officer of any union, parish, or place, to induce any person to contract a marriage by threat or promise respecting any application to be made, or any order to be enforced, with respect to the maintenance of any bastard child, is in itself a misdemeanor.

Conspiracies to do acts against public morals or decency may be said to fall under this head, because the acts would at one time have been punishable in the ecclesiastical courts if not in the common law courts. Thus it has been held indictable to conspire to entice a woman under age from her father's house to live in fornication, or even to carry her off with her own approval for that purpose; R. v. Lord Grey, 9 St. Tr. 127; 1 East P. C. 460; or to conspire to induce a woman, whether chaste or not, to become a common prostitute; R. v. Howell, 4 F. & F. 160; or to defile a girl; R. v. Mears. 2 Den. 79; 20 L. J. (M. C.) 59; 4 Cox, 423; or to assign a female apprentice, even by her own consent, for purposes of prostitution. R. v. Delaval, 3 Burr. 1434; 1 W. Bl. 410, 439. Most, if not all, of these acts are offences by statute if done by one person. See 48 & 49 Vict. c. 69, ss. 2, 3 (ante, p. 920). Conspiracy to marry under a false name, with a view to obtaining property by personation, was held indictable at common law. R. v. Robinson, 1 Leach, 37; 2 East, P. C. 1010. Marriage under a false name is now criminal. 3 & 4 Vict. c. 72, s. 4; 19 & 20 Vict. c. 116, s. 18; 55 & 56 Vict. c. 23, s. 15.

2. Conspiracy to cheat and defraud.]—Many of the decisions that a conspiracy to cheat or defraud is indictable turn on facts which proved that the cheat or fraud was itself indictable at common law or by statute. Thus it has been held that although it may not be a criminal offence at common law for a person to cheat his partner, yet where one of two partners combines, during the continuance of the partnership, with a third party to enable the one partner to cheat the other with regard to the division of the partnership property on a contemplated dissolution of the partnership, this combination is a conspiracy. R. v. Warburton, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 274; 40 L. J. (M. C.) 22; 11 Cox, 584. And where two persons agreed that the one should purchase, and the other should aid him in purchasing, goods on credit, apparently as an ordinary purchaser, but the purchaser did not intend to pay for such goods, and the other person knew that he did not intend to pay for them, this was held to be a conspiracy, because buying goods with intention not to pay was an unlawful act, though possibly not (before the passing of 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 13 (1): see R. v. Jones [1898] 1 Q. B. 119, ante, p. 1149) criminally punishable. R. v. Orman, 14 Cox, 381, Bramwell, L.J.

And if the parties conspire to obtain money by false pretences of existing facts, it seems to be no objection to the indictment for conspiracy that the money was to be obtained through the medium of a contract. R. v. Kenrick, 5 Q. B. 49; Dav. & M. 208; 12 L. J. (M. C.) 135.

The following conspiracies to defraud have been held indictable:—A conspiracy to impose pretended wine upon a man, as and for true and good Portugal wine, in exchange for goods; R. v. Mackarty, 2 Ld. Raym. 1179; 3 Id., 325; a conspiracy to defraud the public by means of a mock auction, that is, an auction with sham bidders, who pretend to be real bidders, for the purpose of selling goods at prices grossly above their worth; R. v. Lewis, 11 Cox, 404, Willes, J. (in Levi v. Levi, 6 C. & P. 239, it was said by Gurney, B., that an agreement by several not to bid at an auction was an indictable offence; but in Doolubdass v. Ramloll, 5 Moore Ind. App. 109; 18 Eng. Rep. 836, this ruling was declared by the Judicial Committee (per Parke, B.), to be an unreliable nisi prius dictum); a conspiracy by false and fraudulent representations that a horse bought by one of the defendants from the prosecutor was unsound, to induce him to accept a less sum for the horse than the agreed price; R. v. Carlisle, Dears. 337; 23 L. J. (M. C.) 109; a conspiracy to raise the prices of the public funds (or of any vendible commodity; see the judgment of Brett, J.A., in Aspinall v. R., 2 Q. B. D. 48, at 59; 46 L. J. (M. C.) at 150) by false rumours, as being a fraud upon the public; R. v. De Berenger, 3 M. & Sel. 67; 15 R. R. 415; an agreement to induce would-be buyers of shares to believe there is a market for the shares; Scott v. Brown [1892] 2 Q. B. 724; 61 L. J. (Q. B.) 738; a conspiracy by the promoters of a joint-stock company to cheat and defraud, by means of false pretences, those liege subjects who might buy shares in the company; Aspinall v. R., 1 Q. B. D. 730; 45 L. J. (M. C.) 129; 2 Q. B. D. 48; 46 L. J. (M. C.) 145: and see R. v. Gurney, 11 Cox, 414; a conspiracy by persons to cause themselves to be reputed persons of property in order to defraud tradesmen and lodging-house keepers; R. v. Roberts, 1 Camp. 399: R. v. Whitehouse, 6 Cox, 38; a conspiracy to defraud by means of false representations of the solvency of a bank or other mercantile establishment; R. v. Esdaile, 1 F. & F. 213: S. C. sub nom. R. v. Brown, 7 Cox, 442; a conspiracy to make and put forth false statements as to the affairs of a bank; R. v. Burch, 4 F. & F. 407; a conspiracy to defraud the public by issuing and negotiating bills in the name of a fictitious and pretended banking firm; R. v. Hevey, 2 East, P. C. 858, n.; 1 Leach, 229; a conspiracy by traders to dispose of their goods in contemplation of bankruptcy, with intent to defraud their creditors; R. v. Hall, 1 F. & F. 33: Heymann, v. R., L. R. 8 Q. B. 102; a conspiracy to fabricate shares in a company in addition to those lawfully issuable; R. v. Mott, 2 C. & P. 521; a conspiracy between a money-lender and a solicitor by abuse of legal process to enforce payment of a sum known not to be legally due, he was held to have been rightly convicted of conspiracy; R. v. Taylor, 15 Cox, 265, 268; a conspiracy to defeat a judgment creditor of the fruits of his judgment; R. v. Richardson, 1 M. & Rob. 402: R. v. Cox and Railton, 14 Q. B. D. 153; 15 Cox, 611 (C. C. R.); a conspiracy by false representations to induce a person to forego a legal claim, R. v. Carlisle, Dears. 337; 23 L. J. (M. C.) 109; 6 Cox, 366. As to conspiracies to deal fraudulently in railway tickets, see R. v. Absolon, 1 F. & F. 498. As to conspiracies to defraud of houses, see R. v. Whitehouse, 6 Cox, 129. As to conspiracy to diminish the King's revenue, see R. v. Starling, 1 Sid. 174; 1 Lev. 125.

3. Conspiracy to injure individuals by wrongful acts otherwise than by fraud.]—It has been held that an indictment will not lie for a conspiracy to commit a mere civil trespass; R. v. Turner, 13 East, 228; or for a conspiracy to deprive a man of an office under an illegal trading company. R. v. Stratton, 1 Camp. 549, n. In R. v. Rowlands, 17 Q. B. 671, Lord Campbell, said that R. v. Turner was wrongly decided, and it was held that a conspiracy to injure a man in his civil rights by wrongful as distinct from criminal means is indictable. Id., at p. 706. It is not necessary, in order to constitute a conspiracy, that the acts agreed to be done should be acts which if done would be criminal. It is enough if the acts agreed to be done, although not criminal, are wrongful, i.e.

amount to a civil wrong. R. v. Warburton, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 274; 40 L. J. (M. C.) 22; 10 Cox, 584. The House of Lords in Mogul Steamship Co. v. MacGregor, Gow & Co. [1892] App. Cas. 25, and Allen v. Flood [1898] App. Cas. 1, decided that a man may do acts prejudicial to the civil rights of others so long as no unlawful act is done or unlawful means employed, and that the fact that he does the acts with actual malice does not subject him to any civil consequence. The effect of these two cases was fully considered in Quinn v. Leathem [1901] App. Cas. 495. Allen v. Flood was there stated by Lord Halsbury, L.C. (at p. 507), to have been decided upon the view of the facts that what was alleged to be done was the independent and single action of the defendant; and it would seem that the Mogul case and Allen v. Flood do not affect the law as to indictable conspiracy as laid down in R. v. Rowlands, ubi supra: Mulcahy v. R. (ante, p. 1277), and R. v. Warburton (ubi supra); see per Lord Brampton, at p. 529: Glamorgan Coal Co. v. South Wales Miners Federation [1903] 1 K. B. 545, now under appeal to the House of Lords.

4. Conspiracy to prevent, obstruct, pervert, or defeat the course of public justice.]—These conspiracies appear to some extent to have been made punishable by or in consequence of 33 Edw. 1, ante, p. 1276. They were recognized by parliament as existing by the provision as to imposing a sentence of hard labour for such conspiracies contained in 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 29 (ante, p. 238). They include conspiracies to charge a man falsely with any crime. Poulterer's case, 9 Co. Rep. 55 b.: R. v. Spragg, 2 Burr. 993, 1027: R. v. Macdaniel, Fost. 121, 130; 1 Leach, 44; 19 St. Tr. 745: and see R. v. Rispal, 3 Burr. 1320; 1 W. Bl. 368, which was a conspiracy to indict for robbery with a view to obtaining a statutory reward. It seems immaterial whether the conspiracy proceeds so far as actually indicting the person falsely accused; and if the object of the conspiracy is extortion, the truth or falsity of the charge is immaterial. R. v. Hollingberry, 4 B. & C. 329.

The publication of matter calculated to interfere with a fair trial being indictable (R. v. Fisher, 2 Camp. 563; and see ante, p. 1094), a combination to publish such matter is an indictable conspiracy. R. v. Tibbits and Windust [1902] 1 K. B. 77; 71 L. J. (K. B.) 5; 20 Cox, 70.

The following have also been held indictable: a conspiracy by justices of the peace to certify a highway to be in repair when they did not know it to be so; R. v. Mawbey, 6 T. R. 619; 3 R. R. 282; conspiracy to prevent a witness from giving evidence; R. v. Steventon, 2 East, 362: cf. 2 Chit. Cr. L. 235; 3 Chit. Cr. L. 1151; conspiracy by a witness bound over to attend a trial with others to absent himself from the trial. R. v. Hamp, 6 Cox, 167. If the necessary effect of the agreement is to defeat the ends of justice, that must be taken to be the object. Id., per Lord Campbell, C.J. As to conspiracy to indemnify bail, see ante, pp. 111, 1091.

As to conspiracy falsely to charge a man as a father of a bastard, see 1 Hawk. c. 72, s. 2.

5. Conspiracy or combination affecting trade.]—So far as these arise out of disputes between employer and workmen, they have been dealt with ante, p. 1158, et seq. Combinations to interfere with trade, while probably still unenforceable by civil remedies (see Mogul SS. Co. v. MacGregor, Gow & Co. [1892] App. Cas. 25: Nordenfelt v. Maxim-Nordenfelt Co. [1894] App. Cas. 535), appear no longer to be indictable, owing to the repeal by 7 & 8 Vict. c. 24, s. 1 (ante, p. 1276), of the old laws against forestalling, regrating, etc., except where they involve the use of fraud (7 & 8 Vict. c. 24, s. 4, ante, p. 1276) or of force or intimidation (see ante, p. 1160, et seq.).

A combination by two or more without justification or excuse to injure a man in his trade, by inducing his customers or servants to break their contracts with him, or not to deal with him, nor continue in his employment, is actionable if it results in damage to him. Quinn v. Leathem [1901] App. Cas. 495. South Wales Miners Federation v. Glamorgan Coal Co. H. L., April 14, 1905. But as to criminal remedies, this statement of the law must be read subject to the provisions of the Trade Union Act, 1871, and the Conspiracy and Law of Property Act, 1875 (ante, p. 1158, et seq.): and it is not definitely settled in England whether such a combination as above stated is still indictable. Id., 526, 527, Ld. Brampton. At common law it certainly was indictable. See Re Heaphy, 22 L. R. Ir. 500, 524, Palles, C.B.: R. v. Rowlands (infra): R. v. Eccles, 1 Leach, 274.

See precedents, of conspiracies to withdraw customers from a brewer, 4 Went. 106; to injure gunmakers in their trade, 4 Went. 439; to ruin or injure a man in his trade or profession, 6 Went. 443: R. v. Eccles, 1 Leach, 274.

Indictments for Conspiracy.

1. The indictment must in the first place charge the conspiracy. And in stating the object of the conspiracy, the same certainty is not required as in an indictment for the offence, etc., conspired to be committed; as, for instance, an indictment for conspiring to defraud a person of "divers goods," has been held sufficient. Ante, p. 70; and see R. v. Rispal, 3 Burr. 1320: 1 W. Bl. 368: R. v. Blake, 6 Q. B. 126; 13 L. J. (M. C.) 131: Sydserff v. R., Q. B. 245. So, an indictment charging a conspiracy "by divers false pretences and indirect means to cheat and defraud A. of his monies," was held good; R. v. Gompertz, 9 Q. B. 824; 16 L. J. (Q. B.) 121; 2 Cox, 145: R. v. Gill, 2 B. & Ald. 204; 20 R. R. 407: Aspinall v. R., 2 Q. B. D. 48, 60; and it is not necessary, in order to sustain such an indictment, to prove such a false pretence as would, if money had been obtained on it by one person alone, have been sufficient to sustain an indictment against him for obtaining money by false pretences. R. v. Hudson, Bell, 263; 29 L. J. (M. C.) 145; 8 Cox, 305. But a conspiracy to defraud the creditors of W. E. (not saying of what) is too general. R. v. Fowle, 4 C. & P. 592. In an indictment for a conspiracy at common law, to effect objects prohibited by a statute, it is sufficient to follow the words of the statute. Therefore, an indictment which charged a conspiracy to force workmen to depart from their employment, to raise the rate of wages, etc., by "molesting," by "threats," by "intimidating," by "obstructing," etc., in violation of 6 G. 4, c. 129 (rep.), was held sufficient, as it followed the words of the statute though it did not set out the means used to molest, intimidate, or obstruct, or the threats held out. R. v. Rowlands, 17 Q. B. 671; 2 Den. 364; 21 L. J. (M. C.) 81. The defendant and others were indicted for that they did "unlawfully and wickedly conspire and agree together, contrary to the provisions of the Debtors Act, 1869, and within four months next before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against the defendant, fraudulently to remove part of the property of the defendant to the value of 10*l.*, that is to say [enumerating divers articles], defendant then being a trader and liable to become bankrupt." To this indictment there was a plea of not guilty; and a verdict of guilty, and judgment. Error having been brought, on the ground that there was no allegation that the defendant was adjudged bankrupt, it was held, that the fact of defendant having been adjudged bankrupt was not necessary to complete the offence of conspiracy; it was complete if the persons charged had agreed to remove the goods, in contemplation of an adjudication being obtained, and that this, though not expressly alleged, must be taken, after verdict, to have been proved before the jury; and that the defect was therefore cured by verdict, although possibly it might have been taken advantage of by the defendant on demurrer. Heymann v. R., L. R. 8 Q. B. 102; 12 Cox, 383. The second count of an indictment for conspiracy stated that defendants were promotors of the E. Company, Limited, and that application had been made on behalf of the company to the committee for general purposes of the Stock Exchange to order the quotation of the company in the official list of the Stock Exchange under a rule (129) duly issued by the committee, to the effect that the committee would order the quotation of a new company in the official list, provided that the company was of bonâ fide character, etc., that the requirements of rule 128 had been complied with, that two-thirds of the whole nominal capital proposed to be issued had been applied for and unconditionally allotted to the public, and that a member of the Stock Exchange is authorized by the company to give full information as to the formation of the undertaking, and able to satisfy the committee as to all particulars they may require. Averment, that defendants requested a firm of stockbrokers to give the information before mentioned, and to apply to the committee to order the quotation of the shares of the company in the official list, and employed the brokers to sell 5,000 shares of the company on behalf of alleged vendors of patents, and that defendants unlawfully conspired and agreed by divers false pretences to injure and deceive the committee, and to induce them, contrary to the true intent and meaning of the rules mentioned in this and the first count, to order a quotation of the shares of the company in the official list of the Stock Exchange, and thereby to induce and persuade divers of the Queen's liege subjects, who should thereafter buy and sell the shares of the company, to believe that the company was duly formed and constituted, and had in all respects complied with the rules of the Stock Exchange, so as to entitle the company to have their shares quoted in the official list. And the defendants, in pursuance of the conspiracy, falsely pretended to Z. and others, members of the committee, that the number of shares applied for by the public was 34,365, and that the amount received thereon, at 10*s.* per share, was 17,282*l.*, that 15,000 had been allotted to the patentee, and that no shares had been conditionally allotted; and thereby induced the committee to order the shares to be quoted in the official list. A verdict of guilty having been returned, and judgment entered thereon, it was held, on error affirming the judgment of the Queen's Bench Division, that the second count was good after verdict, and sufficiently alleged a criminal conspiracy; for that it contained allegations, some accurately and some inaccurately stated, which, assuming them to have been proved in a sense adverse to the defendants, showed that there was an agreement by them to cheat and defraud, by means of false pretences, those liege subjects who might buy shares in the company. Aspinall v. R., 2 Q. B. D. 48; 46 L. J. (M. C.) 145: and cf. R. v. De Berenger, 3 M. & Sel. 67; 15 R. R. 415 (post, p. 1284): Scott v. Brown [1892] 2 Q. B. 724; 61 L. J. (Q. B.) 738.

2. Overt acts—Particulars.]—It is usual to set out the overt acts, that is to say, those acts which may have been done by any one or more of the conspirators, in order to effect the common purpose of the conspiracy. But this is not essentially necessary; the conspiracy itself is the offence; and whether anything have been done in pursuance of it or not is immaterial. R. v. Gill, 2 B. & Ald. 204; 20 R. R. 407: R. v. Gompertz, 9 Q. B. 824; 16 L. J. (Q. B.) 121; 2 Cox, 145: R. v. Whitehouse, 6 Cox,

38, 45, 47: R. v. Seward, 1 A. & E. 706; 3 L. J. (M. C.) 103: R. v. Richardson, 1 M. & Rob. 402: R. v. Kenrick, 5 Q. B. 49; Dav. & M. 208; 12 L. J. (M. C.) 135: and see 2 Ld. Raym. 1167: R. v. Spragg, 2 Burr. 993: R. v. Rispal, 3 Burr. 1320; 1 W. Bl. 368: R. v. Eccles, 1 Leach, 274; 1 East, 230, n.: Wright v. R., 14 Q. B. 148; 16 L. J. (Q. B.) 10; 2 Cox, 91. On a general count not alleging any overt act the court can order particulars if satisfied by affidavit that the defendant will not without them have sufficient information for his defence (see ante, pp. 70, 71). The provisions of the Vexatious Indictments Act, 1859 (ante, p. 7), which apply to all conspiracies, render particulars unnecessary in most cases. As to the effect of the particulars in limiting the case for the prosecution, see R. v. Stapylton, R. v. Esdaile, R. v. Brown, 8 Cox, 69. Overt acts, which are laid and proved against some of the defendants, may be looked at as against all of them, to show the nature and objects of the conspiracy. R. v. Esdaile, ubi supra. But an indictment charging that the defendants unlawfully conspired to defraud divers persons, who should bargain with them for the sale of merchandise, of great quantities of such merchandise, without paying for the same, with intent to obtain to themselves money and other profit, was held bad for not showing by what means the parties were to be defrauded, nor the names of the parties. R. v. Peck, 9 A. & E. 686: Peck v. R., 1 Per. & D. 508; 8 L. J. (M. C.) 22, S. C. So also a count charging that two of the defendants, being partners in trade, and indebted to divers persons, unlawfully conspired to defraud the said creditors of payment of their debts, and that they and the other defendant, in pursuance of the said conspiracy, falsely and wickedly made a fraudulent deed of bargain and sale of the stock in trade of the partnership, for fraudulent consideration, with intent thereby to obtain to themselves money and other emoluments to the great damage of the said creditors, was held bad for not alleging facts to show in what manner the deed was fraudulent. Id. But it was held that the indictment was not bad for not stating the names of the parties intended to be defrauded, since it could not be known who might fall into the snare. Id. In R. v. De Berenger, 3 M. & Sel. 67; 15 R. R. 415, it was held unnecessary to specify the purchasers of stocks as the persons intended to be injured by the conspiracy to raise their price. The class of persons intended to be defrauded must be distinctly stated in the indictment. But where the indictment charged that the defendants conspired to defraud certain of her Majesty's subjects, being tradesmen, of divers large quantities of their goods, and that one of the defendants, J. S., did, in pursuance of such conspiracy, fraudulently order and obtain on credit from A. and B., upholsterers in L., divers goods of great value, to wit, etc., of and belonging to the said A. and B., and from divers other tradesmen, whose names are to the jurors unknown, divers other goods of great value, to wit, etc., of and belonging to the said last-mentioned persons respectively; and in further pursuance of the said conspiracy, and in order that the said goods might be taken in execution and sold, did order and direct that the said goods should be delivered by the said tradesmen at the house of the said defendants; that no payment or satisfaction was made for the goods by the defendants, and that, in further pursuance of the conspiracy, the said goods were taken in execution at the suit of some of the defendants, to satisfy fictitious debts pretended to be due to them from the defendant J. S.; it was held that the statement of the conspiracy was defective, for not setting out the names or designating the class of persons defrauded, and that the defect was not aided by the allegation of the overt acts. R. v. King, 7 Q. B. 782; 14 L. J. (M. C.) 172 (Ex. Ch.). The defect on which the court acted in the above case was that the indictment

(which is set out in R. v. Whitehouse, 6 Cox, 46, n.) charged a conspiracy to defraud certain of her Majesty's subjects, being tradesmen. It was held, that such an allegation in such form in pleading meant certain definite tradesmen alleged to be known to the defendants at the time of the criminal agreement, and, therefore, that such definite tradesmen ought, in describing the conspiracy, to be named, or an excuse be averred for not naming them. If there had been added after the words, being tradesmen, the phrase who should thereafter deal with the defendants, the indictment would have been sufficient according to R. v. Gill, 2 B. & Ald. 204; 20 R. R. 407: R. v. Gompertz, 9 Q. B. 824: and Sydserff v. R., 11 Q. B. 245. See judgment of Brett, J.A., in Aspinall v. R., 2 Q. B. D. 48, 62, 63; 46 L. J. (M. C.) at p. 152. An indictment for a conspiracy to obtain goods by false pretences was held bad unless it stated whose property the goods were; R. v. Bullock, Dears. 653; 25 L. J. (M. C.) 92: and see R. v. Parker, 3 Q. B. 292; 11 L. J. (M. C.) 92: and it seems that 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 88 (ante, p. 593), does not alter the law as to an indictment for conspiracy to obtain by false pretences. White v. R., 13 Cox, 318 (C. C. R. Ir.).

3. Conspiracy to accuse of crime.]—In an indictment for a conspiracy to indict or charge a man with an offence, it is not necessary to aver that the man is innocent of the offence; R. v. Kinnersley, 1 Str. 193; for he shall be presumed to be innocent until the contrary appear. See R. v. Best, 2 Ld. Raym. 1167; 1 Salk. 174: R. v. Spragg, 2 Burr. 993. According to R. v. Best, it is immaterial whether the offence to be charged is temporal or ecclesiastical. In an indictment for conspiring to pervert the course of justice, by producing a false certificate of justices of peace that a road indicted was in repair, in order to influence the judgment of the court, it is not necessary to allege that the defendants knew the certificate to be false; it is sufficient that they agreed to certify the fact as true without knowing it to be so. R. v. Mawbey, 6 T. R. 619; 3 R. R. 282; and see ante, p. 1050.

4. Venue.]—The venue may be laid in the county in which the conspiracy actually took place, or in any county in which any one of the defendants did an act in furtherance of the common object of the conspirators (ante, p. 43). A foreigner may be indicted in this country for conspiring here to cast away a foreign ship, provided that the conspiracy be not limited to doing the act abroad. R. v. Kohn, 4 F. & F. 68: see R. v. Bernard, 8 St. Tr., N. S. 887. As to trial of a conspiracy alleged to have been entered into on high seas, see R. v. Brisac, 4 East, 164; 7 R. R. 551 (ante, p. 44), and R. v. Kohn, 4 F. & F. 68 (ante, p. 41).

5. Trial.]—It has already been stated (ante, p. 1277) that a conspiracy must be between two persons at least. And where two persons are indicted for conspiring together, and they are tried together, both must be acquitted or both convicted; R. v. Manning, 12 Q. B. D. 241; 53 L. J. (M. C.) 85: R. v. Plummer [1902] 2 K. B. 339; unless they are also charged with conspiring with persons unknown, in which case the conspiracy must be alleged to be with a certain person (or persons) to the jurors unknown (see ante, p. 56; and see 3 Chit. Cr. L. 1141). And one person alone may be tried for a conspiracy, provided the indictment charged him with conspiring with others who have not appeared; R. v. Kinnersley, 1 Str. 193: R. v. Plummer (ubi supra); or who are since dead; R. v. Nichols, or Niccolls, 13 East, 412, n.; 2 Str. 1227; 12 R. R. 388; or whose names are to the jurors unknown; and persons jointly indicted may be severally tried; R. v. Ahearne, 6 Cox, 6 (Ir.) (and see ante, p. 186). The death of one of two conspirators does not affect the right to try the other, whether the death happens before indictment or during trial. R. v. Nichols, 13 East, 412, n.; 12 R. R. 388: R. v. Kenrick, 5 Q. B. 49; 12 L. J. (M. C.) 135. Where the indictment charged that A., B. and C. conspired together, and with divers other persons to the jurors unknown, etc., and the jury found that A. had conspired with either B. or C., but they could not say which, and there was no evidence against any other persons than the three defendants, A. was held entitled to an acquittal. R. v. Thompson, 16 Q. B. 832; 20 L. J. (M. C.) 183; 5 Cox, 166. And where a count in an indictment charged eight defendants with one conspiracy to effect certain objects, a finding that three of the defendants were guilty generally, and that five of them were guilty of conspiracy to effect some of these objects, and not guilty as to the residue, was held bad and repugnant. O'Connell v. R., 5 St. Tr., N. S. 1; 11 Cl. & F. 155; 8 Eng. Rep. 155; 1 Cox, 413. But where several persons are charged with conspiring together, a verdict is not repugnant which finds that some, but not all, conspired as alleged; R. v. Quinn, 19 Cox, 78 (Ir.), FitzGibbon, L.J.; the principle underlying that decision being that where there are two or more persons charged with conspiracy in the same count, the count is a single and complete count and cannot be separated into parts. R. v. Manning, 12 Q. B. D. 241; 53 L. J. (M. C.) 85, Lord Coleridge, C.J.; and see R. v. Plummer [1902] 2 K. B. 339.

Indictment for a Conspiracy to commit a Crime. (Common Law.)

Central Criminal Court, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. S., J. W. and E. W., being evil-disposed persons, and wickedly devising and intending to defraud and prejudice certain persons hereinafter mentioned, on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, and on divers other days and times thereafter and between that day and the —— day of ——, A.D. ——, in the parish, etc. (as ante, p. 1278), unlawfully did amongst themselves conspire, combine, confederate and agree together falsely and fraudulently to cheat and defraud certain underwriters hereinafter mentioned of divers large sums of money: And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said J. S., J. W. and E. W., afterwards, to wit, on the [date of the policy], in the year aforesaid, in pursuance of and according to the said conspiracy, combination, confederacy and agreement amongst themselves had as aforesaid, did cause and procure a certain ship called the ——, and certain goods in and on board the said ship, to be insured by certain underwriters, to wit, by A. B., C. D., E. F. and G. H., and the said underwriters then severally executed a certain policy of insurance upon the said ship, and upon the said goods so laden on board the said ship as aforesaid, upon and for a voyage from the port of London to the Island of St. Vincent in the West Indies: And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said J. S., J. W. and E. W., in further pursuance of and according to the said conspiracy, combination, confederacy and agreement among themselves, had as aforesaid, afterwards, and after the said ship sailed from the port of London aforesaid upon the voyage aforesaid, to wit, on the fourth day of September, in the year aforesaid, did remove and unlade from on board the said ship divers goods insured as aforesaid, of great value, to wit, of the value of four hundred pounds, before the said ship had reached the port or place of destination aforesaid: And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that in further pursuance of and according to the said conspiracy, combination, confederacy and agreement amongst themselves had as aforesaid, the said J. S., J. W. and E. W. afterwards, to wit, on the twentieth day of September, in the year aforesaid, on the high seas, did cut, bore and make, and did cause and procure to be cut, bored and made divers holes in the bottom and sides of the said ship or vessel, with intent thereby to sink, cast away and destroy the said ship, and the goods in and upon the said ship so laden as aforesaid, and with intent and design thereby then wilfully and maliciously to prejudice the said several persons who had so underwritten the said policy of insurance upon the said ship and upon the goods so laden on board the same as aforesaid: to the great damage of the said A. B., C. D., E. F. and G. H., who had so underwritten the said policy as aforesaid, and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity. See the precedent, 6 Went. 387. A count for different conspiracies on different days or on the same day may be joined. R. v. Levy, 2 Stark. (N. P.) 458. And see the precedents, 2 Chit. Cr. L. 494; 3 Chit. Cr. L. 660, 1145, et seq., and the following:—of an indictment for a conspiracy to cheat a man out of money by pretending to secure to him an annuity, 4 Went. 80, 89; to get from a man his acceptances upon pretence of getting them discounted, 6 Went. 378; to defraud a man of money under pretence of procuring a place, Cro. Circ. Comp. 127, 133; to blow up the walls of a prison, Cro. Circ. Comp. 422; to escape out of prison, 4 Went. 116; to raise the price of victuals (salt), Cro. Circ. Comp. 130 (see R. v. Norris, 2 Ld. Ken. 300, and 7 & 8 Vict. c. 24, s. 1 (supra); to obtain a nolle prosequi to an indictment by fraud, Cro. Circ. Comp. 138; to give a false certificate of a road being in repair, R. v. Mawbey, 6 T. R. 619; 3 R. R. 282; 4 Went. 125; to throw a burthen upon the parish, by the parish officers of another parish, persuading a pauper of the former parish to marry a female pauper of their parish, Cro. Circ. Comp. 128: R. v. Seward, 1 A. & E. 706; see 7 & 8 Vict. c. 101, s. 8 (ante, p. 1279); to bring a pregnant pauper to settle in a parish, 4 Went. 124; to procure the defilement of a girl, R. v. Mears, 2 Den. 79; to accuse a woman of incontinence with defendant, in order to make her marry him, 4 Went. 79; to induce a girl to become a common prostitute, R. v. Howell, 4 F. & F. 160 (ante, p. 1279).

Misdemeanor: fine or imprisonment, or both (ante, pp. 238, 240). On conviction for a conspiracy to cheat or defraud, or to extort money or goods, or falsely to accuse of any crime, or to obstruct, prevent, pervert, or defeat the course of public justice, the court may sentence the offender to hard labour during the whole or any part of the imprisonment. 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 29 (ante, p. 238). Where a person is convicted of any agreement or combination by two or more persons to do or procure to be done any act which is punishable only on summary conviction in contemplation or furtherance of a trade dispute between employers and workmen, and is sentenced to imprisonment, the imprisonment shall not exceed three months, or such longer time, if any, as may have been prescribed by the statute for the punishment of the said act when committed by one person. 38 & 39 Vict. c. 86, s. 3 (ante, p. 1159).

No indictment can be preferred for conspiracy unless one or other of the preliminary steps required by 22 & 23 Vict. c. 17, as extended by 30 & 31 Vict. c. 35 (ante, p. 7, et seq.), has been taken.

Venue: the county in which the conspiracy was formed or in which any act was done by the conspirators in furtherance of the common design. R. v. Brisac, 4 East, 164; 7 R. R. 551; and see ante, pp. 43, 1285.

Persons indicted together for conspiracy may be separately tried, and are not entitled to have judgment stayed on conviction till the others are tried.

R. v. Ahearne, 6 Cox, 6 (Ir.); but see R. v. Plummer [1902] 2 K. B. 339, 344.

A court of quarter sessions has no jurisdiction over the offence of illegal combination or conspiracy, except conspiracies or combinations to commit any offence which they have jurisdiction to try when committed by one person. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (ante, p. 126).

Evidence.

Prove the conspiracy as described in the indictment, and that the defendants were engaged in it; or prove circumstances from which the jury may presume it. See R. v. Parsons, 1 W. Bl. 392: R. v. Murphy, 8 C. & P. 297. Proof of the existence of a conspiracy is generally a "matter of inference deduced from certain criminal acts of the parties accused, done in pursuance of an apparent criminal purpose in common between them." R. v. Brisac, 4 East, 164, 171; 7 R. R. 551, per Grose, J., cited with approval by Willes, J., in delivering the opinion of the judges in Mulcahy v. R., L. R. 3 H. L. 306, 317. In order to convict of conspiracy, it is not necessary that the defendants should have concocted the scheme the subject of the charge, nor that they should have originated it. If a conspiracy be formed, and a person join it afterwards, he is equally guilty with the original conspirators. R. v. Murphy, ubi supra, at p. 311, Coleridge, J. The prosecutor may go into general evidence of the nature of the conspiracy, before he gives evidence to connect the defendant with it. R. v. Hammond, 2 Esp. 719; and see R. v. Salter, 5 Esp. 125: R. v. Brittain, 3 Cox, 76: Queen Caroline's case, 2 B. & B. 284, 302; 22 R. R. 662; 1 St. Tr., N. S. 1348.

The acts and declarations, also, of any of the conspirators in furtherance of the common design, may be given in evidence against all (ante, p. 306): see R. v. Shellard, 9 C. & P. 277; 4 St. Tr., N. S. 1386: R. v. Blake, 6 Q. B. 126; 13 L. J. (M. C.) 131: and this principle applies when the charge is one of a crime committed in pursuance of a conspiracy. Cf. R. v. Jessop, 16 Cox, 204: R. v. Charles, 17 Cox, 499: R. v. Desmond, 11 Cox, 146. This rule extends to admit printed handbills or placards of speeches of co-conspirators and resolutions at their meetings. R. v. Duffield, 5 Cox, 404; and see R. v. Hunt, 1 St. Tr., N. S. 171; 3 B. & Ald. 566; 22 R. R. 485: R. v. Vincent, 9 C. & P. 275. As to the use of correspondence between the defendants to exculpate one of them, see R. v. Whitehead, 1 C. & P. 67.

If any one overt act be proved in the county where the venue is laid, other overt acts, either of the same or others of the conspirators, may be given in evidence, although committed in other counties. (Ante, p. 44.) R. v. Bowes, 4 East, 171, cit.; 7 R. R. 557. In R. v. Boulton, 12 Cox, 87, Cockburn, C. J., refused to allow the acts of alleged conspirators in a foreign country (Scotland) to be given in evidence; and see R. v. Ellis [1899] 1 Q. B. 230; 68 L. J. (Q. B.) 105, Wright, J. But before you give in evidence the acts of one conspirator against another, you must prove the existence of the conspiracy, that the parties were members of the same conspiracy, and that the act in question was done in furtherance of the common design. (Ante, p. 306.)

In R. v. Steel, 2 Mood. C. C. 246; C. & Mar. 337, where the indictment charged the defendant with conspiracy with persons unknown to defraud J. D. and others, and laid as overt acts that he falsely pretended to J. D. that he was a merchant named G., and under colour of a pretended contract with J. D. for the purchase of certain goods of the said J. D. and others, obtained goods of the said J. D. and others with intent to defraud the said J. D. and others: it was held that the words "J. D.

and others" must throughout this indictment be taken to mean J. D. and others, his partners; and therefore that evidence was not admissible to show attempts by the defendant to defraud other persons wholly unconnected with J. D. But the decision in that case appears to have turned on the words "and others" in the indictment, there being no addition of such words as "who should thereafter deal with the defendants" (see Aspinall v. R., 2 Q. B. D. 48, 62, et seq.): and it would seem to be clear that on an indictment for conspiracy to defraud certain persons named therein, evidence of attempts of a similar nature to defraud other persons not named is admissible, on the general principles stated ante, p. 310: and it has been so held in R. v. Stenson, 12 Cox, 111 (C. C. R.).

An indictment for conspiracy to defraud A. of bills accepted by him has been held to be proved where the evidence was that the bills were never delivered to A., but were always in the hands of the defendants, and merely presented to A. for signature. R. v. Gompertz, 9 Q. B. 824; 16 L. J. (Q. B.) 121; 2 Cox, 145. See R. v. Gill, 2 B. & Ald. 204 (ante, p. 1285).

On a conspiracy to cheat by false representations of the solvency of another, it is not necessary to prove a representation in writing. R. v. Timothy, 1 F. & F. 39.

Although the evidence in support of an indictment for a conspiracy shows the object of the conspiracy to have been felonious, and even that a felony was actually committed in the course of it, the defendants were not, even before 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 12 (ante, p. 218), entitled to be acquitted on the ground that the misdemeanor had merged in the felony; nor was or is it any ground for arresting the judgment that, on the face of the indictment itself, the object of the conspiracy amounts to a felony, the gist of the offence charged being a conspiracy. R. v. Button, 11 Q. B. 929; 18 L. J. (M. C.) 19; 3 Cox, 229: see R. v. Neale, 1 Den. 36; 1 C. & K. 591.

A count for conspiracy is not bad because one of the overt acts charged would support an indictment for treason. R. v. O'Donnell, 7 St. Tr., N. S. 637.

As to calling the defendants as witnesses for the defence, see ante, pp. 392–397.

Where two defendants are jointly indicted for conspiracy, and one of them pleads guilty and the other not guilty, the defendant who has pleaded guilty is admissible as a witness against the other defendant. R. v. Gallagher, 15 Cox, 291 (C. C. R.); and see R. v. Plummer [1902] 2 K. B. 339.

Indictment for Conspiracy to obtain Money by False Pretences, and to cheat and defraud.

Commencement as ante, p. 1286]—that A. B. and C. D., on the —— day of ——, A.D. ——, and on divers other days thereafter between the said last-mentioned day and the —— day of ——, A.D. —— [at the parish of, etc.], unlawfully, fraudulently and deceitfully did, amongst themselves, conspire, combine, confederate and agree together (and with divers other persons whose names are to the jurors aforesaid unknown, see ante, p. 56), by divers false pretences and unlawful and subtle ways, means, stratagems and devices to obtain and acquire to themselves of and from *E. F. the sum of —— pounds in money (or divers large sums of money) of the moneys of the said E. F. and to cheat and defraud him thereof*; against the peace (as ante, p. 1287).

If the conspiracy be to defraud the public generally, e.g., by means of

R. v. Ahearne, 6 Cox, 6 (Ir.); but see R. v. Plummer [1902] 2 K. B. 339, 344.

A court of quarter sessions has no jurisdiction over the offence of illegal combination or conspiracy, except conspiracies or combinations to commit any offence which they have jurisdiction to try when committed by one person. 5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1 (ante, p. 126).

Evidence.

Prove the conspiracy as described in the indictment, and that the defendants were engaged in it; or prove circumstances from which the jury may presume it. See R. v. Parsons, 1 W. Bl. 392: R. v. Murphy, 8 C. & P. 297. Proof of the existence of a conspiracy is generally a "matter of inference deduced from certain criminal acts of the parties accused, done in pursuance of an apparent criminal purpose in common between them." R. v. Brisac, 4 East, 164, 171; 7 R. R. 551, per Grose, J., cited with approval by Willes, J., in delivering the opinion of the judges in Mulcahy v. R., L. R. 3 H. L. 306, 317. In order to convict of conspiracy, it is not necessary that the defendants should have concocted the scheme the subject of the charge, nor that they should have originated it. If a conspiracy be formed, and a person join it afterwards, he is equally guilty with the original conspirators. R. v. Murphy, ubi supra, at p. 311, Coleridge, J. The prosecutor may go into general evidence of the nature of the conspiracy, before he gives evidence to connect the defendant with it. R. v. Hammond, 2 Esp. 719; and see R. v. Salter, 5 Esp. 125: R. v. Brittain, 3 Cox, 76: Queen Caroline's case, 2 B. & B. 284, 302; 22 R. R. 662; 1 St. Tr., N. S. 1348.

The acts and declarations, also, of any of the conspirators in furtherance of the common design, may be given in evidence against all (ante, p. 306): see R. v. Shellard, 9 C. & P. 277; 4 St. Tr., N. S. 1386: R. v. Blake, 6 Q. B. 126; 13 L. J. (M. C.) 131: and this principle applies when the charge is one of a crime committed in pursuance of a conspiracy. Cf. R. v. Jessop, 16 Cox, 204: R. v. Charles, 17 Cox, 499: R. v. Desmond, 11 Cox, 146. This rule extends to admit printed handbills or placards of speeches of co-conspirators and resolutions at their meetings. R. v. Duffield, 5 Cox, 404; and see R. v. Hunt, 1 St. Tr., N. S. 171; 3 B. & Ald. 566; 22 R. R. 485: R. v. Vincent, 9 C. & P. 275. As to the use of correspondence between the defendants to exculpate one of them, see R. v. Whitehead, 1 C. & P. 67.

If any one overt act be proved in the county where the venue is laid, other overt acts, either of the same or others of the conspirators, may be given in evidence, although committed in other counties. (Ante, p. 44.) R. v. Bowes, 4 East, 171, cit.; 7 R. R. 557. In R. v. Boulton, 12 Cox, 87, Cockburn, C. J., refused to allow the acts of alleged conspirators in a foreign country (Scotland) to be given in evidence; and see R. v. Ellis [1899] 1 Q. B. 230; 68 L. J. (Q. B.) 105, Wright, J. But before you give in evidence the acts of one conspirator against another, you must prove the existence of the conspiracy, that the parties were members of the same conspiracy, and that the act in question was done in furtherance of the common design. (Ante, p. 306.)

In R. v. Steel, 2 Mood. C. C. 246; C. & Mar. 337, where the indictment charged the defendant with conspiracy with persons unknown to defraud J. D. and others, and laid as overt acts that he falsely pretended to J. D. that he was a merchant named G., and under colour of a pretended contract with J. D. for the purchase of certain goods of the said J. D. and others, obtained goods of the said J. D. and others with intent to defraud the said J. D. and others: it was held that the words "J. D.

and the —— day of ——, A.D. ——), at the parish, etc. (as ante, p. 1168), unlawfully did amongst themselves conspire, combine, confederate, and agree together, falsely to charge and accuse the said J. N., that he, the said J. N., had then lately before feloniously ravished and carnally known the said A. violently and against her will and consent. And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said J. S. and A. his wife, and J. W. and E. W., afterwards, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, in pursuance of and according to the said conspiracy, combination, confederacy, and agreement amongst themselves had as aforesaid * [here set out the overt acts, as in high treason (see ante, p. 937), introducing the second and each of the subsequent acts thus:] And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that, in further pursuance of and according to the said conspiracy, combination, confederacy, and agreement amongst them, the said J. S. and A. his wife, and J. W. and E. W., had as aforesaid, they the said, etc., on, etc. [continuing the indictment from the above asterisk, as thus:] falsely and unlawfully, in the presence and hearing of divers persons, did charge and accuse the said J. N. with and of the rape aforesaid. And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that in further pursuance of and according to the said conspiracy, combination, confederacy, and agreement amongst them the said J. S. and A. his wife, and J. W. and E. W., had as aforesaid, she the said A. afterwards, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, did, upon her oath, falsely charge and accuse the said J. N. before A. C., esquire, then and yet being one of the justices of our said lord the King in and for the county of Middlesex, assigned to keep the peace, and also to hear and determine divers felonies, trespasses, and other misdeeds committed in the said county, that he the said J. N. had then lately before feloniously ravished and carnally known her the said A., violently and against her will and consent. And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that in further pursuance of and according to the said conspiracy, combination, confederacy, and agreement amongst them the said J. S. and A. his wife, and J. W. and E. W. had as aforesaid, she the said A., by the name of A., the wife of J. S., afterwards, to wit, at the general quarter sessions of the peace of our said lord the King, holden at the Sessions House (a) in the city of Westminster, for the county of Middlesex (now London, see 51 & 52 Vict. c. 41, s. 42, sub-s. 12), and within the jurisdiction of the said court, on Monday, the —— day of June, in the year aforesaid, before A. B. and C. D., esquires, and others their associates, justices of our said lord the King, assigned to keep the peace of our said lord the King in and for the county aforesaid, and also to hear and determine divers felonies, trespasses, and other misdeeds committed in the said county, did falsely exhibit a bill of indictment against the said J. N. to P. C., esquire [here insert the names of the grand jurors to whom the indictment for rape (a) was exhibited], good and lawful men of the said county, then there sworn and charged to inquire for our said lord the King, for the body of the said county: which said bill was, by the said jurors, then there returned into the said court, before the justices of our lord the King last aforesaid, and others their fellows aforesaid, thus indorsed:—"Not found:" which said bill is in these words, that is to say:—[here set out the indictment verbatim; and you may then add, with intent to obtain and acquire to them the said J. S. and A. his wife, and the said J. W. and E. W., of and from the said J. N. divers sums of money for compounding the said pretended felony and rape so falsely charged upon the said J. N. as aforesaid, if this be the fact,

For cases on the form of indictment, see ante*, p. 1282, et seq. As to court of trial, see ante, p. 127, and as to punishment, see ante, p. 238.

Evidence.

Prove the sending up of the bill of indictment by calling an officer from the court to which it was preferred. Prove the conspiracy as directed, ante, p. 1288.

Indictment for Conspiracy to pervert Justice (by means of Perjury in an Action in the High Court).

Commencement as ante, p. 1286]—that on the —— day of ——, A.D. ——, a certain action was commenced (allege commencement and trial of action, and continue as in the precedent of an indictment for perjury, ante, p. 1057). And the jurors aforesaid, on their oath aforesaid, do further present, that, previously to the trial of the said action as aforesaid, to wit, on the —— day of ——, A.D. ——, and on divers other days thereafter between the said last-mentioned day and the —— day of ——, A.D. —— (at the parish, etc.), the said A. B. and the said C. D., being evilly disposed persons, unlawfully did amongst themselves conspire, combine, confederate, and agree together to pervert and defeat the due course of law and justice and wrongly and unjustly to obtain a judgment of the said High Court of Justice in favour of [the said E. F., the plaintiff in the said action]. And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that afterwards, to wit, on the —— day of ——, A.D. ——, at the said trial, the said A. B., in pursuance of and in furtherance of the said unlawful conspiracy, combination, confederation and agreement so had as aforesaid, did falsely swear that . . . and in so swearing as aforesaid unlawfully did commit wilful and corrupt perjury. And the jurors, etc. (allege perjury or other overt act by C. D., e.g., tampering with witnesses, ante, p. 1078); to the manifest obstruction, hindrance, and perversion of justice and against the peace (as ante, p. 1287).

It is unnecessary in alleging perjury as an overt act in this indictment to proceed "whereas in truth and in fact," etc., as in an indictment for perjury, the gist of the offence being the conspiracy. Cf. R. v. Gill, 2 B. & Ald. 204; 20 R. R. 407; and cases ante, p. 1285.

As to conspiracy to pervert justice by the publication of matters calculated to prejudice persons upon their trial, see R. v. Tibbits and Windust [1902] 1 K. B. 77; 20 Cox, 70, ante, p. 1095.

Misdemeanor. Punishment: fine and (or) imprisonment, with or without hard labour. See 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 29 (ante, p. 238).

Evidence.

Prove the existence of the action as directed, ante, p. 1059. Prove the conspiracy as directed, ante, p. 1288, and if perjury was actually committed, prove it as directed, ante, p. 1059.

SECT. 2.

SOLICITING OR INCITING TO COMMIT A CRIME.

Common Law.

The solicitation to commit any crime, though nothing be done in pursuance of such solicitation, is a misdemeanor at common law. R. v. Higgins, 2 East, 5; 6 *R. Indictment for soliciting and inciting a Person to commit an Offence.
(Common Law.)

Commencement as ante, p. 434]—that J. S., on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, [falsely], unlawfully, and wickedly did solicit and incite one J. W., a servant of one J. N., feloniously to steal, take and carry away a large quantity, to wit, one hundred pounds weight of cotton twist, of the goods and chattels of the said J. N. his master; to the great damage of the said J. N., to the evil example of all others in the like case offending, and against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity. [A count may be added charging an attempt to solicit and incite, which is a misdemeanor at common law; R. v. Ransford, 13 Cox, 9 (post, p. 1294); or the defendant may be convicted of the attempt on the above indictment.]

Misdemeanor at common law: fine or imprisonment without hard labour, or both (see ante, pp. 238, 240). R. v. Higgins, ubi supra. In practice a longer term of imprisonment than two years is not awarded (ante, p. 237). The soliciting and inciting a person to commit a felony, where no felony is in fact committed by the person so solicited, still remains a misdemeanor only, notwithstanding 24 & 25 Vict. c. 94, s. 2 (post, p. 1300). R. v. Gregory, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 77; 36 L. J. (M. C.) 60. Where a defendant is indicted for a misdemeanor committed by the soliciting another to do an act, which, if done, would amount to a felony, and render the defendant, as an accessory before the fact, also guilty of felony, it is unnecessary to negative the doing of the act, for it cannot be intended that a felony has been committed where none is charged. 1 Stark. Cr. Pl. 148, 149 (2nd ed.): R. v. Higgins, ubi supra. See 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed), 170, 196. For a form of count for soliciting to conspire to cheat and defraud, see R. v. De Kromme, 17 Cox, 492; 56 J. P. 682 (C. C. R.).

Evidence.

Prove the soliciting or inciting as alleged in the indictment. Prove it in the same manner as you would prove the offence of accessory before the fact, except that this offence is committed, although the larceny was not in fact committed. It is no defence to the above indictment that the servant purposely submitted himself to the incitement with intent to betray his master. R. v. Quail, 4 F. & F. 1076.

Attempting to incite.]—The mere attempt to solicit a person to commit an offence, or to attempt or conspire to commit an offence, is also an indictable misdemeanor; R. v. Ransford, 13 Cox, 9 (C. C. R.): R. v. De Kromme, ubi supra; and therefore an indictment charging that J. S. unlawfully, wickedly, and indecently did write and send, and cause and procure to be written and sent to one J. N., a certain letter in the words and figures following, that is to say [setting out the letter], with intent thereby to move and incite the said J. N. to attempt and endeavour, feloniously and wickedly, to commit and perpetrate with him the said J. S. the detestable crime of buggery, and by the means aforesaid did unlawfully and wickedly attempt and endeavour to incite the said J. N. to attempt to commit and perpetrate with him the said J. S. the detestable, horrid, and abominable crime aforesaid,—was held to charge an indictable misdemeanor. R. v. Ransford, ubi supra.

Intercepted letters.]—Where a letter is sent soliciting and inciting the addressee to commit a crime, but is not proved to have reached the intended recipient, the sender may be properly convicted of an attempt to incite to the commission of the crime. R. v. Banks, 12 Cox, 393: R. v. Ransford, ubi supra: R. v. Krause, 66 J. P. 121. Where the crime the commission of which is so solicited is murder it was held that there must be some evidence of communication between the sender and recipient of the letter to render the sender guilty of the statutory offence of "soliciting to murder" under 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 4; and that in the absence of such evidence he is guilty only of the common law misdemeanor of attempting to commit that offence. R. v. Krause, ubi supra, Lord Alverstone, C.J.: cf. R. v. Banks, ubi supra.

Inciting a person to attempt to commit an offence.]—On an indictment charging the defendants that they "unlawfully did incite, counsel, procure, and aid one H. S., she the said H. S. then being a woman with child, to commit a certain misdemeanor, to wit, unlawfully to attempt feloniously and unlawfully to administer to herself certain noxious things, to wit, divers drugs, capable of procuring the abortion of pregnant women, the names of which drugs are to the jurors aforesaid unknown, with intent thereby to procure her own miscarriage" (see 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 58 (ante, p. 826)), and with conspiracy to incite her to attempt feloniously and unlawfully to administer, etc., it was held (a) that if the woman believing that she was taking a noxious thing within the meaning of the statute did, with intent to procure her own abortion, take a thing in fact harmless, she was guilty of an attempt to commit an offence against 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 58; but (b) that if the defendants in supplying the drugs to the woman, though they well knew that she would take it in the belief that it was a "noxious thing," and with intention of procuring her own abortion, did not themselves believe that it was capable of procuring abortion, they could not be convicted of inciting her to commit the said offence, although if they had so believed it would have been otherwise. R. v. Brown and others, C. C. C. 23*rd Nov.*

1899; 63 J. P. 790; 34 L. J. Newsp. 644, Darling, J.: cf. the fifth count in R. v. Ransford, ubi supra; and see post, p. 1296.

As to incitement to commit perjury or give false evidence, see ante, p. 1071.

Sect. 3.

ATTEMPT TO COMMIT CRIME.

It is a misdemeanor at common law to attempt to commit any felony or misdemeanor (see ante, p. 2). Attempts to commit certain crimes are also punishable by statute; e.g., attempts to murder (24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, ss. 14, 15, ante, pp. 817, 822); to commit unnatural offences (ante, p. 925); or offences against girls under thirteen, or between thirteen and sixteen (ante, pp. 912, 913).

It is said that there cannot, ex vi termini, be an attempt to commit perjury: but an attempt to suborn perjury is indictable (see ante, p. 1071); so are certain attempts to bribe (ante, p. 1080).

Under 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 9 (ante, p. 219), any person indicted for felony or misdemeanor may be convicted of the attempt to commit the offence charged, if the jury is satisfied that the offence was not completed. See R. v. McPherson, Dears. & B. 197; 26 L. J. (M. C.) 134, 7 Cox, 281: R. v. Hapgood, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 221. It is therefore unusual to prefer an indictment for the attempt to commit an offence (e.g., to obtain money by false pretences) where the full offence is charged.

In R. v. Connell, 6 Cox, 178, Williams and Talfourd, JJ., held that a previous acquittal for murder was no bar to a subsequent indictment for administering poison with intent to murder, on the ground that though by 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 9, the jury can on an indictment for felony or misdemeanor convict of the attempt to commit the offence charged, such attempt was a misdemeanor only. It is submitted that R. v. Connell is not, as stated in previous editions of this work, an authority for the proposition that the jury cannot convict under 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 9, of the attempt, when the attempt is made felony by statute.

Indictment for an Attempt to commit an Offence.

An indictment for the common law misdemeanor of an attempt to commit a felony or misdemeanor can as a general rule be framed on the precedents ante passim by inserting the words "unlawfully did attempt and endeavour to feloniously" (or unlawfully, as the case may be), before the words charging the full offence. (a)

An indictment for attempting to obtain money by false pretences must set out the pretences. R. v. Marsh, 1 Den. 505.

(a) In R. v. Fuller, 1 B. & P. 180; 2 Leach, 916; 1 East, P. C. 91, the judges held that in an indictment under 37 G. 3, s. 70, charging F. for that he "feloniously and maliciously did endeavour to seduce" L., a soldier, from his allegiance, it was not necessary to set out the means employed, on the ground that such an endeavour, though a conclusion from an infinite variety of facts and circumstances, is but a conclusion of fact, is itself a fact, which could only be expressed by the word "endeavour." Cf. 1 Stark. Cr. Pl. 146: R. v. Lady Lawley, Fitzgibbon, 263; 2 Str. 904. On the other hand, in the precedent for an attempt to commit burglary in 3 Chit. Cr. L. 1190 (a), the means are set out; and, at all events, in indictments for such offences as attempts to pervert the course of justice, the facts alleged as constituting the attempt should be set out. Cf. R. v. Tibbits and Windust [1902] 1 K. B. 77; 20 Cox, 70; and see the indictment in R. v. Ransford, 13 Cox, 9.

Evidence.

Mere intention to commit an offence does not constitute an attempt; some act must be proved to have been done by the defendant immediately connected with the offence. R. v. Eagleton, Dears. 515, 538; 24 L. J. (M. C.) 158; 6 Cox, 559 (ante, p. 617): R. v. Roberts, Dears. 539; 25 L. J. (M. C.) 17: R. v. Cheeseman, L. & C. 140, 145; 31 L. J. (M. C.) 89; 9 Cox, 100. It is no defence to an indictment for attempting to commit a crime to prove that it was physically impossible to commit the complete offence. R. v. Brown, 24 Q. B. D. 357: 59 L. J. (M. C.) 47; 16 Cox, 715 (C. C. R.): R. v. Ring, 61 L. J. (M. C.) 116; 17 Cox, 491. These decisions overrule R. v. Collins, L. & C. 471; 33 L. J. (M. C.) 177; 9 Cox, 497. (a) See also R. v. Duckworth [1892] 2 Q. B. 83; 17 Cox, 495; and the observations of Hawkins and Cave, JJ., in R. v. Williams [1893] 1 Q. B. 320; 62 L. J. (M. C.) 29. In the Draft Criminal Code, prepared by Lord Blackburn, and Barry, Lush, and Stephen, JJ., the following definition appears (art. 74):—"An attempt to commit an offence is an act done or omitted with intent to commit that offence, forming part of a series of acts or omissions which would have constituted the offence if such series of acts or omissions had not been interrupted either by the voluntary determination of the offender not to complete the offence or by some other cause. Every one who, believing that a certain state of facts exists, does or omits an act the doing or omitting of which would, if that state of facts existed, be an attempt to commit an offence, attempts to commit that offence, although its commission in the manner proposed was by reason of the non-existence of that state of facts at the time of the act or omission impossible. The question whether an act done or omitted with intent to commit an offence is or is not only preparation for the commission of that offence, and too remote to constitute an attempt to commit it, is a question of law." To this definition the commissioners appended a note to the effect that the passage between the asterisks "declares the law differently from R. v. Collins" (ubi supra), which at the date of the drafting of the code had not been overruled. Cf. Steph. Dig. Crim. Law (6th ed.), 39. As to what is "too remote," see R. v. Eagleton, and the cases cited supra, from which it would seem that it is material to consider on this point whether there is any further act on the defendant's part remaining to be done before the completion of the crime. See R. v. Eagleton, Dears. at p. 538: R. v. Cheeseman, L. & C. at p. 145: and the observations of Alderson, B., in R. v. Roebuck, Dears. & B. 24; 23 L. J. (M. C.) 101; 7 Cox, 126, 127; and cf. R. v. Hensler, 11 Cox, 570 (C. C. R.) (ante, p. 613). In accordance with the above definition, it was held that if a prognant woman believing she is taking a "noxious thing" within the meaning of 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 58, does with intent to procure her own abortion take a thing in fact harmless, she is guilty of attempt to commit an offence against the first part of that section. R. v. Brown and others, Cent. Crim. Court, 23*rd Nov.* 1899, Darling, J. (ante, p. 1294).

(a) Messrs. J. B. Matthews and V. G. Milward, editors of the second edition of Pritchard's Quarter Sessions, at pp. 900-908, contend that R. v. Brown and R. v. Ring have not completely overruled R. v. Collins.

ACCESSORIES, ABETTORS, ETC.

PRINCIPALS IN THE SECOND DEGREE.

Common Law.

Principals in the second degree are those who are present, aiding and abetting, at the commission of the fact. The distinction between principals in the first and in the second degree is stated in detail ante, pp. 12–16; and see 1 Chit. Cr. L. 256; Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (6th ed.) 31.

discretion of the court, to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour; . . . and every person who shall aid, abet, counsel, or procure the commission of any misdemeanor punishable under this Act shall be liable to be indicted and punished as a principal offender. [As to the origin of this and the following sections, see Greaves, Crim. Law Cons. Acts (2nd ed.), p. 88.]

24 & 25 Vict. c. 97 (Malicious Damage Act, 1861), s. 56—Punishment of principals in the second degree, accessories and abettors, etc.]—In the case of every felony punishable under this Act, every principal in the second degree, and every accessory before the fact, shall be punishable in the same manner as the principal in the first degree is by this Act punishable; and every accessory after the fact to any felony punishable under this Act shall on conviction be liable, at the discretion of the court, to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour; . . . and every person who shall aid, abet, counsel, or procure the commission of any misdemeanor punishable under this Act shall be liable to be proceeded against, indicted and punished as a principal offender.

24 & 25 Vict. c. 99 (Coinage Offences Act, 1861), s. 35—Punishment of principals in the second degree and accessories.]—In the case of every felony punishable under this Act, every principal in the second degree, and every accessory before the fact, shall be punishable in the same manner as the principal in the first degree is by this Act punishable; and every accessory after the fact to any felony punishable under this Act shall be liable to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour.

24 & 25 Vict. c. 100 (Offences against the Person Act, 1861), s. 67—Punishment of principals in the second degree, accessories and abettors.]—In the case of every felony punishable under this Act, every principal in the second degree, and every accessory before the fact, shall be punishable in the same manner as the principal in the first degree is by this Act punishable; and every accessory after the fact to any felony punishable under this Act (except murder) shall be liable to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour; and every accessory after the fact to murder shall be liable, at the discretion of the court, to be kept in penal servitude for life or for any term not less than three years, or to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour; and whosoever shall counsel, aid, or abet the commission of any indictable misdemeanor punishable under this Act shall be liable to be proceeded against, indicted and punished as a principal offender.

Indictment of Principal in the Second Degree.

After stating the offence of the principal in the first degree, and immediately before the conclusion of the indictment, charge the principal in the second degree, thus:]—And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that J. W., on the day and year aforesaid, feloniously was present aiding, abetting, and assisting the said J. S. the felony aforesaid to do and commit; against the peace, etc.

Punishment: apart from the statutes printed on pp. 1297, 1298, and before abolition of benefit of clergy by the Criminal Law Act, 1827 (7 & 8 G. 4, c. 28), s. 11, the rule adopted seems to have been that where a statute created a felony and punished with death persons guilty thereof, or imposed the penalty of death for a specified common law felony, without making specific provisoes as to persons present aiding and abetting, they were liable to the death penalty, though not named in the statute. R. v. Midwinter, Fost. App. 415: The Coalheavers' case, 1 Leach, 64; 1 East, P. C. 413: and see 1 Hale, 537; Fost. 359. But a distinction was drawn where the penalty was imposed on the person committing the offence, and not on the offence by name (Fost. 356, 357), unless the accessory were expressly within the statute. R. v. Gogerly, R. & R. 343. By 7 & 8 G. 4, c. 28, s. 7, "no person convicted of felony shall suffer death unless it be for some offence which was excluded from the benefit of clergy before or on the first day of the present session of parliament, or which hath been or shall be made punishable by death by some statute passed after that day" (see ante, p. 233). The only case to which the old rule can now apply seems to be that of accessories under the Dockyards, etc., Protection Act, 1772 (12 G. 3, c. 24), s. 1 (ante, p. 658).

Where, upon the construction of any statute, principals in the second degree are not punishable with death, and no punishment is prescribed by the statute, then principals in the second degree may be kept to penal servitude for not more than seven nor less than three years, or imprisoned for not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour for the whole or any part of the imprisonment. 7 & 8 G. 4, c. 28, s. 8 (ante, p. 234); 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3 (ante, p. 235); 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235).

In the case of a felony at common law not punishable with death, and in cases of felony at common law or by statute, where the principal in the first degree is expressly, and the principal in the second degree is by construction of law, punishable with death (vide supra), the pleader may charge the principal in the second degree either as principal in the first degree, for proof that he was present aiding and abetting will in such a case maintain an indictment charging him with having actually committed the offence; see Mackalley's case, 9 Co. Rep. 67 b; 1 Hale, 438: R. v. Towle, R. & R. 314 (ante, p. 16); or as being present aiding and abetting, as in the form above given, at his option. R. v. Crisham, C. & Mar. 187 (ante, p. 16): R. v. Downing, 1 Den. 52; 2 C. & K. 382 (ante, p. 16). A., B. and C. were indicted for murder: in the first count, as principals in the first degree; and in the second, A. was indicted as a principal in the first degree; and B. and C. as principals in the second degree; the grand jury ignored the first count as to B. and C., and found a true bill on the second count against all; it seems that B. and C. might be convicted on the second count, though A. was acquitted. R. v. Phelps, C. & Mar. 180. It has never been necessary that the principal in the first degree should be joined in the indictment with the principal in the second degree or have been made amenable to justice. Plowd. 97.

Evidence.

The commission of the principal felony must be proved. The defendant must be proved to have been present aiding and abetting in the commission of the offence (see ante, p. 12).

A person may be convicted as principal in the second degree even if from sex or age incapable of being a principal in the first degree. Lord Baltimore's case, 4 Burr. 2179: R. v. Eldershaw, 3 C. & P. 396: R. v. Ram, 17 Cox, 609, Bowen, L.J. The presence of the aider and abettor may be actual or constructive; see ante, pp. 12, 13. As to the crimes committed through innocent agents, see ante, pp. 12, 13. There must be not only presence, but guilty participation in the felony: see ante, p. 13; and R. v. Fretwell, L. & C. 161; 31 L. J. (M. C.) 145; 9 Cox, 152. The common purpose must be to commit a felony or to do an unlawful act at all hazards; see ante, pp. 13, 14; and the commission of the principal felony must directly result from the execution of the common purpose (ante, p. 14). As to the effect of the insanity of the principal felon on the liability of principals in the second degree, see R. v. Tyler, 8 C. & P. 616, and ante, p. 16.

ACCESSORIES BEFORE THE FACT.

Common Law.

An accessory before the fact to felony is he that being absent at the time of the actual perpetration of the felony, procures, counsels, commands, invites, or abets another to commit it. 1 Chit. Cr. L. 262; and see Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (6th ed.) 33, and ante, pp. 16–19, where the nature of the offence is fully dealt with. There are no accessories before the fact in treason or misdemeanor. See R. v. Burton, 13 Cox, 71 (C. C. R.), and ante, p. 16. As to such accessories to manslaughter, see R. v. Smith, 2 Cox, 233, Parke, B.: R. v. Taylor, L. R. 2 C. C. R. 147, post, p. 1903. There may be accessories before the fact in bigamy. R. v. Brawn, 1 C. & K. 144: S. C. sub nom. R. v. Bawm, 1 Cox, 33.

Where a felony is committed through an innocent agent, the person who thus effected it is a principal, and not an accessory before the fact. See ante, p. 12, and 1 Russ. Cr. (6th ed.) 165. So, if an unlawful act is done by a servant under his master's orders. Wilson v. Stewart, 32 L. J. (M. C.) 198.

Statutes.

24 & 25 Vict. c. 94 (Accessories and Abettors Act, 1861), s. 1—Accessories before the fact, indictable as principals.]—Whosoever shall become an accessory before the fact to any felony, whether the same be a felony at common law, or by virtue of any Act passed or to be passed, may be indicted, tried, convicted and punished in all respects as if he were a principal felon. [This section re-enacts 11 & 12 Vict. c. 46, s. 1, as to which see R. v. Hughes, 8 Cox, 278 (C. C. R.). Where an offence is declared felony, it appears clear that such a common law incident as that of the liability of accessories is implied. R. v. Sadi, 1 Leach, 468. A similar provision is made by s. 5 of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1848 (11 & 12 Vict. c. 43), as to offences punishable on summary conviction.]

Sect. 2—Accessories before the fact may be indicted as such, or as substantive felons.]—Whosoever shall counsel, procure, or command any other person to commit any felony, whether the same be a felony at common law or by virtue of any Act passed or to be passed, shall be guilty of felony, and may be indicted and convicted either as an accessory before the fact to the principal felony, together with the principal felon, or after the conviction of the principal felon, or may be indicted and convicted of a substantive felony whether the principal felon shall or shall not have been previously convicted, or shall or shall not be amenable to justice, and may thereupon be punished in the same manner as any accessory before the fact to the same felony, if convicted as an accessory, may be punished. [This section re-enacts 7 G. 4, c. 64, s. 9, which altered the common law rule on the subject, stated ante, p. 18. It does not extend to a case where one person incites another to commit suicide; see R. v. Gregory (ante, p. 1293): R. v. Leddington, 9 C. & P. 79; and see ante, p. 19. The words "not amenable to justice" appear to overrule R. v. Ashmall, 9 C. & P. 236, where it was held that the principal not having appeared to take his trial the accessory was not compellable to plead.]

Sect. 5—Prosecution of accessory after principal has been convicted, but not attainted.]—If any principal offender shall be in anywise convicted of any felony, it shall be lawful to proceed against any accessory, either before or after the fact, in the same manner as if such principal felon had been attainted thereof, notwithstanding such principal felon shall die, or be pardoned, or otherwise delivered before attainder; and every such accessory shall upon conviction suffer the same punishment as he would have suffered if the principal had been attainted. [This section re-enacts 7 G. 4, c. 64, s. 11. Attainder was abolished in 1870; see ante, p. 177.]

Sect. 6—Trial of accessories.]—Any number of accessories at different times to any felony, and any number of receivers at different times of property stolen at one time, may be charged with substantive felonies in the same indictment, and may be tried together, notwithstanding the principal felon shall not be included in the same indictment, or shall not be in custody or amenable to justice. [This section re-enacts 14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 15, with the additions italicized. As to receivers, see ante, p. 546.]

Sect. 7—Trial of accessories.]—Where any felony shall have been wholly committed within England or Ireland, the offence of any person who shall be an accessory either before or after the fact to any such felony may be dealt with, inquired of, tried, determined, and punished by any court which shall have jurisdiction to try the principal felony, or any felonies committed in any county or place in which the act by reason whereof such person shall have become such accessory shall have been committed; and in every other case the offence of any person who shall be an accessory either before or after the fact to any felony may be dealt with, inquired of, tried, determined and punished by any court which shall have jurisdiction to try the principal felony or any felonies committed in any county or place in which such person shall be apprehended or be in custody, whether the principal felony shall have been committed on the sea or on the land, or begun on the sea and completed on the land, or begun on the land and completed on the sea, and whether within [his] Majesty's dominions or without, or partly within [his] Majesty's dominions and partly without: provided that no person who shall be once duly tried either as an accessory before or after the fact, or for a substantive felony under the provisions hereinbefore contained, shall be liable to be afterwards prosecuted for the same offence. [This section is taken from 7 G. 4, c. 64, ss. 9, 10; 11 & 12 Vict. c. 46, s. 2, with the additions italicized; and see ante, pp. 39–43, 46.]

Sect. 9—Accessories to offences in admiralty jurisdiction—Venue.]—Where any person shall, within the jurisdiction of the admiralty of England or Ireland, become an accessory to any felony, whether the same be a felony at common law or by virtue of any Act passed or to be passed, and whether such felony shall be committed within that jurisdiction or elsewhere, or shall be begun within that jurisdiction and completed elsewhere, or shall be begun elsewhere and completed within that jurisdiction, the offence of such person shall be felony; and in any indictment for any such offence the venue in the margin shall be the same as if the offence had been committed in the county or place in which such person shall be indicted, and his offence shall be averred to have been committed "on the high seas:" provided that nothing herein contained shall alter or affect any of the laws relating to the government of [his] Majesty's land or naval forces. Indictment of Accessory before the Fact together with the Principal. (24 & 25 Vict. c. 94, s. 2, ante, p. 1300.)

After charging the principal with the offence, and immediately before the conclusion of the indictment, you may charge the accessory thus:—And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that J. W., before the said felony and larceny was committed in form aforesaid, to wit, on the first day of August, in the year aforesaid, feloniously did counsel, procure, [incite, move, aid, hire,] and command the said J. S. the said felony in manner and form aforesaid to do and commit; against the form, etc. [as ante, p. 465]. The word "maliciously" appearing in the precedent in editions of this work prior to the 22nd has been omitted as unnecessary. The act of accessory before the fact is described in differing terms in many statutes creating new felonies, or imposing a statutory punishment for principals and accessories in felonies at common law. In s. 2 of the Accessories and Abettors Act the words used are "counsel, procure, or command," which, it is submitted, are by the terms of the section sufficient in most if not all cases. Where the statute dealing with the felony does not mention accessories, or in the case of a felony at common law, the words in brackets may be added. And even where the statute does expressly describe the offence of accessory in terms, it is not absolutely necessary to describe it in the same terms in the indictments, and a description in equivalent terms will be sufficient. Thus, where the words in the statute were "command, hire, or counsel," and in the indictment "excite, move, and procure," the indictment was held good: because the words were of the same legal import. R. v. Grevil, 1 Anderson, 194. A man may be indicted as accessory to one of several principals, or to all: and if he be indicted as accessory to all, he may be convicted on such indictment as accessory to one or some of them. Lord Sanchar's case, 9 Co. Rep. 119; Fost. 361; 1 Hale, 624. (See ante, p. 19.) An indictment charging that a certain evil-disposed person feloniously stole certain goods, and that A. B. feloniously incited the said evil-disposed person to commit the said felony, is bad for uncertainty against A. B. R. v. Caspar, 2 Mood. C. C. 101; 9 C. & P. 289. As to the venue, see ante, pp. 43, 46.

The offence of accessory before the fact is felony, and such accessory now in all cases may be indicted, tried, convicted and punished in all respects as if he were a principal felon. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 94, s. 1 (ante, p. 1300). See R. v. Chadwick, Stafford Sum. Ass. 1850 (ante, p. 18): R. v. James, 24 Q. B. D. 439; 59 L. J. (M. C.) 96 (ante, p. 19). Punishment: as directed by the statute if any specifically providing for the punishment, or where no specific punishment is provided, by penal servitude for not more than seven nor less than three years, or imprisonment not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour for the whole or any part of the imprisonment. 7 & 8 G. 4, c. 28, s. 8 (ante, p. 224); 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3 (ante, p. 235); 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235).

Evidence.

Prove first the commission of the principal felony by J. S.; secondly, that J. W. had previously to its commission counselled, procured, [incited, moved, aided, hired,] or commanded J. S. to commit the principal felony: whether he did so directly or through a third person is immaterial. See R. v. Macdaniel, Fost. 121, 125; 19 St. Tr. 745, and ante, p. 16.

To support an indictment for being accessory before the fact to manslaughter (as to which see R. v. Gaylor, Dears. & B. 288, and ante, p. 17), as well as to other felonies, there must be an active proceeding on the part of the defendant; he must procure, incite, or some other way encourage the act of the principal. Therefore, where the defendant acted as stakeholder on the occasion of a prize fight, which ended in the death of one of the fighters, but took no other part in the circumstances attending the fight, at which he was not present, than to hold the stakes and hand them over afterwards to the winner, it was held that he could not be convicted as accessory before the fact to the manslaughter. R. v. Taylor, L. R. 2 C. C. R. 147; 44 L. J. (M. C.) 67; 13 Cox, 68.

As it is essential to constitute the offence of accessory that the party should be absent at the time the offence was committed (1 Hale, 615, 616: R. v. Macdaniel, 19 St. Tr. 745; Fost. 121, 126; 1 East, P. C. 352, ante, p. 16), if it be proved that J. W. was present when the larceny in question was committed, he must, if indicted as an accessory, be acquitted. R. v. Gordon, 1 Leach, 515; 1 East, P. C. 352: R. v. Brown, 14 Cox, 144.

The accessory may controvert the guilt of his principal, and cannot be convicted on this indictment unless the principal is found guilty. See 1 Hale, 624; 2 Co. Inst. 184; Fost. 365. So, he may prove that, after he had so counselled, procured, incited, hired, or commanded J. S., he repented of it, and actually countermanded the order, etc. 1 Hale, 618. So, if it appear that the accessory ordered or advised one crime, and that the principal committed another; as, for instance, if he commanded J. S. to burn a house, and instead of doing so he commited a larceny, he must be acquitted. 1 Hale, 617. So, if J. W. ordered J. S. to commit a crime against A., and instead of doing so he wilfully committed the same crime against B., J. W. would not be answerable as accessory; but if J. S. had committed the offence against B. by mistake, instead of A., it seems it would be otherwise. Fost. 370, et seq.; but see 1 Hale, 617; 3 Co. Inst. 51: R. v. Saunders, Plowd. 475; Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (6th ed.) 35. But it is clear that the accessory is liable for all that ensues upon the execution of the unlawful act commanded; as for instance, if A. commanded B. to beat C., and he beat him so that he dies, A. is accessory to the murder. 4 Bl. Com. 37; 1 Hale, 617. Or if A. command B. to burn the house of C., and in doing so the house of D. is also burnt, A. is accessory to the burning of D.'s house. R. v. Saunders, Plowd. 473, 475. So if the offence commanded be effected, although by different means from those commanded; as, for instance, if J. W. hire J. S. to poison A., and instead of poisoning him he shoot him, J. W. is nevertheless liable as accessory. Fost. 369, 370. Where the procurement is through an intermediate agent, it is not necessary that the accessory should name the person to be procured to do the act. R. v. Cooper, 5 C. & P. 535.

It is said by Coke and Hale that where the principal and accessory are tried together, one being charged as principal and the other as accessory (which will now probably never occur), if the principal plead otherwise than the general issue, the accessory shall not be bound to answer until the principal's plea be first determined. 9 H. 7, 19; 1 Hale, 624; 2 Co. Inst. 184. Where three agreed to commit a burglary, and one informed the police, in order that they might arrest the other two, the informer, though present at the commission of the offence, was held not to be particeps criminis. R. v. Dannelly, R. & R. 310; 2 Marsh. 571. See also 24 & 25 Vict. c. 94, s. 6 (ante, p. 1301).

Indictment against an Accessory before the Fact, as for a Substantive Felony. (24 & 25 Vict. c. 94, s. 2, ante, p. 1300.)

Central Criminal Court, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. S. [or, that some person or persons to the jurors aforesaid unknown], on the first day of June, in the year [etc., etc., stating the felony, exclusive of the conclusion, "against the form," etc., or "against the peace," etc.]. And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that J. W. [X. Y. and A. B.], before the said felony was committed in form aforesaid, to wit, on the first day of May, in the year aforesaid, feloniously did counsel, procure, [move, incite, aid, hire], and command the said J. S. [or the said person or persons to the jurors aforesaid unknown] the said felony in manner and form aforesaid to do and commit; against the form [as ante, p. 465]. Any number of accessories at different times may be charged together on this indictment. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 94, s. 6 (ante, p. 1301). An indictment is properly framed as for a substantive felony, which states in the first place that the principal committed the felony, and then that the defendant incited, moved, etc., him to commit it; although the principal has not been tried, and does not appear to be amenable to justice. R. v. Wallace, C. & Mar. 200; 2 Mood. C. C. 200. If the principal felon be known, the indictment should charge the felony, etc., to have been committed by him, and not by a person unknown. R. v. Walker, 3 Camp. 264; and see R. v. Caspar (ante, p. 1303).

Evidence.

Prove the felony as already directed, ante passim; and then prove the defendant's guilt as accessory, as directed ante, p. 1303.

ACCESSORIES AFTER THE FACT.

Common Law.

An accessory after the fact is one who, knowing a felony to have been committed by another, receives, relieves, comforts, or assists the felon. The elements of this offence have been dealt with, ante, pp. 19–21; and see 1 Chit. Cr. L. 264; Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (6th ed.) 36. There are at common law no accessories after the fact in treason or misdemeanor. See ante, p. 19, and R. v. Smith, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 266; 39 L. J. (M. C.) 112; 11 Cox, 511 (ante, p. 550); and R. v. Green, 8 Cox, 441. As to receiving goods stolen, etc., see ante, p. 546, et seq. Even in the case of misdemeanor it is indictable to rescue the offender (ante, p. 1038), or to obstruct an officer of justice (ante, p. 861), or to conspire to defeat justice, 2 Hawk. c. 29, s. 4, and ante, p. 1281.

Statutes.

24 & 25 Vict. c. 94 (Accessories and Abettors Act, 1861), s. 3—Accessories after the fact may be indicted as such, or as substantive felons.]—Whosoever shall become an accessory after the fact to any felony, whether the same be a felony at common law or by virtue of any Act passed or to be passed, may be indicted and convicted either as an accessory after the fact to the principal felony, together with the principal felon, or after the conviction of the principal felon, or may be indicted and convicted of a substantive felony whether the principal felon shall or shall not have been previously convicted, or shall or shall not be amenable to justice, and may thereupon be punished in like manner as any accessory after the fact to the same felony, if convicted as an accessory, may be punished. [This section re-enacts 11 & 12 Vict. c. 46, s. 2.]

Sect. 4—Punishment of accessories after the fact.]—Every accessory after the fact to any felony (except where it is otherwise specially enacted), whether the same be a felony at common law or by virtue of any Act passed or to be passed, shall be liable, at the discretion of the court, to be imprisoned in the common gaol or house of correction for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour, and it shall be lawful for the court, if it shall think fit, to require the offender to enter into his own recognizances and to find sureties, both or either, for keeping the peace, in addition to such punishment: provided that no person shall be imprisoned under this clause for not finding sureties for any period exceeding one year. Indictment against an Accessory after the Fact with the Principal.

After stating the offence of the principal, and immediately before the conclusion of the indictment, charge the accessory after the fact thus:]—And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that J. W., [X. Y. and A. B.,] well knowing the said J. S. to have done and committed the said felony in form aforesaid, afterwards, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, him the said J. S. did feloniously receive, harbour and maintain; against the form, etc. [as ante, p. 465]. For indictments of receivers of goods stolen, see ante, p. 546, et seq. As to the venue, see ante, pp. 42, 46, 1301. On an indictment charging a man as a principal felon only, he cannot be convicted of being an accessory after the fact. R. v. Fallon, L. & C. 217;

32 L. J. (M. C.) 66: Richards v. R., 61 J. P. 389. And where a man is charged in one count of the indictment as a principal felon, and in another count as an accessory after the fact to the same felony, the prosecution will not be compelled to elect upon which count they will proceed. R. v. Tuffin, Guildford Assizes, July, 1903, Darling, J. R.* v. Richards, 2 Q. B. D. 311; 46 L. J. (M. C.) 200; 13 Cox, 611 (C. C. R.).

The offence of the accessory after the fact is felony whether the principal offence is felony at common law or by statute. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 3. Accessories after the fact to murder may be kept to penal servitude for life or for not less than three years, or imprisoned, with or without hard labour, not exceeding two years. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100, s. 67; 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235). Accessories after the fact to larceny, arson and malicious injuries, forgery, to coinage offences, to offences against the person, to post-office offences, to piracy, are liable to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, not exceeding two years. See the statutes, ante, p. 1297. So are accessories after the fact to any felony whether at common law or by statute, unless where it is otherwise specially enacted. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 94, s. 4 (ante, p. 1306). There seem now to be no cases in which an accessory after the fact can be punished capitally or in the same way as the principal offender. As to former law, see ante, p. 20, and 3 Co. Inst. 59; 1 Hale, 235, 236, 328; 2 Hawk. c. 29, s. 14. Accessories after the fact are now triable (1) as accessories after the fact to the principal felony together with the principal felon, or after his conviction; or (2) as for a substantive felony irrespective of the principal felon. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 94, s. 3 (ante, p. 1303).

Any number of accessories to the same felony may be charged with substantive felonies in the same indictment. Id., s. 6; see ante, p. 19.

Evidence.

1. The prosecutor must prove the principal guilty of the felony charged against him by the indictment, as in ordinary cases.

2. He must prove that J. W. received, harboured or maintained the principal, after he had so committed the felony; as, for instance, that he concealed him in his house, Dalt. c. 161, or shut the door against his pursuers, until he should have an opportunity of escaping, 1 Hale, 619, or took money from him to allow him to escape, 9 H. 4, 1, or supplied him with money, a horse, or other necessaries, in order to enable him to escape, Hale's Sum. 218; 2 Hawk. c. 29, ss. 26, 30, or that the principal was in prison, and J. W. bribed the gaoler to let him escape; or conveyed instruments to him to enable him to break prison and escape. 1 Hale, 621. The felony must be completed at the time of the harbouring. 2 Hawk. c. 29, s. 26, et seq.

To justify conviction of an accessory after the fact he must be proved to have done some act to assist the felon personally (R. v. Chapple, 9 C. & P. 355), or to have employed another person to harbour or relieve the felon. R. v. Greenacre, 8 C. & P. 35: R. v. Butterfield, 1 Cox, 39: R. v. Lee, 6 C. & P. 536, and ante, p. 20: R. v. Jarvis, 2 M. & Rob. 40.

A wife is not punishable as accessory for receiving, harbouring, or maintaining her husband, although she know him to have committed felony; 1 Hale, 47, 621: R. v. Manning, 2 C. & K. 903, n.: R. v. Good, 1 C. & K. 185: R. v. McClarens, 3 Cox, 425; for in this respect she is presumed to act under his coercion. But she may be convicted as a principal felon together with her husband, if in the part which she took in the commission of the felony she was acting independently of her husband. R. v. Mary Baines, 19 Cox, 524 (C. C. R.); and see ante, pp. 20, 30. But no other relationship of parties can excuse the wilful receipt or assistance of felons; a father cannot assist his child, a child his parent, a husband his wife, a brother his brother, a master his servant, or a servant his master. Ante, p. 20.

3. It must be proved that J. W., at the time he received or assisted the principal felon, knew that he had committed a felony. This knowledge may be proved either from the defendant's admissions, or the like, or by evidence of circumstances from which the jury may fairly presume it. (See ante, p. 340.) R. v. Burridge, 3 P. Wms. 439; 2 Hawk. c. 29, ss. 32, 33.

Indictment against an Accessory after the Fact, the Principal being convicted. (24 & 25 Vict. c. 94, s. 3, ante, p. 1305.)

After stating the offence of the principal and his conviction, charge the accessory after the fact, thus:]—And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that J. W., well knowing the said J. S. to have done and committed the felony aforesaid, after the same was so committed as aforesaid, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, him the said J. S. did feloniously receive, harbour, and maintain; against the form, etc. [as ante, p. 465].

An indictment as for a substantive felony may be in the same terms. See R. v. Wallace (ante, p. 1305).

Felony: for punishment see last precedent.

Evidence.

Prove the previous conviction of the principal felon as directed ante, p. 360. Prove the offence of the accessory as directed ante, p. 1308.

MISPRISION OF TREASON OR FELONY.

Misprision of treason.]—Misprision of treason consists in the concealment or keeping secret of high treason (1 & 2 Ph. & M. c. 10, s. 6, ante, p. 931), or failing with due diligence to inform of treasons committed or threatened by others without the assent of the accused, or any active part in rescuing traitors from justice. Fourth Report Crim. Law Commissioners, 1848, p. 79. As to misprisions generally, see Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (6th ed.) pp. 121, 122, 401; Encycl. Engl. Law, vol. 8, pp. 430, 431; 1 Hawk. c. 20; 2 Hawk. c. 29, s. 23.

The offence is punishable by imprisonment for life, and forfeiture of the goods and the profits of the lands of the offender. The punishment is not affected by 33 & 34 Vict. c. 23, s. 1. The offence is not triable at quarter sessions (5 & 6 Vict. c. 38, s. 1, ante, p. 126).

The procedure on prosecution for misprision of treason is the same as for treason. See the statutes collected under that title, ante, pp. 928–937.

Misprision of felony.]—Misprision of felony consists in concealing or procuring the concealment of a felony known to have been committed.

1 Hawk. cc. 20, 59; 1 Chit. Cr. L. 3. The offence seems to be triable at quarter sessions, and is punishable by fine and imprisonment, the punishment under 8 Edw. 1, c. 9, having been repealed by 50 & 51 Vict. c. 55, s. 39. There do not appear to be any authorities as to what will constitute concealment; but the offence appears to be founded on a duty to inform the King's officers of the commission of a felony, and to differ from that of an accessory after the fact in that no actual assistance to the felon need be proved, and from that of an accessory before the fact in that no privity to the commission of the felony need be proved. See 3 Co. Inst. 140; 1 Hale, 373. Prosecutions for misprision of felony have not been instituted of recent years. See Williams v. Bayley, L. R. 1 H. L. 200, 220, Lord Westbury. There is no modern precedent of an indictment for the offence. For an old precedent, see 2 Chit. Cr. L. 232. As to compounding felonies, etc., see ante, p. 1088.

ABETTORS IN MISDEMEANOR.

Statutes.

24 & 25 Vict. c. 94 (Accessories and Abettors Act, 1861), s. 8.]—Whosoever shall aid, abet, counsel or procure the commission of any misdemeanor, whether the same be a misdemeanor at common law or by virtue of any Act passed or to be passed, shall be liable to be tried, indicted and punished as a principal offender. [This section was framed from 7 & 8 G. 4, c. 30, s. 26.]

33 & 34 Vict. c. 90, s. 12—Aiders and abettors in misdemeanors under the Foreign Enlistment Act, 1870.]—Ante, p. 956.

Indictment.

After stating the offence of the principal and immediately before the conclusion of the indictment, continue:—And the jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present, that J. N., on the day and year aforesaid, unlawfully did aid, abet, counsel, and procure the said J. S. the misdemeanor aforesaid to do and commit; against the peace, etc. It is now usual to indict aiders, etc., within 24 & 25 Vict. c. 94, s. 8, as principals. See Benford v. Sims [1898] 2 Q. B. 641, decided on similar provisions contained in s. 5 of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1848 (11 & 12 Vict. c. 43); and cf. R. v. Clayton, 1 C. & K. 128: R. v. Moland, 2 Mood. C. C. 276. But in certain cases, e.g., where the principal offence is that of a bankrupt under s. 11 of the Debtors Act, 1869 (ante, p. 1135), it is still necessary to indict the abettor on the above form.

Evidence.

Prove that the principal offence was committed, and that the defendant aided, abetted, counselled, or procured its commission (as ante, p. 1303).

PART V.

OFFENCES COMMITTED AFTER PREVIOUS CONVICTION, AND OFFENCES BY CONVICTS ON LICENSE OR UNDER POLICE SUPERVISION.

Statutes.

7 & 8 G. 4, c. 28 (Criminal Law Act, 1827), s. 11—Punishment of felony after a previous conviction for felony.]—(Whereas it is expedient to provide for the more exemplary punishment of offenders who commit felony after a previous conviction of felony, whether such conviction shall have taken place before or after the commencement of this Act [1*st July*, 1827]: be it therefore enacted, that [preamble rep. Statute Law Revision, No. 2, 1888]) if any person shall be convicted of any felony, not punishable with death, committed after a previous conviction for felony, such person shall, on such subsequent conviction, be liable . . . to be transported beyond the seas for life. . . . [Now to penal servitude, see ante, p. 235. Words omitted rep. Statute Law Revision (No. 2) Act, 1888.]

Indictment and trial.]—And in an indictment for any such felony committed after a previous conviction for felony, it shall be sufficient to state that the offender was at a certain time and place convicted of felony, without otherwise describing the previous felony; and a certificate containing the substance and effect only (omitting the formal part) of the indictment and conviction for the previous felony, purporting to be signed by the clerk of the court, or other officer having the custody of the records of the court where the offender was first convicted, or by the deputy of such clerk or officer (for which certificate a fee of six shillings and eight pence, and no more, shall be demanded or taken), shall, upon proof of the identity of the person of the offender, be sufficient evidence of the first conviction, without proof of the signature or official character of the person appearing to have signed the same; and if any such clerk, officer, or deputy, shall utter a false certificate of any indictment and conviction for a previous felony, or if any person other than such clerk, officer, or deputy, shall sign any such certificate as such clerk, officer, or deputy, or shall utter any such certificate with a false or counterfeit signature thereto, every such offender shall be guilty of felony; and, being lawfully convicted thereof, shall be liable . . . to be transported beyond the seas for the term of seven years. . . . [Now to penal servitude, see ante, p. 235. Words omitted rep. Statute Law Revision (No. 2) Act, 1888.]

6 & 7 W. 4, c. 111 (Previous Conviction Act, 1836)—Course of proceedings at the trial on a charge of felony after a previous conviction of felony.]—After reciting that by 7 & 8 G. 4, c. 28 (supra), provision is made for the more exemplary punishment of offenders who shall commit any felony not punishable with death after a previous conviction for felony; and that since the passing of the said Act the practice had been on the trial of any person for any subsequent felony to charge the jury to inquire at the same time concerning such previous conviction: and that doubts might be reasonably entertained whether such practice was consistent with a fair and impartial inquiry as regarded the matter of such subsequent felony, and it was expedient that such practice should thenceforth be discontinued, enacts:—That from and after the passing of this Act [20th August, 1836] it shall not be lawful on the trial of any person for any such subsequent felony to charge the jury to inquire concerning such previous conviction until after they shall have inquired concerning such subsequent felony, and shall have found such person guilty of the same; and whenever in any indictment such previous conviction shall be stated, the reading of such statement to the jury as part of the indictment shall be deferred until after such finding as aforesaid: provided nevertheless, that if upon the trial of any person for any such subsequent felony as aforesaid, such person shall give evidence of his or her good character, it shall be lawful for the prosecutor, in answer thereto, to give evidence of the indictment and conviction of such person for the previous felony before such verdict of guilty shall have been returned; and the jury shall inquire concerning such previous conviction for felony at the same time that they inquire concerning the subsequent felony.

34 & 35 Vict. c. 112 (Prevention of Crimes Act, 1871), s. 5—Convict under licence to notify residence to police.]—Every holder of a licence granted under the Penal Servitude Acts, who is at large in Great Britain or Ireland, shall notify the place of his residence to the chief officer of police of the district in which his residence is situated, and shall whenever he changes such residence within the same police district, notify such change to the chief officer of police of that district, and whenever he is about to leave a police district he shall notify such his intention to the chief officer of police of that district, stating the place to which he is going, and also, if required, and so far as is practicable, his address at that place; and whenever he arrives in any police district he shall forthwith notify his place of residence to the chief officer of police of such last-mentioned district; moreover, every male holder of such a licence as aforesaid shall, once in each month, report himself at such time as may be prescribed by the chief officer of police of the district in which such holder may be, either to such chief officer himself or to such other person as that officer may direct, and such report may, according as such chief officer directs, be required to be made personally or by letter. If any person to whom this section applies fails to comply with any of the requisitions of this section, he shall, in any such case, be guilty of an offence against this Act, unless he proves to the satisfaction of the court before whom he is tried, either that being on a journey he tarried no longer in the place, in respect of which he is charged with failing to notify his place of residence, than was reasonably necessary, or that otherwise he did his best to act in conformity with the law; and on conviction of such offence it shall be lawful for the court in its discretion either to forfeit his licence, or to sentence him to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding one year. [The words in italics in this section were substituted for the original provisions of the section by s. 4 of the Penal Servitude Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 69).]

42 & 43 Vict. c. 55 (Prevention of Crime Act, 1879), s. 2.]—After reciting 34 & 35 Vict. c. 112, ss. 5, 8, enacts that:—Any holder of a licence required under section five, and any person subject to the supervision of the police required under section eight of the Prevention of Crimes Act, 1871, to notify his residence or any change of his residence to a chief officer of police, shall comply with such requirement by personally presenting himself and declaring his place of residence to the constable or person who at the time when such notification is made is in charge of the police station or office of which notice has been given to such holder or person as the place for receiving his notification, or if no such notice has been given, in charge of the chief office of such chief officer of police.

The power of the chief officer of a police district to direct the reports required by sections five and eight of the Prevention of Crimes Act, 1871, to be made by holders of licences and persons subject to the supervision of the police shall be made to some other person, shall extend to authorize him to direct such reports to be made to the constable or person in charge of any particular police station or office without naming the individual person.

Any appointment, direction, or authority purporting to be signed by the chief officer of police, and to have been made or given for the purposes of this Act, or of sections five and eight of the Prevention of Crimes Act, 1871, or one of them, shall be evidence until the contrary is proved, that the appointment, direction, or authority thereby made or given was duly made or given by the chief officer of police, and evidence that it appears from the records kept by authority of the chief officer of police that a person required as above mentioned to notify his residence or change of residence, or make a report, has failed to comply with such requirement, shall be primâ facie evidence that the person has not complied with such requirement; but if the person charged alleges that he made such notification or report to any particular person or at any particular time, the court shall require the attendance of such persons as may be necessary to prove the truth or falsehood of such allegation.

34 & 35 Vict. c. 112, s. 7—Special offences by persons twice convicted of crime.]—Where any person is convicted on indictment of a crime [defined s. 20, post, p. 1317], and a previous conviction of a crime is proved against him, he shall, at any time within seven years immediately after the expiration of the sentence passed on him for the last of such crimes, be guilty of an offence under this Act, and be liable to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding one year, under the following circumstances, or any of them:—

First.—If, on his being charged by a constable with getting his livelihood by dishonest means, and being brought before a court of summary jurisdiction, it appears to such court that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the person so charged is getting his livelihood by dishonest means: or,

Secondly.—If, on being charged with any offence punishable on indictment or summary conviction, and on being required by a court of summary jurisdiction to give his name and address, he refuses to do so, or gives a false name or a false address: or,

Thirdly.—If he is found in any place, whether public or private, under such circumstances as to satisfy the court before whom he is brought that he was about to commit or to aid in the commission of any offence punishable on indictment or summary conviction; or was waiting for an opportunity to commit or aid in the commission of any offence punishable on indictment or summary conviction: or,

Fourthly.—If he is found in or upon any dwelling-house, or any building, yard, or premises, being parcel of or attached to such dwelling-house, or in or upon any shop, warehouse, counting-house, or other place of business, or in any garden, orchard, pleasure-ground, or nursery-ground, or in any building or erection in any garden, orchard, pleasure-ground, or nursery-ground, without being able to account to the satisfaction of the court before whom he is brought for his being found on such premises.

Any person charged with being guilty of any offence against this Act mentioned in this section may be taken into custody as follows; (that is to say),

In the case of any such offence against this Act as is first in this section mentioned, by any constable without warrant, if such constable is authorized so to do by the chief officer of police of his district;

In the case of any such offence against this Act as is thirdly in this section mentioned, by any constable without warrant, although such constable is not specially authorized to take him into custody.

Also, where any person is charged with being guilty of an offence against this Act fourthly in this section mentioned, he may, without warrant, be apprehended by any constable, or by the owner or occupier of the property on which he is found, or by the servants of the owner or occupier, or by any other person authorized by the owner or occupier, and may be detained until he can be delivered into the custody of a constable.

[The defendant can elect to be tried on indictment, 42 & 43 Vict. c. 49, s. 17 (ante, p. 6), and the election to be so tried need not be stated in the indictment, see ante, p. 1152. On such trial the court has the same power of amendment as in cases ordinarily indictable. R. v. Wilcox, 5 T. L. R. 621; 37 W. R. 686 (C. C. R.).

Where such election is made, the indictment should charge the previous convictions, and they must be given in evidence to the jury on the trial for the subsequent offence, as their proof is essential to establish the complete offence. R. v. Penfold [1902] 1 K. B. 547; 71 L. J. (K. B.) 306; 20 Cox, 161; 66 J. P. 248, overruling R. v. Brown, 65 J. P. 136. For precedent of indictment, see R. v. Penfold, ubi supra. The punishment under this section is altered by 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 6, post, p. 1316. It is submitted that counts charging offences under this section cannot properly be joined with counts charging any other offences. Faulkner v. R., 21 T. L. R. 417 (K. B. D.).]

Sect. 8—Sentence of supervision of the police, when it may be passed.] —Where any person is convicted on indictment of a "crime" [as defined in s. 20, post, p. 1317], and a previous conviction of a crime is proved against him, the court, having cognizance of such indictment, may, in addition to any other punishment which it may award to him, direct that he is to be subject to the supervision of the police for a period of seven years, or such less period as the court may direct, commencing immediately after the expiration of the sentence passed on him for the last of such crimes. Every person subject to the supervision of the police, who is at large in Great Britain or Ireland, shall notify the place of his residence to the chief officer of police of the district in which his residence is situated, and shall, whenever he changes such residence within the same police district, notify such change to the chief officer of police of that district, and whenever he is about to leave a police district he shall notify such his intention to the chief officer of police of that district, stating the place to which he is going, and also, if required, and so far as is practicable, his address at that place, and whenever he arrives in any police district he shall forthwith notify his place of residence to the chief officer of police of such last-mentioned district; moreover, every person subject to the supervision of the police if a male shall once in each month report himself, at such time as may be prescribed by the chief officer of police of the district in which such holder may be, either to such chief officer himself, or to such other person as that officer may direct, and such report may, according as such chief officer directs, be required to be made personally or by letter. [The words in italics were substituted for the former words by 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 4 (1). The penalty for non-compliance with this section is contained in the last paragraph printed under s. 5 (ante, p. 1313), which was by 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 4, substituted for the penalty clause of the present section.]

54 & 55 Vict. c. 69 (Penal Servitude Act, 1891), s. 2.]—Any constable may take into custody without warrant any holder of a licence under the Penal Servitude Acts (16 & 17 Vict. c. 99; 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3 (ante, p. 235); and 27 & 28 Vict. c. 47, see ante, p. 1313, and this Act), or any person under the supervision of the police in pursuance of the Prevention of Crimes Act, 1871, whom he reasonably suspects of having committed any offence, and may take him before a court of summary jurisdiction to be dealt with according to law. Any convict may be convicted before a court of summary jurisdiction of an offence against section three of the Prevention of Crimes Act, 1871, although he was brought before the court on some other charge or not in manner provided by that section.

Sect. 4, sub-sect. 1.]—Incorporated with 34 & 35 Vict. c. 112, ss. 5 and 8 (ante, pp. 1313, 1315), which it amends.

Sub-sect. 2.]—[His] Majesty may by order under the hand of a secretary of state, remit any of the requirements of ss. 5 and 8 of the Prevention of Crimes Act, 1871, either generally or in the case of any holder of a licence or person subject to the supervision of the police.

Sect. 6—Extension of 34 & 35 Vict. c. 112, s. 7.]—A person who has been convicted on indictment of a crime within the meaning of the Prevention of Crimes Act, 1871 (see s. 20, post, p. 1317), and against whom a previous conviction of such a crime is proved shall, (a) if the second sentence is to a term of imprisonment, then at any time within seven years after the expiration of the sentence; and (b) if the second sentence is to a term of penal servitude then whilst at large on licence under that sentence, and also at any time within seven years after the expiration of the sentence, be guilty of an offence against the Prevention of Crimes Act, 1871, under the circumstances stated in section seven of that Act (ante, p. 1314), or any of them, and may be taken into custody in manner provided by that section. [See R. v. Penfold [1902] 1 K. B. 547, supra, p. 1315.]

34 & 35 Vict. c. 112, s. 9—Form of, and proceedings upon, indictment charging previous conviction.]—The rules contained in the one hundred and sixteenth section of the Larceny Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 96) (ante, p. 430), in relation to the form of and the proceedings upon an indictment for any offence punishable under that Act committed after previous conviction, shall, with the necessary variations, apply to any indictment for committing a crime as defined by this Act after previous conviction for a crime, whether the crime charged in such indictment or the crime to which such previous conviction relates be or be not punishable under the Larceny Act, 1861. [This section does not apply to an indictment for an offence under s. 7. R. v. Penfold, ante, p. 1315. In Faulkner v. R. (21 T. L. R. 417, K. B. D.), where the provisions as to arraignment contained in

s. 116 of the Larceny Act, 1861, as extended by this section, were contravened, the conviction was quashed on writ of error.]

Sect. 14—Care of children of women convicted of crime after a previous conviction.]—Where any woman is convicted of a crime, and a previous conviction of a crime is proved against her, any children of such woman under the age of fourteen years who may be under her care and control at the time of her conviction for the last of such crimes, and who have no visible means of subsistence, or are without proper guardianship, shall be deemed to be children to whom, in Great Britain, the provisions of the Industrial Schools Act, 1866 (29 & 30 Vict. c. 118), and in Ireland the provisions of the Industrial Schools (Ireland) Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 25), apply, and the court by whom such woman is convicted, or two justices or a magistrate, shall have the same power of ordering such children to be sent to a certified industrial school as is vested in two justices or a magistrate by the fourteenth section of the Industrial Schools Act, 1866, and by the eleventh section of the Industrial Schools (Ireland) Act, 1868, in respect of the children in the said sections described.

Sect. 18—How previous convictions may be proved.]—A previous conviction may be proved in any legal proceeding whatever against any person by producing a record or extract of such conviction and by giving proof of the identity of the person against whom the conviction is sought to be proved with the person appearing in the record or extract of conviction to have been convicted.

A record or extract of a conviction shall, in the case of an indictable offence, consist of a certificate containing the substance and effect only (omitting the formal part) of the indictment and conviction, and purporting to be signed by the clerk of the court, or other officer having the custody of the records of the court by which such conviction was made, or purporting to be signed by the deputy of such clerk or officer; and in the case of a summary conviction shall consist of a copy of such conviction, purporting to be signed by any justice of the peace having jurisdiction over the offence in respect of which such conviction was made, or to be signed by the proper officer of the court by which such conviction was made, or by the clerk or other officer of any court to which such conviction has been returned.

A record or extract of any conviction made in pursuance of this section shall be admissible in evidence without proof of the signature or official character of the person appearing to have signed the same.

A previous conviction in any one part of the United Kingdom may be proved against a prisoner in any other part of the United Kingdom; and a conviction before the passing of this Act shall be admissible in the same manner as if it had taken place after the passing thereof.

A fee not exceeding five shillings may be charged for a record of a conviction given in pursuance of this section.

The mode of proving a previous conviction authorized by this section shall be in addition to and not in exclusion of any other authorized mode of proving such conviction. [See ante, pp. 360, 361; and Commissioner of Metropolitan Police v. Donovan [1903] 1 K. B. 895; 20 Cox, 435.]

Sect. 20—Interpretation.]—The expression "crime" means, in England and Ireland, any felony, or the offence of uttering false or counterfeit coin, or of possessing counterfeit gold or silver coin, or the offence of obtaining goods or money by false pretences, or the offence of conspiracy to defraud, or any misdemeanor under the fifty-eighth section of the Larceny Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, ante, p. 622); and in Scotland, any of the pleas of the crown, any theft which, in respect of any aggravation, or of the amount in value of the money, goods, or thing stolen, may be punished with penal servitude, any forgery, and any uttering of any forged writing, falsehood, fraud and wilful imposition, uttering base coin, or the possession of such coin with intent to utter the same.

The expression "offence" means any act or omission which is not a crime as defined by this Act, and is punishable on indictment or summary conviction.

Indictment for Felony after a Previous Conviction for Felony.

Surrey, to wit:—The jurors for our lord the King upon their oath present, that J. S., on the first day of June, in the year of our Lord ——, one horse of the goods and chattels of J. Punishment.]—Where the indictment is for a felony not punishable with death, and not being simple larceny, committed after a previous conviction for felony, the punishment is penal servitude for life or for not less than three years, or imprisonment for not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour for the whole or any part of the imprisonment. 7 & 8 G. 4, c. 28, s. 11 (ante, p. 1311); 20 & 21 Vict. c. 3 (ante, p. 235); 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235).

Where the indictment is for simple larceny committed after a previous conviction for felony, the punishment under 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 7, and 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235), is penal servitude for not exceeding ten years and not less than three years, or imprisonment for not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour; and, if a male under sixteen, with or without whipping, as limited by 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 119 (ante, p. 432); 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 7 (ante, p. 428); 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235).

Where the indictment is for simple larceny, or any offence by the Larceny Act, 1861, made punishable like simple larceny, committed after a previous conviction of any indictable misdemeanor punishable under the Larceny Act, the punishment is penal servitude for not exceeding seven years and not less than three years, or imprisonment for not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour, and, if a male under sixteen, with or without whipping (as limited by 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 119, ante, p. 432); 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 8 (ante, p. 428); 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235).

"Any offence made punishable like simple larceny" is intended to apply to the offences referred to in ss. 31, 32, 33, and 36 of the Larceny Act, 1861, and does not include the offence of obtaining goods, etc., by false pretences. R. v. Horn, 15 Cox, 205 (C. C. R.). The only effect, therefore, of charging a previous conviction for an indictable misdemeanor punishable under the Larceny Act, 1861, in an indictment for obtaining goods, etc., by false pretences is to enable the court to pass a sentence of police supervision, obtaining goods, etc., by false pretences being a "crime" within s. 20 of the Prevention of Crimes Act, 1871 (ante, p. 1317).

Where the indictment is for simple larceny, or any offence by the Larceny Act, 1861, made punishable like simple larceny (see ante, p. 428), committed after two summary convictions of any offence punishable upon summary conviction under 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, or 24 & 25 Vict. c. 97, the punishment is penal servitude for not exceeding seven years, and not less than three years, or imprisonment for not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour, and, if a male under sixteen, with or without whipping, as limited by 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 119 (ante, p. 432); 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 9 (ante, p. 429); 54 & 55 Vict. c. 69, s. 1 (ante, p. 235).

The Prevention of Crimes Act, 1871 (34 & 35 Vict. c. 112), s. 8 (ante, p. 1315), as explained by s. 20 (ante, p. 1317), prescribes as an addition to the sentence which may be passed in certain cases of subsequent conviction, the sentence of subjection to the supervision of the police. The circumstances under which that sentence may be passed, and its duration, are fully set out in the sections above referred to. As to the form of and the proceedings upon the indictment in such cases, see s. 9 (ante, p. 1316).

As to the form of indictment and the punishment in the case of subsequent coinage offences, see ante, p. 977, et seq.

Evidence.

The allegations in the order in which they occur in the indictment are—1. The subsequent felony, which is proved as in other cases. See the different titles. 2. The previous conviction, which is proved by a certificate or, in the case of a summary conviction, by a copy (7 & 8 G. 4, c. 28, s. 11 (ante, p. 1311); 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 116 (ante, p. 430); 24 & 25 Vict. c. 99, s. 37 (ante, p. 961); 34 & 35 Vict. c. 112, s. 18 (ante, p. 361), with evidence of the identity of the defendant. And in order to prove the identity, it is not essential to call a witness who was present at the trial to which the certificate refers; it is sufficient to prove that the defendant is the person who underwent the sentence mentioned in the certificate. R. v. Crofts, 9 C. & P. 219: R. v. Leng, 1 F. & F. 77: S. C., as R. v. Levy, 8 Cox, 73. In R. v. Ackroyd, 1 C. & K. 158: R. v. Stonnell, 1 Cox, 142, it was held that the certificate must state that judgment was given for the previous felony; and that it was insufficient to state a conviction. But these decisions if not overruled do not apply where a previous verdict or plea of guilty has been entered under the Criminal Law Consolidation Acts of 1861, even if not followed by a judgment. R. v. Blaby [1894] 2 Q. B. 170; 63 *L. Offences by Habitual Drunkards.

Statutes.

42 & 43 Vict. c. 19 (Inebriates Act, 1879), s. 3—Definition of habitual drunkard.]— . . . "Habitual drunkard" means a person who not being amenable to any jurisdiction in lunacy is, notwithstanding, by reason of habitual intemperate drinking of intoxicating liquor, at times dangerous to himself or herself or to others, or incapable of managing himself or herself and his or her affairs. [As to who are amenable to jurisdiction in lunacy, see 53 & 54 Vict. c. 5, s. 116; Wood-Renton on Lunacy, 392, 954.]

4 Edw. 7, c. 15 (Prevention of Cruelty to Children Act, 1904), s. 11.—Detention of habitual drunkards convicted of offences as to children.]—Where it appears to the court by or before which any person is convicted of the offence of cruelty within the meaning of this Act (s. 1, ante, p. 877), or of any of the offences mentioned in the first schedule to this Act (ante, p. 887), that that person is a parent of the child in respect of whom the

(a) Considerable difficulty for some time existed as to the course to be pursued under s. 11 of the Criminal Law Act, 1828 (7 & 8 G. 4, c. 28, ante, p. 1311). In strictness it was necessary to arraign the prisoner on the whole indictment, which had the effect of prejudicing the jurors by informing them of the previous convictions charged therein, though in the cases of R. v. M'Evin, Bell, 20: R. v. Hilton, 28 L. J. (M. C.) 28, it seems to have been considered that on the request of the prisoner's counsel the prisoner might be first arraigned and tried for the subsequent felony, and afterwards be arraigned and tried on the charge of previous conviction. Under 6 & 7 W. 4, c. 111 (ante, p. 1312), the jury must have been charged, and the evidence must have proceeded as if the indictment did not contain the averment of a previous conviction; and this allegation must not have been opened to the jury, or their verdict taken upon it, until after they had found the prisoner guilty of the subsequent felony, and then the prosecutor must have proved the previous conviction and identity of the defendant, and upon this likewise the jury must have delivered their verdict. R. v. Key, 2 Den. 347; 21 L. J. (M. C.) 35: R. v. Shuttleworth, 2 Den. 351; 21 L. J. (M. C.) 36. If, however, the defendant called witnesses to character (or if, by the cross-examination of the witnesses for the prosecution evidence to character was elicited, R. v. Gadbury, 8 C. & P. 676: R. v. Shrimpton, 2 Den. 319; 21 L. J. (M. C.) 37), the previous conviction might be proved in reply, and the compound question would, in that case, be left to the jury in the first instance.

6 & 7 W. 4, c. 111, did not effectually secure the object for which it was passed; since the jurors, if they were present at the arraignment of the prisoner, probably would obtain a knowledge of his previous conviction, of which it would be difficult for them to divest their minds, when they had to decide on his guilt or innocence as to the subsequent offence charged against him by the indictment. Sect. 116 (ante, p. 430) of the Larceny Act, 1861, was passed in order to remedy this defect in the law (see Greaves, Crim. Law Cons. Acts (2nd ed.), 199), and to regulate the form of indictment and the course of proceedings, "in any indictment for any offence punishable under that Act, and committed after a previous conviction or convictions for any felony, misdemeanor, or offence or offences, punishable upon summary conviction;" and by s. 37 (ante, p. 961) of the Coinage Offences Act, 1861, similar provision was made with respect to offences against the coin. In cases falling within these sections, the indictment must first charge the subsequent offence and offence was committed, or is living with the parent of the child, and is a habitual drunkard within the meaning of the Inebriates Acts, 1879 (42 & 43 Vict. c. 19), and 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 19), the court, in lieu of sentencing such person to imprisonment, may, if it thinks fit, make an order for his detention for any period named in the order, not exceeding twelve months, in a retreat under the said Acts, the licensee of which is willing to receive him, and the said order shall have the like effect, and copies thereof shall be sent to the local authority and secretary of state in like manner, as if it were an application duly made by such person and duly attested by two justices under the said Acts; and the court may order an officer of the court or constable to remove such person to the retreat, and on his reception the said Acts shall have effect as if he had been admitted in pursuance of an application so made and attested as aforesaid: Provided that—

(a) an order for the detention of a person in a retreat shall not be made under this section unless that person, having had such notice as the court deems sufficient of the intention to allege habitual drunkenness, consents to the order being made; and

(b) if the wife or husband of such person, being present at the hearing of the charge, objects to the order being made, the court shall, before making the order, take into consideration any representation made to it by the wife or husband; and

(c) before making the order the court shall, to such extent as it may deem reasonably sufficient, be satisfied that provision will be made for defraying the expenses of such person during detention in a retreat.

afterwards the previous conviction, and the prisoner (instead of being arraigned at once on the whole indictment, as was the practice in cases falling under 7 & 8 G. 4, c. 28, s. 11, and 6 & 7 W. 4, c. 111) is, in the first instance, arraigned upon so much only of the indictment as charges the subsequent offence, and it is not until he has been convicted of the subsequent offence, either by his plea of guilty or by verdict, that the fact of the indictment containing a charge of a previous conviction is divulged, unless, indeed, during the trial for the subsequent offence, the prisoner should give evidence of his good character (or should elicit such evidence by cross-examination of the witnesses for the prosecution, R. v. Gadbury, R. v. Shrimpton, supra), in which case the previous conviction may be proved in reply, and the compound question will, in that case, be left to the jury in the first instance. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 116; c. 99, s. 37. Two learned writers upon criminal law, Mr. Welsby (see the 15th ed. of this work, pp. 831, 832), and Mr. Davis (see Greaves, Crim. Law Cons. Acts (2nd ed.), p. 203), were of opinion that 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 116, as to proceedings upon an indictment, applied to the proceedings on the trial of all indictments containing a charge of a previous conviction, on the ground that the words used in that section are "the proceedings upon any indictment for committing any offence after a previous conviction or convictions shall be as follows," etc. Mr. Greaves, however, was of a contrary opinion, and maintained that 7 & 8 G. 4, c. 28, s. 11, and 6 & 7 W. 4, c. 111, continued to govern the proceedings in all cases of felony, committed after a previous conviction for felony, except larceny and coinage offences. See 2 Russ. Cr. by Greaves, 849 (4th ed.).

The controversy was settled by 34 & 35 Vict. c. 112, s. 9 (ante, p. 1316), which applies the rules contained in 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 116, in relation to the form of and the proceedings upon an indictment for any offence punishable under that Act committed after previous conviction, with the necessary variations, to any indictment for committing a "crime" (as defined by s. 20, viz., any felony, or the offence of uttering false or counterfeit coin, or of possessing counterfeit gold or silver coin, or the offence of obtaining goods or money by false pretences, or the offence of conspiracy to defraud, or any misdemeanor under 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 58), after previous conviction for a "crime," whether the "crime" charged in such indictment or the "crime" to which such previous conviction relates be or be not punishable under the Larceny Act, 1861. See Faulkner v. R., ante, pp. 1315, 1316.

61 & 62 Vict. c. 60 (Inebriates Act, 1898), s. 1—(1) Power where a habitual drunkard is convicted on indictment for an offence to which drunkenness is a contributory cause, to order detention in an inebriate reformatory.]—Where a person is convicted on indictment of an offence punishable with imprisonment or penal servitude, if the court is satisfied from the evidence that the offence was committed under the influence of drink, or that drunkenness was a contributing cause of the offence, and the offender admits that he is, or is found by the jury to be, a habitual drunkard [ante, p. 1320], the court may, in addition to or in substitution for any other sentence, order that he be detained for a term not exceeding three years in any state inebriate reformatory, or in any certified inebriate reformatory the managers of which are willing to receive him.

(2) In any indictment under this section it shall be sufficient, after charging the offence, to state that the offender is a habitual drunkard. In the proceedings on the indictment the offender shall, in the first instance, be arraigned on so much only of the indictment as charges the said offence, and if on arraignment he pleads guilty or is found guilty by the jury, the jury shall, unless the offender admits that he is a habitual drunkard, be charged to inquire whether he is a habitual drunkard, and in that case it shall not be necessary to swear the jury again. Provided that, unless evidence that the offender is a habitual drunkard has been given before he is committed for trial, not less than seven days' notice shall be given to the proper officer of the court by which the offender is to be tried, and to the offender, that it is intended to charge habitual drunkenness in the indictment. [The use of the word "given" seems to mean that the notice need not be in writing. See R. v. Shurmer, 17 Q. B. D. 323; 55 L. J. (M. C.) 153 (ante, p. 374), where a distinction was drawn between the words "served upon" and "given to."]

Sect. 2—Power to detain in an inebriate reformatory a habitual drunkard four times convicted of drunkenness, etc.]—(1) Any person who commits any of the offences mentioned in the first schedule to this Act, and who within the twelve months preceding the date of the commission of the offence has been convicted summarily at least three times of any offences so mentioned, and who is a habitual drunkard, shall be liable on conviction on indictment, or if he consents to be dealt with summarily [see 42 & 43 Vict. c. 49, s. 12], on summary conviction, to be detained for a term not exceeding three years in any certified reformatory the managers of which are willing to receive him. [The consent of the defendant to be tried summarily under this section is necessary before a magistrate can make an order under s. 6, sub-s. 1, of the Licensing Act, 1902. Commissioner of Metropolitan Police v. Donovan [1903] 1 K. B. 895; 20 Cox, 435.]

(2) The Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879 (42 & 43 Vict. c. 49), shall apply to proceedings under this section as if the offence charged were specified in the second column of the first schedule to the Act [which relates to indictable offences by adults who consent to be summarily tried. Under this clause the offender must be informed of his right to be tried on indictment: see 42 & 43 Vict. c. 49, s. 17, and R. v. Cockshott [1898] 1 Q. B. 582; 67 L. J. (Q. B.) 467.]

Indictment under 61 & 62 Vict. c. 60, s. 1 (ante, p. 1322).

After the charging of an offence by A. B., punishable with penal servitude or imprisonment in accordance with previous precedents, continue:]—And the jurors aforesaid, on their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said A. B. is a habitual drunkard within the meaning of the first section of the Inebriates Act, 1898.

Evidence.

As to proof of the offence charged, see ante, passim. Prove also that the offence was committed under the influence of drink, or that drunkenness was a contributing cause of the offence (see ante, p. 29). To prove that the offender is a habitual drunkard, call evidence to show that he is addicted to the intemperate use of intoxicants (see ante, p. 30), and that he has consequently on specified occasions been dangerous to himself or others, or incapable of managing his affairs, and that he has not been certified as insane, nor otherwise rendered amenable to jurisdiction in lunacy. Previous convictions of offences within the first schedule seem to be admissible. Seven days' notice prior to the trial (see ante, p. 1322) of the intention to charge habitual drunkenness must be given to the accused person and to the proper officer of the court of trial, unless evidence of habitual drunkenness has been given before the magistrates.

Indictment under 61 & 62 Vict. c. 60, s. 2 (ante, p. 1322).

Commencement as ante, p. 434]—that A. B. on the —— day of —— was found drunk on certain premises licensed for the sale of intoxicating liquors, to wit, at the ——; against the form of the statutes in such case made and provided. And the jurors aforesaid, on their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said A. B. within the twelve months next preceding the commission of the offence hereinbefore charged and stated was summarily convicted three ("three or more") times of certain offences mentioned in the first schedule of the Inebriates Act, 1898, to wit, on the —— day of —— before a court of summary jurisdiction sitting at —— for —— of (specify an offence within the schedule) and (——, state the other previous convictions in similar manner to the first). And the jurors aforesaid, on their oath aforesaid, do further present, that the said A. B. is a habitual drunkard within the meaning of the second section of the Inebriates Act, 1898. (Cf. the precedents, ante, pp. 977, 1246.)

Evidence.

Prove the commission of the subsequent offence. See Stone, Justices' Manual (37th ed.). Prove the previous convictions by producing a record or abstract, with evidence to identify the defendant with the person convicted. See 34 & 35 Vict. c. 112, s. 18 (ante, p. 361). Convictions in Scotland or Ireland appear to be admissible. The register of the court of summary jurisdiction is not sufficient proof on a trial on indictment. See 42 & 43 Vict. c. 49, s. 29 (2): Commissioner of Metropolitan Police v. Donovan [1903] 1 K. B. 895; 20 Cox, 435. Prove that the accused is a habitual drunkard as directed under the last precedent.

APPENDIX.

CLASSIFICATION OF PRISONERS.

NOTE.—The rules printed below (which are extracts from the prison rules now in force) are included in this work for the information of courts whose duty it is to sentence prisoners; but the classification provided by the rules is a matter for the prison authorities and not for the court.

I.—CONVICT PRISONS.

RULES, DATED JANUARY 21, 1905, AS TO DIVISION AND CLASSIFICATION, MADE BY THE SECRETARY OF STATE UNDER THE PRISON ACT, 1898. [STAT. RULES AND ORDERS, 1905, No. 75].

1. There shall be two divisions of penal servitude, viz.:—
"A."—The Ordinary Division.
"B."—The Long-Sentence Division, for selected convicts who are sentenced to terms of more than ten years, and who have served more than seven and a half years.

2. The case of every convict in the Ordinary Division whose sentence is in excess of ten years shall be submitted by the Directors to the Secretary of State, as soon as he has earned the marks representing that period, for the purpose of decision whether he shall be placed in the Long-Sentence Division. In deciding whether a convict shall be placed in this division, regard will be had to his offence, his general character and antecedents, and his conduct and industry in prison.

"A."—Ordinary Division.

3. All convicts in the Ordinary Division shall be classified by the Directors immediately after conviction as follows, viz.:—(a) The Star Class; (b) the Intermediate Class; and (c) the Recidivist Class. Convicts of each class shall, as far as practicable, be kept apart by themselves, and not be allowed to associate with convicts of the other classes.

4. The Star Class.—Any convict shall be eligible for this class who has never been previously convicted, or who is not habitually criminal or of corrupt habits. Convicts in this class shall be liable to be removed to the Intermediate Class if found to exercise a bad influence over other convicts.

5. The Intermediate Class.—Any convict may be placed in this class—
(a) who has not been previously convicted, but who, owing to his general character and antecedents, is not considered by the Directors to be suitable for the Star Class; or (b) whose record shows that he has been previously convicted, but not of such grave or persistent crime as would bring him within the Recidivist Class.

6. The Recidivist Class.—Any convict may be placed in this class—
(a) who has been previously sentenced to penal servitude or whose record shows that he has been guilty of grave or persistent crime; or
(b) whose licence, under a sentence of penal servitude, has been revoked or forfeited.

7. Convicts in the Intermediate Class may be promoted to the Star Class on their showing proofs of a reformed character, or they may be reduced to the Recidivist Class if they are known to be exercising a bad influence over their fellow-convicts.

8. (a) Every male convict shall pass the first part of his sentence in separate confinement for the following periods, according to the class in which he is placed, viz.—Those in the Star Class for not more than the first three months of their sentence; those in the Intermediate Class for not more than the first six months; and those in the Recidivist Class for not more than the first nine months; unless, in any case, the convict's mental or physical condition is, in the opinion of the medical officer, such as to render a reduction of the prescribed term of separate confinement advisable.

(b) Subject to the last-mentioned condition, every female convict shall pass the first three months of her sentence in separate confinement.

"B."—Long-Sentence Division.

9. Convicts in the Long-Sentence Division shall, when practicable, be kept in a prison or part of a prison set apart for them.

10. They shall wear a special dress different from that worn by convicts of the Ordinary Division.

11. They shall be allowed to earn, by special industry with good conduct, gratuity continuously throughout their sentence, according to a prescribed scale, and a portion of such gratuity may be used for the purchase of certain articles of comfort or relaxation, prescribed by the Directors from time to time, which articles will be supplied from a prison store. The remainder of each convict's gratuity will be applied for his benefit in such manner as may be prescribed by the Directors, after careful inquiry into each case.

12. They may be allowed to have their meals in association.

13. They may be allowed to converse with each other at exercise and at meals, but not during hours of labour.

14. A convict who abuses any of the privileges conferred by these Special Rules will be liable to be deprived of them, in addition to being punished under the ordinary prison rules.

15. Any convict in the Long-Sentence Division who behaves badly shall be liable to be degraded to the Ordinary Division.

16. Convicts of the Long-Sentence Division shall be subject to the General Rules for the Government of Convict Prisons, except so far as they are inconsistent with these Special Rules.

17. The rules numbered 29, 30, and 31 (1) and (3), made by the Secretary of State on April 21, 1899, are hereby revoked.

18. The above rules shall come into force on April 1, 1905.

RULES, DATED JANUARY 21, 1905, AS TO JUVENILE-ADULT CONVICTS, MADE BY THE SECRETARY OF STATE UNDER THE PRISON ACT, 1898. [STAT. RULES AND ORDERS, 1905, NO. 74.]

1. There shall be a separate classification of selected convicts sentenced to penal servitude, who, on conviction, are under the age of twenty-one years.

2. The classification shall be made by the Directors as soon as possible after conviction, and after full inquiry into the general character and antecedents of the convicts.

3. The classification shall be as follows:—

(a) Selected convicts under the age of eighteen who may be sent by order of the Secretary of State to a specially selected prison for treatment under the Rules for Juvenile-Adult Prisoners, as approved for Local Prisons.

(b) Convicts who have never been previously convicted, or who are not habitually criminal or of corrupt habits, and who are considered to be eligible for the Star Class.

(c) Ordinary convicts not so eligible.

4. Provision will be made, as far as practicable, for keeping each class apart from the others and from the older convicts; and it will be the duty of the governor and chaplain to devote special attention to these cases with a view to acquiring a personal influence over them.

5. Special attention shall be given to their education by instruction in the ordinary subjects of the Elementary Education Code, by lectures and addresses, and by their being provided with library books and useful literature, which they shall be encouraged to read.

6. They shall be employed in association in workshops or in outdoor work, such as farming, etc., and they shall be specially instructed in useful trades and industries, which may fit them to earn their livelihood on release.

7. Should it appear to the governor or chaplain that the habit and character of any convict of this class are not suitable for this special treatment, the fact will be reported to the Directors, who may remove him from the class.

8. Special arrangements shall be made with Discharged Prisoners' Aid Societies, or other philanthropic societies, for the supervision of these cases on discharge, and with a view to provision being made for the convict's future welfare.

9. Juvenile-adult convicts will be subject to the General Rules for the Government of Convict Prisons, except so far as they are inconsistent with these Special Rules.

10. The above rules shall come into force on April 1, 1905.

PRISON RULES, DATED APRIL 21, 1899, MADE BY THE SECRETARY OF STATE UNDER THE PRISON ACT, 1898. [STAT. RULES AND ORDERS, 1899, No. 821].

Classification and Remission.

Rules 29, 30, 31 (1), (3), as to classification, are revoked and superseded by the rules printed ante, p. 1328.

31. (2) He (every male prisoner) shall also, if eligible, receive school instruction daily, and shall be frequently visited by the governor, chaplain, and medical officer.

32. Progressive stages.]—(1) A system of progressive stages shall be established with specific privileges attached to each stage, and every prisoner shall have the opportunity of profiting by this system.

(2) A prisoner while in any stage shall be entitled to every privilege attached to that stage, unless he forfeits any privilege as provided by this rule.

(3) The promotion of a prisoner from one stage to another shall be gained by industry, but it may be postponed for idleness or misconduct, or he may be removed to a lower stage, or he may forfeit any of the privileges of his stage.

33. Remission.]—By hard labour and industry with good conduct a male prisoner may render himself eligible for a licence when one-fourth of his sentence has yet to run. In like manner a female prisoner may render herself eligible for a licence when one-third of her sentence has yet to run. The case of a prisoner under sentence of penal servitude for life will be specially considered at the end of twenty years.

34. Refuge.]—A female prisoner may be allowed, on such conditions as may be laid down, to pass the last nine months of her imprisonment in an improved refuge.

35. Record of industry.]—(1) A daily record of the industry of every prisoner shall be kept in marks, the award of which shall be carefully supervised by the governor and deputy governor, and every prisoner shall be required to earn, as a condition of becoming eligible for a licence as above mentioned, the number of marks assigned to his sentence, and, in addition, any marks he may have forfeited for misconduct.

(2) Every prisoner shall also be required to earn, as a condition of obtaining promotion to a higher stage, the number of marks assigned to his existing stage, and, in addition, any marks forfeited for misconduct.

(3) Marks for remission of sentence, not earned by industry, in consequence of physical or mental weakness, or illness, shall be granted in every case where it is certified by the medical officer that the illness was actual, and not feigned, or was not the result of misconduct.

Employment.

86. Restrictions on employment of prisoners.]—A prisoner may be employed in the service of the prison, but shall not be employed in the discipline thereof, or in the service of any officer or servant thereof, or in the service or education of any other prisoner.

87. Hours of work.]—Every prisoner, whether in separate confinement or on public works, shall, unless prevented by sickness, be employed every day in such work as the governor may appoint. The hours of work in each day shall not exceed ten, exclusive of the time allowed for meals.

88. Certificate as to fitness for labour.]—(1) No prisoner shall be required to perform any labour of any description unless certified by the medical officer to be fit for such labour.

(2) Employment of aged and weak prisoners.]—An aged prisoner in weak health, or any prisoner suffering from physical or mental infirmity shall be employed on such work only and in such way as the medical officer may direct.

89. Employment on Sunday, etc.]—(1) On Sunday, Christmas Day, Good Friday, and General Fast or Thanksgiving Days, the employment of a prisoner shall be confined to what is strictly necessary for the service of the prison.

(2) A prisoner who is a Jew shall not be compelled to labour on his Sabbath or on such days of Festival as may be prescribed.

II.—LOCAL PRISONS.

* * * * * * *

Classification and Remission.

34. Classification of prisoners.]—All convicted prisoners, except offenders of the first and second divisons, shall be classified as follows:—

(a) Star Class, to consist of prisoners who have not been previously convicted of serious crime, or who are not habitually criminal or of corrupt habits.

(b) Ordinary Class, to consist of prisoners who have been previously convicted of serious crime, or who are habitual criminals or of corrupt habits.

(c) Juvenile offenders. . . . (a)

35. Progressive stages.]—(1) A system of progressive stages shall be established with specific privileges attached to each stage, and every prisoner shall have the opportunity of profiting by this system.

(2) A prisoner while in any stage shall be entitled to every privilege attached to that stage, unless he forfeits any privilege as provided by this rule.

(3) The promotion of a prisoner from one stage to another shall be gained by industry, but it may be postponed for idleness or misconduct, or he may be removed to a lower stage, or he may forfeit any of the privileges of his stage.

36. Record of industry.]—(1) A daily record of the industry of every prisoner shall be kept in marks, the award of which shall be carefully supervised by the governor and deputy governor, and every prisoner shall, as a condition of becoming eligible for remission, earn the required number of marks, and, in addition, any marks he may have forfeited for misconduct.

(2) Every prisoner shall also be required to earn, as a condition of obtaining promotion to a higher stage, the number of marks assigned to his existing stage, and, in addition, any marks forfeited for stage.

(3) Marks for remission of sentence, not earned by industry, in consequence of physical or mental weakness, or illness, shall be granted in every case where it is certified by the medical officer that the illness was actual and not feigned, or was not the result of misconduct.

37. Remission of sentence.]—A convicted prisoner sentenced to imprisonment, whether by one sentence or cumulative sentences, for a period exceeding six calendar months, shall be eligible, by special industry and good conduct, to earn a remission of a portion of his imprisonment not exceeding one-fourth of the period remaining after he has served six calendar months, and on his discharge he shall be furnished with a certificate by the governor that he has been released under s. 8 of the Prison Act, 1898.

Employment.

38. Restrictions on employment of prisoners.]—A prisoner may be employed in the service of the prison, but shall not be employed in the discipline thereof, or in the service of any officer or servant thereof, or in the service or education of any other prisoner.

39. Hard labour.]—(1) Every male prisoner, not being a juvenile offender, if sentenced to hard labour, shall, for 28 days, or for the whole of his sentence, if it is less than 28 days, be employed in strict separation on hard bodily or hard manual labour, provided that no prisoner shall be so employed for more than ten or less than six hours per diem, exclusive of meals. If his sentence is more than 28 days, he shall, after that period, provided his conduct and industry are good, be employed on labour of a less hard description in association if practicable, and shall be eligible for all the privileges of the Progressive Stage System. Provided that no prisoner shall be required to perform any labour of any description unless certified by the medical officer to be fit for such labour.

(2) An aged prisoner in weak health, or any prisoner suffering from physical or mental infirmity, likely to be aggravated by cellular isolation shall be employed on such work and in such way as the medical officer may direct.

40. Imprisonment without hard labour.]—A prisoner sentenced to imprisonment without hard labour shall be required to work, during such number of hours, not more than ten or less than six (exclusive of meals) in each day, as may be prescribed, unless the medical officer certifies that he is unfit for such labour; and shall be liable to punishment for neglect of work. He shall from the beginning of his sentence be employed on some useful industry for the purpose of which he may, if necessary, be associated, and he shall be entitled to such privileges as can be gained by industry with good conduct under the Progressive Stage System.

41. All labour, if possible, to be productive.]—The labour of all prisoners shall, if possible, be productive, and the trades and industries taught and carried on shall, if practicable, be such as may fit the prisoner to earn his livelihood on release.

42. Labour for females.]—Every female prisoner sentenced to hard labour shall be kept at labour during such number of hours, not more than ten or less than six (exclusive of meals) in each day, as may be prescribed, unless the medical officer certifies that she is unfit for such labour, regard being had to any advice or suggestions that members of the visiting committee or Discharged Prisoners' Aid Society are able to offer on the subject.

43. Employment on Sundays, etc.]—(1) On Sunday, Christmas Day, Good Friday, and General Fast or Thanksgiving Days, the employment of a prisoner shall be confined to what is strictly necessary for the service of the prison.

(2) A prisoner who is a Jew shall not be compelled to labour on his Sabbath or on such days of Festival as may be prescribed.

44. Medical examination of hard labour prisoners.]—The medical officer shall from time to time examine the prisoners sentenced to hard labour during the time of their being so employed, and shall enter in his journal the name of any prisoner whose health he thinks to be endangered by a continuance at labour, and thereupon that prisoner shall not again be employed at such labour until the medical officer certifies that he is fit for such employment.

Part II.

Prisoners awaiting Trial.

Admission, Discharge, and Removal.

185. Application of rules.]—The following rules shall apply to any person committed to prison for safe custody in any of the following circumstances:—

(a) On his commitment for trial for any indictable offence.

(b) Pending the preliminary hearing before justices of a charge against him of an indictable offence, or pending the hearing of an information or complaint against him.

(c) Awaiting sentence.

186. Bath.]—A prisoner awaiting trial shall not be required to take a bath on reception, if, on the application of the prisoner, the governor decides that it is unnecessary, or the medical officer states that it is for medical reasons unadvisable.

187. Separation from each other.]—In order to prevent prisoners awaiting trial from being contaminated by each other, or endeavouring to defeat the ends of justice, they shall be kept separate, and shall not be permitted to communicate together.

188. Separation from convicted prisoners.]—Prisoners awaiting trial shall be kept apart from convicted prisoners and, while attending chapel and at other times shall, if possible, be placed so that they may not be in view of the convicted prisoners.

189. Privileges which may be allowed by visiting committee.]—The visiting committee shall, on the application of any prisoner awaiting trial, if, having regard to his ordinary habits and condition of life, they think such special provision should be made in his case, permit him—

(1) To occupy, on payment of a small sum fixed by the Commissioners, a suitable room or cell specially fitted for such prisoners, and furnished with suitable bedding and other articles in addition to or different from those furnished for ordinary cells;

(2) To take exercise separately or with selected untried prisoners, if the arrangements and construction of the prison permit it;

(3) To have at his own cost the use of private furniture and utensils suitable to his ordinary habits, to be approved by the governor;

(4) To have, on payment of a small sum fixed by the Commissioners, the assistance of some person to be appointed by the governor, relieving him from the performance of any unaccustomed tasks or offices.

190. Power to modify routine.]—The visiting committee may also permit the governor to modify the routine of the prison in regard to any prisoner awaiting trial so far as to dispense with any practice which, in the opinion of the governor, is clearly unnecessary in the case of that particular prisoner.

191. Application of prisoner's money.]—Any money in the hands of the governor belonging to any prisoner awaiting trial may be applied to the purpose of making special provision for him in cases where the prisoner is, by these rules, required to make any payment in respect of such special provision.

192. Use of books or papers.]—The governor shall, on the application of any prisoner awaiting trial, permit him to have any books, papers, documents, or other articles, in his possession at the time of his arrest which may not be required for evidence against him, and are not reasonably suspected of forming part of property improperly acquired by him, or are not for some special reason required to be taken from him for the purposes of justice or of prison discipline.

Food, Clothing, and Bedding.

193. Power to procure food, clothing, or bedding.]—A prisoner awaiting trial may procure for himself, or receive at proper hours, food and malt liquor, clothing, bedding, or other necessaries, subject to examination and to such rules as may be approved by the Commissioners; and any articles so procured may be paid for out of the money belonging to the prisoner in the hands of the governor. If a prisoner awaiting trial does not provide himself with food, he shall receive the allowance of food allotted to prisoners awaiting trial by the rules of the prison.

194. Prison dress.]—A prisoner awaiting trial may, if he desires it, wear the prison dress, and he shall be required to do so if his own clothes are insufficient or unfit for use, or necessary to be preserved for the purposes of justice. The prison dress for a prisoner awaiting trial shall be of a different colour from that of convicted prisoners.

195. Disinfection.]—When a prisoner awaiting trial is allowed by the rules to wear his own clothing in prison, the medical officer may, for the purpose of preventing the introduction or spread of infectious disease, order that the clothing be disinfected; and thereupon the clothing shall be disinfected as speedily as possible, and during the process of disinfection the prisoner may be required to wear the prison clothing prescribed for the class of prisoners to which he belongs.

196. Notice as to provision of food.]—If a prisoner awaiting trial prefers to provide his own food for any meal he shall give notice thereof beforehand at the time required; but the governor shall not permit any such prisoner to receive any prison allowance of food for the meal for which he procures or receives food at his own expense.

197. Restrictions on provision of food.]—Articles of food shall be received by a prisoner awaiting trial only at such hours as may be laid down from time to time. They shall be inspected by the officers of the prison, and shall be subject to such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent luxury or waste.

198. Restrictions as to articles of drink.]—A prisoner awaiting trial shall not during any period of twenty-four hours receive or purchase more than one pint of malt liquor, fermented liquor, or cider, or, if an adult, half a pint (8 ozs.) of wine.

199. Prohibition of sale.]—No prisoner awaiting trial shall sell or transfer any article whatsoever allowed to be introduced for his use to any other person; and any prisoner transgressing this rule shall be prohibited from procuring any such article for such period as the Commissioners deem proper.

Cleanliness.

200. Hair-cutting.]—A prisoner awaiting trial shall not be compelled either to have his hair cut or (if he usually wears his beard, etc.) to shave, except on account of vermin or dirt, or when the medical officer deems it necessary on the ground of health and cleanliness, and the hair of the prisoner shall not be cut closer than may be necessary for the purpose of health and cleanliness.

201. Cleaning of rooms.]—The beds of prisoners awaiting trial shall be made, and the rooms and yards in their occupation shall be swept and cleaned every morning. The furniture and utensils appropriated to their use shall be kept clean and neatly arranged. Should any such prisoner object to perform any of these duties, they may be performed for him by an assistant provided under these rules.

Health.

202. Medical attendance.]—If any prisoner awaiting trial who is out of health desires the attendance of his usual medical attendant, the visiting committee shall, if they are satisfied that the application is bonâ fide, permit him to be visited by that medical attendant at his own expense, and to be supplied with medicine by him, proper precautions being in all cases observed to prevent abuse of these privileges.

Books, etc.

203. Books, newspapers, etc.]—A prisoner awaiting trial shall be permitted to have supplied to him, at his own expense, such books, newspapers, or other means of occupation, other than those furnished by the prison, as are not, in the opinion of the visiting committee, or in their absence, and pending their approval, in the opinion of the governor, of an objectionable kind.

prisoner shall not again be employed at such labour until the medical officer certifies that he is fit for such employment.

Part II.

Prisoners awaiting Trial.

Admission, Discharge, and Removal.

185. Application of rules.]—The following rules shall apply to any person committed to prison for safe custody in any of the following circumstances:—

(a) On his commitment for trial for any indictable offence.

(b) Pending the preliminary hearing before justices of a charge against him of an indictable offence, or pending the hearing of an information or complaint against him.

(c) Awaiting sentence.

186. Bath.]—A prisoner awaiting trial shall not be required to take a bath on reception, if, on the application of the prisoner, the governor decides that it is unnecessary, or the medical officer states that it is for medical reasons unadvisable.

187. Separation from each other.]—In order to prevent prisoners awaiting trial from being contaminated by each other, or endeavouring to defeat the ends of justice, they shall be kept separate, and shall not be permitted to communicate together.

188. Separation from convicted prisoners.]—Prisoners awaiting trial shall be kept apart from convicted prisoners and, while attending chapel and at other times shall, if possible, be placed so that they may not be in view of the convicted prisoners.

189. Privileges which may be allowed by visiting committee.]—The visiting committee shall, on the application of any prisoner awaiting trial, if, having regard to his ordinary habits and condition of life, they think such special provision should be made in his case, permit him—

(1) To occupy, on payment of a small sum fixed by the Commissioners, a suitable room or cell specially fitted for such prisoners, and furnished with suitable bedding and other articles in addition to or different from those furnished for ordinary cells;

(2) To take exercise separately or with selected untried prisoners, if the arrangements and construction of the prison permit it;

(3) To have at his own cost the use of private furniture and utensils suitable to his ordinary habits, to be approved by the governor;

(4) To have, on payment of a small sum fixed by the Commissioners, the assistance of some person to be appointed by the governor, relieving him from the performance of any unaccustomed tasks or offices.

190. Power to modify routine.]—The visiting committee may also permit the governor to modify the routine of the prison in regard to any prisoner awaiting trial so far as to dispense with any practice which, in the opinion of the governor, is clearly unnecessary in the case of that particular prisoner.

191. Application of prisoner's money.]—Any money in the hands of the governor belonging to any prisoner awaiting trial may be applied to the purpose of making special provision for him in cases where the prisoner is, by these rules, required to make any payment in respect of such special provision.

192. Use of books or papers.]—The governor shall, on the application of any prisoner awaiting trial, permit him to have any books, papers, documents, or other articles, in his possession at the time of his arrest which may not be required for evidence against him, and are not reasonably suspected of forming part of property improperly acquired by him, or are not for some special reason required to be taken from him for the purposes of justice or of prison discipline.

Food, Clothing, and Bedding.

193. Power to procure food, clothing, or bedding.]—A prisoner awaiting trial may procure for himself, or receive at proper hours, food and malt liquor, clothing, bedding, or other necessaries, subject to examination and to such rules as may be approved by the Commissioners; and any articles so procured may be paid for out of the money belonging to the prisoner in the hands of the governor. If a prisoner awaiting trial does not provide himself with food, he shall receive the allowance of food allotted to prisoners awaiting trial by the rules of the prison.

194. Prison dress.]—A prisoner awaiting trial may, if he desires it, wear the prison dress, and he shall be required to do so if his own clothes are insufficient or unfit for use, or necessary to be preserved for the purposes of justice. The prison dress for a prisoner awaiting trial shall be of a different colour from that of convicted prisoners.

195. Disinfection.]—When a prisoner awaiting trial is allowed by the rules to wear his own clothing in prison, the medical officer may, for the purpose of preventing the introduction or spread of infectious disease, order that the clothing be disinfected; and thereupon the clothing shall be disinfected as speedily as possible, and during the process of disinfection the prisoner may be required to wear the prison clothing prescribed for the class of prisoners to which he belongs.

196. Notice as to provision of food.]—If a prisoner awaiting trial prefers to provide his own food for any meal he shall give notice thereof beforehand at the time required; but the governor shall not permit any such prisoner to receive any prison allowance of food for the meal for which he procures or receives food at his own expense.

197. Restrictions on provision of food.]—Articles of food shall be received by a prisoner awaiting trial only at such hours as may be laid down from time to time. They shall be inspected by the officers of the prison, and shall be subject to such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent luxury or waste.

198. Restrictions as to articles of drink.]—A prisoner awaiting trial shall not during any period of twenty-four hours receive or purchase more than one pint of malt liquor, fermented liquor, or cider, or, if an adult, half a pint (8 ozs.) of wine.

199. Prohibition of sale.]—No prisoner awaiting trial shall sell or transfer any article whatsoever allowed to be introduced for his use to any other person; and any prisoner transgressing this rule shall be prohibited from procuring any such article for such period as the Commissioners deem proper.

Cleanliness.

200. Hair-cutting.]—A prisoner awaiting trial shall not be compelled either to have his hair cut or (if he usually wears his beard, etc.) to shave, except on account of vermin or dirt, or when the medical officer deems it necessary on the ground of health and cleanliness, and the hair of the prisoner shall not be cut closer than may be necessary for the purpose of health and cleanliness.

201. Cleaning of rooms.]—The beds of prisoners awaiting trial shall be made, and the rooms and yards in their occupation shall be swept and cleaned every morning. The furniture and utensils appropriated to their use shall be kept clean and neatly arranged. Should any such prisoner object to perform any of these duties, they may be performed for him by an assistant provided under these rules.

Health.

202. Medical attendance.]—If any prisoner awaiting trial who is out of health desires the attendance of his usual medical attendant, the visiting committee shall, if they are satisfied that the application is bonâ fide, permit him to be visited by that medical attendant at his own expense, and to be supplied with medicine by him, proper precautions being in all cases observed to prevent abuse of these privileges.

Books, etc.

203. Books, newspapers, etc.]—A prisoner awaiting trial shall be permitted to have supplied to him, at his own expense, such books, newspapers, or other means of occupation, other than those furnished by the prison, as are not, in the opinion of the visiting committee, or in their absence, and pending their approval, in the opinion of the governor, of an objectionable kind.

Employment.

204. Employment.]—A prisoner awaiting trial shall have the option of employment, but shall not be compelled to perform any labour.

205. Allowance for earnings.]—If any such prisoner is acquitted, or no bill of indictment is found against him, such an allowance on account of his earnings, if any, shall be paid to the prisoner on his discharge as the Commissioners think reasonable.

206. Facilities for carrying on usual employment.]—So far as prison arrangements admit, facilities shall be given to prisoners awaiting trial to work and follow their trades and employments, and all earnings of any such prisoner, after payment thereout of such sum as the Commissioners may determine on account of the cost of his maintenance in the prison, or on account of the use of implements lent to him, shall belong to him.

Visits and Communications.

207. Visits.]—(1) Due provision shall be made for the admission at proper times and under proper restrictions, of persons with whom prisoners awaiting trial desire to communicate, care being taken that, so far as is consistent with the interests of justice, the prisoners shall see their legal advisers alone.

(2) Every prisoner awaiting trial shall be permitted to be visited by one person, or (if circumstances permit) by two persons at the same time, for a quarter of an hour on any week day, during such hours as may be appointed.

(3) The visiting committee may, in any special case for special reasons, prolong the period of the visit allowed to any prisoner awaiting trial, or allow him to be visited by more than two persons at the same time.

(4) Every endeavour shall be made to provide that prisoners awaiting trial be not, when being visited, exposed to the view of the friends of other prisoners, and to prevent the friends of one prisoner from coming in contact with the friends of another while in the prison.

208. Communication with legal adviser.]—A prisoner awaiting trial shall at his request be allowed to see his legal adviser (by which is to be understood a certificated solicitor or his clerk, if the clerk has written authority from his principal), on any week day, at any reasonable hour, and, if required, in the sight but not in the hearing of an officer.

209. Communication for the purpose of bail.]—A prisoner awaiting trial who is in prison in default of bail shall be permitted to see any of his friends, on any week day, at any reasonable hour, for the bonâ fide purpose of providing bail.

210. Written communications.]—Paper and all other writing materials to such extent as may appear reasonable to the governor shall be furnished to any prisoner awaiting trial who requires to be so supplied for the purposes of communicating with friends or preparing a defence. Any confidential written communication prepared as instructions for a solicitor may be delivered personally to him or his authorized clerk, without being previously examined by any officer of the prison; but all other written communications are to be considered as letters, and are not to be sent out of the prison without being previously inspected by the governor.

Part III.

Offenders of the First Division. (See ante, p. 289.)

Admission and Treatment.

213. Separation from other classes of prisoners.]—An offender of the first division shall be kept apart from other classes of prisoners.

214. Bath.]—An offender of the first division shall not be required to take a bath on reception if, on the application of the prisoner, the governor decides that it is unnecessary, or the medical officer states that it is, for medical reasons, unadvisable.

215. Search.]—Every offender of the first division shall be searched only by an officer specially appointed for the purpose.

216. Special cells.]—(1) An offender of the first division shall be placed, as soon as possible after reception, in a room or cell appropriated to prisoners of his class, unless there is reason to believe that he is suffering from some infectious disease, in which case he shall be detained in a reception cell till he can be seen by the medical officer.

(2) An offender of the first division shall at all times, except when at chapel or exercise, occupy the room or cell assigned to him.

217. Privileges which may be allowed by visiting committee.]—The visiting committee shall, on the application of any offender of the first division, if, having regard to his ordinary habits and conditions of life, they think such special provision should be made in respect to him, permit any such prisoner—

(1) To occupy, on payment of a small sum fixed by the Commissioners, a room or cell specially fitted for such prisoners, and furnished with suitable bedding and other articles in addition to or different from those furnished for ordinary cells;

(2) To have at his own cost the use of private furniture and utensils suitable to his ordinary habits, to be approved by the governor;

(3) To have, on payment of a small sum fixed by the Commissioners, the assistance of some person to be appointed by the governor, relieving him from the performance of any unaccustomed tasks or offices.

218. Application of prisoner's money.]—Any money in the hands of the governor, belonging to any offender of the first division, may be applied for making special provision for him in respect of which payment is by these rules required to be made.

Food and Clothing.

219. Supply of food.]—An offender of the first division shall be permitted by the visiting committee to supply his own food on giving due notice beforehand, at the time required; but the governor shall not permit him to receive any prison allowance of food at any meal for which he procures or receives food at his own expense.

220. Restrictions on supply of food.]—Articles of food shall be received for offenders of the first division only at such hours as are fixed for the purpose. They shall be inspected by the officers of the prison, and shall be subject to such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent luxury or waste.

221. Restrictions as to articles of drink.]—An offender of the first division shall not during the 24 hours receive or purchase more than one pint of malt liquor, fermented liquor, or cider, or, if an adult, half a pint (8 ozs.) of wine.

222. Clothing.]—An offender of the first division shall be permitted by the visiting committee to wear his own clothing, provided that it is sufficient and is fit for use. The prison dress for an offender of the first division who does not wear his own clothing shall be of a different colour from that of other classes of prisoners.

223. Disinfection.]—When an offender of the first division is allowed to wear his own clothing in prison, the medical officer may, for the purpose of preventing the introduction or spread of infectious disease, order that the clothing be disinfected; and thereupon the clothing shall be disinfected as speedily as possible, and during the process of disinfection the prisoner may be required to wear the prison clothing prescribed for the class of prisoners to which he belongs.

224. Prohibition of sale of property.]—No offender of the first division shall be allowed to sell or transfer any article whatsoever allowed to be introduced for his use to any other person.

Cleanliness.

225. Hair-cutting.]—An offender of the first division shall not be compelled either to have his hair cut, or (if he usually wears his beard, etc.) to shave, except on account of vermin or dirt, or when the medical officer deems it necessary on the ground of health and cleanliness, and the hair of the prisoner shall not be cut closer than may be necessary for the purposes of health and cleanliness.

226. Cleaning of rooms.]—The beds of offenders of the first division shall be made and the rooms and yards in their occupation shall be swept and cleaned every morning. The furniture and utensils appropriated to their use shall be kept clean and neatly arranged. Should any such prisoner object to perform any of these duties, they may be performed for him by an assistant provided under these rules.

Books, newspapers, etc.

227. An offender of the first division shall be permitted to have supplied to him, at his own expense, such books, newspapers, or other means of occupation, other than those furnished by the prison, as are not, in the opinion of the visiting committee, or in their absence, and pending their approval, in the opinion of the governor, of an objectionable kind.

Employment.

228. Offenders of the first division shall not be required to work, but they may be permitted (a) to follow their trades and professions, if practicable, (b) by their consent to be employed on the industries of the prison. In the former case, if they find their own implements, and are not maintained at the expense of the prison, they shall be allowed to receive the whole of their earnings, but the earnings of those who are furnished with implements or are maintained at the expense of the prison shall be subject to a deduction, to be determined by the Commissioners, for the use of implements and the cost of maintenance. In the latter case, they shall be entitled to earn such remission of sentence and gratuity as the rules allow.

Visits and Communications.

229. Visits and letters.]—(1) An offender of the first division shall be permitted to be visited once a fortnight by not more than three friends or relations at the same time, for a period of a quarter of an hour during such hours as may be appointed. He shall also be allowed to write one letter and to receive one letter in each fortnight.

(2) The visiting committee may, by permission in any special case for special reasons, prolong the period of the visit allowed to any offender of the first division, or allow additional visits or letters to such reasonable extent as they deem advisable.

(3) The place in which offenders of the first division receive their visits shall not be the same as that in which other prisoners receive their visits, if any other suitable place can conveniently be provided.

230. Religious services.]—An offender of the first division who is attended or visited by a minister of a church or persuasion differing from the Established Church shall not be compelled to attend any religious services, except those of the said church or persuasion; but subject to the foregoing provision, the prisoners shall attend divine service on Sundays and on other days when such service is performed, unless they are prevented by illness, or their attendance is dispensed with by the governor or visiting committee for any other reason.

231. Application of general rules.]—Offenders of the first division shall also be subject to any general prison rules, except so far as they are inconsistent with the special rules relating to offenders of the first division.

Part IV.

Offenders of the Second Division. (See ante, p. 239.)

232. Separation from other classes of prisoners.]—An offender of the second division shall, as far as possible, be kept apart from other classes of prisoners.

233. Bath.]—An offender of the second division shall, on reception, be required to take a bath, unless, on application, the governor decides that it is unnecessary, or unless the medical officer states that it is, for medical reasons, unadvisable.

234. Cell.]—An offender of the second division shall at all times, except when at chapel or exercise, or in associated labour, occupy the cell assigned to him.

235. Food.]—An offender of the second division shall receive the allowance of food prescribed for offenders of the first division who do not maintain themselves.

236. Hair-cutting.]—An offender of the second division shall not be compelled either to have his hair cut or (if he usually wears his beard, etc.) to shave, except on account of vermin or dirt, or when the medical officer deems it necessary on the ground of health and cleanliness; and his hair shall not be cut closer than may be necessary for the purposes of health and cleanliness.

237. Cleaning of rooms.]—The beds of offenders of the second division shall be made, and the rooms and yards in their occupation shall be swept and cleaned, by them every morning. The furniture and utensils appropriated to their use shall be kept clean and neatly arranged by them.

238. Dress.]—An offender of the second division shall wear a prison dress of a different colour from that worn by other classes of prisoners.

239. Mattress.]—An offender of the second division shall not be deprived of his mattress during any part of his sentence except for misconduct.

240. Employment.]—An offender of the second division shall be employed at work of an industrial or manufacturing nature, and thus be afforded facilities for earning, by industry, such remission of sentence and gratuity as the rules allow.

241. Visits.]—An offender of the second division shall be permitted to be visited once a month by not more than three friends or relations at the same time, for a period of a quarter of an hour during such hours as may be appointed. He shall also be allowed to write one letter, and to receive one letter in each month.

242. Application of general prison rules.]—An offender of the second division shall also be subject to any general prison rules, except so far as they are inconsistent with the special rules relating to offenders of the second division.

Part V.

Offenders of the Third Division.

243. Treatment under general rules.]—Offenders of the third division will be treated under the general rules for the government of prisons.

* * * * * * *

* * * * * * *

Juvenile Offenders under Conviction.

266. Classification.]—(1) Every prisoner under the age of 16 shall be classed as a juvenile offender.

(2) Prisoners who have not been in prison before and who are well conducted in prison shall be kept separate from those who have been in prison before or who misbehave in prison.

(3) Any prisoner who declares himself to be more than 16 years of age, but who, in the opinion of the governor, chaplain, and medical officer of the prison, should not, having regard to his character, constitution, and antecedents, properly be classed with adult prisoners, shall also be classed as a juvenile offender.

267. Prisons for juvenile offenders.]—If the sentence is for one month or upwards a juvenile offender shall be located in a prison in the district in which accommodation is set apart for juvenile offenders. If the sentence is for less than one month, he shall be retained in the prison to which he has been committed, but be lodged in a part of the prison where he will be completely separated from the adult prisoners.

268. Separation from adult prisoners.]—A juvenile offender shall take exercise, receive school instruction, and be seated in chapel, apart from, and, if possible, out of sight of, adult prisoners, with whom he shall not, on any occasion, be permitted to come into contact.

269. Mitigation of prison discipline.]—In the case of a juvenile offender the ordinary prison discipline shall be mitigated in the following manner:—

(a) He shall not be required to sleep without a mattress;

(b) He shall be allowed special library books as well as books of instruction, from the time of his reception and throughout his sentence;

(c) He may be employed in association with other juvenile offenders in workshops, or in outdoor work such as gardening, etc.;

(d) He shall, as far as possible, be instructed in a trade which may be useful to him on release; and

(e) He shall, if medically fit, be exercised daily at physical drill in lieu of, or in addition to, walking exercise, with a view to his physical development.

270. Visits.]—A juvenile offender may be allowed by the visiting committee to receive extra visits, if, in their opinion, such visits are desirable and calculated to improve his moral welfare and future career.

271. Report to Home Office as to children under 14.]—Whenever a child under 14 years of age is committed to prison, the governor shall report his reception direct to the Under Secretary of State, Home Office, the same day that the child is first received into custody or again received after having been brought before the court on remand or otherwise, unless by the warrant of commitment the child is ordered to be detained in a reformatory or industrial school.

272. Duty of chaplain as to juvenile offenders.]—It shall be the duty of the chaplain to devote individual attention and care to the juvenile offenders, and in co-operation with the visiting committee and the Discharged Prisoners' Aid Society, to make every possible provision for their protection and care on discharge.

273. Discharge of juvenile offender.]—Before a juvenile offender is discharged the governor shall inform his relatives and friends on what day and at what time he will be discharged, that they may have the opportunity of attending to receive him; but if such relatives or friends are known to be bringing the young prisoner up in evil courses, then the governor may, with the consent of the visiting committee, abstain from informing his relatives, if some other respectable person, to be approved by the visiting committee, is willing to take care of him, and the prisoner consents.

274. Application of general prison rules.]—Convicted juvenile offenders shall also be subject to any general prison rules except so far as they are inconsistent with the special rules for juvenile offenders under conviction.

SPECIAL RULES, DATED JANUARY 24, 1902, MADE BY THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR THE HOME DEPARTMENT UNDER THE PRISON ACT, 1898, WITH REGARD TO PRISONERS BETWEEN THE AGES OF 16 AND 21. [STAT. RULES AND ORDERS, 1902, No. 502.]

Prisoners between the ages of 16 and 21 may be collected in a prison set apart for the purpose, and be subjected to the following Special Rules:—

(1) They shall be strictly classified, regard being had to their character and antecedents.

(2) Each class shall be kept apart from the other.

(3) They shall be divided into three grades: 1st, penal; 2nd, ordinary; and 3rd, special; with special privileges attached to the 3rd or special grade. Each grade shall wear a distinctive dress. On reception a prisoner shall be placed in the 2nd or ordinary grade, and his promotion from the 2nd to the 3rd grade shall be gained by industry with good conduct; but it may be postponed for idleness or misconduct, or he may be removed to the penal grade, or he may forfeit any of the privileges of his grade.

(4) They shall be employed in association in workshops or in outdoor work such as farming, etc., and they shall be specially instructed in useful trades and industries which may fit them to earn their livelihood on release.

(5) They shall, if medically fit, be exercised daily at physical drill in lieu of, or in addition to, walking exercise.

(6) Special attention shall be given to their education by instruction in the ordinary subjects of the Elementary Education Code, by lectures and moral addresses, and by their being provided with library books and useful literature, which they shall be encouraged to read.

(7) At a reasonable time before the discharge of any prisoner, arrangements shall be made with Discharged Prisoners' Aid, or other philanthropic societies or benevolent persons, for the prisoner's future welfare.
